CAN THIS BE A FACT?

Prof. Ogston Intimates That the Army and Navy are Behind the Times.

A NOVEL PUNISHMENT.

The Czar Decides That University Students Exciting Disorders are to Serve in the Army.

Heir Presumptive to the Austrian Throne Engaged to a Russian Grand Duchess—British Surveying Steamer Collides With Merchant Vessel—Drew Pensions for the Dead—A Costly Experiment.

London, Aug. 14.—The most striking feature at the meeting of the British Medical Association at Portsmouth was the indictment of Dr. Alexander Ogston, professor of surgery at Aberdeen University, of our naval and military medical services. He said they were gradually falling into a condition which could not fail to evoke anxiety. The most talented graduates refused to enter them, and many of the most intelligent officers in the service were convinced that their abilies had been thrown away and their lives wasted.

Naval and military surgeons had in time of peace virtually no training to fit them for what they might at any instant be called upon to undertake in war. Save a few connected with Netley and Haslar Hospitals, most of the officers had hardly once in their lives an opportunity of carrying out critical operations. Moreover, the poverty of the army and navy in institutions where surgery could be practised was very great, and until such provision was made they might be assured the services would not secure the number and quality of officers required for them.

The most important of all reforms was provision of instruction for officers in war duties. It was virtually important that the development of military and naval hospitals should at once receive the attention of the authorities.

Everything on board ship that could destroy life was in the highest perfection; everything that could save it was of the rudest description and behind the age. Matters were even worse in the smaller vessels, which had no surgeon and few surgical appliances.

Short Shrift For Students.

London, Aug. 14.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times says: "It has been decided by the Government that hereafter any university or High school student creating or instigating disorders shall be forcibly drafted into the army and compelled to render from one to three years service.

"It would be interesting to know whether the new regulation will be applied to foreign students. For instance, last year, during the university troubles, an American student complained to the United States Embassy of ill-treatment at the hands of the police."

A Royal Betrothal.

Vienna, Aug. 14.—It is reported that the Imperial heir presumptive of Austria, the Archduke Francis, is betrothed to the Grand Duchess Helene Vladimirovna, of Russia, who was formerly affianced to Prince Maximilian, of Baden.

Sunk in Collision.

London, Aug. 14.—A despatch from Calcutta says that the surveying steamer Resolute was sunk in collision with the British steamer Scindia, last reported from Calcutta, July 9, for Bombay. Several lives were lost in the disaster.

Drew Pensions of the Dead.

Budapest, Aug. 14.—M. Gubich, a pensioned Government auditor, has been arrested on a charge of embezzling the sum of 100,000 gulden belonging to the State. The prisoner, who had admitted his guilt, had, by means of forged papers drawn the pensions of persons long since deceased.

Experiment to Cost $900,000.

London, Aug. 15.—The Proposal to spend $900,000 on an experimental electric tram line between Westminister and Tooting came up at the London County Council meeting on a demand of the Highways Committee for $50,000 for preliminary expenses and passed.

DREYFUS' COUNSEL WAYLAID AND SHOT!

Maitre Labori, the Counsel of Captain Dreyfus, Waylaid by Two Men and Probably Fatally Shot in the Back.

Little Hope Entertained of the Lawyer's Recovery and the Doctors Have Not as Yet Been Able to Locate the Bullet. Intense Excitement in France.

Rennes, Aug. 14.—Maitre Labori, the counsel of Captain Dreyfus, was waylaid by two men at about six o'clock this morning while on his way from his residence in the suburbs to the court room and shot in the back. One shot was fired and the distinguished lawyer fell in the roadway. He still lives.

Maitre Labori left his house for the court at about six o'clock this morning. His residence is situated in the suburbs of the town about a quarter of an hour's walk from the Lycee, the route being along a solitary road beside the river Vilaine. He had reached a point half way on his journey when two men who had evidently been lying in wait for him rushed out of a narrow lane and one of them fired a single shot from a revolver. The murders were only a couple of yards behind their victim and the bullet struck Labori in the back. The wounded man uttered an agonized cry and fell flat on his face. The murders immediately fled through the lane from which they had emerged and both escaped.

Little Hope Entertained.

At 7.30 o'clock it was announced that the bullet had entered the stomach, that there was no outward bleeding and that the physicians believe that Labori will die from the wound.

Only two or three laborers going to work saw the crime committed. The spot was well chosen, as the murderers could not be seen by M. Labori until they rushed out upon their victim, the entrance to the lane being hidden by bushes. Moreover they were afforded an easy means of escape by passing back through the lane which led to the country.

An Eye-Witness Speaks.

One of the laborers, named Patoux, who witnessed the shooting, said—"As I was passing along the road I saw a tall man walking quickly in the direction of Rennes. He was on the towing path of the Vilaine. He was attired in a dark lounge suit and wore a bowler hat. It was M. Labori. Just as he reached the bridge crossing a stream falling into the Vilaine, two men about medium height and wearing dark suits and round, soft felt hats, emerged from a rural path entering the main road. One of them carried a heavy stick. They approached M. Labori from behind. Suddenly one drew a revolver and fired point blank at Labori. He was so near that it was quite impossible for him to miss.

"A sharp report was heard, and M. Labori threw up his hands and cried—"Ho la la!" (which is a common French exclamation) and fell flat upon his face. I and one or two others, who saw the deed, ran up, but the murderers had vanished down the lane. Help was immediately sent for, and the gendarmes quickly arrived and soon afterward Madame Labori."

Picquart in Pursuit.

M. Labori on falling retained presence of mind enough to arrange his dark morocco wallet, in which he carried his papers, under his head for a pillow until his wife arrived, when he half raised himself and dropped his head in her lap. A number of laborers who were unloading a barge of stones beside the river, heard the shouts of "Murder," "Stop him," raised by the pursuers and one of them placed himself in the way of the murderer, who, covering him with a revolver, shouted 'Let me pass; I have shot Dreyfus!' The man was so taken aback that he drew aside and allowed the assassin to proceed.

After shooting the lawyer, the murderer ran across the field until he reached the railroad. He crossed the embankment and followed the track until he arrived at the level crossing. A train was just arriving at full speed and the murderer dashed across the line in front of the train and toward the direction of the village of Chantepie, where he was lost to view.

He Escapes.

Col. Picquart and his brother-in-law, M. Gast, who, it appeared, from later reports, accompanied M. Labori on his way to the Lycee, pursued the murderer for some distance, but as they were both heavy men they were unable to continue the pursuit, and so returned to the side of the wounded man, leaving the chase of the murderer to a number of laborers and peasants, who declared they heard the murderer say, when crossing the marshy fields before he reached the road: "If I can't get away, I will go for them." Madame Labori, wife of the wounded lawyer, was promptly notified of the crime, and rushed to her husband's side. She found him with his head on the sidewalk and his body in the roadway. She threw herself by his side and took his head in his lap and fanned him with a colored paper fan, which she had evidently snatched up as she left the house.

Dreyfus is Saved.

M. Labori was perfectly still. Not a groan came from his lips as his head rested on the lap of his wife, who, by the way, is an American. As she fanned him with her right hand she caressed him with her left, and gazed lovingly on his upturned face. He tried to smile back the tears which glistened in his wife's eyes and she, mastering her feelings, heroically did everything possible to ease her husband's agony.

It is reported that the famous lawyer said, as he lay wounded on the ground, "I may die from this, but Dreyfus is saved."

Sensation in the Court.

Rennes, Aug. 14.—The shooting of M. Labori, leading council for Captain Alfred Dreyfus, took all the life out of this morning's session, and, but for the sympathy the attempt is sure to excite through the country for M. Labori and Dreyfus, the deprivation of M. Labori's valuable services to the prisoner would be a severe blow to the latter's prospects. The murderer apparently chose to-day for the attempt, because it was known M. Labori would crush General Mercier, the former Minister of War, with his cross-questioning. M. Labori's [illegible] had just been announced, when suddenly M. Jaun[illegible]y, Syndic of the Judiciary press, rushed into the room and called out; "M. Labori has been shot!"

All present gave a gasp of horror and surprise, and as the proceedings were about to commence, they excitedly discussed the crime and vigorously denounced the author.

Colonel Jouaust, President of the Court, when the news reached him, suspended the sitting of the court-martial until 7.15 a.m.

Broke the News.

It appears that Madame Labori herself broke the news to the court, and informed M. Jouaust of the crime, having rushed from her husband's side to the court crying for a doctor, and shouting that her husband had been shot.

When the court-martial was resumed General Mercier was confronted with M. Casimir-Perier, the former President of France. The latter declared Mercier's story, told on the witness stand Saturday, of the imminence of war between Germany and France in 1894, was grossly exaggerated, and complained of the action of the then Minister of War (Mercier) in moving 60,000 troops to the frontier without consulting him.

As it was M. Labori's task to take General Mercier in hand and Demange, associate counsel, was quite unprepared for the task, the few questions the latter put were practically of little effect, and General Mercier escaped cheaply.

Moreover, M. Demange was deeply affected by the attempt to assassinate his collegiate, and was quite unable to do himself justice.

The Official Bulletin.

Rennes, Aug. 14—8.30 a.m.—The following bulletin has been issued—"Maitre Labori was shot from behind, the ball penetrating the posterior region of the thorax, on the right side, at the height of the fifth or sixth dorsal vertebra. The heavy flow of blood prevents for the moment exploration of the depth of the wound. The undersigned doctors hope that the ball is lodged in the muscles enveloping the vertebral columns. They must, however, maintain to-day full reserve respecting the integrity of the lung and spinal cord."

The bulletin is signed by four doctors, Renaud, Reichis, Brismud and Vidal, and is timed at 8.20 o'clock this morning.

In Great Agony.

Rennes, France, Aug. 14.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon M. Labori was suffering great agony and the doctors, who had left the house, were hurriedly summoned to attend the patient.

Destructive Storm At Barrie.

Barrie, Aug. 14.—The most furious thunderstorm of the season prevailed early yesterday morning. Rain fell in a deluge, and the wind blew a perfect gale. The lightning showed in a quick succession of lurid flashes and lasted in that way for over an hour. Several trees in town were struck and shattered, and a barn on the Dewart farm, in the western suburbs, also suffered from a bolt. The residence of Dr. West, near Colwell, was struck by lightning, and two of the inmates were prostrated. On the farm of John Hillock, Vespra, two cows in a pasture field were killed. The storm visited the region across the lake late on Friday afternoon and took the shape of a perfect hurricane. Two lady excursionists from this town, Mrs. Goodale and Miss Bingham, were paddling a canoe half a mile from shore when the storm broke. Their little craft filled, and they would undoubtedly have been drowned but for the bravery of two young squaws, who put out in a small skiff and towed the half-swamped canoe and its terrified occupants ashore.

Policemen Charge Rioters.

Londonderry, Aug. 14.—The Protestant celebration of the anniversary of the Relief of Derry, besieged by James II.'s army in 1689, led to riotous scenes here yesterday. An excursion party composed of 400 members of a '98 club arrived from Belfast, but the police refused to allow the excursionists to enter the city. The appearance of a Nationalist band to meet the party caused disorders and stone-throwing. Both mobs attacked the police. Finally the Riot Act was read and the Mayor of Londonderry called out the garrison. Eight constables were seriously injured. The rioting was renewed this evening on the departure of the excursionists, in the vicinity of the railway station. The police made repeated baton charges, and several persons were injured.

Pardon Was Illegal.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 14.—G. W. Cline, the Grimsby fruit dealer, sentenced to six years in the Kingston penitentiary for attempting last spring to shoot his wife and son, and who was pardoned on Thursday on account of ill-health, enjoyed only twenty-four hours of freedom in the General hospital. Last night he was removed from that institution to the penitentiary again by order of Warden Platt, whose only explanation was to the effect that the pardon was illegal, a mistake having been made in the Department of Justice.

FEAR NATIVE REBELLION

Great Britain May Have to Face a Kaffir Uprising at the Cape.

WHITE SETTLERS ARMING

Ostensibly This Step is Against the Blacks, But Also a Weapon Pointed at Their Sympathisers.

The English Shop-keepers, Clerks and Tradesmen in the Towns Are Being Armed With Modern Rifles and Depots of Ammunition Formed by Instructions of Officer Commanding in South Africa.

London, Aug. 14.—It is two months since the first batch of so-called special service officers were sent to South Africa, and it was generally supposed at that time that they were primarily intended to fight the Boers. Now it transpires that their mission was to organize the white colonists throughout South Africa to deal with a Kaffir rebellion, which is expected to be one of the first results of a war between England and the Transvaal, and what is more serious still, to cope with a possible insurrection of the Dutch sympathizers with the Boers within the British borders.

Cape May Protest.

It is probable that one of the earliest complications in the tangled situation will be a protest from the Cape Government against the presence of these special service officers in a colony in which the Government holds its power by virtue of the support of the Dutch voters. Complaints from the latter are reaching Cape Town of the presence and activity of Imperial army officers, who are enrolling white men in a volunteer corps from which the Boer sympathizing Dutchmen are carefully excluded on various pretexts. Most of the Dutchmen are armed with old-fashioned weapons. The English farmers in the rural districts and the English shop-keepers, clerks and traders in the towns are being armed with modern rifles, by direct instructions of Gen. Butler, the officer commanding in South Africa. The Dutchmen are protesting their loyalty, and denouncing the implied insults to them by their exclusion from the volunteer troops. They admit that there is danger of a Kaffir rebellion, and claim the right to help guard against it. But although they are British subjects, the Government considers it unwise to trust them.

A Complicated Question.

England has not had to face so serious and complicated a colonial situation as this. Trouble with the blacks is really menacing and pressing. The Matabele in Rhodesia are restless, the Kaffirs in Cape Colony and Natal are sullen, and the impudent Swazis, who were handed over by England to the protection of the Transvaal, may break out at any moment. But the most imminent danger of all is located in Basutoland, which is under the protection of England with a British resident commissioner. The Basutos are hereditary enemies of the Boers, at whose hands they have suffered countless wrongs. They can put 30,000 warriors in the field at short notice. The resident commissioner reports that they know of the possibility of war between England and the Transvaal, and are straining like hounds at the leash to get at the enemy. Mr. Chamberlain has declared in Parliament that if there is a war Great Britain will not employ blacks against whites. The promise was doubtless made in good faith, but it is difficult to see how the Basutos can be restrained once the dogs of war are let loose. It may be necessary to assign 10,000 British soldiers to keep their friends the Basutos at bay while others are engaged in fighting the Boers. The white volunteers will probably suffice to deal with the Kaffirs of Cape Colony and Natal, and the white settlers of Rhodesia are being organized, doubtless to keep the Matabele in check. But unless the Basutos have degenerated in fibre and lost some of the hatred of the Boers, of which there is no indication the redcoats will have to bar their way to to Pretoria.

Over 2000 Perished.

Ponce, Porto Rico, Aug. 14.—Three hundred bodies have been buried in this city, and it is estimated that 2,000 persons were drowned in the Ponce district as a result of the terrific storm of a couple of days ago. In some instances entire villages were swept out of existence. Pestilence threatens and money and work are urgently needed. A newspaper appeal has been made to the American people for relief.

Returns of the number of persons estimated to have been killed by the hurricane are:

In Porto Rico: Ponce, 1,000, Humacao, 64, Arroyo, 26, Arecibo, 120, Yabucao, 200, Juan Dias, 46.

In other islands: Montserrat 74, St. Croix 30, Guadeloupe 102, Nevis 21. Estimated number of deaths, 1,683.

Besides the above losses it is known that many towns in Porto Rico from which no report has yet come were devastated by the hurricane with great loss of life.

WEIGHT OF COAL.

One of the duties of the Council is to consider the proposal that all hard coal sold at retail in Peterborough shall be weighed on public scales before delivery. There are many reasons why that proposal should be adopted, and if there is one valid objection thereto we have yet to learn what it can be. The town would benefit, less the cost of conducting the weighing operations. Honest coal dealers would be glad to be relieved of the unfair competition of unscrupulous rivals, if such there be, in the matter of the actual weight delivered. Consumers would of course, be pleased to know that, in addition to the honesty of the dealers they have been accustomed to trust, they had the protection of an official certificate of proper weight. In short, the only class that would not be benefitted would be the light-weight dealers. As these must be either a small minority or non-existent, we shall look for the cordial co-operation of the coal merchants generally in the enactment of a by-law along the suggested lines.

Can anyone give any reason why a load of hay should be weighed on public scales which will not equally apply to coal? There is really no room for argument on the subject, and it will be surprising if unanimous action is not one of the features of the first regular meeting of the Council after when the matter is brought up.

Yesterday's despatch from Otis telling of the capture of several important Filipino letters will doubtless be followed by a later despatch announcing that a thousand or so letters were slaughtered while the Yanks didn't lose a man. One of these days Otis will be telling us he has licked a postage stamp.

The value of all the farm live stock in the Counties of Victoria, Peterboro, and Stormont is, according to the report of the Ontario Bureau of Industries, $4,133,151. This is only $12,151 more than the people of Ontario will have to raise to make up the donation voted to railroad promoters at the late session of the Legislature. If the people's money is to be given away in this fashion, why not pass it around, so that every one may have a chance instead of giving it to a few enterprising individuals who have a "pull"?

HERE IS GOOD NEWS.

The Future Fuel to Cost Half the Present Price.

Berlin, Aug. 14.—Herr Montag, of Mannheim, Germany, the inventor of artificial coal, when applied to for particulars in regard to his fuel said—"I have taken out patents in seventeen countries. Until all the formalities are completed, I can make none of the particulars in regard to the ingredients public. I may say that from the point of view of hygiene the artificial coal is preferable to the ordinary coal, as it does not develop any poisonous gases, and creates little soot. It leaves no slag, and only a small amount of ashes, resembling wood or cigar ashes. There is no danger of an explosion or conflagration.

"This fuel is composed of from 92 to 94 per cent. of ordinary earth, and from 6 to 8 per cent. of chemical ingredients. It is cheaper and better than coal. Any piece of land, even if unfit for agriculture, can be used for producing the fuel.

"The cost of the necessary plant for manufacturing will be very low, the price of the machine being only $3,750. For steamship and steam engine purposes my fuel gives a greater heat, longer combustion, and needs less storage space. So every available inch of space in coal bunkers can be ulitized and I calculate that a ton of my fuel will do the work of one and three-quarter tons of ordinary steam coal at thirty per cent. less cost.

BRIDEGROOM FAILS TO ARRIVE.

Bride Weeps in Vain, but the Missing Man Does not Appear.

About ten days ago a quiet wedding was announced to take place in the south end, and a number of invited guests were present. The supper was spread, the minister arrived but the bridegroom did not come. The bride wore a wreath and a white veil, and the spirits of the guests ran high until the hour set for the nupitals. The bride became uncomfortable which feeling soon took possession of all present. It was half an hour after the hour set for the nupitals when enquiries were made. The bridegroom had been seen at 4 p. m. by the younger brother of the bride and he said that he was going to procure the license from Mr. W. J. Green. A messenger was forthwith dispatched to ascertain if he had been there. He did not go to Mr. Green's store. No one applied for a license, and without groom there could be no wedding. The bride wept until her white veil looked bedragled, and the guests—half a dozen in number—took their departure. Much sympathy is felt by those who know of the circumstances for the bride. It was subsequently learned that the groom had gone to Rochester, where he is at present employed.

SPORTING ITEMS.

Baseball.

The faces of the Wine Clerks were wreathed with smiles last night after their close victory over the Barbers, while those of the latter were shrouded in gloom. And perhaps with some reason, as they claim that the Wine Clerks played ringers. But, while somewhat disgrunted they are not by any means disheartened, and are ready for another trial. A goodly sized crowd were present to see the downfall of the tonsorial men, including some well-known citizens and business men. The quality of ball was far ahead of that played on Friday last when the Coal Heavers and Wine Clerks met. The Wine Clerks have improved considerably in their playing, but met with a stubborn resistance from the Barbers and had Con. Gainey been catching from the start the result might have been different, as the Wine men scored ten runs in the first innings, which was a big lead for the razor men to pull down. The last innings was exciting, the score stood 22 to 17 in favor of the hotel men. LeFevere and Simons went out in short order for the Barbers and things looked gloomy, but Pilling smashed out a two-bagger and Mitchell, Donovan and Fowler singled in quick succession, scoring three runs and having Fowler on third. Harry Gainey was at bat and sent a nice single to right field, but it took him so long to get there that Tom McDonough had time to throw him out at first and win the game for the hotel men. The score:—

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 3 to 15 per cent. copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRyee, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-cut to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $360, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

* * * "In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl schists extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent. of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendall, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I think it is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper. It is near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oil here because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is adapted to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a town could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($400 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.
George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.
Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.
Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.
Col. James. M. Wheaton, Boston, Secretary.
Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Ex-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allottment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

ARCHER CITY, TEXAS, MAY 8, 1899.

HON. EMERY M. LOW, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: * * Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States.

* *. The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cuperiferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.

The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formation; and there is no deep work.

I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.

* * As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.

Very respectfully yours,
T. BURTON EVERETT, M. E.

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

A MONSTER BATTLESHIP

She Will Combine Swiftness o a Cruiser With Fighting Abilities of Battleship.

BUILT ON NEW PRINCIPLES.

Great Interest Taken in the New Vessel Which is Designed by Chief Naval Constructor.

She Will be the Longest and Broadest War Ship Ever Laid Down in a Government Dock-yard While Her Draft Will be Very Shallow—Her Total Armament Will be Fifty-two Guns.

At the moment Emperor William was telling Congressman Foss that the best peace conference is a strong navy, plans had just passed the British Admiralty for an entirely new class of warship. Great interest is taken in the new vessel which was designed by Sir William White, director of naval construction, who has given a representative of the Associated Press the following particulars—

"We believe she will be the greatest triumph in naval architecture, both for speed and fighting. She will cost, ready for sea, about a million and a quarter; her speed will be a knot in excess of any British battleship and her guns, turrets, torpedo tubes, nets and booms will embody ideas which experience and experiment have proved far beyond anything yet attempted in this country or any other country. Her guns will be generally of smaller calibre than those of the Bulwark now building. She will be the longest and broadest warship ever laid down in a government dockyard, while her draft will be shallow. Her breadth is designed to attain the maximum steadiness under fire, and from her new steering gear very excellent results are certain. Foreward will be circular tops mounted with rapid fire guns. Her total armament will be fifty-two guns. The details as to their calibre for the present must be kept secret. Six torpedo tubes will complete her equipment. Her protection of Harveyized steel will be less than on the ships now building.

"The Spanish-American war directed our attention to coal capacity, and nothing will be wanting in that respect. Her displacement will be 13 000 tons. The new vessel, which will be laid down in November at Devonport, immediately after the Bulwark is off the slip, should be ready within a year. She will be the nearest approach yet attained to a perfect combination of the fighting capacity of a battleship with the mobility of a cruiser of that type advocated by one of the highest naval authorities in the world, Captain Mahan."

A Hundred Miles a Day.

London, Aug. 12.—Edward Hale, the well-known long distance cyclist, has started on his self-appointed task of riding one hundred miles each day (Sunday excepted) for a year. The starting point was Holborn viaduct, the program of the ride for the first day being Brighton and Back. Hale is riding an Acatene chainless safety geared to 84, with normal cranks, and two handle-bars, upturned and dropped, the total weight being 33 lbs. Edward Hale, who is now 35 years of age, will be best remembered as the winner of the great six days' cycle race at Madison-square Gardens, New York, about three years ago. He first started racing in 1882, and in 1885 he beat the 100 miles record on that now extinct form of cycle, the Kangaroo. Hale started on his journey in the best possible condition, and is confident of completing the necessary 31,300 miles in the course of his year's cycling.

The Phillipine insurgents, the London street car strikers, and the Peterborough baseball team seem to be playing under the one management.

MEN OF MARK.

President McKinley finds little leisure for light reading, but is a careful student of the newspapers.

Joseph Leiter has by no means decided to drop the stock market. He is a constant visitor to Wall street.

J. Pierpont Morgan is an expert pool player and an evening rarely passes when he does not enjoy an after dinner game.

Joel Chandler Harris, Georgia's famous author, breeder and poet, is to have an exhibit of Jersey cattle at the Paris exposition.

Senator Clark has just bought in Paris, for his Washington house, an old stained glass window, once the property of the Countess de Jause, for $30,000.

Sims Reeves says he lost $400,000 during his career as a public singer because he was too conscientious to appear on the stage unless sure he could do his best.

Ex-Representative Ben T. Cable is to furnish much of the money for the building of a chapter house for the Zeta Psi fraternity at the University of Michigan.

John Stuart, superintendent of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, was formerly a telegraph operator at Hokendauqua, Pa. He is now receiving $15,000 a year.

The Russian Prince Cantacuzene, whose betrothal to Miss Julia Grant has just been announced, has retired to his Russian estates to make preparations for the reception of his bride.

Before Rear Admiral Kautz left for Samoa a young woman asked him whether he had ever "felt afraid in battle." "Once," he answered. "A stray ball knocked my cigar out of my mouth and there wasn't another aboard."

The late ex-Governor Flower was once asked by a less successful financier how to succeed in Wall street. "By working harder than at any other trade or profession on earth," was the answer. "But won't that wear you out?" "Not before your time."

Mayor Moir of Scranton was years ago a journeyman tailor in Philadelphia. John Ross of the former city needed a workman, and Mr. Moir, being recommended, was offered inducements to go to Scranton. In February last Mr. Moir was elected chief executive of the city.

As for sitting for a picture, that has probably occurred less frequently during the millionaire's long life than that of any other equally prominent man in the country.

Buffalo is in a flutter over an extremely wicked Midway that it expects to have at the Pan-American exposition, and can't think of a suitable name for it. Why not call it Hamburg Paradise?—Rochester Democrat.

All because of a blessed war to the knife squabble between rival companies New York is now enjoying 65 cent gas. Father Knickerbocker will be a weak old gentleman if he lets them restore the higher rate.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Robert F. Hayes, a Boston clerk, hanged himself with his necktie as the noose.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

Champagne with arsenic in it was used by a San Francisco man as a means of self destruction.

Her husband wanted to move, and she did not. That led a Connecticut woman to drink poison.

Fearing that his wife would scold him for getting home late a newly made London bridegroom committed suicide.

"Ah, to see the moon at a distance of one meter," was the note left by a Paris suicide explaining his motive for death.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Work of laying the cable from Vancouver to Fanning island and thence to Australia and New Zealand will begin this summer, it is announced.

The new Nernst electric light dispenses with the usual vacuum bulb and replaces the hairlike filament with a short bar of refractory material, thereby greatly increasing the light and cheapening the cost.

Experiments have been made lately by French government officials with a new telephone, which enables persons to converse without putting their mouth and ear to the apparatus, the words being distinctly audible in any part of the room.

BY-ELECTIONS IN OCTOBER.

South Ontario, West Elgin, West Huron and North Waterloo in One Month.

There is not much liklihood that a bye-election will take place in South Ontario to fill the vacancy caused by the unseating of Hon. John Dryden, before next October. The Liberals are engaged at present in revising the voters' lists, and no election can take place until that is finished, which at the present rate of progress will not be for a couple of months yet. The revision of the lists at Oshawa has just been completed, and the Conservatives claim to have gained a few votes in the process. The Crown Attorney, Mt. J. E. Farwell, has been instructed to proceed with the prosecution of the corrupt voters reported on by the judges, but as the majority of these are known to be friends of the Liberal party there is a good deal of skepticism in Conservative circles as to the prosecution being pushed. Mr. Farwell is at present waiting for the final report of the judges in regard to the evidence taken at the last trial. From present indications there will be bye-elections in October in the constituencies of South Ontario, West Elgin, West Huron and North Waterloo and in view of the recent develepements in provincial and Dominion politics the contests will stir up almost as much excitement as a general election.

INDIANS SHOT BY THEIR CAPTORS.

General Torres Committs an Act of Barbarity Towards Yaquis.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—A special to The Chronicle from El Paso, Texas, says: News was received to-day from Montezuma that when General Torres learned that his nephew had been killed by the Yaquis he promply ordered that forty prisoners who had fallen into his hands during the engagement of three weeks ago be put to death, and they were accordingly taken out and shot. Only twenty Indians were killed in battle, but the official returns give it as sixty, accounting for the forty prisoners as killed in battle.

RITUALISM FEEDS THE ROMISH CHURCH.

Over Four Hundred Anglicans Clergymen Have Gone to the Catholics.

London, Aug. 12.—That ritualism is "a feeder for the Roman Catholic Church is clearly shown by Mr. W. Gordon-Gorman's book "Converts to Rome," a revised edition of which has just been issued.

A careful study of the names show how truly Cardinal Vaughan spoke when in June last he said that "the ritualistic clergy of this country are the real fishers of men who are bringing England back again to the true (Roman Catholic) Church."

Who Was Responsible?

Madrid, Aug. 12.—The Gazette today publishes the verdict of the Supreme Court Martial, which, in addition to acquitting Generals Toral and Pareja of surrendering Santiago de Cuba without having exhausted all means of defence, oredrs an additional injury to discover the responsibility of the lack of means of defence which necessitated the capitulation of that place.

CALLED IT A SOUVENIR

On Being Shown the Document Found in the Lining of His Waistcoat.

GEN. MERCIER HOWLED AT

And Gendarmes Place Themselves Between Him and the Crowd Who Threaten Harm.

M. Casimir Perier Rises and Dramatically Demands to be Confronted With Mercier in Order to Deny Some of His Statements—The Court Adjourned till Monday for the Confrontation.

Rennes, Aug. 12.—The second public session of the second court martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus opened at 6.30 this morning. The prisoner, as is generally known, is charged with communicating to the agents of a foreign power documents connected with the national defence.

The red and white facade of the Lycee was bathed in sunshine at 5.40 a.m., when Dreyfus crossed the Avenue de la Gare from his prison and entered the Lycee. The stringent police precautions as observed during the week were again taken, but barely 20 persons gathered to witness the prisoner's appearance.

The Spectacular Features.

Col. Jouaust, president of the court martial, and the other members of the court, began arriving shortly after six o'clock. They were followed by Generals Billot and Mercier, former Ministers of War, in uniform. The latter drove up in an open carriage, and the small crowd which had gathered by this time greeted him with cries of "Vive l'Armee!" and Vive Mercier!" On alighting at the entrance of the Lycee, Mercier looked very anxious, but immediately afterwards assumed a smiling demeanor. He spoke a few words to the officers at the gate and laughed, but his laugh sounded false, and his face, as he ascended the half dozen steps and disappeared within the Lycee, again took on an expression of anxiety.

The Former President.

M. Casimir-Perier, former President of France, arrived on foot, shortly afterward, and was saluted by the crowd in waiting.

Then came Col. Picquart, of the Secret Intelligence Bureau of the General Staff, who has done so much to bring about a revision of the Dreyfus case. He was greeted with shouts of "Vive Picquart," which he smilingly acknowledged.

Dreyfus entered the hall with the same quick, jerky step, his features were pale and rigid, and he took a seat upon the platform.

A Document in his Pocket.

The reading of Dr. Ranson's report, relative to the finding of a document, in the lining of Dreyfus' waistcoat was then begun. The opening proceedings were attended by a sensational incident.

Called It A Souvenir.

On Dreyfus being shown, by Col. Jouaust, the document found in the lining of his waistcoat by a penitentiary officer, the prisoner admitted keeping it as a souvenir copy of the bordereau. He admitted this calmly, and without trembling of the voice. Then he listened quietly to the reading of Dr. Ranson's report by Major Carriere, the representative of the Government, which occupied about ten minutes.

M. De la Roche-Vernet, one of the secretaries of the French Embassy at Berlin, was then called. He is a man about 35 years of age, with a heavy brown moustache, and was smartly dressed. He testified regarding the translation of the Panizzardi despatch.

Howled Down by the Mob.

Rennes, Aug. 12. — A stirring scene closed today's session. General Mercier had spoken four hours nearly, in ruthless denunciation of Dreyfus, who had listened unmoved until Mercier concluded by saying that if he had not been convinced of the guilt of Dreyfus, and if the latter's conviction had not been fortified since 1894, he would admit he had been mistaken. Dreyfus jumped to his feet as though the words had galvanized him into life and shouted in a voice which resounded through the hall like a trumpet note— "You ought to say so now."

The audience burst into a wild cheer, whereupon the ushers called for silence. But when Mercier replied that he would admit that Dreyfus was innocent, if there was any doubt and the prisoner shouted again— "Why don't you then?" At this there was another outburst of applause.

Col. Jouaust ordered the court to be adjourned until Monday, at 6.30 a.m. for the confrontation.

Mercier in Danger.

The gendarmes placed themselves between the General and the audience, who showed a strong disposition to maltreat the former Minister of War.

A Toronto paper says that about 300 women have been licensed to preach. The rest have not taken the trouble to get a license.

HE TOOK NAILS.

It Was All the Same to the Man Who Was Treating.

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

In a certain little town not a great ways from Cleveland there are probably as many of these peculiar people as any place of its size can boast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is economical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a penny that didn't go for some actual necessity.

There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of bachelorhood, finally married. In this little town it is the custom for the happy bridegroom to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in to wish him joy. So the bridegroom in this instance had a box on the counter, and most of his patrons were regaled from it.

Pretty soon the ancient gentleman first referred to lounged in. The storekeeper, who felt friendly to all the world just then, pushed the box toward the newcomer.

"Have a cigar, Uncle Jim," he smilingly said.

Uncle Jim looked at the box and looked at the storekeeper.

"What's this for?" he asked.

The storekeeper slightly blushed.

"Been gettin married."

"Who? You?"

"Yep. Me."

"An you're standin treat, eh?"

"Yep," said the storekeeper.

The old man picked up a cigar.

"How much did these seegars cost ye, Ab?" he inquired.

"Oh," replied the storekeeper, "they cost me 'bout 4 cents. They're nickel cigars."

The old man dropped the cigar back in the box. Then his gaze wandered around the store.

"Well, Ab," he slowly drawled, "of it's all the same to you, I'll take a pound o' nails."

And he got them.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HE VOTED FOR STONE.

And For One of the Most Remarkable Reasons on Record.

Theodore Bolton of Henry county tells this good story. "I was a strong Stone man," said Bolton, "when the ex-governor was a candidate for governor. One day while the campaign was at its hottest a Democrat from an outlying township came to see me. He called me out from my store and took me into a back alley. I thought he wanted to borrow $5 or ask me to go on his note. Finally, when he got to a selected place, away from the crowd, the old fellow laid down his cob pipe and said:

"'Say, Bolton, I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"'Why, Uncle Billy?' I inquired.

"'Well, they tell me, The, that Bill Stone beats his wife, beats her twice a week.'

"I looked the old man squarely in the eyes and never smiled and said, 'Now, Billy, you wouldn't vote against a man for beating his wife—and you a married man too.'

"'The, you don't beat your wife, do you?'

"'Whenever she needs it, Uncle Billy.'

"'Well, I didn't think that of you, The. The, I like you, but I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"So we parted, and Uncle Billy went back to his home in the back township.

"Three weeks later the county convention to select delegates to the state nominating convention met in Clinton. The first man I met on the streets was Uncle Billy.

"'What are you doing here today, Uncle Billy?' I asked as the old fellow shook hands with me.

"'Why, I am a delegate from my township to this here convention.'

"'And how do you stand on the Stone question now?'

"'Well, I tell you, The. I have been thinking about what you told me, and it's all right. I'm a married man myself, and I am going to vote for Stone.'

"And he did," added Bolton, "and to this day believes Stone beat his wife twice a week, and that's why Stone got his vote in the Henry county convention."—Kansas City Journal.

Campaigning With a Fiddle.

When a young man, the late ex-Governor Oglesby worked in the old Macon tavern. There he met the lawyers riding the circuit and formed the acquaintance of Judge Robbins of Springfield, with whom he studied law two years. Returning to Decatur, he began practicing in a town of 400 inhabitants. He soon became popular as a speaker. On one occasion he was making a Whig speech on one side of the square, while a Democrat was making an opposition speech on the other side. The Democrat was fast getting the crowd when Mr. Oglesby, who was an old fashioned fiddler and played as well as he spoke, borrowed a fiddle from a man in the crowd and began to play. That broke up the opposition meeting, and the Democrat, left without an audience, came over and joined the crowd that was dancing to Oglesby's music.

Buffalo Bill's Fine Shooting.

Colonel Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," is one of the finest shots in the world. One of his most wonderful feats was not generally performed in public, for the reason that its failure or success could not be discerned at any great distance. It consisted in driving into a white board five short, flat headed tacks with five successive shots, from a distance just short enough to allow the tacks to be accurately sighted. So great was Colonel Cody's skill with the light rifle he used for this feat that, given favorable light, he could generally perform it six or seven times without a miss.—St Louis Globe-Democrat.

It Is a Fact.

"What are you sighing for?" asked the registry department of the dead letter office.

"No one has so many rejected addresses as I," was the sorrowful reply.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Any one can distinguish a poisonous serpent from a harmless one, for a venomous snake invariably possesses a triangularly shaped head and a blunt nose, while its tail is correspondingly blunt and stubby.

NEW WAY TO ROB A BANK.

How a London Thief Tried Fishing for Bank Notes.

London, Aug. 12.—With a brisk, businesslike air there entered the Bank of Scotland, in Bishopsgate street, recently a respectably dressed, inoffensive-looking man.

Some important calculations of profit and loss apparently absorbed him, for he remained for a minute or two deep in the mysteries of figures on a piece of paper.

Unaware that the eye of a canny Scottish cashier was upon him, he began to put his careful calculations into practice.

Furtively advancing an umbrella rib, to the end of which a pin was attached, he endeavored to hook towards him an attractive bundle of bank notes from the desk of a cashier whose back was turned.

But the observant cashier, from his neighboring desk was upon him in a moment with a shout of "Stop thief!"

Near the fisher of bank notes stood a gentleman who instantly seized upon the stranger's collar. Wisely recognizing that his fishing was a failure, he made no resistance, but in the name of "Timms, of Balham," permitted himself to be marched off to the police station.

A Quarter Million Loss.

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 12.—The Guild building, on Elm street, extending through to Pacific avenue, was completely destroyed by fire this morning and the one-storey building directly east shared a like fate. Other buildings were partially destroyed. Many heroic rescues of the occupants of the fifth floor of the Guild Building were made by firemen, and it is believed that all were saved. The total loss will exceed a quarter of a million dollars.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Without Firing a Shot.

Paris, Aug. 12.—The Houdaille mission, which was sent to the Ivory Coast in 1898 in order to investigate the scheme of making a railroad inland, from the coast, has returned to France after having accomplished its mission, the results of which are said to be very important for the economic development of the Ivory Coast. The mission did not loose a single man or fire a single shot.

Crime Increases in England.

London, Aug. 12.—The prisons have recently become very congested, especially in the metropolis, and the commissioners have had to draft several prisoners to gaols outside London. It is anticipated that the forthcoming report of the Commissioners for England and Wales will show, as in the case of the Scotch prisons, a large increase both in the committals and in the daily gaol population.

DR. G. B. FOSTER,

Room 21 Oddfellows Building, corner Yonge and College Streets Toronto, Ont Canada.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?

It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.

It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness.

It makes a better circulation in the scalp and stops the hair from coming out.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.

It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.

Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.

WILLING TO PAY FOR IT.

What Uncle Bill Wanted the Newspaper Publisher to Do.

A number of newspaper men were exchanging reminiscences a few days ago in a Court street inn. One of them, by the way, was an ex-publisher—that is to say, he once owned and edited a paper in the upper section of the state. One of his subscribers was William Makepeace Thackeray Willington, whose neighbors called him "Uncle Bill" to save time and labor.

"One day Uncle Bill walked into my office," said the former publisher. "He placed his whip in a corner and removed his hat. He asked if I was the editor. I pleaded guilty. 'Shake,' said he. 'I am glad to know ye. When I was a young feller, I used to do some writin myself.'

"Uncle Bill lapsed into silence and did some solid thinking for several minutes. Then he resumed the conversation. He said he liked the appearance of The Banner of Freedom mighty well and hoped it was not only bringing me fame, but money also. Naturally my bosom swelled with pride. The old man said he had only a few minutes to spare, and, before leaving, he wished to ask a favor. I supposed that he was about to spring a little poem which he had dashed off all by himself, but that wasn't the case. Uncle Bill said:

"'My son, I want to ask you a special favor. My eyes are not as strong as they were, and I would like to have you print my copy of the paper in a type two or three sizes larger than you use in the regular edition. Now, mind, I don't want you to do this for nothin. I'm willin to pay for it. Here's the money, and if that isn't enough let me know when my subscription is due again and I'll pay what's owin.'

"The old man dove his right hand into his pocket, fished out a silver half dollar and plunked it on my table, saying: 'There's the money. If that isn't enough to cover the extree expense, let me know when I call in next spring, and I'll make it good. I'm willin to pay for any little favors.' Before I could explain the impossibility of his scheme he jumped into his buggy and started off for Deep Hollow."

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had secured his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 18 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an assistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $79 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of undecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

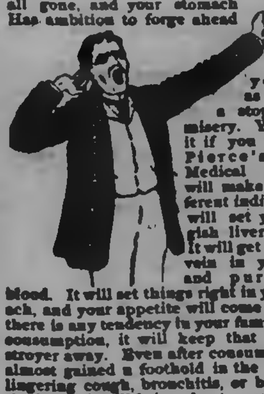
"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

Reciprocal.

"Yes, sir," remarked the amiable man, "I look to see an Englishman come over here and drop his h's once in awhile."

"Yes," answered the man who has been to Epsom downs, "and he likes to see us go over [illegible] and drop our [illegible] and Y's." [illegible]

DO YOU FEEL THIS WAY.



Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your sluggish liver to work. It will get into every vein in your body and purify your blood. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about speedy cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

O. S. Copenhaver, Esq., of Mount Union, Huntingdon Co., Pa. (Box 222), writes: "About twelve years ago I was suddenly taken with a pain in the pit of the stomach which was so violent I could not walk straight. It would grow more severe until it caused waterbrash and vomiting of a slimy yellow water. A physician told me I had a form of dyspepsia and treated me for about six months with but little benefit. Another physician told me my liver was out of order and that I had indigestion. He gave me a treatment and I got some better but only for a short time. I then tried another one, who said I had chronic indigestion, ulceration of the lining of the stomach, torpid liver and kidney affection. He treated me for more than a year and I felt much better, but it did not last. I then took to using several widely advertised patent medicines, but received no more than temporary relief. I then tried Dr. Pierce's medicines, using his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and the 'Pleasant Pellets,' and in two months' time I was feeling better than I had for years before."

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good."

Salvation Free.

Amongst the many readers of this great family journal in town, is a man well known to the community, who subscribed for the paper some two or more years ago, and although our collector was aware that nothing could be recovered by process of law, the account was allowed to go on. He was the biggest kind of a kicker if the paper failed to show up on time, and always had some excuse for failing to settle when called upon to do so by our circulation collector. He is not poor, either, holding a good position, with a liberal salary. Our friend is also a howling Christian, makes long prayers, and is a pillar in the church. We merely mention these facts incidentally. It is a mighty good thing for men of his ilk that salvation, at least, is free.

Bound to Have a Road.

Dr. Caldwell, of Apsley, was in town yesterday and gave the Times a call. The Doctor is a member of the municipal council of the United Townships of Burleigh and Austruther, and takes great interest in the progress and development of this important district. In addition to his large and increasing medical practice he is a rancher of considerable note, besides being interested in cheese, being one of the chief stockholders of the factory at Apsley. The Doctor expressed himself in strong terms regarding railway connection with the back country. He says the country is immensely rich in mineral resources, besides being very fertile. The people were crying out for railway connection, and they were determined to leave nothing undone to secure it. The doctor leaves for home this morning.

SAD DROWNING FATALITY.

Bert Gray, Son of Mr. Harry Gray, Drowned Yesterday Afternoon.

Another sad drowning accident occurred yesterday afternoon, shortly before six o'clock, by which a five year old son of Mr. Harry Gray, painter, lost his life.

It appears that the unfortunate lad, together with two other boys named Allen Wade and James Gibson, aged about seven or eight years, went to the river for a "swim." While the two lads above named took off their clothes in a punt that was fastened to the shore, young Gray lay down on the long pier close by. He must have been looking at the water, for the first thing the two children noticed was that their companion was nowhere to be seen. One of the men employed in building the foundation of the new power house heard the cries of the children, and ran over to the spot, but it was too late. The current had swept the unfortunate child down stream. The pier from which the little fellow dropped is situated below the mill on the Peterborough side, and runs along the embankment for a considerable distance.

Mr. Gray, the father of the unfortunate lad, was at work when the accident occurred, and did not know of it till he was on his way home. Kind friends broke the news to the unhappy mother as gently as possible. The body was recovered about 7 o'clock in the evening, when every effort was made to resuscitate life, but without avail.

Shooting Accident.

Master Bernard Tate, the 17 year old son of Mr. Tate, watchmaker, met with a painful accident on Saturday night at Stony Lake. Mr. Tate is a student at Bishop Ridley's college, St. Catharines and has been spending his vacation at Mr. Routley's island, Stony Lake. While handling a revolver on Saturday in some manner it discharged. It was dark and he could not tell exactly how it was done as the machine was somewhat out of order. He held the revolver in his right hand and the ball, a 22 long calibre, passed through the palm of his left hand, inflicting a nasty wound. A temporary dressing was made by Mr. Routley and the wound was attended to by Dr. Bell this morning. It is not expected that serious results will follow the accident, although it is painful.

Jubilee Point Hotel.

The business done at Jubilee Point summer resort this season is very gratifying to Commodore Calcutt and those associated with him in the enterprise. The hotel has been full up nearly all season, and the best of it is, those who have spent their vacation at this beautiful spot are delighted. The fishing never was better than it has been this year, while the attention given guests by the hotel management could not have been more perfect. There are staying at the hotel at the present time the following Americans from Buffalo N.Y.—Col. S. West, Mrs. H. W. Sprague, Dr Prior and Geo. Keating. On Saturday last the following guests from town registered at the hotel—Col. H. C. Rogers, Rev. Mr. Simons, and daughter, J. H. Roper, Mrs. Dennistoun and daughter and B. Morrow.

THE DERRY SEIGE.

How the Historical Event Happened and When.

Saturday was the Twelfth of August, the day on which 'Prentice Boys celebrate "the Relief of Derry." There was no demonstration in Peterborough, but many local brethren went to Lindsay to celebrate. "Derry, the original name of Londonderry, is derived from Doire, the "place of Oaks." It owes its origin to the monastery founded by Columbia in 546.

From the 9th to the 11th century the town was frequently in the possession of the Danes, and was often burned and devastated, but they were finally driven from it by Murtagh O'Brien, about the beginning of the 12th century. In 1311 it was granted by Edward II. to Richard de Burge. After the Irish society of London obtained possession of it, it was in 1613 incorporated under the name of Londonderry. The fortifications, which were begun in 1609, were completed in 1618 at a cost of nearly £9,000. Its charter was confirmed in 1662 by Charles II. From April 18, 1689, the Protestants of the North defended themselves within its walls against James II. until the 12th of August following, when the siege was raised. The population of Londonderry is over 40,000.'

Yesterday in Lindsay.

Yesterday there was a big gathering of Orangemen in Lindsay from all over the district to celebrate the anniversary of the closing of the gates of Derry. The town was handsomely decorated with flags and bunting, put up by "the original Turner of Peterborough," as the Post puts it. None of the local Orangemen turned out.

The Americans Preparing for Another Summons For Increase of Army.

TREACHERY OF FILIPINOS

Who Approach With Flag of Truce and Open Fire on the American Troops.

Word Has been Received From Lieutenant Gillmore of the United States Gunboat Yorktown, Who Along With 14 Men Was Captured by the Filipinos Last April—All Well But Two.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Although it has not been definitely decided to call out more volunteers, there is every indication that such a course is likely. The War Department is preparing lists of officers of the regular army who have been successful as field officers and commanders, with a view, it is supposed, of having material or new regiments should it be decided to raise them.

Manila, Aug. 15.—While the 17th Infantry during last Tuesday's battle was approaching Calulet along the road the troops saw a group of 50 Filipinos outside the town under a flag of truce. Some who were in white clothing, held up their hands to signify that they were unarmed. Capt. Hart with a detachment advanced cautiously to a point within 200 yards of them, when the Filipinos picked up their guns and fired a volley. The Americans dropped into the bushes unhurt on the first movement and returned the fire. At this the Filipinos ran off.

Word has been received from Lieut. J. C. Gillmore of the United States gunboat Yorktown, who, with 14 men of the crew of the gunboat, was captured by the Filipinos last April near Baler, on the east coast of Luzon. The message, which comes through Spanish prisoners, is to the effect that the officer and his men are at Vigan, in the Province of South Ilocos, on the west coast of Luzon. All but two are well. Lieut. Gillmore is allowed a house and a servant, and is fairly well treated.

Lisbon, Aug. 15.—Earthquake shocks, accompanied by torrential rains, are reported from the central portion of Portugal.

Leghorn, Italy, Aug. 15.—Admiral Dewey to-day remained on board his flagship, the Olympia, which arrived here at noon yesterday from Naples, being ill with fever. The captain of the vessel received the visits of officials and others in the Admiral's place.

Vienna, Aug. 15.—August Kostig, a Government railroad official, has been arrested for stealing the emergency mobilization plans which he delivered to a man named P. H. Zibowarski, who is said to have communicated them to agents of France and Russia.

Hong Kong, Aug. 15.—There were 22 deaths from the plague during the past week, and 25 new cases were reported.

Berne, Aug. 15.—Hamilton Smith, an English lad sixteen years of age, while descending the Otemma Mountain, fell 500 feet down a precipice, accompanied by two companions. He had climbed the mountain without a guide from Chaurion.

Paris, Aug. 15.—At to-day's session of the Anglo-Venezuelan Boundary Arbitration Committee, Prof. John R. Soley, in continuing his presentation of the Venezuelan case, discussed the question of military control and jurisdiction, neither of which, prior to 1850, he said, had extended west of the Essequibo River.

Dublin, Aug. 14.—The Nation to-day announces that the Pope has appointed Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, Apostolic Delegate to Ireland, for the purpose of presiding at the National Synod of Irish Bishops to be held in 1900.

The Samoan Commissioners

Banff, Aug. 15.—Baron Von Sternberg, German Samoan Commissioner, and Mr. Arnold Tripp, the American Commissioner, arrived here to-day from the great glacier of the Selkirks, where Swiss guides escorted them to the greatest glacier mountain accessible to tourists in North America. The commissioners are on their way to the United States from Samoa, and will visit St. Paul, Minneapolis, Chicago and other cities en route to the east. Baron Von Sternberg, who is a member of a German alpine club, visited the greatest of the Selkirk glaciers and was photographed in a crevasse. Commissioner Tripp, who has never travelled a glacier, made a gradual ascent of a few hundred feet. The commissioners have brought with them 3,500 stand of arms taken from the Samoan rebels, and these are now being frightened through American territory. They visited the last home of Robert Louis Stevenson, the novelist, and deny the story that it is in a neglected condition. Both commissioners say that German, American and other interests are identical, and regret that the commissioner representing England did not accompany them through the mountainous regions of western Canada. He will, however, take this route later to Chicago and thence to the Atlantic seaboard to England. The travellers are in the private Government car "Earncliffe."

The Steamship Argyle Disabled.

Rochester, Aug. 15.—At 3 o'clock this afternoon the Argyle was brought safely back to Charlotte by the tug Proctor. All on board are safe. The captain says a cross head on a cylinder broke, that the vessel drifted but a short way and did not strike ground. She had a large passenger list on board on their way from Toronto to Alexandria Bay.

HOLDING THE FORT, BESEIGED BY POLICE !

Guerin and Regis Are Standing Seige in Romantic Manner and Defy the Officers to Effect Their Arrest.

The Beseiged Supplied With Twenty Winchester Repeating Rifles and Plenty of Ammunition, as Well as Revolvers and Side-arms.

Paris, Aug. 15.—The offices of the anti-Semite League, in which MM. Guerin, President of the League, and Max Regis, the noted Jew-baiter, and ex-Mayor of Algiers, sought refuge from arrest on Saturday, are still besieged. They were guarded throughout the night by a force of police, armed with revolvers. M. Guerin, his friends declare, if attacked will fire on the troops. After attempting to gain them on their side, the besieged men threaten to pour boiling oil on their besiegers.

The persons already arrested include Comte de Sabran Ponteves, Comte Cheviliy, M. de Monicourt, Secretary of the Jeunesse Royaliste, and M. de Frevceenouri, Vice-President of the Oeillet Blanc or White Carnation Society. Comte Chevilly was a former friend of the Comte de Paris and is now a fervent partisan of the Duc d'Orleans.

The situation is believed to be less dangerous than is pretended. The arrests serve to turn attention from the Dreyfus affair, while the seizure of papers may enable the Government to make further examples among the superior officers of the army. A reporter of the Temps, who obtained admission to the offices of the Anti-Semite League found the place a veritable fortress. The grand hall contained 20 Winchester repeating rifles and plenty o ammunition, revolvers and side arms.

G. W. CLINE'S CASE.

Unfortunate Misinterpretation of the Decision of the Minister of Justice—Not a Case For Clemency.

Ottawa, Aug. 15,—George W. Cline, formerly a prosperous fruit grower of Grimsby, Ont., who was sent down from St. Catharines last March to serve a six-year term in the Kingston Penitentiary for shooting his wife and son, had a short period of liberty on Saturday, owing to a departmental error at Ottawa. Cline, who at the time of the attempted shooting, with a homicidal mania, but who was held to be sufficiently sane to come under the penalties of the law, has for some timh past been unwell, and efforts were made on his behalf for a commutatiyn of sentence. When the matter was considered by the Minister of Justice the latter ruled that no interference should take place. The Minister's ruling was misinterpreted by the officer in the Secretary of State's department, who had the matter in charge, and a message was sent to Kingston which led to the man's liberation from prison. Cline had, however, gone no further than the Kingston General Hospital, when the error was detected by the Minister of Justice, and the prisoner taken back within the prison walls, where his physical ills will be attended to.

Hon. David Mills holds that the circumstances of the case do not warrant the exercise of the royal clemency. Had the error been made in the Justice Department it is questionable whether the prisoner could have been recommitted. As matters stand it is held to have been of no more consequence than if the mistake had been made by a guard.

The Noxel Inquest.

Welland, Aug. 14.—As there were indications of foul play as to the death of Louis Noxel, whose body was found in the canal here yesterday, Coroner Cumines held an inquest to-day on the remains. Ten witnesses were examined but nothing of a suspicious character elicited, the evidence showing that deceased had been drinking and had evidently fallen into the canal. Dr. J. A. Cowper, who made the post-mortem examination, found the organs in a hhalthy condition, with no signs of foul play. The jury found that Louis Noxel came to his death some time during the night of Friday from suffocation from falling into the Welland Canal in the Town of Welland.

The French Cabinet.

Paris, Aug. 15.—At a Cabinet meeting here this morning the Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Decasse, related his visit to St. Petersburg and told of the cordial welcome extended to him. He said:—"This welcome and the toasts exchanged were the outward manifestation of the solidity of the bonds, always strengthening, which to the advantage of both, unite France and Russia." The Minister of Justice, M. Monis, declared a investigation had been ordered into the recent conspiracy against the Government, and said it would be carried out with the utmost celerity. But, he added, owing to the absence of persons wanted by the police, the necessary searches were not yet completed.

FRENCH ARE IRRITATED.

The Leda's Fatal Shot Enrages Boulogne—British Visitors Attacked—Relations Made More Difficult.

New York, Aug. 15.—The London correspondent of the World cables:—The shooting of a French fisherman by the British torpodo boat Leda for refusing to surrender when caught fishing within the British limit is exciting violent animosity against the large British colony in Boulogne, whence the fishing vessel hailed. An organized attack was made on several Englishmen returning from the Casino in Boulogne last night and was joined in by the soldiers. The Englishmen, who were taken by surprise, were roughly handled. They were beaten with sticks and iron chairs, but soon gained the upper hand, dispersing their assailants. English visitors who are the principal source of livelihood of Boulogne are leaving there to-day in large numbers, despite the assurances of the authorities that further disturbances will be guarded against.

The firing of a ball at the French smack when she was only 200 yards away is now regarded here as a deplorable error of judgment, as the Leda could easily have captured the smack ultimately without bloodshed. The incident has aroused a bitter anti-English feeling along the French Atlantic coast, where it is estimated 200,000 English visitors are now staying. Comments of the French official press are dignified, but the Boulevard organs are taking up such an inflammatory strain that the incident certainly will make worse the already delicate relations between the two countries.

Sir Charles at Liverpool.

London, Aug. 15.—Sir Charles Tupper, leader of the Opposition in the Canadian House of Commons, who arrived at Liverpool to-day on board the steamer Parisian when interviewed regarding the Alaskan affair strongly urged two alternatives, either that the United States should submit the controversy to arbitration or that Canada should construct a railway to Dawson City, thus opening up a purely Canadian line of communication with the gold fields. There was little doubt, he contended, that the United States would recognize the force of the latter alternative, and would accept arbitration. Otherwise he would favor closing the gold fields against citizens of the United States.

Story of Britain's Diminishing Trade Received with Chastened Satisfaction.

His Misbehavior Too Gross For Russia to Tolerate—Austria Fears to Stir Up the Balkans.

British Railway's Verdict Upon the Famous American-made Locomotives—The Slavic Movement Sapping the Triple Alliance—Long-windedness of Lawyers May Injure Arbitration.

London, Aug. 15.—The Board of Trade returns for July have been received with chastened satisfaction. While the totals indicate considerable progress, an analysis shows that the imports have not been swollen by raw material of manufactures, and a large percentage of the improving exports is accounted for by coal and other irreplaceable commodities and machinery, which go to swell the manufacturing enterprise of Britain's rivals. In short, it is useless to blink at the fact that the tendency is persistently against British [illegible]. The home market is more and more flooded with foreign wares, while the exports are about the same as they were a decade ago. The newspapers are comparing the situation with the bounding progress of the United States, and are using it as a text against "the inanities and fallacies of the one-sided free trade system beloved of Cobdenites."

The report of the Secretary of State for the Colonies on Barbados shows that the trade of that island has decreased with Great Britain during the past year £22,000, while it has increased with other countries upwards of £74,000. The [illegible] attributes this state of affairs to the increasing tendency to get all supplies from the United States, while more than half the exports of Barbados go to the United States.

Milan May Be Evicted.

London, Aug. 15.—The Birmingham Daily Post says that Russia proposes to accomplish the forcible removal of ex-King Milan from Belgrade in order to avert trouble, which Austria thinks such action would only precipitate. The scandalous situation in Servia led to Russia approaching Austria with a definite suggestion for joint intervention. Emperor Francis Joseph, fearing that it would set fire to the Balkans, received it coolly, and for the moment the proposal was dropped. But it is certain that the Czar is resolved that ex-King Milan must quit Servia, if not quietly, then he will be expelled. King Alexander is afraid and allows the Skuptschtina to assemble in a week or two to obtain Parliamentary indemnity for his illegalities. He is likely to get it, as the majority of the opposition Deputies are still in jail. Meantime Russia has suspended diplomatic relations with Servia. Kaiser Williiam favors Emperor Francis Joseph's attitude.

Not Quite so Good

London, Aug. 15.—Sir George Ernest Paget, Chairman of the Board of the yearly meeting of the company at Derby Saturday, said that the American locomotives which are now being used by the company are not quite up to the standard of the English-made engines but are nevertheless doing good work.

Arbitration's Danger.

London, Aug. 15.—The Times, in an editorial this morning on the Venezuelan boundary arbitration, complains that the proceedings are unnecessarily protracted, and expresses a fear that the example thus set will "operate to prejudice and arbitral mode of settling the difficulties." It says:—"Unfortunately, this is a too common drawback to international references. Witness, also, the Delagoa Bay and Bering Sea cases. If the system is not to break down, tribunals must exercise a free hand in discouraging the prodigies of physical energy in which modern advocates are too prone to indulge."

Germany and Austria.

Berlin, Aug. 12.—Germany's relations with Austria-Hungary are the theme of much newspaper comment this week. Political circles regard the relations between Germany and Austria-Hungary, despite the continuing of the nominal alliance, as having ceased to be really intimate. Newspaper comment and popular feeling throughout Germany have been for some time most bitter, because of the growing Slavic ascendency in Austria-Hungary. It is asserted that Emperor William shares this view, since the persecution of the German element has become a part of the settled system.

A Sacred Exhibition.

Rome, Aug. 13.—The Pope has authorized an exhibition of objects of piety during the coming holy year. The exhibition will be of an international character, and will be held at the Vatican in the same hall in which was hild the famous exhibition during the Pope's first jubilee celebration. His Holiness is taking a keen interest in this as in everything else connected with the holy year arrangements. He is much gratified at the enormous number of Bishops in all parts of the world who have promised to come to Rome for the celebration. A rare ceremony will be the opening of the Porta Santa of St. Peter's by the Pope himself on Christmas Day.

DANGER IN THE WATER.

Better than a knowledge of the art of swimming is a wholesale fear and mistrust of the water. A knowledge of swimming is like a knowledge of the science of boxing, in that it makes a man hasty in a quarrel and over-confident in his powers. So a strong swimmer, or an indifferent swimmer, regards himself as having a mastery over the watery element, and his over-confidence is his death.

First of all the sciences should be the science of the care of one's self or self preservation. It should be exercised every hour of one's life. People in towns and cities risk their lives every time they step into the traffic crowded roadway, but few accidents happen because city people have learned to look around them before they ventured beyond the kerb. And there is a precaution of this nature to be taken at the summer resort by those who would venture into the water. They should not plunge blindly into the water any more than they would run blindly into the city thoroughfare, busy with traffic. Every swimmer, be he powerful or indifferent, who ventures into deep water, does so at the risk of his life, and the summer holiday season is made calamitous by the number of deaths that have ensued from this over-confidence. The despatches in almost every issue of the Times contains half a dozen such accounts. As good as a knowledge of swimming is a wholesale fear of the water. It is a treacherous element, and has claimed many victims this summer.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The prospects are good that this fall Great Britain will be carrying the war into both ends of Africa.

THE WAR AGAINST THE PHILIPPINES.

AN EMINENT CHICAGOIAN'S IDEAS OF THE CONFLICT.

Uncle Sam's Mistake—A Remarkable Statement of Facts by Col. Tottle.

Yesterday Col. Tottle, of Chicago, arrived in town on his way to the back lakes and dropped into the Times office to procure one of our new maps of the County of Peterborough. The gallant Col. is bitterly opposed to the policy of the United States in regard to the Phillipine people. As the Col. seemed in a talkative mood we invited him to give us a statement for publication, which he did.

"What are we Americans fighting for? What principle, what heritage, what right do we defend?" said the gallant Col., as he leaned back in an easy chair and lit a good cigar. "We are fighting for the principle that all men are not born free and equal and that life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are not among the inalienable rights of men. We are defending with our lives that heritage of shame, that purchased legacy of dishonor Spain's rotten title to despotically rule over millions of a freedom loving people. We are struggling to maintain the right to govern without the consent of the governed.

"Already there are among the defenders of the government's course men who are candid and blunt enough to proclaim that Thomas Jefferson is rather out of date, that the principles of the declaration of independence are puerile sentimentalities. Though these men in effect declare that George III was all right and George Washington was all wrong I prefer their brutal candor to the miserable cant of those who with eyes turned heavenward, with tongues reeking with philanthropy profess their adherence to the vital principles of our national existence while undermining and shattering its very foundations.

"Here is the exact situation—We, the American people, a giant among the nations of the earth, are employing our unlimited resources of treasure and lives to deprive the Filipinos of the freedom and independence for which they have struggled these 100 years, to utterly crush or bring to its knees an infant people whose only strength is in the eternally just principle for which they fight.

"Our policy in the Philippines—is aimlessly drifting and oracularly expressing oneself both ways on the question can be dignified by that term—is defended partly on the ground of the supposed incapacity of the Filipinos for self-government and the claim that Aguinaldo is a self-constituted dictator, self-seeking, unscrupulous and treacherous. These falsehoods, branded as such through the testimony of Dewey and of our consuls at Hong-Kong, Singapore and Manila, are on a par with the information dished up to the American people ad nauseum that Otis has the situation well in hand, that the backbone of the insurrection is broken and that a few days more will bring the end of the conflict. When a number of well-known reporters of imperialistic papers, including the Chicago Tribune felt constrained to protest against the deliberate falsification by General Otis of their cablegrams and to accuse him of wilfully misrepresenting the situation in his reports to the American people, and when the national administration does not heed the protest but proceeds to put Otis on the back how much, I ask, can sensible people believe of what they are told respecting the Filipinos by those in the control of this administration.

"But suppose that the Filipinos were incapable to self-government according to our ideas. What right, what business have we to force upon them with Mausers and Krag-Jorgensens our ideas of government and civilization. Why not let them be happy according to their own fashion? But they have never refused to allow us to guide them in the gradual setting up of a popular government based upon enlightened principles. They have never spurned, but, on the contrary, have solicited, an American protectorate during the formative period of their own independent government. All they asked of us was an official declaration to give them independence at some time in the future under proper guarantees of peace and order. This we not only denied but every official act and declaration of our government, the language of the peace protocol, the peace negotiations at Paris, in which the Filipino envoys were refused an audience respecting the wishes of their country men, the language of the treaty of peace, the proclamation of President McKinley of last December, the pronounced attitude of a large majority of the senate, the undisguised statements of members of the cabinet and of the pet senators of the administration all pointed unmistakably to an intention to keep the Filipinos in permanent vassalage and subjection.'

He belittled the claim that the Philippines were necessary for trade and commerce, maintaining that trade was the result of low prices. He said that the best way to expand commerce was to repeal the antiquated shipping law and remove the Chinese wall of protective tariff. He denounced the press censorship at Manila and claimed the adjusting the negro problem, lynching and the corruption in city and state legislature was of greatest interest and importance to the United States than Americanizing the residents of the Philippines.

Referring to the colonial system, he said—

"A colonial empire of necessity requires an immense fleet, extensive fortifications at home and in the colonies the yearly sacrifice of many thousands of our boys, possibly in consequence thereof, the introduction of involuntary military service by a system of conscription, a vast increase of the burdens of taxation. Is it right that, instead of cultivating the arts of peace and developing the resources of our richly blessed country, we should sacrifice our best energies to the love of glory, to the dream of an empire, that we allow ourselves to be allured by the will of the wisp of external splendor into the mire of militarism?

"The first fruits of the new and untried course in which our ship of state is steering are the disgraceful press censorship at Manila, the forbidding of the mails to manly protest against our war of conquest, the efforts of the press to make traitors of those who have the courage to denounce the breaking away from traditional principle, the adulation and blind worship of the responsible head of the government on the part of those who call themselves loyalists, but who had better be styled royalists. Meanwhile our own taxes go on and transports laden with new recruits for Philippine graveyards hurry across the sea.'

As the Col. concluded he placed an order for a number of extra copies of the Times containing the article, and told us to mail this g. L. j. to his address until we got orders to stop sending it.

Col Tottle is accompanied by a party of five or six, and expects to spend several weeks on our back lakes.

No More Purple Twos.

The use of two cent purple postage stamp has been discontinued, and hereafter the stamp of that denomination will be printed in red. This is in accordance with the specifications of the universal postal union. The post office department will first, however, surcharge down to two cents the unissued remnant of old three-cent stamps in red now on hand, and as soon as the supply of such surcharged threes is exhausted, the issue of two-cent stamps in red will begin.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

CAN THIS BE A FACT?

Prof. Ogston Intimates That the Army and Navy are Behind the Times.

A NOVEL PUNISHMENT.

The Czar Decides That University Students Exciting Disorders are to Serve in the Army.

Heir Presumptive to the Austrian Throne Engaged to a Russian Grand Duchess—British Surveying Steamer Collides With Merchant Vessel—Drew Pensions for the Dead—A Costly Experiment.

London, Aug. 14.—The most striking feature at the meeting of the British Medical Association at Portsmouth was the indictment of Dr. Alexander Ogston, professor of surgery at Aberdeen University, of our naval and military medical services. He said they were gradually falling into a condition which could not fail to evoke anxiety. The most talented graduates refused to enter them, and many of the most intelligent officers in the service were convinced that their abilies had been thrown away and their lives wasted.

Naval and military surgeons had in time of peace virtually no training to fit them for what they might at any instant be called upon to undertake in war. Save a few connected with Netley and Haslar Hospitals, most of the officers had hardly once in their lives an opportunity of carrying out critical operations. Moreover, the poverty of the army and navy in institutions where surgery could be practised was very great, and until such provision was made they might be assured the services would not secure the number and quality of officers required for them.

The most important of all reforms was provision of instruction for officers in war duties. It was virtually important that the development of military and naval hospitals should at once receive the attention of the authorities.

Everything on board ship that could destroy life was in the highest perfection; everything that could save it was of the rudest description and behind the age. Matters were even worse in the smaller vessels, which had no surgeon and few surgical appliances.

Short Shrift For Students.

London, Aug. 14.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times says: "It has been decided by the Government that hereafter any university or High school student creating or instigating disorders shall be forcibly drafted into the army and compelled to render from one to three years service.

"It would be interesting to know whether the new regulation will be applied to foreign students. For instance, last year, during the university troubles, an American student complained to the United States Embassy of ill-treatment at the hands of the police."

Drew Pensions of the Dead.

Budapest, Aug. 14.—M. Gubich, a pensioned Government auditor, has been arrested on a charge of embezzling the sum of 100,000 gulden belonging to the State. The prisoner, who had admitted his guilt, had, by means of forged papers, drawn the pensions of persons long since deceased.

Experiment to Cost $900,000.

London, Aug. 15.—The Proposal to spend $900,000 on an experimental electric tram line between Westminster and Tooting came up at the London County Council meeting on a demand of the Highways Committee for $50,000 for preliminary expenses and passed.

FUNSTON AND HIS MEN.

General Funston has been in the swim.—Boston Herald.

Hail to General Funston, the unconsulated Hobson of the orient!—Detroit Free Press.

Ten to one, when Aguinaldo gets his last ditch ready, that man Funston will be on hand to swim it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

General Fred Funston, the Kansas cyclone in the tropics, is not a Chicago man. He didn't stop to boil the water.—Omaha Bee.

Judging by the elegant fight he puts up, Fred Funston must have been a member of some Kansas church choir.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Twentieth Kansas is showing itself ambitious, ambidextrous and amphibious. It is right in the swim all the time.—Topeka Capital.

General Funston can have anything he wants in Kansas when he gets home, even Jerry Simpson's socks, if he can find them.—St. Paul Globe.

We will soon be hearing from the chaps who attended swimming school with General Fred Funston and tied knots in his clothes.—Washington Post.

General Luna is the first to see the sea serpent this season. Some observers say it was the Kansas regiment using a rope for a ferry.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No wonder the Twentieth Kansas volunteers have invariably swept the Filipinos before them. Their battlecry is the Kansas university football yell of "Rock chalk! Jayhawk! K. S. U.!"—St. Louis Republic.

THE CYNIC.

All of us are very clever in finding excuses for not working more.

The most sensible woman will "put on" a little before a preacher.

A man is not really prominent until he has officiated at three prominent funerals.

Some women who never work for anything else will work like slaves for a church.

An old maid dearly loves to watch a quarrel between a husband and wife to see how it comes out.

If a man truly loves his wife, he is very apt to become confidential and tell her a lot of stories on the other fellows.

In talking it is well to know that people will not remember what you are saying unless they can use it against you.

A man always rises in his own estimation when he gets on familiar terms with a person of whom he once stood in awe.

There probably never was a woman too good to try to pass her children off as under age when traveling on the railroad.—Atchison Globe.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

Peacocks are reliable weather prophets. Before a storm the gaudy birds become restless and clamorous.

The green woodpecker is said to laugh his "Ya-ha-ha" in different, more liquid tones when rain is coming, and especially gifted persons claim his cry really changes to "rain, rain, rain!"

In Dorsetshire, England, they foretell storms by the flight of the rooks. When they are pitch falling or playing at tumbling, diving and wheeling in the air, they say a storm is due.

Sea fowl are very clever in foretelling a storm. To a sailor bad weather means wind, and to a landsman it means rain, but the screaming of the water birds usually foretells a change of some sort for the worse in the prevailing weather.

SISTERLY CITIES.

Minneapolis has lost a dam, but then the town was never worth one.—St. Paul Dispatch.

What is being done for art in Chicago is not much. What is being done for art by Chicago is infinitely less.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

If the New York gas war keeps on at its present rate of progress, consumers will soon get the stuff for nothing, with a chromo and a pound of tea thrown in.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

New Yorkers are talking of having a self propelling fire engine. Come up this way, neighbors, and see what the metropolis of Connecticut can show you in that line. You're years behind us.—Hartford Courant.

FOUL TIPS.

For Sale—One baseball team. Answers to the name of "Giants." Any offer will be accepted.—New York Herald.

The ex-prides of Von der Ahe haven't as yet had their batting eyes forwarded from St. Louis.—Cleveland Leader.

As in previous years, the Washington team, as a matter of strict courtesy, will be known as a baseball club.—Chicago Record.

EUGENE FIELD AND TABOR.

How the Humorist Made Life a Burden For the Millionaire.

"Up to middle age the late Senator Tabor's life was one of great hardship," said a former resident of the Silver State, "and when he suddenly became fabulously rich he plunged into luxuries like a starving man wading into a banquet. One of his early freaks was the purchase of several magnificent lace nightrobes which cost $100 apiece and which he kept locked up in a safe during the day. Eugene Field was editor of the Denver Tribune at the time, and those lace nightrobes made him simply hysterical. He wrote column upon column about them, describing the garments in detail, with numerous diagrams depicting sections fore and aft. The diagrams were hideous affairs, which Field carved out himself with a penknife on the back of old wood type. He used to describe how Tabor would forget the combination of the safe and sit up, shivering and naked, half the night trying to remember the right figures.

"Altogether he kept Denver in a roar for weeks and made Tabor so wild that one day he rushed into his office, snatched the unfortunate nightrobes out of their compartment and tore them to threads. 'There, now!' he exclaimed, wiping his forehead and kicking the tattered fragments into a corner, 'I hope that fool will be satisfied. I'll be hanged if I ain't going to get a gunny sack,' he continued, 'cut some holes in the end for my head and arms, and then sleep in it for the rest of my life!'

"When Tabor was appointed to the senate to fill an unexpired term of exactly 30 days, Field broke loose again and had all kinds of fun with the old man. He declared that Tabor opposed the tariff bill on the ground that it encouraged lawlessness in the west. 'I don't know this tariff bill,' he reported the senator as saying in a speech, 'but we have entirely too many of 'em out where I live. There's Wild Bill and Pecos Bill and Billy the Kid—all no good. If you let Tariff Bill have everything to do with the custom house he is liable to steal the Atlantic ocean.' Many of the honest frontier folk took these flights of fancy seriously, and drove Tabor nearly distracted by long letters of remonstrance, urging him to read up and get posted, so as not to disgrace the state.

"At the expiration of the senator's brief term he circulated an autograph album among his fellow members, and the incident tickled Field immensely. He gave what purported to be a copy of the 'sentiments' inscribed in the volume by the different statesmen—such things as 'When this you see, remember me, Roscoe Conkling,' and 'Sure as the moss grows 'round a stump you are my darling sugar lump—I mean chump—George F. Hoar,' and similar nonsense, all of which maddened his victim.

"I think 'Gene Field was the only man Tabor never forgave, for in spite of his gaunt, forbidding exterior, the miner magnate was as tender hearted as a girl. He was really full of sterling qualities, and in his proper sphere he would have been anything but grotesque. One thing is sure—if every fellow he helped in secret would have joined his funeral procession he would have gone to his grave like an emperor of old."—New Orleans Times Democrat.

Pardon Was Illegal.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 14.—G. W. Cline, the Grimsby fruit dealer, sentenced to six years in the Kingston penitentiary for attempting last spring to shoot his wife and son, and who was pardoned on Thursday on account of ill-health, enjoyed only twenty-four hours of freedom in the General hospital. Last night he was removed from that institution to the penitentiary again by order of Warden Platt, whose only explanation was to the effect that the pardon was illegal, a mistake having been made in the Department of Justice.

FEAR NATIVE REBELLION

Great Britain May Have to Face a Kaffir Uprising at the Cape.

WHITE SETTLERS ARMING

Ostensibly This Step is Against the Blacks, But Also a Weapon Pointed at Their Sympathisers.

The English Shop-keepers, Clerks and Tradesmen in the Towns Are Being Armed With Modern Rifles and Depots of Ammunition Formed by Instructions of Officer Commanding in South Africa.

London, Aug. 14.—It is two months since the first batch of so-called special service officers were sent to South Africa, and it was generally supposed at that time that they were primarily intended to fight the Boers. Now it transpires that their mission was to organize the white colonists throughout South Africa to deal with a Kaffir rebellion, which is expected to be one of the first results of a war between England and the Transvaal, and what is more serious still, to cope with a possible insurrection of the Dutch sympathizers with the Boers within the British borders.

Cape May Protest.

It is probable that one of the earliest complications in the tangled situation will be a protest from the Cape Government against the presence of these special service officers in a colony in which the Government holds its power by virtue of the support of the Dutch voters. Complaints from the latter are reaching Cape Town of the presence and activity of Imperial army officers, who are enrolling white men in a volunteer corps from which the Boer sympathizing Dutchmen are carefully excluded on various pretexts. Most of the Dutchmen are armed with old-fashioned weapons. The English farmers in the rural districts and the English shop-keepers, clerks and traders in the towns are being armed with modern rifles, by direct instructions of Gen. Butler, the officer commanding in South Africa. The Dutchmen are protesting their loyalty, and denouncing the implied insults to them by their exclusion from the volunteer troops. They admit that there is danger of a Kaffir rebellion, and claim the right to help guard against it. But although they are British subjects, the Government considers it unwise to trust them.

A Complicated Question.

England has not had to face so serious and complicated a colonial situation as this. Trouble with the blacks is really menacing and pressing. The Matabele in Rhodesia are restless, the Kaffirs in Cape Colony and Natal are sullen, and the impudent Swazis, who were handed over by England to the protection of the Transvaal, may break out at any moment. But the most imminent danger of all is located in Basutoland, which is under the protection of England with a British resident commissioner. The Basutos are hereditary enemies of the Boers, at whose hands they have suffered countless wrongs. They can put 30,000 warriors in the field at short notice. The resident commissioner reports that they know of the possibility of war between England and the Transvaal, and are straining like hounds at the leash to get at the enemy. Mr. Chamberlain has declared in Parliament that if there is a war Great Britain will not employ blacks against whites. The promise was doubtless made in good faith, but it is difficult to see how the Basutos can be restrained once the dogs of war are let loose. It may be necessary to assign 10,000 British soldiers to keep their friends the Basutos at bay while others are engaged in fighting the Boers. The white volunteers will probably suffice to deal with the Kaffirs of Cape Colony and Natal, and the white settlers of Rhodesia are being organized, doubtless to keep the Matabele in check. But unless the Basutos have degenerated in fibre and lost some of the hatred of the Boers, of which there is no indication the redcoats will have to bar their way to Pretoria.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. THE MAGICAL MIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected in Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

Fact Versus Fiction.

"Talk about the seven sleepers," muttered the angry tragedian; "I'll bet there are 7,000 of them between Albany and New York."

CURTAIN RAISERS.

A new comedy called "Wheels Within Wheels" is expected to go the rounds.

Robert Drouet will play John Storm in "The Christian" with Miss Allen next season.

"Annie Rooney" is undergoing a revival in Paris to the temporary eclipsing of Dreyfus.

Richard Mansfield is reputed to have taken out a life insurance policy for $100,000 recently.

David Belasco has completed an original play which will be produced early in the season with a specially selected company.

An elaborate revival of Shakespeare's tragedy of "Macbeth" will be the feature of Frederick Warde's repertory next season.

It is unofficially announced that Rudyard Kipling is to write the fairy play to be produced at the London Lyceum next season.

Some German statistician has discovered that stage dancing is conducive to longevity. Taglioni lived to be 80 and Fanny Elssler to be 74.

Rose Coghlan has been re-engaged for her original role of "Mlle. Fifi" for next season, the piece to open its tour in August in Chicago.

Emma Calve's much talked of monument represents her as Ophelia, and the sculptor has promised to exhibit it at the Paris exposition.

Minnie Seligman will appear in the vaudeville houses in a one act play called "Therese," which has been done in Europe by Sarah Bernhardt.

In a play called "Wine, Women and Song," recently produced at the Princess theater, London, two demimondanes, armed with butchers' knives, fight to the death in a beautiful setting profusely decorated with flowers.

George Bernard Shaw submitted his new play, "Caesar and Cleopatra," to Richard Mansfield, but as Shaw had required a 56-year-old baldheaded Caesar to make love to a 16-year-old Cleopatra the manuscript was returned.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey properly kept will improve with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No trash of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Pea fowls are small bodied birds, and it will not pay to raise them for their flesh.

Do not hatch bantams too early. Small size is desirable. Hatching in August will give the best results.

Lack of shade in hot weather and too much exposure in the sun are often prolific causes of disease.

Clean earth is a first class disinfectant and purifier. As long as it is dry it can rarely be used to excess.

Until your experience and accommodations warrant confine yourself to one or two well known varieties.

Feed systematically two or three times a day. Scatter the food so that the fowls cannot eat too fast or without proper exercise.

Get as many early chicks as you can. It means early laying pullets during the fall and eggs in winter, when good prices can be realized.

A PRIME INVESTMENT.

BOSTON & TEXAS COPPER COMPANY

Its Property and Management

TWELVE THOUSAND ACRES OF RICH COPPER LAND.

The Boston & Texas Copper company have twelve thousand acres of land in North Texas near Wichita Valley railroad. It is rolling prairie, well watered fertile and highly adapted to agriculture and stock raising. Copper was found on the property many years ago and large quantities of the richest ore in the world taken from the surface and marketed. Openings were made from time to time and copper found to extend all over the entire property. Examinations were made by eminent geologists, chemists and engineers including Prof. W. F. Cummins, Prof. William De Ryee, State chemist of Texas, Prof. Jacob Ball of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, Prof. Gustave Westman of the Stockholm school of mines, Thomas B. Everett, Esq. mining engineer of Colorado and others who confirmed the States reports and practical tests of the extent and value of the deposits.

The Boston & Texas Copper company secured the property this year and at once began active work increasing the number of men from time to time until opening the property and taking out it now has a large number employed the ore, with the result that the farther operations extend and the more the ground is opened, the greater the deposits of copper prove to be. A section of two and a half miles long by one and a half wide has already been tested and a blanket of copper marl running from five to twenty-five per cent in copper was found to extend over the entire area and large amounts of nugget uncovered, ranging from forty to eighty per cent. pure copper. In fact, it is fast being demonstrated that this is one of the largest and most valuable properties in the world. Arrangements are now being made to lay out a town and build a railroad to the property. The people of Texas are taking a great interest in the enterprise and are giving it their cordial support.

The management of the Boston & Texas Copper company is in excellent hands, the interests of the stockholders are well conserved, the board of directors being one of the strongest. It comprises some of the leading and best business men in New England. Hon. Emery M. Low, president of the company is a gentleman of large means and of the highest commercial standing. He operates two large factories employing several hundred hands. He has held important positions, and is at present mayor of Brockton, Mass.

Col Edward B. Robins, treasurer, is a member of the staff of the Governor of Massachusetts, a position of honor and distinction. He was formerly in the wholesale dry goods business in Boston and occupies an enviable position in the social and business affairs of New England.

He is a man of the highest personal standing and a superior executive officer. He is a practical business man of large experience and great ability and is making a large success of the company by his untiring energy, capacity and intelligence.

Mr. Charles T. Crosby, another of the directors, is a member of the firm of Marshall and Crosby, manufacturers of Lowell, and one of the city foremost men. He enjoys the confidence and respect of the entire community. He was selected by the people as one of the committee to visit and examine the property on which he made a most favorable report.

Mr. Preston R. Mansfield, another of the directors, is a retired cotton goods manufacturer, and one of the leading citizens of Dedham, Mass., where he holds the position of treasurer of the J. V. Abbott Company. He is also a director and treasurer in several other large companies and is a gentleman of the highest social and business standing.

Mr. Charles O. Brightman of New Bedford, Mass., one of the directors, is a large contractor and builder and one of the leading business men not only of that city but of the State. He is connected with several successful enterprises and is an exceptionally strong man.

Mr. Stillman Clough, also of Lowell, another director, is a retired merchant of high standing and large wealth.

The affairs of the Company are in the best of hands, with one of the largest and best copper properties in the world behind it.

HE TOOK NAILS.

It Was All the Same to the Man Who Was Treating.

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

In a certain little town not a great ways from Cleveland there are probably as many of these peculiar people as any place of its size can boast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is economical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a penny that didn't go for some actual necessity.

There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of bachelorhood, finally married. In this little town it is the custom for the happy bridegroom to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in to wish him joy. So the bridegroom in this instance had a box on the counter, and most of his patrons were regaled from it.

Pretty soon the ancient gentleman first referred to lounged in. The storekeeper, who felt friendly to all the world just then, pushed the box toward the newcomer.

"Have a cigar, Uncle Jim," he smilingly said.

Uncle Jim looked at the box and looked at the storekeeper.

"What's this for?" he asked.

The storekeeper slightly blushed.

"Been gettin married."

"Who? You?"

"Yep. Me."

"An you're standin treat, eh?"

"Yep," said the storekeeper.

The old man picked up a cigar.

"How much did these seegars cost ye, Ab?" he inquired.

"Oh," replied the storekeeper, "they cost me 'bout 4 cents. They're nickel cigars."

The old man dropped the cigar back in the box. Then his gaze wandered around the store.

"Well, Ab," he slowly drawled, "of it's all the same to you, I'll take a pound o' nails."

And he got them.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HE VOTED FOR STONE.

And For One of the Most Remarkable Reasons on Record.

Theodore Bolton of Henry county tells this good story. "I was a strong Stone man," said Bolton, "when the ex-governor was a candidate for governor. One day while the campaign was at its hottest a Democrat from an outlying township came to see me. He called me out from my store and took me into a back alley. I thought he wanted to borrow $5 or ask me to go on his note. Finally, when he got to a selected place, away from the crowd, the old fellow laid down his cob pipe and said:

"'Say, Bolton, I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"'Why, Uncle Billy?' I inquired.

"'Well, they tell me, The, that Bill Stone beats his wife, beats her twice a week.'

"I looked the old man squarely in the eyes and never smiled and said, 'Now, Billy, you wouldn't vote against a man for beating his wife—and you a married man too.'

"'The, you don't beat your wife, do you?'

"'Whenever she needs it, Uncle Billy.'

"'Well, I didn't think that of you, The. The, I like you, but I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"So we parted, and Uncle Billy went back to his home in the back township.

"Three weeks later the county convention to select delegates to the state nominating convention met in Clinton. The first man I met on the streets was Uncle Billy.

"'What are you doing here today, Uncle Billy?' I asked as the old fellow shook hands with me.

"'Why, I am a delegate from my township to this here convention.'

"'And how do you stand on the Stone question now?'

"'Well, I tell you, The. I have been thinking about what you told me, and it's all right. I'm a married man myself, and I am going to vote for Stone.'

"And he did," added Bolton, "and to this day believes Stone beat his wife twice a week, and that's why Stone got his vote in the Henry county convention."—Kansas City Journal.

Campaigning With a Fiddle.

When a young man, the late ex-Governor Oglesby worked in the old Macon tavern. There he met the lawyers riding the circuit and formed the acquaintance of Judge Robbins of Springfield, with whom he studied law two years. Returning to Decatur, he began practicing in a town of 400 inhabitants. He soon became popular as a speaker. On one occasion he was making a Whig speech on one side of the square, while a Democrat was making an opposition speech on the other side. The Democrat was fast getting the crowd when Mr. Oglesby, who was an old fashioned fiddler and played as well as he spoke, borrowed a fiddle from a man in the crowd and began to play. That broke up the opposition meeting, and the Democrat, left without an audience, came over and joined the crowd that was dancing to Oglesby's music.

Buffalo Bill's Fine Shooting.

Colonel Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," is one of the finest shots in the world. One of his most wonderful feats was not generally performed in public, for the reason that its failure or success could not be discerned at any great distance. It consisted in driving into a white board five short, flat headed tacks with five successive shots, from a distance just short enough to allow the tacks to be accurately sighted. So great was Colonel Cody's skill with the light rifle he used for this feat that, given favorable light, he could generally perform it six or seven times without a [illegible].—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It Is a Fact.

"What are you sighing for?" asked the registry department of the dead letter office.

"No one has so many rejected addresses as I," was the sorrowful reply.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Any one can distinguish a poisonous serpent from a harmless one, for a venomous snake invariably possesses a triangularly shaped head and a blunt nose, while its tail is correspondingly blunt and [illegible].

A favorite subject of great painters is a mother instructing a daughter in music—giving the early lessons. Mothers naturally want their daughters to be accomplished musicians. It helps them along in a social way. But the most important instruction to give a girl is the lesson of womanly health. This instruction should begin early. If a girl enters womanhood free from the ailments that usually beset her at this period, she will possess the greatest of all qualifications for social success. Nothing in the world equals good health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription overcomes irregularities of girls and women. It strengthens the organs that distinguish the sex. It establishes a vigorous constitution, stops the drains and pains, and is of incalculable benefit in case of prolapsus. For the young girl entering womanhood, for the bride, the wife and mother, for those passing through the "turn of life," it is of untold benefit. It fits the girl to be a wife, and the wife to be a mother. It cures at home all drains, pains, aches and irregularities of women. It is a temperance cure—no alcohol or narcotic in it. Buy it of honest medicine dealers, who do not try to substitute something else to make a little more profit.

Mrs. A. F. Crenshaw, of Panasoffkee, Sumter Co., Fla., writes: "It is with heart-felt gratitude to you and for your kind advice, that I must tell you what your medicine has done for me. After consulting you about my case I took your 'Favorite Prescription' and can say it cured me of female weakness. I was all run-down; suffered with sick headache, pains in the back and bearing-down pains. My health is better now than it has been for three years."

For stubborn bowels, lazy liver and biliousness, nothing is as good as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are pleasant in fact as well as name—no griping.

The Teller.

A charming story by the author of "David Harum" has reached us this week. The story is published by The Poole Printing Company, Limited, Toronto, and is for sale by all newsdealers, at the low price of 15 cents, or will be sent postpaid by the publishers on receipt of price.

A Horse Case.

At the police court yesterday Peter Warne was charged by Wm. Bell, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., with the theft of a horse on July 22nd last. The charge seemed to arise from a misunderstanding rather than from any criminal intent, and the case was settled by Warne giving an agreement to return the animal, each party paying half the costs. Magistrate Dumble and Mr. Edmison were on the bench. Mr. Stone appeared for Mr. Bell, Mr. Hatton for the Crown and Mr. R. R. Hall for Mr. Warne. The latter threatens to bring an action against Mr. Bell for false arrest.

DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATIONS

Names of the Successful Students in Forms III and IV.

Certificates of successful candidates will be sent to principals and inspectors about the 1st of September.

Didn't Know It Was Burned.

Lindsay Post:— A party of six ladies and gentlemen—tourists from Indianapolis, Ind.—met with a temporarily embarrassing experience Saturday evening, having left the Esturion at Sturgeon Point wharf under the impression that that hotel was still in existence. When they learned of its destruction by fire the steamer was several miles down the lake on its way to Bobcaygeon, and then the travellers sat down on their trunks and bewaited their fate until good Samaritans hove in sight in the persons of two sympathetic cottagers, who invited the stranded ones to become their guests over Sunday.

MORE CONTRACTS LET.

At a Meeting of the Board of Works on Monday Evening Last.

At a meeting of the board of works on Monday evening, several petitions for sewers were considered and some of them referred back on account of informality. Tenders for the following granolithic sidewalks were opened:

Charlotte street—From Aylmer to Bethune streets, both sides, 8 feet wide.

The tenders were as follows:

T. E. Hays, 14 3-10 cents per square ft; R. Sheehy, 13 95-100 cents per square ft.; Evans & Langford, 15 20-100 cents per square ft.; Bogue and T. E. Wade, 14 37-100 cents per square foot.

The tender of Mr. R. Sheehy, being the lowest, was accepted.

CONNECTION WITH C.P.R.

Meeting of the Provisional Directors of the L. B. & P. R. R.

The provisional directors of the Lindsay Bobcaygeon and Pontypool Railway held a meeting at Lindsay on Monday, those present being Messrs. W. T. C. Boyd, Senator Dobson, J. D. Flavelle, Jas. Graham, J. G. Edwards, Robt. Kennedy, Col. Deacon, Squire McDonnell, John Kennedy, Thos. Brady, A. E. Bottum, J. L. Read and J. T. Robinson.

The meeting was called for the purpose of organizing to take the necessary steps to promote the construction of the road. The municipalities interested will be asked for a revote of the respective bonuses, and committees were appointed for the purpose of conferring with the municipalities and taking the proper steps to bring the matter clearly before the people of the townships.

The undertaking will be pushed vigorously, and the directors believe that with the municipal and government bonuses they will be able to finance the scheme and secure the early construction of the railway. The road will connect with the C.P.R. at Pontypool.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Times Bookstore gives trading stamps.

Two novels for five cents at the Times Bookstore.

The sidewalk on the south side of Hunter street, between Water and George streets, is being torn up preparatory to laying the granolithic pavement.

The union excursion of the Anglican and Presbyterian churches of Millbrook, passed through here on the regular train yesterday morning to Lindsay en route to Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. There were about two hundred and fifty on board.

An excursion will be run to town tomorrow from Toronto under the auspices of the teachers of Eglinton Methodist Sunday school. They have a one dollar rate and travel by C.P.R.

The celebration of the closing of the gates of Derry by the Prentice Boys of Lindsay on Monday was a failure owing to small attendance.

The train which leaves Lakefield for town at 7.25 will not leave until 8.25 on the evening of Thursday, Civic Holiday, in order to accommodate those attending the regatta, but will leave at 8.25 sharp.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The local ball team will go to Port Hope to-day to play with the team of that town. It is rumored that Port Hope will have Scott, the well-known pitcher of the Toronto Argyles, on their team to-morrow. The locals will have on their strongest team which will be as follows:—Sheridan 3b, Parnell s.s., Graham c, McCabe p, Scott 2b, Thompson lf, Connors 1b., Donovan rf, Grady cf, Quinn, spare.

Sec. Hay of the local club, has received a communication from the secretary of the Cobourg Club, asking his advice as to the possibility of arranging a series of games for the Eastern championship. The league will consist of four clubs, viz.: Peterborough, Kingston, Bowmanville, and Cobourg. A meeting will be held in Cobourg shortly to perfect an organization. The local teams will be perfectly willing to enter providing the teams are composed of strictly home material. The Peterborough club will not stand to have Bowmanville importing players from all over the country.

On Monday afternoon next the Wire clerks and Barbers will again meet in mortal combat. The barbers claim that they have the best team and nothing but the fates or a rainstorm will beat them.

On Saturday afternoon the employees of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co. and the celebrated Coal Heavers will cross bats.

A Farmer's Discovery.

A farmer told the Times recently that he had made a discovery that will be of vast importance to the farmers during the dry season. He has found that by planting onions and potatoes in alternate rows, the onions become so strong that they bring tears to the eyes of the potatoes in such vast volumes that the roots of the vines are kept moist and a crop is raised in spite of drought. The agricultural editor of this g. f. j. appears to be sceptical as to the truth of the above, but we give it for what it is worth.

A very fine group photo of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, I.O.O.F., is on exhibition in the window of the photographic gallery of Messrs. J. W. Green & Son, Hunter street. The picture is an unusually large one, containing the likenesses of one hundred and sixty-four members of the lodge. The officers are done in enlarged size and the members are grouped in the centre. The group was viewed with interest by many yesterday. The work is true, life-like and well finished and is a credit to the artists. It was all done on the premises, about one-third of the members being photographed by electric light.

Home From the Grand Lodge.

The Grand Lodge Independent Order of Oddfellows, which has been in session in Toronto, has concluded its work and the delegates have returned home. The Peterborough representatives were Messrs. T. C. Elliott, R. M. Scott and John Fanning of Peterborough Lodge, and Dr. Bell P.G.M., and M. Mowry, of Otonabee Lodge. The local representatives had lots of work cut out for them, and Dr. Bell and John Fanning were on two important committees.

ALFRED THE GREAT'S JEWEL.

A Curious and Interesting Relic in the Ashmolean Museum, Oxford.

Arrangements are being made for producing a fac simile of the celebrated Alfred Jewel which is deposited in the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford. The jewel is of priceless value as an historic relic, as well as a fine specimen of artistic metal work of the Saxon period. Its chief interest, however, will be the fact of its having belonged to one of the earliest and greatest monarchs of England, and that its identity is absolutely authentic. The following account of the relic is taken from Gorham's "History of St. Neot's," and gives what is known of its history and preservation:

"This jewel was found, in 1693, at Newton Park, some distance north of Athelney, in Somersetshire, near the junction of the Parret and the Thone. . . . . It is now in the Ashmolean Museum, Oxford. The form of this jewel is battledore shape; the obverse is faced with an oval plate of rock-crystal four-tenths of an inch thick; through this is seen the miniature, formed of enamelled mosaic, the compartments being let into cells of gold. The figure is that of a man holding a fleur de-lys in each hand. The reverse is a detached plate of gold (lying immediately on the back of the miniature), on which is elegantly traced a fleur-de-lys, branching into three stems. The edge is bevelled toward the front, and contains the legend: 'X Aelfred Mec He Ht Gewyrcan' (that is "Aelfred me ordered to be wrought"). The germ terminates in a grotesque figure, representing on the obverse the head of some sea monster, probably (says Dr. Musgrave) a dolphin; on the reverse, the lower jaw is wanting, its place being supplied by a scaly, flat surface; the mouth of this animal embraces a small tube, traversed by a gold pin, apparently a rivet, originally passed through some wooden stem to which it has been fixed, and which has perished."

Around such an interesting relic of our early history must necessarily have accumulated many legends, conjectures and suggestions. The purpose to which the jewel has been put has been a much debated subject. Its appearance at first sight suggests a pendant to a necklace or collar, but this is out of the question, as in this position the figure would be upside down. It has also been supposed that it was used at the head of a standard, and that it was carried before Alfred's army in his successful battles with the Danes. Other and more probable suggestions are that it was the head of a sceptre or an ornament on the front of a helmet or other head-dress; both these theories are supported by the presence of the rivet which still passes through the hollow mouth of the dolphin or sea monster which terminates the jewel at the narrow end, and which must have been inserted in order to fasten it firmly to a staff or stem of wood or metal.

It has been affirmed by Sir Francis Palgrave that the mosaic enamel figure is of greater antiquity than the casket in which it is set, and that it was probably presented to King Alfred as a valuable relic in his day by Pope Marinus or some other potentate. The work of the mosaic, with its inlaid gold lines, certainly indicates a very early period, and is unlike the Saxon art in execution. The golden setting is undoubtedly Saxon work of a very high order, and indicates much skill in design and execution.

The character of the enamelled figure has been much speculated upon. Some color has been given to the theory that it represented St. Neot by the fact that St. Neot was known to be Alfred's spiritual adviser and to be much venerated by him, and that he continually looked to him for guidance and protection. Some have thought that it was intended to represent St. Cuthbert, and others our Saviour, though there seems no warrant for this latter suggestion in the design or its ornamental surroundings.

British War Office Have Completed Preparations for An Emergency.

MATTERS MORE SERIOUS.

Great Britain Will Not Undertake a Campaign With Less Than 40,000 Men.

Grenadier Guards and Twenty-first Lancers May Be Sent to South Africa With Other Regiments—Kruger Apparently Playing a Game of Bluff.

London, Aug. 16.—The Transvaal situation is unchanged, according to all obtainable official information, but the continued delay of the Boer answer to Great Britain's demand for a joint inquiry as to the effect upon the Uitlanders of the proposed franchise reform measures makes matters look more serious. The War Office has completed its preparations for an emergency force of 20,000 men to be ready to leave within a week. Fast steamers for their transport are waiting orders. It is said that the Grenadier Guards, now at Gibraltar, and the 21st Lancers, now in Egypt, may be sent to South Africa, in addition to the other regiments which have already been ordered there.

War Preparations Are Still Going On.

London, Aug. 16.—The prevalent opinion in England is that President Kruger is playing a great game of bluff at Pretoria. He held a long session yesterday with the Secretary of State and the Attorney-General at the telegraph office. He was apparently communicating with the Orange Free State.

The British Government, on its side, is making counter preparations. Quantities of war stores have been forwarded to Bechuanaland, and the North Lancashire Regiment is under orders to proceed there at a moment's notice.

Since it is expected that the Boers would make a dash for Kimberly in order to cut off the Cape from Rhodesia, the British are preparing to guard the railway bridge across the Vaal river at Fourteen Streams, where the Boers have a field battery.

Recruiting began yesterday at Cape Town for Capt. Baden Powell's mounted infantry to serve on the frontier. The first batch left last night for the rendezvous. The [illegible] railway cars have been fitted with Maxim guns.

The Daily Mail correspondent learns that $610,000 has been placed to the credit of the paymaster of the Imperial forces.

It is stated the Government will not undertake the campaign with less than 40,000 men. The military activity must not be exaggerated, it being merely a part of the strong policy of the British Government.

REJECTED AT THE ALTAR.

But the Bride Changed Her Mind an Hour Afterwards.

London, Ont., Aug. 16.—Miss McGarvey, of Delaware, exercised the womanly prerogative of changing her mind by refusing her promised husband at the altar this morning. An hour later she reversed her decision once more, and consented to become Mrs. John Hargrave.

Mr. Hargrave, who is a resident of London, is over 50, while his bride is a handsome woman, not yet 30. The banns had been three times published in St. Peter's cathedral, and the church was well filled this morning to witness the ceremony. When Rev. Father Tiernan put the momentous question to the man, he promptly answered in the affirmative. Then the bride-to-be amazed the congregation by answering "No, I won't," when it came to her turn to talk. Mr. Hargrave stood dumbfounded, the priest looked dazed, and Miss McGarvey walked away from the altar, while the audience whispered wonderingly. As it developed it was said that the bride declined because her lover had not completed a transfer of property to her, as had been arranged. Mr. Hargrave had a long conference with his intended, and finally, an hour after the time fixed, the ceremony was solemnized. This time the bride was radiant, and said "I will" as if she meant it.

DREYFUS BREAKS DOWN AND WEEPS BITTERLY

While Reciting the Story of His Sufferings and Illtreatment on Devil's Island.

Madame Henry States That Her Husband, the Colonel, Forged a Document. Gen. Roget's Evidence a Vitriolic Diatribe Against Dreyfus.

Rennes, Aug. 16.—The second trial by court-martial of Captain Alfred Dreyfus, of the French Artillery, charged with treason, was continued this morning, Major Carriere, the representative of the Government having refused to agree to the adjournment of the case until Monday, applied for by M. Demange, counsel for the prisoner, and Captain Dreyfus, owing to the murderous attack upon Maitre Labori, leading counsel for the defence. The feature of the day's proceedings was the story of the sufferings of Dreyfus on Devil's Island, his prison off the coast of French Guiana. Dreyfus wept in court when the clerk read a document recounting the details of his incarceration.

The proceedings opened with the application of M. Demange for an adjournment. This was followed by the deposition of M. Guerin, the former Minister of Justice, who, however, only repeated the evidence he had given before the Court of Cassation.

His Jailer Testifies.

M. Lebon, the former Minister of the Colonies, a big red-headed man, then testified in justification of his instructions to treat Dreyfus rigorously, declaring at the extreme stringency only dated from the time he thought an attempt would be made to rescue the prisoner.

Colonel Jouaust, president of the court-martial, asked Dreyfus if he had any questions to put to the witness, and he replied in an emotional voice:

"No. I am here to defend my honor. I do not wish to speak of the atrocious suffering which, for five years, I, a Frenchman and an innocent man, suffered on the Ile du Diable."

M. Demange here asked that the official report of the treatment of Dreyfus on the Ile du Diable, which was [illegible] in the newspapers last week, should be read. The clerk of the court did so, and in a sympathetic tone recounted the harrowing tale of Dreyfus' mental and physical sufferings and inhuman treatment on the island.

Hearers are Indignant.

Deep-drawn breaths of indignation came from the hearers as the reading proceeded.

Dreyfus at first watched the faces of the judges with his usual composure, but gradually as the story proceeded and incidents of his awful existence were brought up before him, his eyes grew dim and tears glistened in them, then slowly trickled down his cheeks. Dreyfus could stand it no longer, and, for the first time during his trial, gave way to such emotions and silently wept. The faces of the audience expressed sympathy with the prisoner's emotion, and even the captain of gendarmes sitting beside Dreyfus turned and gave him a look of unconcealed compassion.

General Mercier, who with M. Lebon was seated in the front row of witnesses' seats, listened to the reading of the report unmoved, while Col. Jouaust followed it with an air of bored tolerance. M. Lebon afterwards returned to the stand and added a few more words in justification of his conduct, and then Col. Jouaust ordered the next witness to be brought in.

Madame Henry.

All eyes were turned towards the door on the right side of the stage, and a moment later the form of a woman, dressed in deep mourning, appeared in the doorway and, accompanied by a non-commissioned officer, advanced to the platform. It was the widow of Colonel Henry, the French officer who committed suicide in prison after confession to forging one of the documents in the case. With pale face and hand upraised [illegible] the whole truth. Mme. Henry is of medium height and has a common cast of features and certainly could not be described as attractive. She at once put herself at ease, leaning forward with both hands resting on the rails of the witness stand. In an attitude of complete self-possession she gave her evidence, accompanying the words with frequent gestures. Her evidence, however, was of little weight. She admitted the frequent visits of Esterhazy to her husband and declared her husband told her he had forged one document in order to save the honor of the country. She gave her evidence in a very matter-of-fact way and was in nowise the sympathetic figure the anti-Dreyfusards have tried to make her.

Vitriolic Words.

General Roget, in undress uniform, followed. His evidence was a vitriolic diatribe against Dreyfus from beginning to end.

The court adjourned until to-morrow on the conclusion of General Roget's monologue.

Colonel Jouaust, previously, asked Dreyfus if he wished to say anything, and the prisoner, who during the time of General Roget's fulmination against him several times made a movement as if to rise and retort but was waved down by General Jouaust, rose, and, in that voice which is not agreeable in ordinary times, but—when strangled with emotion as it was to-day—has a thrilling effort on his hearers, he cried, crushing his kepi in his hands:

"My Colonel, it is a frightful thing that every day they tear out my heart and soul without my being able to reply.

"It is awful torture for an innocent man and a loyal soldier.

"It is a frightful thing—frightful, frightful."

The audience, profoundly stirred, began to applaud, but the applause was quickly suppressed.

M. Demange then announced that he would question General Roget to-morrow.

Why He Was Persecuted.

The following is the evidence in detail:

Ex-Minister of Justice Guerin, the first witness, said that at the end of October, after a Cabinet council, the Premier invited him to his room, where General Mercier joined them, and explained that for some time past documents had been missing from the headquarters staff, and that, in consequence of inquiries made, suspicion attached to Dreyfus.

General Mercier, the witness continued, added that he was convinced Dreyfus was the culprit. He said he found ed his conviction on three facts:

First, the bordereau the author of which was undiscoverable until Colonel Fabre, on returning from the manoeuvres, immediately after he saw the document, exclaimed: "Why, it is Dreyfus' handwriting."

Secondly, the nature of the documents enumerated in the bordereau, in conjunction with Dreyfus' employment in different departments, proved conclusively, according to General Mercier, that Dreyfus alone had cognizance of all these papers and he alone could have disclosed them.

Thirdly, the dictation test and Dreyfus' perturbation at the time.

Mercier Took Steps.

General Mercier, M. Guerin then said, in consequence of these convictions, declared his intention to ask the Cabinet to authorize the prosecution of Dreyfus. A special Cabinet session was held to consider the matter November 1, 1894. General Mercier handed the Cabinet nothing but the bordereau. After the Minister of War had related his reasons for his suspicions the Cabinet unanimously authorized the prosecution of Dreyfus. M. Hanotaux alone made some reserves or diplomatic objections, based on the place where the document was found. But it was agreed that in the event of the court-martialling of Dreyfus measures should be taken to prevent mention of the name of any power. From that day the witness had learned nothing whatever of the case.

Hon. Mr. Tarte Much Better.

Montreal, Aug. 16.—A private cablegram from Paris states that Mr. Tarte is much better, and that he will leave for home at the end of the present month.

The Paris correspondent of La Patrie writes that the Minister is now assured that no danger threatens him for the future. there are no hydatids and no danger of a relapse. The operation lasted half an hour, Mr. Tarte being under the influence of chloroform. When he awoke he found himself in his bed again, having felt no pain whatever.

Own the Country.

Ottawa, Aug. 16.—Word has been received from the Indian Commissioners, Messrs. Baird, Ross and McKenna, who reached Fort St. John early in July, that very little success has attended their efforts to make treaty with the Beaver Indians, not one of whom came into the fort to meet the commissioners. It appears that the Beavers endeavored to have their northern neighbors, the Dog Ribs, to go in with them, but that tribe refused, and all the Indians of the Peace River stayed away. These tribes give as a reason for refusing that the whole country is their heritage, and they will not sell it.

Agent Missed $7,000.

Joliette, Que., Aug. 16.—The safe at the Dominion Express office here has been out of order for some days, and last night when $7,000 arrived here for the Banque Nationale it was handed over to the local C.P.R. agent for safe-keeping. He hid it in the chimney in the cellar over night. This morning he found the chimney vacant and the money gone. Detectives are investigating the robbery.

Want A Local Candidate.

Streetsville, Ont., Aug. 16. — The Executive of the West Ontario Reform [illegible] at Streetsville yesterday for the purpose of fixing a date for holding a convention for the election of officers and the selection of a candidate to represent the riding. It was decided to hold a convention on the 19th of September. The chairmen of the different municipalities were all present, and the feeling was very strong for a local candidate.

Cure for Mob Law.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 16.—A mass meeting of strike sympathizers at South Brooklyn last night was attended by a turbulent crowd from the city. Against the protests of Leader Bryan the crowd stoned a big consolidated car. The conductor of the car lay down upon the spot and fired several shots at the crowd with a revolver. Nobody was hurt but the shooting dispersed the mob in short order.

Honor the Emperor.

London, Aug. 16.—The fifth commandment, according to the official Russian version, now reads:—"Honor thy father and thy mother, the Emperor and his officials, that thy days may be long," etc.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Baseball.

The baseball club was defeated at Port Hope yesterday, due to their own poor playing and the very bad decisions of the Port Hope umpire. The members of the local team do not wish to let themselves down on the umpire question, but in the parlance of baseball catagorey, "he was simply rotten," and never missed a chance to give Peterborough the worst of it. A SHIPS' GREAT DANGER

New Morgan Liner Steamship Buffeted by an Electric Storm.

THE CURE FOR MOB LAW.

Bones of a Mastodon Were Unearthed Near Newburg by Men Digging in a Ditch.

Two Millions Left to the Society for Protection of Animals by a Woman in France—Complications Caused by the carrying Out of Her Will.

New York, Aug. 16.—There was plenty of incident to the maiden trip of the El Sud, the new Morgan line steamship built to replace the vessel of the same name, which was sold to the Government. She arrived yesterday from New Orleans. Captain Quick reported having passed through an electrical storm, during which thousands of balls of fire fell about the ship.

The El Sud ran into the storm Saturday night off Cape Hatteras. Her officers freely asserted that the meteoric display exceeded in brilliancy anything they had ever seen.

The thermometer on board registered 95 degrees in the shade Saturday. The sky became suddenly overcast at eleven o'clock that night and rain fell in torrents. There was a rising sea, and the wind was blowing at the rate of thirty miles an hour. The storm lasted until three o'clock in the morning, when it ceased as suddenly as it had begun.

In the early part of the storm Captain Quick said there was almost continuous thunder and flashes of lightning were incessant. Flashes of sheet lightning were interrupted by following the rain there was a second display of lightning, which in turn gave way to showers of meteors, blinding flashes.

The balls of fire flashed into the sea on all sides. Some of them burst before reaching the water. None of them struck the vessel, although many fell dangerously near. The general course of the falling meteors was from the east to northeast.

Newburg, N.Y., Aug. 16.—The bones of a mastodon have just been found in the William Barclay farm, two miles west of the city, on the south side of Cochecton turnpike, which is occupied by Frederick W. Schaefer, a market gardener. Apparently a lake occupied the site many centuries ago.

One of several men digging a ditch on Saturday afternoon last at a depth of six feet found what he thought was a root. He dug around it enough to enable him to pull out a rib 40 inches long.

Work was resumed in a more careful manner, and a part of the vertebrae, thirteen inches in diameter, several more ribs and the lower jaw, with the teeth intact, were discovered. The jaw bone at the base measures 25 inches, while its extreme length is 37 inches. It is in almost perfect condition. The back teeth are pure white, eight by four inches. Toward the point of the jaw are two smaller teeth, which measure five by three and a half inches, and one of them, which was removed, weighed two and one-quarter pounds. The head of the beast was uncovered Monday afternoon. It is 30 inches across. The tusks where they join the head measure eight inches in diameter, and more than six feet of their length has already been developed. It is supposed that when wholly excavated their extreme length will be about eight feet.

Bones of ten mastodons have been found in Orange county. The last previous one was discovered twenty years ago on the [illegible] Kelly place, Little Britain. One found in the town of Mount Hope in 1872 is now in the Yale Museum. Another, found in 1845, in [illegible], is in the Boston Museum. This one was complete, and weighed 1,995 pounds.

Paris, Aug. 16.—More than a year ago, says The Figaro, a certain lady named Chassagros left to the Society for the Protection of Animals a legacy of two millions, with the object of improving the existence of animals.

One of the provisions of her will was the creation of twelve inspectors to do the work of the society. When this was known applications for the twelve posts flowed in from all quarters, testimonials came in and competitions were undergone, but since then nothing has come of it.

The Figaro, anxious to know whether the society was at fault, sent to interview M. Uhrich, the president of the society. His statement was not reassuring. He states that the dossier is hung up somewhere at the Assistance Publique, he believes, which absorbs everything and gives up nothing it can help.

The legacy and the 9 per cent. imposed by the State bring in about 60,000 francs; the conditions imposed by the testator would cost 75,000 francs a year. The inspectors selected are menacing the society, and demanding their pay, on the ground that they have given up places for their promised offices.

M. Uhrich, however, has reached the limit of his patience; he intends to get to work with the amount of the execution of Mme. Chassagros' will, which he expects to obtain shortly.

THE POOR HIRED GIRL.

The servant girl problem still continues to furnish material for magazine and newspaper articles by the yard, and writers usually, but not always, run away with the idea that the hired girl is a very much abused creature, the slave too often of a tyrannical mistress, condemned to perform most menial tasks, and rewarded by the social ostracism of her sex. But there are bright spots in the life of the hired girl for all that. She starts to work no earlier in the day than the shop girl, and she gets twice the wages usually, for her board is always paid. Her day is a short one, for three o'clock at the latest usually sees her day's work completed, with the exception of an hour or so in the evening. She gets every evening out, if she kicks for it, and is in that respect on even terms with the shop girl, and is ahead very much on the deal when Saturday night labor is considered. More than that, she gets an afternoon or so off every week usually, and isn't docked for it, which she would be were she a shop or factory employe. Lastly, she gets a training in house work that fits her to be mistress in due time of a home of her own, a training that the shop girl only gets after she weds, by a series of costly cooking experiments at the expense of her husband's pocket, digestion and temper. The man who marries the hired girl gets the most for his money, and the average hired girl's career is a great big snap, but you can't get her to think so.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Transvaal Boers refuse to allow a Roman Catholic to occupy any public office or to sit in parliament. That is enough to condemn the little Dutch oligarchy in the eyes of Protestants and Catholics alike.—London Advertiser.

Kruger's parliament compels foreigners to pay all the taxes, refuses them the franchise for five years, and now requires them to co-operate in defence of the country. That is a pretty fair imitation of slavery.

Cuba wants its independence. It is a long-felt want, but we think Cuba's chances of forcing it from Spain was much better than its prospect of whipping the United States.

The trained horses, which at the first sound of the gong spring to their places before the fire engine, have always been looked upon as among the most intelligent of their race. News comes from New York, however, that even they are to be supplanted, first by the bicycle, and probably later by the automobile. A bicycle chemical engine has recently been patented, which severe tests have shown to possess many advantages over the apparatus now in use. It consists simply of an ordinary chemical tank mounted on a frame of steel tubing and equipped with the usual bicycle means of foot propulsion. The machine is built for four riders, which is enough to propel it with ease. It is claimed for the bicycle engine that it can get to a fire much quicker than one of the present type, and that it costs comparatively nothing to maintain.

PETERBOROUGH'S GREAT MINERAL WEALTH

COUNTRY TEEMING WITH MINERALS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS

Sensational Discovery of Gold in Anstruther Township - Mr. McWilliam's Valuable Copper find.

That our own back country is teeming with mineral is evident to all who have taken the trouble to look into the matter. For many years past we occasionally hear of promising discoveries of rich mineral deposits but no actual development following. The time is at hand when these wealthy deposits in North Peterborough will be exploited. During the last two or three years prospectors have been working quietly, and have secured options on much of the country.

Yesterday The Times received a piece of quartz taken from Cavendish, showing fine gold in nuggets nearly as large as peas. These nuggets are sticking out of the quartz in several places. We are told that the vein is much richer as it descends, and will probably turn out to be one of the richest mines on the continent. Mr. Theodore McWilliams, son of Ald. J. B. McWilliams of the town, has also made a valuable find in copper, in the township of Dummer. The metal is of heavy fine quality, and assays, we understand, about 36 per cent.

The mica mines at the head of Stony Lake, are now being worked, although the difficulties to be overcome through lack of transportation is very great. Capt Lynn, the manager of the mines, says that he recently took out 1600 pounds of mica in nine days which was sold for $7.50 per pound.

What is needed is a railway into this great and, we believe, fabulously rich district. The C.P.R. are quietly looking over the field and we hope, at an early date, to be able to announce that a line into our immediate back country is built.

American Hospitality.

Wm. Archer, the well-known English critic, has been recording his impressions of a brief visit to this country in a series of letters to the Pall Mall Gazette, and in the latest he has some very pleasant things to say about American hospitality. As an instance, he relates his experience with Washington and Boston clubmen. In the former city he made the acquaintance of a man who invited him to lunch at his club, having a half dozen men to meet him. Next him at table sat a man whose name he had not caught when introduced. Instead of asking what he thought of America the American asked where he was going next and on being informed that Boston was Mr. Archer's destination, offered to put him up at the U—— club, adding that after luncheon he would telegraph to secure the visitor a room. "This was a man," Mr. Archer declares, "whom I had met ten minutes before, whose name I did not know and to whom I had been introduced by a man whom I barely knew. It did not appear that he, on his side, knew or cared about anything I had said or done in the world. He simply obeyed the national instinct of courtesy and helpfulness. And he was as good as his word. Arriving in Boston at a somewhat unearthly hour in the morning, I found my room allotted me and the club servants ready to receive me with every attention."

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 3 to 15 per cent. copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRyee, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-cut to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $360, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

* * * "In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl schists extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent. of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendall, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I think it is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper. It is near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oil here because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is adapted to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a town could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($400 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.
George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.
Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.
Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.
Col. James. M. Wheaton, Boston, Secretary.
Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Ex-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allotment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

Archer City, Texas, May 3, 1899.

Hon. Emery H. Low, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: * * Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States.
* * The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cuperiferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.
The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formation; and there is no deep work.
I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.
* * As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.
Very respectfully yours,
T. BURTON EVERETT, M. E.

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

Story of Britain's Diminishing Trade Received with Chastened Satisfaction.

MILAN MAY BE EVICTED.

His Misbehavior Too Gross For Russia to Tolerate—Austria Fears to Stir Up the Balkans.

British Railway's Verdict Upon the Famous American-made Locomotives—The Slavic Movement Sapping the Triple Alliance—Long-windedness of Lawyers May Injure Arbitration.

London, Aug. 15.—The Board of Trade returns for July have been received with chastened satisfaction. While the totals indicate considerable progress, an analysis shows that the imports have not been swollen by raw material of manufactures, and a large percentage of the improving exports is accounted for by coal and other irreplaceable commodities and machinery, which go to swell the manufacturing enterprise of Britain's rivals. In short, it is useless to blink at the fact that the tendency is persistently against British [illegible]. The home market is more and more flooded with foreign wares, while the exports are about the same as they were a decade ago. The newspapers are comparing the situation with the bounding progress of the United States, and are using it as a text against "the inanities and fallacies of the one-sided free trade system beloved of Cobdenites."

The report of the Secretary of State for the Colonies on Barbados shows that the trade of that island has decreased with Great Britain during the past year £22,000, while it has increased with other countries upwards of £74,000. The Secretary attributes this state of affairs to the increasing tendency to get all supplies from the United States, while more than half the exports of Barbados go to the United States.

Milan May Be Evicted.

London, Aug. 15.—The Birmingham Daily Post says that Russia proposes to accomplish the forcible removal of ex-King Milan from Belgrade in order to avert trouble, which Austria thinks such action would only precipitate. The scandalous situation in Servia led to Russia approaching Austria with a definite suggestion for joint intervention. Emperor Francis Joseph, fearing that it would set fire to the Balkans, received it coolly, and for the moment the proposal was dropped. But it is certain that the Czar is resolved that ex-King Milan must quit Servia, if not quietly, then he will be expelled. King Alexander is afraid and allows the Skuptschina to assemble in a week or two to obtain Parliamentary indemnity for his illegalities. He is likely to get it, as the majority of the opposition Deputies are still in jail. Meantime Russia has suspended diplomatic relations with Servia. Kaiser William favors Emperor Francis Joseph's attitude.

Not Quite as Good.

London, Aug. 16.—Sir George Ernest Paget, Chairman of the Board of the yearly meeting of the company at Derby Saturday, said that the American locomotives which are now being used by the company are not quite up to the standard of the English-made engines but are nevertheless doing good work.

Arbitration's Danger.

London, Aug. 15.—The Times, in an editorial this morning on the Venezuelan boundary arbitration, complains that the proceedings are unnecessarily protracted, and expresses a fear that the example thus set will "operate to prejudice and arbitral mode of settling the difficulties." It says:—"Unfortunately, this is a too common drawback to international references. Witness, also, the Delagoa Bay and Bering Sea cases. If the system is not to break down, tribunals must exercise a free hand in discouraging the prodigies of physical energy in which modern advocates are too prone to indulge."

Germany and Austria.

Berlin, Aug. 12.—Germany's relations with Austria-Hungary are the theme of much newspaper comment this week. Political circles regard the relations between Germany and Austria-Hungary, despite the continuing of the nominal alliance, as having ceased to be really intimate. Newspaper comment (and secular feeling throughout Germany have been for some time most bitter, because of the growing Slavic ascendancy in Austria-Hungary. It is asserted that Emperor William shares this view, since the persecution of the German element has become a part of the settled system.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Paris, Aug. 15.—At to-day's session of the Anglo-Venezuelan Boundary Arbitration Committee, Prof. John R. Soley, in continuing his presentation of the Venezuelan case, discussed the question of military control and jurisdiction, neither of which, prior to 1850, he said, had extended west of the Essequibo River.

Dublin, Aug. 14.—The Nation to-day announces that the Pope has appointed Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, Apostolic Delegate to Ireland, for the purpose of presiding at the National Synod of Irish Bishops to be held in 1900.

The Samoan Commissioners.

Banff, Aug. 15.—Baron Von Sternberg, German Samoan Commissioner, and Mr. Arnold Tripp, the American Commissioner arrived here to-day from the great glacier of the Selkirks, where Swiss guides escorted them to the greatest glacier mountain accessible to tourists in North America. The commissioners are on their way to the United States from Samoa, and will visit St. Paul, Minneapolis, Chicago and other cities en route to the east. Baron Von Sternberg, who is a member of a German alpine club, visited the greatest of the Selkirk glaciers and was photographed in a crevasse. Commissioner Tripp, who has never travelled a glacier, made a gradual ascent of a few hundred feet. The commissioners have brought with them 3,500 stand of arms taken from the Samoan rebels, and these are now being frightened through American territory. They visited the last home of Robert Louis Stevenson, the novelist, and deny the story that it is in a neglected condition. Both commissioners say that German, American and other interests are identical, and regret that the commissioner representing England did not accompany them through the mountainous regions of western Canada. He will, however, take this route later to Chicago and thence to the Atlantic seaboard to England. The travellers are in the private Government car "Earnscliffe."

A Sacred Exhibition.

Rome, Aug. 13.—The Pope has authorized an exhibition of objects of piety during the coming holy year. The exhibition will be of an international character, and will be held at the Vatican in the same hall in which was held the famous exhibition during the Pope's first jubilee celebration. His Holiness is taking a keen interest in this as in everything else connected with the holy year arrangements. He is much gratified at the enormous number of Bishops in all parts of the world who have promised to comes to Rome for the celebration. A rare ceremony will be the opening of the Porta Santa of St. Peter's by the Pope himself on Christmas Day.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

THE WAR AGAINST THE PHILIPPINES.

AN EMINENT CHICAGOIAN'S IDEAS OF THE CONFLICT.

Uncle Sam's Mistake—A Remarkable Statement of Facts by Col. Tottle.

Yesterday Col. Tottle, of Chicago, arrived in town on his way to the back lakes and dropped into the Times office to procure one of our new maps of the County of Peterborough. The gallant Col. is bitterly opposed to the policy of the United States in regard to the Philippine people. As the Col. seemed in a talkative mood we invited him to give us a statement for publication, which he did.

"What are we Americans fighting for? What principle, what heritage, what right do we defend?" said the gallant Col., as he leaned back in an easy chair and lit a good cigar. "We are fighting for the principle that all men are not born free and equal and that life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are not among the inalienable rights of men. We are defending with our lives that heritage of shame, that purchased legacy of dishonor Spain's rotten title to despotically rule over millions of a freedom loving people. We are struggling to maintain the right to govern without the consent of the governed.

"Already there are among the defenders of the government's course men who are candid and blunt enough to proclaim that Thomas Jefferson is rather out of date, that the principles of the declaration of independence are puerile sentimentalities. Though these men in effect declare that George III was all right and George Washington was all wrong I prefer their brutal candor to the miserable cant of those who with eyes turned heavenward, with tongues reeking with philanthropy profess their adherence to the vital principles of our national existence while undermining and shattering its very foundations.

"Here is the exact situation—We, the American people, a giant among the nations of the earth, are employing our unlimited resources of treasure and lives to deprive the Filipinos of the freedom and independence for which they have struggled these 100 years, to utterly crush or bring to its knees an infant people whose only strength is in the eternally just principle for which they fight.

"Our policy in the Philippines—if aimlessly drifting and oracularly expressing oneself both ways on the question can be dignified by that term—is defended partly on the ground of the supposed incapacity of the Filipinos for self-government and the claim that Aguinaldo is a self-constituted dictator, self-seeking, unscrupulous and treacherous. These falsehoods, branded as such through the testimony of Dewey and of our consuls at Hong-Kong, Singapore and Manila, are on a par with the information dished up to the American people ad nauseum that Otis has the situation well in hand, that the backbone of the insurrection is broken and that a few days more will bring the end of the conflict. When a number of well-known reporters of imperialistic papers, including the Chicago Tribune felt constrained to protest against the deliberate falsification by General Otis of their cablegrams and to accuse him of wilfully misrepresenting the situation in his reports to the American people, and when the national administration does not heed the protest but proceeds to pat Otis on the back how much, I ask, can sensible people believe of what they are told respecting the Filipinos by those in the confidence of the administration.

"But suppose that the Filipinos were incapable to self-government according to our ideas. What right, what business have we to force upon them with Mausers and Krag-Jorgensens our ideas of government and civilization. Why not let them be happy according to their own fashion? But they have never refused to allow us to guide them in the gradual setting up of a popular government based upon enlightened principles. They have never spurned, but, on the contrary, have solicited, an American protectorate during the formative period of their own independent government. All they asked of us was an official declaration to give them independence at some time in the future under proper guarantees of peace and order. This we not only denied but every official act and declaration of our government, the language of the peace protocol, the peace negotiations at Paris in which the Filipino envoys were refused an audience respecting the wishes of their countrymen, the language of the treaty of peace the proclamation of President McKinley of last December, the pronounced attitude of a large majority of the senate, the undisguised statements of members of the cabinet and of the pet senators of the administration all pointed unmistakably to an intention to keep the Filipinos in permanent vassalage and subjection."

He belittled the claim that the Philippines were necessary for trade and commerce maintaining that trade was the result of low prices. He said the the best way to expand commerce was to repeal the antiquated shipping law and remove the Chinese wall of protective tariff. He denounced the press censorship at Manila and claimed the adjusting the negro problem lynching and the corruption in city and state legislature was of greatest interest and importance to the United States than Americanizing the residents of the Philippines.

Referring to the colonial system, he said—

"A colonial empire of necessity requires an immense fleet, extensive fortifications at home and in the colonies the yearly sacrifice of many thousands of our boys, possibly in consequence thereof, the introduction of involuntary military service by a system of conscription, a vast increase of the burdens of taxation. Is it right that, instead of cultivating the arts of peace and developing the resources of our richly blessed country, we should sacrifice our best energies to the love of glory, to the dream of an empire, that we allow ourselves to be allured by the will of the wisp of external splendor into the mire of militarism?

"The first fruits of the new and untried course in which our ship of state is steering are the disgraceful press censorship at Manila, the forbidding of the mails to manly protest against our war of conquest the efforts of the press to make traitors of those who have the courage to denounce the breaking away from traditional principle, the adulation and blind worship of the responsible head of the government on the part of those who call themselves loyalists, but who had better be styled royalists. Meanwhile our own taxes go on and transports laden with new recruits for Philippine graveyards hurry across the sea."

As the Col. concluded he placed an order for a number of extra copies of the Times containing the article and told us to mail this c. f. l. to his address until we got orders to stop sending it.

Col. Tottle is accompanied by a party of five or six, and expects to spend several weeks on our back lakes.

The French Cabinet.

Paris, Aug. 15.—At a Cabinet meeting here this morning the Minister of Foreign Affairs M. Delcasse, related his visit to St. Petersburg and told of the cordial welcome extended to him. He said:—"This welcome and the toasts exchanged were the outward manifestation of the solidity of the bonds always strengthening, which to the advantage of both unite France and Russia." The Minister of Justice, M. Monis, declared a investigation had been ordered into the recent conspiracy against the Government, and said it would be carried out with the utmost celerity. But, he added, owing to the absence of persons wanted by the police, the necessary searches were not yet completed.

No More Purple Twos.

The use of two cent purple postage stamp has been discontinued, and hereafter the stamp of that denomination will be printed in red. This is in accordance with the specifications of the universal postal union. The post office department will first, however, surcharge down to two cents the unissued remnant of old three-cent stamps in red now on hand, and as soon as the supply of such surcharged threes is exhausted, the issue of two-cent stamps in red will begin.

Sir Charles at Liverpool.

London, Aug. 15.—Sir Charles Tupper, leader of the Opposition in the Canadian House of Commons, who arrived at Liverpool to-day on board the steamer Parisian when interviewed regarding the Alaskan affair strongly urged two alternatives, either that the United States should submit the controversy to arbitration or that Canada should construct a railway to Dawson City, thus opening up a purely Canadian line of communication with the gold fields. There was little doubt, he contended, that the United States would recognize the force of the latter alternative, and would accept arbitration. Otherwise he would favor closing the gold fields against citizens of the United States.

The Steamship Argyle Disabled.

Rochester, Aug. 15.—At 3 o'clock this afternoon the Argyle was brought safely back to Charlotte by the tug Proctor. All on board are safe. The captain says a cross head on a cylinder broke, that the vessel drifted but a short way and did not strike ground. She had a large passenger list on board on their way from Toronto to Alexandria Bay.

A barn belonging to Mr. George Stokes near Little Britain, filled with the season's crops, was struck by lightning yesterday and destroyed.

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the faltering step, the rebellious stomach. HER DIAMONDS STOLEN.

Mrs. F. G. Cox, of Toronto, Loses $1500 Worth of Gems.

While Mrs. Cox, wife of Mr. Fred G. Cox, manager of the Imperial Life Assurance Company, Toronto, and formerly a resident of Peterborough, was staying at Hanlan's Hotel on the island at Toronto, diamonds valued at $1500 were stolen from her room. The gems were kept in a small casket, and usually placed under her pillow. Saturday evening the casket was safe in its place. Some time on Sunday it was found to be missing.

A thorough search has been made, and all the hotel servants questioned, but with no result. Mr. Cox was absent in Oswego at the time.

CONTRACT VS. DAY LABOR.

Day Labor Cheaper in Toronto What will Lindsay's Experiment Show?

Toronto Globe—"Reference was made some time ago to the fact that two identical pieces of paving were being done on adjoining streets in ward one, the first by day labor, the second by contract. It was shown that the cost was in favor of the former by nearly $1,000. The two jobs are now completed, and aldermen and others interested in road-making should not fail to visit the two. Langley avenue, which was built by day labour and for $1,000 less, than Victor avenue, is a splendid specimen of macadam road Victor, which was done by contract and was finished but the other day, looks as if it were constructed with dust or any old stuff that happened to be on hand. It is to be hoped that the engineer will also take a look at the two.

Peterborough's experience is not favorable to day labour, although the contractors need to be watched very closely. So far as this work is concerned in Peterborough, it could not be better.

OMEMEE.

The harvest is fairly well on and promises an excellent yield.

A large number attended the Peterborough market last Saturday.

George McHugh, Esq., M.P., made a call on his friends here, who are continually increasing.

The memorial service conducted in Christ's church last Sunday, in remembrance of the late R. Grundy, was a very solemn and impressive one. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Langfeldt.

The annual excursion this year of Lorne Lodge A.F. & A.M., of Omemee to Coboconk, per G.T.R. and steamer Crandella, on Thursday, August 24, promises to attract a large crowd. Fare for round trip, from Peterborough $1.50 for those wishing to go.

A Stoney Lake Incident.

The members of Billy Comstock's camping party which returned from a couple of week's sojourn at Stony Lake a few days ago, tell a rather remarkable story. It appears that the members of the party retired on Sunday night as was their custom, to sleep the sleep of the just, and were enjoying that sleep which only those with a clear conscience can enjoy, when they were rudely awakened by a man at their tent door. The intruder appeared to be in great tribulation as he had lost his way in his canoe in the lake, and asked to be guided to McCracken's Landing. He was at once recognized, and although it was three o'clock in the morning, Jack Gemmell and Billy Bistoner piloted the young man to his destination. They afterwards discovered that he was forced to enter the hotel at the landing through the washroom window, feet first, for fear of a dog that stood guard on the inside. He was thus able to fight the dog with his legs and feet till he got on the floor, when he escaped. The unfortunate individual is a well-known scribe on one of our local boiler plate contemporaries. Alf. won't try to navigate Stony Lake again.

STRANGELY MIXED MARRIAGES

Remarkable Cases of it in England and Australia.

The two following cases would be difficult to surpass. One was in England, the other in Australia. Some time ago a marriage took place in Birmingham which brought about a very complicated state of family relations. The woman had been married three times before, and each time had taken for her husband a widower with children. Her fourth husband was a widower, and, as he had children by his first wife who was herself a widow, with children when he married her, the newly married couple started their matrimonial companionship with a family composed of the progeny of eight previous marriages.

Another curious case was that of Dr. King, a widower, of Adelaide, who married a Miss Norris. Shortly after the doctor's honeymoon the doctor's son married a sister of the doctor's wife. Then a brother of the doctor's wife married the doctor's daughter. In other words the doctor's son became his step-mother's brother-in-law, and the doctor's daughter became his step-mother's sister-in-law. The doctor by the marriage of his son to the sister of the doctor's wife became father-in-law to his sister-in-law, and the doctor's wife by the marriage of her sister to her step-son became step-brother-in-law to her own sister. By the marriage of the brother of the doctor's wife to the doctor's daughter the doctor became father-in-law to his brother-in-law, and the doctor's wife became stepmother-in-law to her own brother. It is an unsolved problem as to what relationship the children of the contracting parties are to each other.

ANIMAL LIFE.

The smallest camels belong to Persia. They are not more than 30 inches high.

Animal trainers say the most intelligent animals for their purpose are the walrus, elephant, monkey, seal and sea lion. A young walrus that is bought for $500, when carefully trained is worth fully $5,000

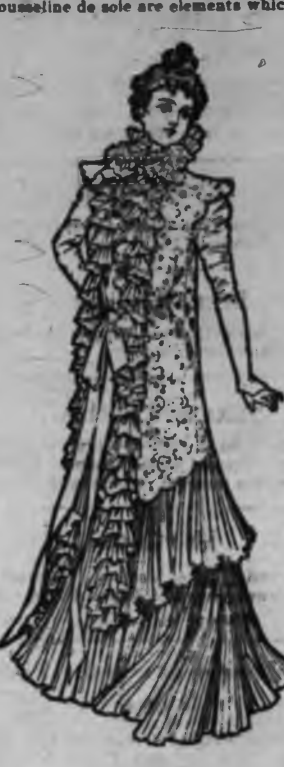
FASHION HINTS.

Sheer Fabrics, Guipure and Lace in Great Favor.

Guipure and thick lace, so largely used as incrustations on velvet and cloth during the winter, appear with equal frequency upon summer fabrics, being much employed as a decoration for crepe de chine and silk canvas.

Shirred silk crapes of all kinds and mousseline de soie are elements which enter into most of the summer novelties in trimming and accessories. Boas and high collars are still in fashionable favor, although they are by no means appropriate to warm weather. Ostrich feathers and fancy plumage are often introduced, but fur, which a freak of fashion carried through the summer several years ago, is not seen at all this season.



MOUSSELINE GOWN.

Chemisettes of mousseline de soie, liberty satin or lawn with incrustations and insertions of lace are much worn with boleros. A pretty way of bringing the gown into harmony with different hats is to have detached choux of taffeta or mousseline de soie matching the hats, these choux to be used as adjuncts to the collar and plastron.

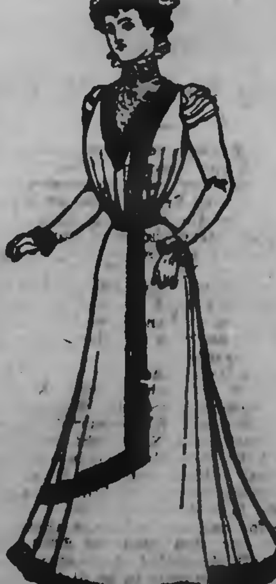
The gown shown in the cut is of plaited pink mousseline de soie over pink taffeta, drawn in at the waist by a belt of pink satin with long ends. The wrinkled sleeves are of plain pink mousseline over taffeta. The sleeveless mantle of unlined guipure is loose, and has a plaited flounce of pink mousseline de soie around the lower edge, while the sides of the open front are trimmed with coquilles of pink plaited muslin, which also form the collar.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE WARDROBE.

Gray, Ecru and Beige Gowns For Warmer Weather.

Costumes of gray or ecru crepe de chine are of extreme elegance. Crepe de chine is usually made up into princess or tunic gowns, and the trimming consists of incrustations of lace or plaitings of mousseline de soie. The fastening of the princess gown is always concealed as much as possible and usually occurs at the side, although sometimes it is placed under the arm. The closing at the back has been in a great measure abandoned as being too conspicuous.



VEILING GOWN.

Although sleeves are tight and have no gathers at the shoulder as a rule, a little extra fullness is allowed at the top and taken in by several darts, a stiffening of canvas being placed inside to hold the top out and so slightly increase the apparent breadth of the shoulders.

Many kinds of new goods may be found of extra width to facilitate the cutting of the seamless skirt, which is all in one piece and opens at the front, side or.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Honesty is undoubtedly the best policy, because it's the most expensive.

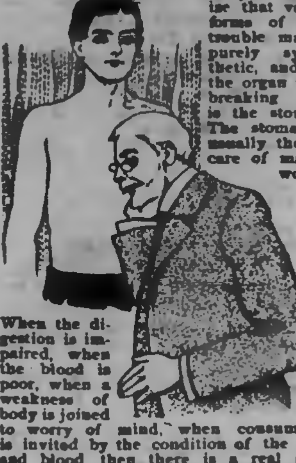
A new play is called "The Intelligence Office." There should be some good situations in it.

About the only difference between the antiquarian and the junk dealer is in the prices they pay for useless things.

Workmen With Labels.

Japanese workmen are obliged to wear on their caps and backs an inscription stating their business and their employer's name.

People are easily frightened when they think that something is the matter with heart or lungs. Off they rush to the physician's office and have themselves examined, no matter how big the fee may be. They do not realize that various forms of heart trouble may be purely sympathetic, and that the organ really breaking down is the stomach. The stomach is usually the last care of man or woman.



When the digestion is impaired, when the blood is poor, when a weakness of body is joined to worry of mind, when consumption is invited by the condition of the lungs and blood, then there is a real scare. What is to be done to purify and vitalize the blood? What will stop that hacking cough and strengthen the weak lungs?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures ninety-eight per cent. of such cases. It strengthens weak lungs and cures obstinate lingering cough, bronchitis, bleeding of the lungs and kindred ailments, which, if neglected or unskillfully treated, lead up to consumption.

"My wife had hemorrhage of the lungs," writes W. A. Sanders, Esq., of Hern, Mason Co., W. Va. "She had ten hemorrhages, and the people all around here said she would never be well again. But she began to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and soon began to gain strength and flesh. After taking ten bottles she was entirely well. If any one doubts the merits of this medicine they may enclose self-addressed envelope with stamp, and I will answer."

Send Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 31 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of customs and mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his 1008 page Common Sense Medical Adviser, the best medical work published. Cloth-bound 50 stamps.

No Paper To-morrow.

To-day being a public holiday, there will be no issue of the Times to-morrow.

Dusty Water Street

Again we have to complain of the absence of the water cart on Water street. It occasionally takes a turn down the middle of the road—perhaps once in two or three days—but not oftener. Engineer Hay should at once make other arrangements. The party who has the contract for this section of the town is not doing his work. It is a disgrace and shame to impose a tax on people for water that is not supplied.

A Popular Excursion

The Times is requested to announce that the second annual excursion of the united Sunday Schools of North Smith and Harvey will be held on Wednesday, August 30. The commodious steamer "Orindella," will leave Buckhorn at 7 a.m.; Indian Village at 8 a.m.; Sandy Point at 8.30 a.m.; Nogie's Creek at 9 a.m.; Bobcaygeon at 9.30 a.m., proceeding thence to Fenelon Falls. Fares for the round trip—From Buckhorn, adults 40c; Indian Village 30c; Sandy Point 30c; Nogie's Creek 30c; Bobcaygeon 25c.

Poisoned by a Bite.

Mrs. E. Ware, Reid street, was bitten by some insect on Monday last, on the hand while out in the garden. The head and arm became so badly swollen and painful that a physician was summoned, and the symptoms developed blood poisoning. It is thought that the patient will recover as the swelling is subsiding somewhat.

Feed Your Body Wisely
USE
Grape-Nuts

HOW GRAPE-NUTS FOOD IS CONSTRUCTED.

Grape-Nuts food is made by taking the portions of Barley and Wheat containing the nutritive elements, subjecting the different parts to different forms of treatment, and finally blending them in the proper proportions.

When ready for the market it is in the form of small granules from the size of a pin head to two or three times that size. These pieces glisten when held to the light showing the grape sugar crystallized and deposited on each granule. This grape sugar is one of the most nutritive articles of food known, and is produced and evolved from the starchy part of the grains while in process of manufacture.

No Cane or Beet sugar is used in making Grape-Nuts.

The flavor is a very delicate sweet, and the food itself is crisp and delicious.

Being fully cooked at the factory, no preparation is required, but it is ready to be served instantly, with a little cream or milk, either hot or cold.

A marked increase in mental strength is found after 10 days use of Grape-Nuts.

The food contains elements which nature uses to rebuild the cellular tissues of the brain.

All first class grocers sell Grape-Nuts at 15 cents per package.

AT THE POLICE COURT.

A Number of Drunks Disposed of Yesterday Morning.

William Hornbuck appeared before Magistrate Dumble yesterday morning on a charge of being drunk. As this was his second offence in a time he was fined five dollars.

Charles Moore, Walter Whitehead, and S. J. Brooks were all charged with being drunk and disorderly. They were each fined $2 and costs, amounting in all to $5.75 or ten days in gaol. They went up on the hill.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Three residences were burned in Cobourg Tuesday.

The steamer Alice Ethel had an excursion to Stony Lake yesterday.

The Sons of England band occupied the stand at Victoria Park last night.

There will be no issue of the Times to-morrow so as to give our staff a holiday to-morrow.

The annual outing of the altar boys of St. Peter's cathedral, was held at Chemong park yesterday.

Norris Bros.' dog show gave two performances to Peterborough yesterday to comparatively small crowds.

A company to operate a pork packing establishment has been organised at Stouffville, Capital is $200,000.

A party of ten Rochester people en route for Buckhorn were registered at the Snowden House Tuesday evening.

The Park Nine baseball club and the Vatican lacrosse club will go to Cannington to-day to play matches there.

The Port Hope Fire Brigade ran an excursion to Bobcaygeon yesterday via Peterboro', Lindsay and steamer Crandella.

The annual excursion under the auspices of the Lindsay G T R. library will be run by train to Peterborough on Aug. 24th.

The town of Lindsay is inviting tenders for the construction of 5,100 feet of "tile" sewer and 700 feet of 12-foot granolithic sidewalk.

Mr Robert Grant, contractor, claims $500 damages from Ottawa city in connection with sewer contract. Mr Grant built the lower end of the Peterborough outfall sewer.

The honey crop will not amount to above one-fourth the yield of last year. This is attributed to the late spring, which resulted in the hives being weaker than usual.

Lindsay Post—Mr. Geo Fitzgerald, cheese buyer, Peterborough, is at present inspecting the cheese purchased on this board last week, and will ship on Thursday or Friday.

Miss Shea, of St. Joseph's, Douro, received the Habit in the Community of St. Joseph's Toronto, Wednesday, August 16th. The young lady is a cousin of Rev. Father Patrick O'Leary, P.P., Fenelon Falls.

Hastings Star—The City of Peterborough took a large excursion to Idyl-Wild yesterday. The picnic was under the auspices of the Presbyterian church, Campbellford. A special train was run from that place to Hastings.

Thursday, Aug. 24th has been proclaimed by the Hastings Council a public holiday. An excursion will be held on that day, up Rice Lake, per steamer City of Peterborough and palace scow, proceeds in aid of the Presbyterian Manse building fund.

The new Methodist church at Manvers will be dedicated on Sunday, Aug. 27th, when Rev. A. Campbell, of Belleville, will preach in the morning and S. J. Shorey, of the George St. church in the evening. On the Monday following tea will be served and addresses will be given by Rev. Mr. Campbell, Rev. Mr. Shorey and others.

It is learned from a copy of the Bangor Maine Daily Commercial, that a Canadian, Mr. W. L. Miller, son of Mr. William Miller, Water street, was heroically active in saving life at the Bangor excursion steamer disaster a few days ago. One young woman was thought to be dead when taken out of the water, but Mr. Miller used prompt measures for resuscitation and succeeded in saving a life.

It is the momentum of advertising that carries a business along. IT is like the steam power that carries along the railroad train. Cut off the steam and the train will move on for a distance without any perceptible diminution of speed. It is the same with advertising. The only way to keep the business engine going whether the engineer be individual or a combination is to keep up steam.

The coming winter is going to be a busy one in the woods, and this district will be greatly benefitted from the lumbering operations. The demand for horses for the camps has considerably advanced prices. Animals that could be bought for $40 a year ago are now bringing $75 and horsemen report they are scarce enough at that figure. The Dickson Company are sending a large force to their camps this fall.

"Passenger travel this season from all points over the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific railways is without doubt," said an official yesterday morning, "the largest in Canadian history. I have been engaged for many years at the business and I never saw the like before, especially during the month of August, and if it continues up to the Toronto Exhibition time I don't really know how the roads will handle the people if they go in even the same numbers they did last year."

What's in a Name?

A writer in the New York Sun gives the following explanation of how the name of Bobcaygeon, Mr. Smiff's town originated—A small village northeast of Toronto, named long ago by the French coureurs de bois Beau Bocage has been "Englished" to Bobcaygeon. So long has this place borne this corrupt name that the origin of it has been almost entirely forgotten among the inhabitants of the district, who are of the second and third generation of British colonists and Loyalists.

A HEROIC DEED.

Young Highland Hero distinguishes Himself near Braemar.

Inverness, Scotland, Aug. 18.—Mr. M'Kay, of Kingussie, is the latest addition to the list of British heroes. Seven ladies and three gentlemen had ascended in company Ben Muich Dhui, near Braemar, but during the descent one of the ladies showed signs of exhaustion. Mr. M'Kay and a Mr. Smith remained behind to help her, and the rest of the party proceeded on their way. They had not gone far when the lady dislocated her ankle. It was getting dark and the sudden gusts of wind presaged a stormy night. Assistance could not be expected for hours; M'Kay saw the young lady's strength was gradually failing, and knowing well the danger of remaining too long on the cold mountain side, he undertook the perilous task of carrying her down the mountain.

The face of the mountain at this side is very steep and rendered more dangerous by the multitude of loose boulders. The descent, handicapped by darkness was a daring attempt, and could only have been successfully accomplished by one sure of foot and quick of movement.

The young Highlander did not wait to contemplate the risk he was undertaking, but strapping the young lady to his shoulder with a waterproof, began the dangerous descent. Through Corrie Etchachan, which in daylight is a dangerous part and in darkness a veritable death trap, the plucky youth carried his burden in safety. It is the wonder of experienced mountaineers that the young man succeeded in reaching the foot of the mountain with his charge, when one false step might have ended two youthful lives.

Having got clear of the steeper part of the mountain, M'Kay carried the young lady for four and a half miles over one of the roughest parts of the Highlands. Here a party of gamekeepers, who had been apprised of the accident met them. The lady was laid on a stretcher and carried by willing hands to Derry Lodge, where her ankle was set. M'Kay, who was dreadfully done up by the physical strain, was helped down.

Diver Meets His Death

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 18.—Diver William Baldwin was killed near Tacoma today while trying to reach the sunken British ship Andelana, lying at the bottom of the harbor. Death came to the daring submarine expert when he was 150 feet below the surface of the water. Death was due to some accident to the pumping gear which supplied the air. The sunken Andelana lies in 190 feet of water. Baldwin was on his second descent in an attempt to reach the deck of the craft.

A Realistic Initiation.

New York, Aug. 18.—John Mohl, twenty-four years, a bartender, living at No. 310 East 128th street, has brought suit in the Supreme Court for $15,000 damages against the Anawanda Tribe, Order of Red Men, for alleged cruelties inflicted upon him while being initiated into the order one year ago.

Mohl says that he was obliged to first take an oath never to divulge the secrets of the order, after which he was tied to the back of a spirited goat and jolted several times. The experience was both new and very painful to him. Mohl alleges that when released he was tied to a stake, and that several members drew revolvers and fired close to the stake. One bullet struck him in the leg, so Mohl says, causing a wound from which he suffered and was confined to his home for eight weeks. Since the shooting he has not attended any meetings of the order or held communication with any of its officers.

Relics of Marchand.

Cairo, Aug. 18.—Some relics of the Marchand expedition have found their way to Omdurman, and may prove of material use. When Marchand quitted Fashoda he went up the Sobat in the gunboat Faidherbe and two small steel boats. Near Campoela he had the engines taken out of the Faidherbe and all three boats sunk. When the river fell some Sudanese saw the boats and informed the Government, by whose orders they were brought to Omdurman. An effort will be made to refloat the Faidherbe and repair her engines.

Reformatory Boys Escape.

Penetang, Aug. 18.—On Tuesday night seven boys escaped from the Boys' Reformatory here. Since then a posse of constables have been in search of them. Two were captured on Wednesday on Christian Island. Last night two more were brought back from Barrie, where they were run down by Constable [illegible] after a chase of thirty miles. The other three in prison garb are still at large. These boys and others numbering twenty escaped for a few days last May. The boys got over the high fence on Tuesday night by a ladder formed by standing on one another's shoulders.

Danish Lock-out Settled.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 18.—The representations of the trade unions effected by the great lock-out, have decided to accept the draft of a general settlement arranged by the presidents of the Employers' Federation and the Joiners' Union, 128 votes being given for and 30 against.

THE SECRET DOSSIER NOT TO BE MADE KNOWN

Col. Picquart Continues His Evidence, Which is Strongly in Favor of the Prisoner.

The Accused Was Acting as a Friend of the Attaches and Not as a Spy. The Colonel Explains the Dossier.

Rennes, Aug. 19.—When the trial of Capt. Dreyfus was resumed this morning Col. Picquart continued his deposition, in the same loud, fearless tone of voice.

Before resuming his deposition Col Picquart said, "I think it necessary to say a few words with reference to the veritable speech for the prosecution delivered by Gen. Roget when referring to the Quenelli case."

The president of the court, Col. Jouaust, here interposed, saying, "Is it a personal matter?"

"I shall be very brief, Colonel," replied Picquart. "I am, however, ready to reply to all questions the court may ask on the subject. For the moment I shall confine myself to the following explanation. The Quenelli case occurred between May 30 and July 17, 1896, at which period, on account of family bereavement, I was able to pay very little attention to my official duties. In my absence Col. Henry acted for me. Moreover I devoted most of the month of July to a journey of the headquarters staff, which also prevented me from attending to my [illegible] duties. I was, therefore, able to give only very intermittent attention to the Quenelli case. Besides this, Quenelli was a returned convict, who had contravened a decree of expulsion, and had been caught red-handed in another criminal act. He was at first sight, a not particularly interesting personage."

ROGET HITS BACK.

At this point Gen. Roget arose and said "I wish to be allowed to reply."

"You shall," said Col. Jouaust.

Col. Picquart, continuing, said: "I protest absolutely against the allegation that I consented to the communication of secret documents to the members of the Dreyfus court martial without the prisoner's knowledge. I never ordered such communication, and if it was done it was not with my cognizance.

"I hasten to add that, in my opinion it would have been an insult to the court to believe it members would lend themselves to such machinations.

"I am ready, I repeat, to reply to every question. I will only point out that all Gen. Roget has recounted in detail was published in general terms in the Gaulois of Jan. 7.

"Having thus explained certain matters I will continue my deposition."

Then the Colonel proceeded to discuss the phrase, occurring in the bordereau, "I am going to the manoeuvres." He said there was no question of probationers going to the manoeuvres in September. This, he pointed out, would have curtailed their period of probation in an entirely unusual manner.

ANALYZING THE DOSSIER.

After dealing with the testimony of the experts at the court martial of 1894, Picquart proceeded to examine the secret dossier, a close analysis of which, he asserted, was particularly necessary, owing to the weight the document had with the members of the court martial in 1894.

"This dossier," continued the witness, "may be divided into two parts. The first contains three documents; One, a [illegible] known as the D'Avignon document, the terms of which are about as follows; Doubt the proofs; service letters; situation dangerous for me with French officer, no information from an officer of the line; important only as coming from the Ministry; already somewhere else."

"Two, the document containing the words 'Cette canaille de D—.'

Three, a document which is nothing but the report of a journey to Switzerland made in behalf of a foreign power.

"The second part of the dossier," continued Picquart, "consisted partly of a supplementary review of the first. It contained the gist of seven or eight documents, one of which, 'Cette canaille de D—' will serve for the purpose of comparison.

It also contained the correspondence of attaches "A," "B." These initials it should be born in mind, represent Col. Schwartzkoppen, formerly German military attache at Paris, and Major Panizzardi, the former military attache of Italy at the French capital.

CANNOT SEE THE DOSSIER.

At this juncture the Colonel said it would facilitate his explanations if he were permitted to see the secret dossier, adding; "I have already had it in my hands, but I fear my memory may fail me on some points."

"What you ask," replied the president of the court martial, "is impossible. The Minister's orders is absolute. The secret dossier can only be examined under certain conditions."

"I regret it," answered Picquart, "But I will try to refresh my memory."

The witness next explained why Major Du Paty de Clam's translation of the d'Avignon document, which has been classed as idiotic, was open to doubt, and why the document, if it had any meaning whatever, was as applicable to Esterhazy as to Dreyfus.

AS A FRIEND, NOT A SPY.

Regarding the correspondence of the military attaches, the witness demonstrated the insignificance of the information asked for. While Paty de Clam regarded the correspondence as convincing, and as clearly indicating an officer of the second bureau, Picquart maintained that the terms of the correspondence indicated that the writer intended to ask a friend, not a spy, for the information desired. Many headquarters officers, he pointed out, were on cordial and absolutely legitimate terms with the foreign military attaches.

Col. Picquart then took up the "Cette Canaille de D—" document. He called the attention of the court to the fact that it was addressed by Schwartzkoppen to Panizzardi, and not vice versa, as long believed.

HIS EXTREME CAUTION.

The witness then rebutted the charges against him of unnecessary delay in the prosecution of Esterhazy. He said his object was "to avoid arousing suspicion in regard to an officer who, perhaps, was entirely innocent."

"What mistakes" he added, "would have been averted in 1894 had they acted in the same way in regard to Dreyfus."

This remark caused murmurs of approval in court.

What the witness gathered about Esterhazy's character, he continued, created the worst impression upon him, but he learned nothing to connect Esterhazy with any act of espionage. Therefore he did not mention his suspicions. An [illegible] ever, was ordered to watch Esterhazy, who had completely compromised himself through his relations with an English company, of which he had agreed to become a director.

Esterhazy's Bad Life.

"That could not be permitted in the case of a French officer," said Picquart, "Moreover, Esterhazy gambled, led a life of debauchery and lived with Mademoiselle Pays."

Turning to the leakage at headquarters, the witness described the negotiations of Major Lauth with the spy Richard Cuers at Basle, showing how the spy promised information about the leakage, and how he, Picquart, was induced to allow Lieut.-Col. Henry to accompany Major Lauth to Basle.

Du Clam's Objects.

After giving his reasons for believing Dreyfus was not the person referred to in that document, Picquart showed how Paty du Clam endeavored to ascribe the authorship of the document to Panizzardi, with the view of establishing a connection which in reality did not exist between the various documents in the indictment against Dreyfus. The document referred to the French agent's trip to Switzerland, of which Schwartzkoppen is said to have been informed, was only slightly commented upon as the witness, as he did not attach importance to it.

Taffy for Picquart

The minute detail with which the Colonel dealt with the evidence, the clearness of his language, and his deductions, had great effect upon the audience, and elicited great admiration. He concluded his examination of the first portion of the secret dossier by saying... "May I be allowed to express deep regret at the evidence of Major Du Paty de Clam. It seems to me indispensable that this officer, who wrote the commentaries upon the secret dossier, should be summoned to give evidence here. He would give us his recollections, and I would help him." (Laughter.)

Another "Sensation"

"But," added Picquart, since I am dealing with this question of the commentaries of Major Du Paty de Clam, permit me to point out to you, gentlemen that this document was not the property of any particular Minister. It was classified as belonging to the Intelligence Department, and, as you see, it formed part of a well-defined dossier—a dossier which was shut up in one of drawers of my desk, and which was extracted from it. This commentary, therefore, is upon a secret dossier document which was improperly removed from my department." (Sensation.)

Continuing, the witness remarked—"Mention was made yesterday of the disappearance of documents. That is the case in point."

A Sort of General Accusation.

Turning to the second portion of the dossier, Picquart described a number of documents in it as forgeries, and said the police reports therein contained nothing serious against Dreyfus. He explained that they contained the theme mostly utilized by police spies, in order to dupe the Intelligence Department, and asserted that their information was mostly worthless, embroidered or false and prepared in order to make interesting reading.

"In the enquiry made by M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire," (former president of the Civil section of the Court of Cassation) an excellent example of the sort of people who can present in the most specious guise what amounts absolutely to nothing.

"You can imagine, gentlemen, what people, in order to get money, if only a modest 20franc piece, have brought to the Intelligence Department in the shape of so-called information which examination has proved to be worthless."

Knows Nothing of Esterhazy.

Concluding his explanation of the secret dossier, Colonel Picquart explained how he had acquired the conviction that the bordereau was written by Esterhazy, and how he ascertained that the anti-Dreyfus proofs were worthless. He began by detailing how he first learned of the existence of Esterhazy, and his efforts to discover something about him. The witness earnestly asserted that the first occasion on which he saw Esterhazy's name was when he read the address of the Petit Bleu. He said he was not acquainted with Esterhazy and never had Esterhazy watched.

Previous to this, the utmost efforts had been made to prove the contrary, and to show Picquart knew Esterhazy before the discovery of the Petit Bleu.

The Colonel emphasized this point, with the view, as explained, of showing how certain newspapers had traversed the facts, and created a mild sensation by adding; "I shall have occasion to point out other and similar examples."

The Colonel Closes.

At the conclusion of Col. Picquart's deposition, General Roget and Mercier rose together and asked to be allowed to be confronted with the witness. The confrontation, however, only lasted a few minutes, and did not prove sensational, having reference to comparatively minor points. After Picquart had reiterated his statements the court adjourned at 11.45 a.m. until to-morrow.

London, Aug. 18.—A despatch to the Morning Post from Rennes indicates the activity of the censorship there. General Mercier's insulting references to Emperor William and certain allusions to the secret dossier were suppressed, while General Mercier's utterances were toned down.

The correspondents of the London morning newspapers are, however, unanimous in the opinion that the tide has finally turned in favor of Dreyfus. The evidence yesterday (Thursday) was so favorable to him that even some of the anti-Dreyfusites would fain admit that the scales are falling from their eyes.

Madame Henry's dramatic characterization of M. Bartulus as "Judas", failed of the intended effect, because he immediately handed Col. Jouaust, president of the court martial, an anonymous letter he had received proving the whole scene prearranged. All the correspondents remarked also the grateful demeanor of Dreyfus on seeing for the first time, witnesses [illegible]

A Compromise.

The correspondent of the Daily Chronicle predicts that Dreyfus will be re-condemned and that the sentence will be immediately commuted through fear of excitement and uprisings incidental upon an acquittal. He believes that the latitude allowed the generals in court point to submission to what in France is a sacred image, "reasons of State."

The correspondent of the Times comments upon the change that came over the aspect of affairs when Maitre Demange began tentatively to cross-examine the witnesses, his questions leaving General Roget utterly disconcerted. His remarks, too, upon the fact that Col. Jouaust failed to confront Roget with Bertulus, whose evidence, therefore, had its full effect.

Liverpool, Aug. 18.—While Liverpool has increased greatly in importance as a shipping port, it has for years steadily declined as a shipbuilding centre. At one time important vessels were constructed on the Lancashire side of the Mersey, but there are only three firms engaged in this branch, and the industry is threatened with extinction, the Docks Board having served notices upon the firms to quit the riverside premises in six months. This step is rendered necessary by the extension of the docks. A big shipbuilding business is still carried on on the Birkenhead side where Messrs. Laird are engaged in constructing some splendid vessels.

London, Aug. 18.—By an explosion today in the Llest colliery, in Glamorganshire, Wales, eighteen persons were killed and sixty others are still in danger.

Mistaken for a Groundhog.

Stroudsburg, Pa., Aug. 18.—Hampton Predmore last night shot and killed Godfrey Transue, his neighbor, mistaking him for a ground hog. Transue walked to the property leased by Predmore and found traces of one of the animals. Predmore's son told his father that he saw something dark moving among the weeds not far from the house, and believed it was a ground hog. Predmore fired a rifle at the moving object and hit Transue, who died almost immediately.

Largest American Flag.

New York, Aug. 19.—The first public exhibition of what is declared to be the largest American flag in the world, the one made by Miss Josephine Mulford of [illegible], N.J., will take place in this city for the benefit of some worthy object in the week of Admiral Dewey's arrival. The flag will be exhibited in some armory, probably that of the [illegible] regiment.

The flag is 100 by 65 feet in size. Three hundred and [illegible] thousand stitches were taken in making it. Letters commending her patriotic work have been received by Miss Mulford from President McKinley, Secretary Long and General Miles.

Record Broken.

London, Aug. 18.—For over two hundred years no baby has been born on the island of Balta, one of the far distant Shetland group. But this long record has now been broken, for the other day, during the recent herring fishing season, a young lady hailing from the Buckie, Banffshire, district gave birth to a fine healthy boy in one of the wooden huts belonging to a curing station. The baby has been christened Balta Geddes Polson, and the Laird of the island has presented the mother with a cheque for $100. The fortunate little stranger has also been made the recipient of several hundred silver coins of the realm from visitors who came from all parts to see the young record breaker.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 19, 1899

POOR FRANCE.

The French generals who are practically on trial before the Dreyfus Tribunal seem to be relieved by the disappearance of Maitre Labori.

A prisoner, crippled by the attempted assassination of his counsel, is denied the privilege of delay, and his trial is hurried on at race-horse speed.

The anxiety of the French generals to take advantage of the attack on Labori would almost indicate that they are not exactly out of sympathy with the attempt to assinate the defender of Dreyfus.

Poor France seems to have pinned her faith to an army which is controlled by a precious lot of scoundrels.

BRITAIN'S COLOSSAL NAVY.

Writing in Cassier's Magazine for July, Archibald S. Hurd asks, "What does the navy represent as a national asset?" Before he answers the question Mr. Hurd proceeds to give in detail the strength of the navy, in which he contends every Englishman has a share. There are now 489 ships large and small in the British navy. From [illegible] to 1885 England spent on an average $7,000,000 per year on new ships. Since then the average has risen to $22,500,000, and this year the admiralty are spending $46,250,000 on new war vessels, in addition to the $8,000,000 devoted to repairs and alterations of old vessels. Mr. Hurd dwells on the astounding fact that in the past eleven years Great Britain has spent $350,000,000 on new warships, and has devoted to the navy during the twelve years past that ended last March, $865,000,000. To-day England has a fleet of 680. To-day England has a fleet of displacement of 1,500,000 tons. Of this great fleet nearly 200 of the most efficient and powerful vessels have been built during the past eleven years. The backbone of the navy is the 64 line of battleships, representing $300,000,000. These floating fortresses carry 50,000 officers and men, and mount 2,675 guns. There are on duty in the British navy 157 cruisers, including 22 armored cruisers, $66,000,000; 119 protected cruisers, $145,000,000; 16 unprotected. Included among the smaller craft are 218 torpedo boats and destroyers, and 35 large torpedo vessels. In summing up, Mr. Hurd puts the cost of the British navy now afloat at $540,000,000. If the twenty-seven ships now in process of construction are added the aggregate cost of the British navy will be $735,000,000. Coming to this question, "What does the navy represent as a national asset?" Mr. Hurd says: "These are the iron walls that in time of need will stand between us and an enemy, which safeguard commerce, protect the colonies, and are continually patrolling the ocean highways. The colossal sum of $540,000,000 paid out for the navy is a part of the funded capital of Great Britain's formidable system of insurance against a foreign foe."

ONE MINER'S LUCK.

After Hope Had Left Him He Stumbled Over a Nugget Worth About $6,000

This man had reached the very last of his resources without finding a speck of gold, and though men in such extremity are always kind and helpful to each other, he could not expect any one to share his fast-dwindling stores with him. There was nothing for it, therefore, but to turn back on the morrow, while a mouthful of food was still left, and to retrace his steps as best he might to the nearest port. He dwelt with a good deal of rough pathos on the despair of that last day's fruitless work, which left him too weak and exhausted to carry his heavy tools back to the spot they called camp. So he just flung them down, and, as he said, "staggered" over the two or three miles of the scrub-covered desert, guided by the smoke of the campfire. Next morning early, after a great deal of sleep and very little food, he braced himself up to go back and fetch his tools, though he carefully explained that he would not have taken the trouble to do this if he had not felt that his pick and barrow were about his only possessions, and might fetch the price of a meal or two when it came to the last.

I have often wondered since if the impression of the Divine mercy and goodness which was so strong in that man's mind just then has ever worn off. He dwelt with self-accusing horror on how he had railed at his luck, at fate, at everything, as he stumbled back that hot morning over his tracks of the day before. The way seemed twice as long, for, as he said, "his heart was too heavy to carry." At last he saw his barrow and pick standing up on the flat plain a little way off, and was wearily dragging on toward them, when he caught his toe against a stone deeply embedded in the sand, and fell down. His voice sank to a sort of awestruck whisper, as if he were almost at confession, as he said:

"Well, ma'am, if you'd believe me, I cursed awfully. I felt as if it was too hard altogether to bear. To think that I should go and nearly break my toe against the only stone in the district, and with all those miles to travel back! So I lay there like Job's friend and cursed God and wanted to die. After a bit I felt like a passionate child who kicks and breaks the thing which hurts him, and I had to beat that stone before I could feel quiet. But it was too firm in the sands for my hands to get it up, so in my rage I set out briskly with the pick to break up that stone, if it took all my strength. It was pretty deep set in the ground I assure you, ma'am; but at last I got it up and here it is—solid gold and nearly as big as a baby's head. Now, ma'am, I ask you, did I deserve this?"

He almost banged the rather dirty looking lump down on the table before me as he spoke, and it certainly was a wonderful sight, and a still was a wonderful sight, and a still more wonderful weight. He told me he had searched about the neighborhood of that nugget all day, but there was not the faintest trace of any more gold. So, as he had no time to lose on account of the shortness of the food and water supply, he just started back to the coast, which he reached quite safely, and came straight down to Perth in the first steamer. The principal bank had advanced him £600 on his nugget, but it would probably prove to be worth twice as much. I asked him what he was going to do, and was sorry to hear that he intended to go back to England at once and set up a shop or a farm—I forget which—among his own people. Of course, it was not for me to dissuade him, but I felt it was a pity to lose such a good sort of man out of the colony, for he was not spending his money in champagne and card playing, as all the very few successful gold finders did in those first days.

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 3 to 15 per cent copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRyee, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-cut to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $360, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

* * * "In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl schiste extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent. of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendall, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I think it is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper. It is near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oil here because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is adapted to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a town could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($400 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.
George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.
Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.
Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.
Col. James. M. Wheston, Boston, Secretary.
Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Ex-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allotment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

Archer City, Texas, May 3, 1899.

Hon. Emery H. Low, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: * * Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States.
* * The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cuperiferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.
The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formations and there is no deep work.
I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.
* * As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.
Very respectfully yours,
T. BURTON EVERETT, M. E.

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the nine mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

British War Office Have Completed Preparations for An Emergency.

MATTERS MORE SERIOUS.

Great Britain Will Not Undertake a Campaign With Less Than 40,000 Men.

Grenadier Guards and Twenty-first Lancers May Be Sent to South Africa With Other Regiments—Kruger Apparently Playing a Game of Bluff.

London, Aug. 16.—The Transvaal situation is unchanged, according to all obtainable official information, but the continued delay of the Boer answer to Great Britain's demand for a joint inquiry as to the effect upon the Uitlanders of the proposed franchise reform measures makes matters look more serious. The War Office has completed its preparations for an emergency force of 20,000 men to be ready to leave within a week. Fast steamers for their transport are waiting orders. It is said that the Grenadier Guards, now at Gibraltar, and the 21st Lancers, now in Egypt, may be sent to South Africa, in addition to the other regiments which have already been ordered there.

War Preparations Are Still Going On.

London, Aug. 16.—The prevalent opinion in England is that President Kruger is playing a great game of bluff at Pretoria. He held a long session yesterday with the Secretary of State and the Attorney-General at the telegraph office. He was apparently communicating with the Orange Free State.

The British Government, on its side, is making counter preparations. Quantities of war stores have been forwarded to Bechuanaland, and the North Lancashire Regiment is under orders to proceed there at a moment's notice.

Since it is expected that the Boers would make a dash for Kimberly in order to cut off the Cape from Rhodesia, the British are preparing to guard the railway bridge across the Vaal river at Fourteen Streams, where the Boers have a field battery.

Recruiting began yesterday at Cape Town for Capt. Baden Powell's mounted infantry to serve on the frontier. The first batch left last night for the rendezvous. The Bulawayo railway cars have been fitted with Maxim guns.

The Daily Mail correspondent learns that $600,000 has been placed to the credit of the paymaster of the Imperial forces.

It is stated the Government will not undertake the campaign with less than 40,000 men. The military activity must not be exaggerated, it being merely a part of the strong policy of the British Government.

HE TOOK NAILS.

It Was All the Same to the Man Who Was Treating.

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

In a certain little town not a great ways from Cleveland there are probably as many of these peculiar people as any place of its size can boast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is economical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a penny that didn't go for some actual necessity.

There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of bachelorhood, finally married. In this little town it is the custom for the happy bridegroom to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in to wish him joy. So the bridegroom in this instance had a box on the counter, and most of his patrons were regaled from it.

Pretty soon the ancient gentleman first referred to lounged in. The storekeeper, who felt friendly to all the world just then, pushed the box toward the newcomer.

"Have a cigar, Uncle Jim," he smilingly said.

Uncle Jim looked at the box and looked at the storekeeper.

"What's this for?" he asked.

The storekeeper slightly blushed.

"Been gettin married."

"Who? You?"

"Yep. Me."

"An you're standin treat, eh?"

"Yep," said the storekeeper.

The old man picked up a cigar.

"How much did these seegars cost ye, Ab?" he inquired.

"Oh," replied the storekeeper, "they cost me 'bout 4 cents. They're nickel cigars."

The old man dropped the cigar back in the box. Then his gaze wandered around the store.

"Well, Ab," he slowly drawled, "ef it's all the same to you, I'll take a pound o' nails."

And he got them.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HE VOTED FOR STONE.

And For One of the Most Remarkable Reasons on Record.

Theodore Bolton of Henry county tells this good story. "I was a strong Stone man," said Bolton, "when the ex-governor was a candidate for governor. One day while the campaign was at its hottest a Democrat from an outlying township came to see me. He called me out from my store and took me into a back alley. I thought he wanted to borrow $5 or ask me to go on his note. Finally, when he got to a selected place, away from the crowd, the old fellow laid down his cob pipe and said:

"'Say, Bolton, I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"'Why, Uncle Billy?' I inquired.

"'Well, they tell me, The, that Bill Stone beats his wife, beats her twice a week.'

"I looked the old man squarely in the eyes and never smiled and said, 'Now, Billy, you wouldn't vote against a man for beating his wife—and you a married man too.'

"'The, you don't beat your wife, do you?'

"'Whenever she needs it, Uncle Billy.'

"'Well, I didn't think that of you, The. The, I like you, but I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"So we parted, and Uncle Billy went back to his home in the back township.

"Three weeks later the county convention to select delegates to the state nominating convention met in Clinton. The first man I met on the streets was Uncle Billy.

"'What are you doing here today, Uncle Billy?' I asked as the old fellow shook hands with me.

"'Why, I am a delegate from my township to this here convention.'

"'And how do you stand on the Stone question now?'

"'Well, I tell you, The. I have been thinking about what you told me, and it's all right. I'm a married man myself, and I am going to vote for Stone.'

"And he did," added Bolton, "and to this day believes Stone beat his wife twice a week, and that's why Stone got his vote in the Henry county convention."—Kansas City Journal.

Campaigning With a Fiddle.

When a young man, the late ex-Governor Oglesby worked in the old Macon tavern. There he met the lawyers riding the circuit and formed the acquaintance of Judge Robbins of Springfield, with whom he studied law two years. Returning to Decatur, he began practicing in a town of 400 inhabitants. He soon became popular as a speaker. On one occasion he was making a Whig speech on one side of the square, while a Democrat was making an opposition speech on the other side. The Democrat was fast getting the crowd when Mr. Oglesby, who was an old fashioned fiddler and played as well as he spoke, borrowed a fiddle from a man in the crowd and began to play. That broke up the opposition meeting, and the Democrat, left without an audience, came over and joined the crowd that was dancing to Oglesby's music.

Buffalo Bill's Fine Shooting.

Colonel Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," is one of the finest shots in the world. One of his most wonderful feats was not generally performed in public, for the reason that its failure or success could not be discerned at any great distance. It consisted in driving into a white board five short, flat headed tacks with five successive shots, from a distance just short enough to allow the tacks to be accurately sighted. So great was Colonel Cody's skill with the light rifle he used for this feat that, given favorable light, he could generally perform it six or seven times without a miss.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It Is a Fact.

"What are you sighing for?" asked the registry department of the dead letter office.

"No one has so many rejected addresses as I," was the sorrowful reply.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Any one can distinguish a poisonous serpent from a harmless one, for a venomous snake invariably possesses a triangularly shaped head and a blunt nose, while its tail is correspondingly blunt and stubby.

REJECTED AT THE ALTAR.

But the Bride Changed Her Mind an Hour Afterwards.

London, Ont., Aug. 16.—Miss McGarvey, of Delaware, exercised the womanly prerogative of changing her mind by refusing her promised husband at the altar this morning. An hour later she reversed her decision once more, and consented to become Mrs. John Hargrave.

Mr. Hargrave, who is a resident of London, is over 50, while his bride is a handsome woman, not yet 30. The banns had been three times published in St. Peter's cathedral, and the church was well filled this morning to witness the ceremony. When Rev. Father Tiernan put the momentous question to the man, he promptly answered in the affirmative. Then the bride-to-be amazed the congregation by answering "No, I won't," when it came to her turn to talk. Mr. Hargrave stood dumbfounded, the priest looked dazed, and Miss McGarvey walked away from the altar, while the audience whispered wonderingly as it dispersed. It was said that the bride declined because her loving spouse had not completed a transfer of property to her, as had been arranged. Mr. Hargrave had a long conference with his intended, and finally, an hour after the time fixed, the ceremony was solemnized. This time the bride was radiant, and said "I will" as if she meant it.

Own the Country.

Ottawa, Aug. 16.—Word has been received from the Indian Commissioners, Messrs. Baird, Ross and McKenna, who reached Fort St. John early in July, that very little success has attended their efforts to make treaty with the Beaver Indians, not one of whom came into the fort to meet the commissioners. It appears that the Beavers endeavored to have their northern neighbors, the Dog Ribs, to go in with them, but that tribe refused, and all the Indians of the Peace River stayed away. These tribes give as a reason for refusing that the whole country is their heritage, and they will not sell it.

Joliette, Que., Aug. 16.—The safe at the Dominion Express office here has been out of order for some days, and last night when $7,000 arrived here for the Banque Nationale it was handed over to the local C.P.R. agent for safe-keeping. He hid it in the chimney in the cellar over night. This morning he found the chimney vacant and the money gone. Detectives are investigating the robbery.

Want a Local Candidate.

Stouffville, Ont., Aug. 16.—The Executive of the West Ontario Reform Association met at Stouffville yesterday for the purpose of fixing a date for holding a convention for the election of officers and the selection of a candidate to represent the riding. It was decided to hold a convention on the 13th of September. The chairmen of the different municipalities were all present, and the feeling was very strong for a local candidate.

Honor the Emperor.

London, Aug. 16.—The fifth commandment, according to the official Russian version, now reads: "Honor thy father and thy mother, the Emperor and his officials, that thy days may be long," etc.

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of it to reach to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the altering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

A SHIPS' GREAT DANGER

New Morgan Liner Steamship Buffeted by an Electric Storm.

THE CURE FOR MOB LAW.

Bones of a Mastodan Were Unearthed Near Newburg by Men Digging in a Ditch.

Two Millions Left to the Society for Protection of Animals by a Woman in France—Complications Caused by the carrying Out of Her Will.

New York, Aug. 16.—There was plenty of incident to the maiden trip of the El Sud, the new Morgan line steamship built to replace the vessel of the same name, which was sold to the Government. She arrived yesterday from New Orleans. Captain Quick reported having passed through an electrical storm, during which thousands of balls of fire fell about the ship.

The El Sud ran into the storm Saturday night off Cape Hatteras. Her officers say yesterday that the meteoric display exceeded in brilliancy anything they had ever seen.

The thermometer on board registered 95 degrees in the shade Saturday. The sky became suddenly overcast at seven o'clock that night and rain fell in torrents. There was a rising sea, and the wind was blowing at the rate of thirty miles an hour. The storm lasted until three o'clock in the morning, when it ceased as suddenly as it had begun.

In the early part of the storm Captain Quick said there was almost continuous thunder and flashes of lightning were incessant. Displays of sheet lightning were interrupted by

Following the rain there was a second display of lightning, which in turn gave way to showers of meteors. blinding flashes. The balls of fire flashed into the sea on all sides. Some of them burst before reaching the water. None of them struck the vessel, although many fell dangerously near. The general course of the falling meteors was from the east to northwest.

Newburg, N.Y., Aug. 16.—The bones of a mastodon have just been found in the William Barclay farm, two miles west of the city, on the south side of Cochecton turnpike, which is occupied by Frederick W. Schaefer, a market gardener. Apparently a lake occupied the site many centuries ago.

One of several men digging a ditch on Saturday afternoon last at a depth of six feet found what he thought was a root. He dug around it enough to enable him to pull out a rib bone 40 inches long.

Work was resumed in a more careful manner, and a part of the vertebrae, thirteen inches in diameter, several more ribs and the lower jaw, with the teeth intact, were discovered. The jaw bone at the base measures 25 inches, while its extreme length is 37 inches. It is in almost perfect condition. The back teeth are pure white, eight by four inches. Toward the point of the jaw are two smaller teeth, which measure five by three and a half inches, and one of them, which was removed, weighed two and one-quarter pounds. The head of the beast was unearthed Monday afternoon. It is 30 inches across. The tusks where they join the head measure eight inches in diameter, and more than six feet of their length has also been disclosed. It is supposed that when wholly excavated their extreme length will be about eight feet.

Bones of ten mastodons have been found in Orange county. The last previous one was discovered twenty years ago in the Hugh Kelly place, Little Britain. One found in the town of Mount Hope in 1874 is now in the Yale Museum. Another, found in 1845, in East Coldenham, is in the Boston Museum. This one was complete, and weighed 1,995 pounds.

Paris, Aug. 16.—More than a year ago, says The Figaro, a certain lady named Chossegros left to the Society for the Protection of Animals a legacy of two millions, with the object of improving the existence of animals.

One of the provisions of her will was the creation of twelve inspectors to do the work of the society. When the action was known applications for the twelve posts flowed in from all quarters, testimonials came in and competitions were undergone, but since then nothing has come of it.

The Figaro, anxious to know whether the society was in fault, sent to interview M. Uhrich, the president of the society. His statement was not reassuring. He states that the dossier is hung up somewhere at the Assistance Publique, he believes, which absorbes everything and gives up nothing it can help.

The legacy and the 3 per cent, imposed by the State bring in about 60,000 francs; the conditions imposed by the testator would cost 75,000 francs a year. The inspectors selected are menacing the society, and demanding their pay, on the ground that they have given up places for their promised offices.

M. Uhrich, however, has reached the limit of his patience; he intends to get to work, with the assent of the executor of Mme. Chossegros' will, which he expects to obtain shortly.

THE TURF REVIEW.

It is reported that $5,500 was refused a few days ago for Jasper Ayres, 2:09.

Phenol, 2:07¼, pacing, by Jersey Wilkes, has been bred to Joe Patchen.

Bingen was shown in nine classes at two horse shows and took nine blue ribbons.

The only mare bred to John R. Gentry last year is said to be Belle Warren, and she has a fine filly foal.

The Director-Winifred colt, for which George Starr paid $4,500, has been registered as The Director General.

Mr. Winters will build a mile track at the Penn Valley Stud farm. The half mile track now there is too sharp at the curves.

James Gatcomb is training Zembia, 2:13¼, now owned by Mr. A. S. Bigelow of Boston, a gentleman who is accumulating a good stable.

It has been pointed out that the stallion trotting records of the great Wilkes and Electioneer families are identical, 2:06¼, for Ralph Wilkes and Bingen.

Bonnie Boy, by Patchen Wilkes, and the sire of nine in the list, has a record of 2:25, made at Cuba, N. Y., in 1897, which has never reached the Year Book authorities.

Fletcher Driver, formerly trainer for Major H. C. McDowell, who has been identified with runners for a couple of years, is to return to the trotters and pacers.

Mr. Nathan Straus, the other day, on the Speedway at New York, turned the tables on David B, with Cobwebs, although the former was driven by professional Jerome Whelpley.

Attention is called to the fact that Nancy Hanks is not the only ex-queen of the turf that was bred to a thoroughbred horse, Flora Temple having been bred to imp. Leamington.—Turf, Field and Farm.

Mr. Hobart's dyspepsia must be the result of imprudent eating. As he has been in the vice presidency several years, it could not have come from worry and nervous excitement.—Kansas City Journal.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Cultivate the young orchard thoroughly early in the season.

In selecting trees, take those with smooth, healthy looking bark.

Ground bone is good for small fruit plants, grapevines and bearing apple orchards.

The deeper the culture the larger the reserve of moisture for the roots in time of drought. To secure quick growth prepare the soil deeply.

Bone dust for raspberries and blackberries may be simply scattered broadcast over the ground, as the necessary cultivation will work it sufficiently in with the soil.

While peach seedlings are usually healthier and last longer than budded trees, one is never sure what kind of fruit a seedling will produce when it comes into bearing.—Exchange.

THE PUNSTER.

It's easier to pass a resolution than it is to keep it.

When the baby is asleep, it's a case of kid napping.

"Never wear shoes too small for you" is a good foot rule.

A telegraph operator demands cash for what he does on tick.

It's surprising how easy it is to get something you don't want.

Law books are bound in sheep out of respect for those who go to law.

Some people are so miserly one can't even have a joke at their expense.

A married man says the jaws of death are not to be compared with the "jaws" of life.

The poet probably sings of the silvery moon because it comes in halves and quarters.—Chicago News.

FOR YOU, YOUNG LADY.

How many thoughts a day for mother's comfort do you give?

Never mind about the dimples if there's sunshine in your smile.

Neatness of dress first and style may come as an afterthought.

At least one little act of kindness a day and an easy pillow at night.

One frown a day when she's in her teens will wrinkle a girl's forehead like a crone's by the time she is 20.

Try making yourself as agreeable to your brother as if he were some other girl's brother. It will pay to win his boyish confidence.—Boston Herald.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

Politicians resemble shoes in one respect—the higher grade are not machine made.—Chicago News.

The strongest indication, so far visible, that General Funston will enter politics on his return is the fact that he was born in Ohio.—Topeka State Journal.

A politician is safest when he writes out his declaration of principle speech for the [illegible]. Then he can say what he pleases when he gets up to talk.—New Orleans Picayune.

STRANGELY MIXED MARRIAGES

Remarkable Cases of it in England and Australia.

The two following cases would be difficult to surpass. One was in England, the other in Australia. Some time ago a marriage took place in Birmingham which brought about a very complicated state of family relations. The woman had been married three times before, and each time had taken for her husband a widower with children. Her fourth husband was a widower, and, as he had children by his first wife who was herself a widow, with children when he married her, the newly married couple started their matrimonial companionship with a family composed of the progeny of eight previous marriages.

Another curious case was that of Dr. King, a widower, of Adelaide, who married a Miss Norris. Shortly after the doctor's honeymoon the doctor's son married a sister of the doctor's wife. Then a brother of the doctor's wife married the doctor's daughter. In other words the doctor's son became his step-mother's brother-in-law, and the doctor's daughter became his step-mother's sister-in-law. The doctor by the marriage of his son to the sister of the doctor's wife became father-in-law to his sister-in-law, and the doctor's wife by the marriage of her sister to her step-son became step-brother-in-law to her own sister. By the marriage of the brother of the doctor's wife to the doctor's daughter the doctor became father-in-law to his brother-in-law, and the doctor's wife became stepmother-in-law to her own brother. It is an unsolved problem as to what relationship the children of the contracting parties are to each other.

CONTRACT VS. DAY LABOR.

Day Labor Cheaper in Toronto What will Lindsay's Experiment Show?

Toronto Globe—"Reference was made some time ago to the fact that two identical pieces of paving were being done on adjoining streets in ward one, the first by day labor, the second by contract. It was shown that the cost was in favor of the former by nearly $1,000. The two jobs are now completed, and aldermen and others interested in road-making should not fail to visit the two. Langley avenue, which was built by day labour and for $1,000 less than Victor avenue, is a splendid specimen of macadam road. Victor, which was done by contract and was finished but the other day, looks as if it were constructed with dust or any old stuff that happened to be on hand. It is to be hoped that the engineer will also take a look at the two.

Peterborough's experience is not favorable to day labour, although the contractors need to be watched very closely. So far as the work is concerned in Peterborough, it could not be better.

Hon. Mr. Tarte Much Better.

Montreal, Aug. 16.—A private cablegram from Paris states that Mr. Tarte is much better, and that he will leave for home at the end of the present month.

The Paris correspondent of La Patrie writes that the Minister is now assured that no danger threatens him for the future, there are no hydatids and no danger of a relapse. The operation lasted half an hour, Mr. Tarte being under the influence of chloroform. When he awoke he found himself in his bed again, having felt no pain whatever.

An Increase of Salary.

Winnipeg, Aug. 16.—The City Council has given all the principle civic officials largely increased salaries. The City Engineer gets an increase of $1,500.

COUSIN OF EMPRESS EUGENIE.

Romantic Story of a Spaniard who has been Long in Alaska.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 16.—Camilo Espinosa, unquestionably a cousin of ex-Empress Eugenie of France, is here, after having passed the last fifteen years in the wilds of Alaska. Espinosa is not false pretender, which he proves by a considerable number of letters written him by his imperial cousin to various parts of the globe during the past quarter of a century. This cosmopolitan Spaniard, who now is 60 years old, came down from the arctic a few days ago with a colossal fortune in European exchange as a result of the sale of rich mining properties.

He is a modest, retiring man and only accidentally was his close relationship to the late French imperial dynasty discovered. Though he has more than thirty years been in close touch with the rougher element of the world, he retains the polish of a refined Castilian cavalier, even if the hard lines in his face denote the climatic changes he has undergone since he fled from the gay Spanish capital in the latter part of 1868. At that time he was an officer in the royal guard, and one night resented in a deadly way an insult offered him at a cafe by a young fellow officer, who claimed to be a relative of ex-Queen Isabella. Espinosa's antagonist remained dead on the spot and the former hastened from Madrid.

"Despite my family connections," remarked the self-exiled Spaniard, "a large sum of blood money was offered for me, but my friends succeeded in smuggling me aboard an East India-bound vessel, and from that time to this I never revealed my identity. I would not do so now but for this," added he, drawing a letter from his pocket written in French by the ex-empress, assuring him that she had obtained his unconditional pardon from the queen of Spain.

"My family, though one of the most distinguished in Spain," he continued "was comparatively poor and in my exile I could not largely depend upon it for pecuniary aid. Thus I necessarily was thrown upon my own resources. In 1884 three of my fellow countrymen, also of noble families, whom I met in Bombay, suggested that we go to seek a fortune in Alaska and there we have ever since been. Our adventures would read like incredible tales were we to print them. Oftener than once we were in the locality now known as the Klondike. After a few years we familiarized ourselves with Alaska mining and made several valuable locations. The latest I disposed of to a representative of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, though he did not put in her name, for $400,000. My colleagues returned to Spain several years ago with great riches. We worked localities as yet unknown to the English and Americans, and from them I shall extract my future fortune."

Despite his strange story Mr. Espinosa impresses one as a thoroughly trustworthy man, and he certainly seems to have no reason to misrepresent himself in any particular.

Cobourg Gets the Bunch.

The latest report says that Roach, the alleged accomplice of Pare and Holden, Napanee bankrobbers, has relented, and will go to Cobourg with the two worthies above mentioned, on September 19th, and stand his trial. It was at first reported that Roach would insist on being tried separately, and at Napanee he objecting to a change from that town to Cobourg. When before the Magistrate at Napanee, recently, he elected to be tried by jury. At the trial there will be an array of the best legal talent in the Dominion, both for the prosecution and defence. At present it is not known whether Mackie will be brought up from Kingston or not. Gailor Snelgrove will find it necessary to keep a sharp lookout when the above party is quartered in the Cobourg gaol.

There is no truer, kindlier spirit than that which prompts a woman to aid in the comfort and uplifting of her own sex—mental, moral or physical. We admire as heroines those women who make it a life's purpose to rescue or nurse or teach their unfortunate sisters, but equally admirable is that spirit which impels a woman who has found help and comfort in sickness to use all her influence in bringing the same relief to others.

"I shall be glad," writes Mrs. Benj. H. Fairbanks, of Enosburg, Franklin Co., Vt., in a cordial letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., "if my testimony to the success of your treatment will help to influence other women, troubled with the diseases peculiar to our sex, to write you. I am glad to be able to tell you of the great good your medicines have done me. I had been troubled with ulceration and its attendant aches and pains and nervousness several times; and finally made worse by a miscarriage, I wrote you. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for about three or four months and can truly say, they cured me. I shall never cease to be grateful."

No woman afflicted by such agonizing and discouraging complaints need hesitate to write to Dr. Pierce. She may feel assured, no matter what her circumstances may be, of his respectful, earnest, fatherly sympathy and best professional efforts in her behalf. He stands among the most eminent practitioners of the century in this special field, and his advice will be given absolutely without charge.

Seventy-five Men Secured.

Mr. J. D. Kennedy, representing the Rat Portage Lumber Company, has been in town for the past few days hiring men, through Mr. T. Cavanagh. He secured about 75 men who went forward to Rat Portage yesterday. The wages paid ranges from $20 to $26 per month. The Rat Portage Company own six mills, all situated at Rat Portage, and employ about 600 men. The lumber is all shipped into Manitoba, none of it going across the line. Mr. Kennedy, whose house is in Brandon, told the Times that there never was so bright an outlook for Manitoba as at present fifty million bushels of grain is a low estimate of the grain yield this season. Mr. Kennedy says he secured most of his men through the ad in the Times.

Repudiated.

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Trenton signed by the Secretary and Chairman of a meeting representing the various fraternal societies of that town, repudiating the so-called "Society Meet" which is advertised to take place in Trenton on Tuesday next, Aug. 22. The Times is requested to state that the names of the societies were used without authority, and therefore is repudiated.

Father Fitzpatrick's Pic-nic

The Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, the popular and eloquent parish priest at Young's Point, has announced a picnic to be held in South Beach Grove, Young's Point, on Labor day. Reduced railway fares have been arranged, and free passage from Lakefield to the Point and return by steamer. This will afford a rare opportunity for a fine day's outing.

THE CIVIC HOLIDAY.

How the Day was Observed by Our Citizens —the Town Deserted.

There was no issue of the Times yesterday morning on account of Civic holiday consequently our report of the events in connection with the day will be brief. The town was practically deserted. Those who did not go away on some of the cheap excursions took livery horses or went on their bicycles to the country and others spent the day quietly in the local parks. It is estimated that fully four thousand persons were carried out of town by the railways.

The first to leave was the excursion to Niagara Falls, by C.P.R. to Toronto and boat.

The Salvation Army and their friends excursed to Lindsay.

The Stony Lake excursions were well patronized.

The excursion to Orillia under the auspices of C.O.F. per G.T.R. was well patronized.

The Catholic Order of Foresters excursion to Jubilee Point per Str. City of Peterborough.

The Oddfellows' excursion to Rochester was also well patronized.

DIED IN WINNIPEG.

The Death of Mr. James Walsh, Formerly of Peterborough.

The Winnipeg Free Press of Monday, July 31st says: The death is announced of Mr. James Walsh, father of Mr. Frank Walsh, manager of the Bell Telephone Company in this city at the age of 82 years. The sad event occurred yesterday at Oxbow where the deceased had been living with one of his sons. The deceased was well known throughout Western Canada. He was a fur buyer and his business took him to all the remote parts of the country from the Ottawa River to the Rocky Mountains. He came to Manitoba in 1878 and lived in the west continuously from that time until his death. He was a member of the first Red River expedition and accompanied the soldiers as far as Lake of the Woods as a road constructor. The deceased came to Manitoba from Peterborough where he resided many years, and where he was popularly known as "Uncle Jimmie Walsh." He will be well remembered by the older residents of the town.

The remains will be brought into
The remains will be brought into the city on Wednesday, and interred at St. James' cemetery.

KEENE.

A select party of Keenites and a few others left the Keene wharf on Wednesday morning in canoes, punts and sailboats to picnic on some choice point on the lake. They report having a jolly good time but we notice that several of the party look rather dyspeptic, no doubt owing to change of food.

Shoemack park is becoming a favorite resort for some of our young people. Several of our oldest citizens are curious to ascertain where this park is located and also which is the most convenient steam boat route to it. All information can be obtained from the party which were camped there one day last week.

The curlers and skaters have made arrangements for an excursion from this place on Friday, the 25th inst. The excursionists are to be carried from here to Lindsay on the Grand Trunk railway. The steamer Crandella then takes them to Lakefield where a special train is to take them home. All should avail themselves of this opportunity of viewing the beautiful scenery and enjoying the exhilarating air of the north waters. The round trip is only $1.20 from Keene station. Dinner can be obtained on the steamer Crandella for 25 cents.

A Serious Charge

Chief Rowed returned to town on the midnight C.P.R. express Wednesday, from Fort William, having as a prisoner Jas. Kirk, of Garden Hill who was wanted here on the charge of $25.00 from W. F. Nelson. It is alleged that Mr. Nelson gave Kirk the money mentioned to purchase a horse and that Kirk converted the money to his own use and left for the Rainy River district. Word was sent on that he was wanted here and he was arrested by the authorities at Fort William as he stepped off the boat. A hearing into the particulars will take place this morning.

FOUR POUNDS OF FLESH.

From One Pound of Food

The statement is made that one pound of Grape-Nuts will supply more nourishment (that the system will absorb), than 10 lbs. of meat, wheat, or oats.

A man protested that the claim was extravagant, but upon trial it was found that by leaving off meats altogether at breakfast and lunch and taking in its place, 4 heaping teaspoons of Grape-Nuts Began to gain flesh and strength and before the full pound package was gone had gained 4 lbs. in weight, whereas he had been losing on his meat diet.

How could he gain 4 lbs. and only eat 1 lb. Grape-Nuts? Remember the 4 teaspoons of Grape-Nuts are but a portion of the meal, but they furnish the pre-digested and easily assimilated part and help digest other foods assisting nature in building in water (75 per cent of all flesh). In other words Grape-Nuts furnish the workers or the active elements of food in the most perfect condition for nature to make use of.

Grocers furnish Grape-Nuts at 15 cents per package.

Notes.

At Juniper Island yesterday evening as the steamer Sunbeam came into the wharf, a skiff belonging to one of the cottagers was rather badly crushed by being squeezed between the boat and the wharf.

Yesterday through the kindness of Mr. N. T. LePlante, about forty of the cottagers at Stony Lake in canoes, skiffs, etc., were towed by Mr. LePlante's steam yacht from Juniper Island to Burleigh.

There were 11 steam launches and yachts, besides the three passenger steamers, shunting, steaming and puffing like Pancks, around Juniper Island regatta time yesterday.

Paine's Celery Compound

Saves a Little Girl's Life.

Users of Paine's Celery Compound never suffer disappointment.

The great medicine at all times and under all circumstances brings to all sufferers relief and a permanent cure.

Mr. Maxime Martel, 189 Mitcheson Street, Montreal, tells what Paine's Celery Compound accomplished for his little daughter, whose case was considered an incurable one; he says:

"My daughter, now eight years old, was afflicted with terrible scrofula for nearly six years and we thought her case an incurable one. We had several physicians to attend her, and she took medicines of all kinds, but she got worse instead of better. Having had our attention drawn to the fact that Paine's Celery Compound wrought cures where other medicines failed, we procured a supply, and after a fair trial of the medicine we can report that the disease is overcome and we trust has disappeared forever. Our little girl is now bright, strong and healthy, sleeps and eats well and her blood is now as pure as it can possibly be. I have great pleasure in recommending Paine's Celery Compound as a cure for scrofula and blood diseases; it is the best medicine in the world."

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

All Saints' Company No. 20, of the Church Boys' Brigade, will go to Jubilee for a ten days' camp beginning Tuesday next.

Thursday next is Lakefield's Civic day. A regatta will be held at Stony lake. The 57th battalion band has been engaged to furnish music.

A number of charges of disorderly conduct will be investigated in police court to-day. They are the outcome of a fracas that occurred on Charlotte St. on Saturday last.

F. Wyatt found a lady's Brantford wheel among the debris on the Water St. side of the Peter Hamilton foundry yesterday morning. On investigation it was found to be the property of Mrs. W. J. Macullum. It had been taken from the rack in the market arcade some time the previous evening.

The 57th Battalion Band played last night in Victoria park. There was a very large attendance.

Among the excellent pocket editions of novels published for vacation reading, there's nothing better than a nice pocketbook.

More single men are wanted at the summer resorts. If they furnish half the pleasure the girls will try to provide in their turn a better half.

It is said that leather will be the next article to advance in price. When leather gets dear people will find out where the shoe pinches.

While running at full speed near the siding at the McAllister mill when he tripped on the chain cable which used for moving the cars. He was thrown violently down and his head struck the steel rail. He was unconscious all day yesterday and lost considerable blood. It is thought however that the lad will recover.

DEATH OF MR. EDG. PEARCE.

The County Clerk and Treasurer Passes Away Yesterday.

It is with sincere regret that the Times is forced to announce the death of Mr. Edg. Pearce, Clerk and Treasurer of the County of Peterborough, which sad event occurred yesterday morning at Muskoka, where Mr. Pearce had gone for the benefit of his health. The melancholy news was conveyed to town by a telegram from Mrs. Pearce, addressed to County Engineer Belcher, an old and intimate friend of the family.

Mr. Pearce had been unwell for some months and that he was failing was noticed by many of his friends. Accompanied by Mrs. Pearce he went up to Muskoka nearly a month ago to see if the change would benefit his health. Word received in town since stated that he was growing worse rather than improving.

Mr. Pearce was one of our best known and most esteemed citizens. He was clerk and treasurer of the county, having held that office for thirty years, during which time fidelity and ability marked all his labors. He was also secretary-treasurer of the Town Trust Commissioners and held other positions of trust. He was a man of sterling character, honorable and straightforward in all walks of life. The family left to mourn his loss consists of a wife, one son, Mr. T. E. B. Pearce, a civil engineer, now in Newport, Va., and three daughters. others left the Keene wharf on Wed-

Christian Science.

Editor of the Times.

Sir—As the Christian Scientists point out, here is the injustice in the present campaign against them: Every failure of the Christian Science treatment is exploited as a crime and set forth with great particularity in the newspapers. Yet the regular practioners of medicine lose patients every day as the death certificates show, but no outcry is raised over them. If, the Christian Scientists inquire, it is a crime for a Christian Science practioner to lose a patient why is it not likewise a crime for a licensed physician to lose one? Why all this outcry over an occasional death under Christian Science treatment and no word of comment upon the hundreds of deaths daily under the treatment of regular practioners? Why make fish of one and flesh of the other? It is going to be might hard to answer this argument, the more so as the Christians Scientists have repeatedly challenged the "regular" healers to a test of relative efficiency and the challenge remains unaccepted.

TO FIGHT OR NOT TO FIGHT

That is the Question Still Agitating the Mind of Briton and Boer.

WAR PREPARATIONS GO ON

And Oom Paul's Latest Kite has Entirely Failed in its Expected Effect on Britain.

There is No Cessation of Warlike Preparations on Either Side—The Transvaal Government Rushing Troops to the Frontier—War Office Has Already Sent Out Forage for 10,000 Horses.

London, Aug. 19.—The Earl of Denbigh, speaking at a Primrose meeting during the week, voiced the general feeling of the Government's supporters by saying: "If the break up of the British empire is wanted all we have to do is to show a weak front in South Africa. Great Britain has to win the next trick there, whether by diplomacy or other means."

Mr. William T. Stead, in The Review of Reviews, makes a startling insinuation against Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the Secretary of State for the Colonies. He says that the Liberal leaders, Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, two years ago, had not "made themselves parties to a most scandalous fraud, in the way of whitewashing, ever perpetrated upon the public, Mr. Chamberlain would not be in the Colonial Office to-day.'

Mr. Stead refers, apparently, to the Jameson raid into Transvaal, and intimates that Mr. Chamberlain is entirely responsible for the present crisis, adding, "What is now demanded, almost avowed, is the destruction of the domination of Boer oligarchy." Continuing, Mr. Stead berates Sir Alfred Milner, the British High Commissioner in South Africa, and says if he was away from the Transvaal there would be no threatenings of war in South Africa.

Still Preparing for War.

London, Aug. 19.—The latest franchise kite from Pretoria has failed of its expected effect. It is merely regarded as a device to gain time. There is no cessation of the war preparations on either side. The Transvaal Government is beginning to move troops to the border and the police on the frontier have been ordered to strictly prohibit any cattle leaving the public is receiving large amounts of gold beyond ordinary requirements. Field Marshall Lord Wolseley, commander-in-chief of the British army, was in consultation at the War Office yesterday with General Neville Gerald Lyttleton, assistant military secretary, and the headquarters staff. Tenders for an immediate supply of large stores of forage and general general stores were under consideration. Six months' supply of compressed forage for ten thousand horses has already been sent out. It is reported that Col. Hector Macdonald, recently appointed to an important Indian command, but who has delayed taking up his post, is really waiting to be ordered to South Africa under command of Lieut.-General Sir Frederick Walker, who relieves General Sir William Francis Butler, late commander of the British troops there.

FAITH HEALER IN TROUBLE.

Evangelist Brooks Held Responsible for a Child's Death in Victoria, B.C.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 20.—Eugene Brooks, termed by himself and his followers Evangelist Brooks, who has been conducting Zion Divine Healing Mission, a branch of Dr. Dowie's Christian Catholic church of Chicago, in this city, may be called upon, on his return from Vancouver, to answer to a serious charge.

Since his arrival here Brooks has secured many converts and among them Mrs. McCoskrie, wife of Captain McCoskrie of the steamer Princess Louise. The woman had been ill for some time and was induced to try divine healing both for herself and her little boy, who was also ill. July 20 Captain McCoskrie went north on his steamer. Upon his return Saturday morning he learned that his child was dead and he holds Evangelist Brooks and his teachings responsible for it. Captain McCoskrie sailed for the north last night, but has left the matter in the hands of the police.

Detective Murray Investigates the Death of Alfred James.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—Detective Murray returned this morning from Parry Sound, where he has been investigating the mysterious drowning of Albert James, on August 4th.

An inquest was held at Kernay, on the Canada Atlantic, by Coroner Barber, but nothing in the evidence showed that the suspected men, Joseph Aldrich and his son, who were with James at the time of the accident, were responsible for his death. The post-mortem examination of Dr Hogg did not disclose any marks of violence on the body, and no further proceedings will be taken in the case.

"THAT IS A MANIFEST LIE!" SHOUTED DREYFUS

When Hearing Some of Major Cuignet's Evidence Against Him at the Great Court-Martial.

NEW SENSATIONS AS THE TRIAL PROCEEDS

And Witnesses Under Searching Cross-Examination Repeadedly Contradict Previous Evidence Given by Them Before the Court of Cessation.

Rennes, Aug. 19.—No special incident occurred this morning when the second trial by court martial of Captain Alfred Dreyfus, of the 14th Artillery, charged with treason was resumed at the Lycee. The first witness called to-day was Major Cuignet, formerly attached to the Ministry of War.

The witness who declared that he was convinced of the prisoner's guilt, was cross-examined by M. Demange, of counsel for the defence, who succeeded in pointing out that several of his statements contradicted his previous depositions.

The president of the court, Col. Jouaust, asked Dreyfus if he had anything to say, whereupon the prisoner rose and again vehemently protested against the denunciations levelled against him, an innocent man.

General De Boisdeffre was the next witness called.

Evidence in Detail.

Following is the evidence in detail: Major Cuignet, the first witness, was not in uniform, as he is not at present attached to any corps: "Before beginning an account of the special investigation into the case which I was ordered to make by Ministers of War, from M. Cavaignac to M. De Freycinet," said the witness, "I wish to mention a personal fact which, in conjunction with the evidence already heard, will constitute fresh proof of the prisoner's indiscreet behaviour when employed on the headquarters staff. I was on the staff when Dreyfus was a probationer, during the latter half of 1893. Among other duties, I was connected with the railroad service and the mining of railroads, with the view of interrupting traffic in case of need. It is hardly necessary to point out the secret character of such matters. Dreyfus was a probationer on the eastern railroads, and had been ordered to specially study the mining on them and possessed information relating solely to them.

Asked for Information.

"One day Dreyfus asked me to give him the general scheme of mining which I possessed, giving as a reason for his request that he was anxious to increase his knowledge, and that it was necessary for him to know the general scheme in order to properly carry out the work entrusted to him. I replied that I did not see the necessity of giving him the scheme and that, in any case, he had better apply to his own chief, Major Bertin. Dreyfus pretended Bertin would not impart any information. Day after day he pestered me so that finally, having no reason to distrust him, I began giving him explanation. Dreyfus displayed the keenest interest and took copious notes. When, later, his house was searched, these notes were not discovered. I do not know what became of them. But it is difficult to believe that they were destroyed, considering the importance he seemed to attach to the information and the persistence shown in procuring it."

Reasons for His Guilt.

After launching the above declaration, which he apparently considered to be weighty evidence of the treachery of Dreyfus, Major Cuignet proceeded to recount in detail the task which General Gonse assigned to him in May, 1898, of classifying the documents in the Dreyfus, Esterhazy and Picquart cases.

"The first question I will ask here is," said the witness, "is Dreyfus guilty? My conviction of his guilt is based on three grounds.

"First—His confessions to Captain Lebrun-Renault.

"Second—The technical nature of the contents of the bordereau.

"Third—The result of the examination of the secret dossier.

"I will add to these three points the evidence of the expert Bertillon—(laughter)—and as indirect proof, the means employed by the Dreyfus family to secure the prisoner's rehabilitation.

"I protest that a campaign has been undertaken against justice, truth and our country."

The Major's outburst of heroics evoked cynical smiles and indications of dissent, coupled with marks of assent from the assembled generals.

The witness next spoke of the secret dossier of the War Ministry containing information relating to the interview between M. Trarieux, former Minister of Justice, and Count Tornielli, the Italian Ambassador, "which country," said Cuignet, benefitted by the treachery."

Regarding the confessions said to have been made to Captain Lebrun-Renault, witness said he still believed they were authentic, adding: "If people do not believe the confessions to Captain Lebrun-Renault they will believe no human testimony."

Written in August.

Continuing, the witness reasserted that the bor bordereau was written by Dreyfus at the end of August, and incidentally the Major protested against Colonel Picquart's insinuations against Du Paty de Clam. He then returned to the secret dossier of the War Office, from which he declared, the court was sure to draw important deductions.

"The first portion of the dossier," he said, shows that in 1893 there was a constant leakage in the Ministry of War. We have had proofs of the plans of fortifications reaching the hands of a foreign power. It is known to a certainty, from the letter of an agent of the foreign power, that the stolen plans emanated from the Ministry of War. A vast network of espionage had been organized against us, headed by agents belonging to the same power as "A" Colonel Schwartzkoppen, the German military attache, the agents of other powers also collaborating."

Ample Proof.

The witness then invited the court's special attention to the dossier, in which he said would be found ample proof of the prisoner's guilt. At this stage of the proceedings Dreyfus rose and interrupted the witness shouting: "That is a manifest lie." After this witness recited in detail his reasons for the belief that the agent supplying the information was a French staff officer. He then endeavored to show that traffic with foreign military attaches could only have been carried on by a probationer in the department occupied by Dreyfus. The witness specially referred to the Panizzardi telegram of November 2, 1894, which he explained, left an impression on him that in 1894 Dreyfus had an old friend of the Italian Government.

Schwartzkoppen Saw It.

Another document of the dossier, according to Major Cuignet, showed beyond dispute that the bordereau actually passed through the hands of Colonel Schwartzkoppen. This to the witness established the authenticity of the bordereau, and examination of which, he pointed out, proved Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi had the closest relations in all matters of espionage. Referring next to the despatch of Col. Schneider, former Austrian military attache at Paris, denouncing as a forgery a letter purporting to have been written by the attache, in which he was represented as referring to efforts being made by Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi to conceal their relations with Dreyfus, witness maintained General Mercier's statements on the subject were correct and that the authenticity of the latter had been proved. The Intelligence Department, he added, had other documents from the the same attache in its possession.

Major Cuignet pointed out that the Schneider document was included in the dossier and that M. Chamoin, who had the secret documents in his charge had shown it to the court in behalf of the Ministry of War. Therefore witness claimed Col. Schneider contradiction was really addressed to the French Government. Sensation.

"Besides," added Cuignet, "I wish to point out that the attache issuing the denial is a person which somewhat less consequence than his allies. It is therefore possible that this denial was imposed upon him." Renewed sensation.

Admiral Bertillion.

The Major dwelt admiringly on the conclusions of M. Bertillion that Esterhazy had learned to imitate the handwriting of the bordereau after its publication in The Matin. He then reviewed the police reports on Dreyfus.

Replying to a question of the court, Cuignet described the circumstances of the discovery of the Henry forgery, and how it was that the probationers did not participate in the manoeuvres of 1894, although they had long believed they would attend.

Major Carriere, the Government's commissary, at this juncture said he thought it desirable to remark, as the representative of the Government, that he must not be understood to endorse all Major Cuignet had said with reference to a foreign military officer, who at the present moment held a diplomatic appointment in France." Sensation.

Replying to M. Demange, Major Cuignet insisted that if Henry committed forgery "it was in the interests of the country."

To this statement counsel retorted; "You did not say that to the Court of Cassation."

At the request of M. Demange, the Major's deposition before the Court of Cassation relating to Henry's motives and Paty de Clam's share in the preparation of the forgery was read. It showed that Cuignet emphatically declared before the Court of Cassation that he was convinced an investigation would easily show that Paty de Clam was the principal author of the Henry forgery.

Labori a Little Better.

Rennes, Aug. 19.—The condition of Maitre Labori, chief counsel for Captain Alfred Dreyfus, who was shot from ambush on Monday last, is further improved this morning.

Guerin Still Besieged.

Paris, Aug. 19.—A strict blockade has been established in the Rue de Chabrol, and the authorities have this morning begun a regular siege of the building in which M. Guerin and his anti-Semite colleagues have entrenched themselves.

KIPLING NOT APPRECIATED.

Methodist Sunday School Cast "The Drums of the Fore and Aft" Out of Its Library.

New York, Aug. 20.—The Sunday school of the Methodist Church at Crawfordville, Indiana, has passed final judgment on Rudyard Kipling, casting out all his books from its library.

The school recently replenished its library through a Methodist firm of publishers in Cincinnati. The publishers, when sending the order, threw in several volumes as a present, among them being Kipling's story of "The Drums of the Fore and Aft."

After a while this tale found its way to the family of a strict member of the church, who declared that the book was "fairly reeking of profanity and the most outrageous slang." He then took the book before a meeting of the church trustees and read numerous quotations from it.

The trustees expressed themselves as "amazed that such literature should have invaded the church," and unanimously voted to throw out all the author's works that were in the library.

FIGHT SHY OF ELECTRICY.

Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's Morgan's Gift.

London, Aug. 19.—The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's have concluded not to have the Cathedral lighted by electricity at present. The expenses of the installation of the electric plant have been offered by Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan. But as the Chapter had to pay up for Mr. Hooley's free gratis communion plate the authorities of St. Paul's fight shy of the electric light proposition. The redecoration of the cathedral, which is now progressing, also makes electric lighting an artistic impossibility.

The Daily Chronicle significantly says, "If it should eventually be decided to install electric light, then there should be no difficulty in securing adequate funds in the ordinary way."

Whisky Trust in Ireland.

London, Aug. 19.—A representative of the Associated Press learns that, following the American lead a whiskey trust is to be formed in Ireland. It is also announced that the wall paper manufacturers of the United Kingdom are forming a corner to put up prices. Other industries are showing a desire to consolidate.

FLASHED UNDER THE SEA

The Abolition of Penny Post is the Latest Proposal in England.

DESTROYED TITLE-DEEDS.

An English Communistic Settlement Takes This Very Peculiar Step.

A Remarkable Movement Started Among the Hebrews in London—London and Yorkshire Railway to Inaugurate a Fast Service—Long Distance Test of Motor Waggon—Young Astor to be a Soldier.

Liverpool, Aug. 19.—The Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company are about to establish a service of express trains to cover their thirty-six miles' route between Manchester and Liverpool in thirty minutes. Their new powerful locomotives, one of which the other week made a trial trip at the rate of 100 miles per hour will be used in the new service.

Gladstone's Guardian.

London, Aug. 19.—With the retirement of Chief Inspector John Conquest the Metropolitan police force in general and Scotland Yard in particular, will lose an officer, who for twenty-nine years past has been a faithful and zealous servant of the public. Mr. Conquest is best known as the officer charged with the duty of protecting Mr. Gladstone during the troublous times which extended from 1882 to 1885. He was well known at Hawarden, where he was frequently on duty, and as guardian of the great statesman from the possibility of outrage or assault.

The Jewish Problem.

Berlin, Aug. 19.—The project for emigrating Jews from Russia, Roumania and Germany to Cyprus begins to find much favor here. It is believed that under British rule they will have fair play shown them as agriculturists. A wealthy American Jew named Triesch, who is making this cause his own, has held a meeting, at which a number of leading professors, bankers, lawyers and other prominent members of the Jewish community have promised support to the project.

To Abolish Postage Stamps.

London, Aug. 18.—The abolition of penny postage is the latest proposal that has been made to the Post-office for the improvement of its system. It is suggested that a form of automatic machine should be employed, with a slit into which the letter should be inserted. When a penny is placed in a slot the machine will stamp the letter, and thus obviate the use of ordinary stamps.

Revival Among Jews.

London, Aug. 18.—A remarkable movement has just been initiated in the London Jewish community its avowed object being a spirited revival among the members of the Hebrew faith in the metropolis. The movement owes its origin to Mr. Oswald Simon, son of the late Sir John Simon, who was at one time M.P. for Dewsbury. Mr. Simon, who for many years has been a prominent member of the Reform Synagogue of British Jews, will himself act as minister of the new congregation, and will receive active support from, among others, Mr. Israel Zangwill, the novelist, and Mr. J. Gollanes, the editor of The Temple Classics.

Long Distance Motor Test.

London, Aug. 18.—A long-distance trial is being made of one of the motor wagons which competed in the recent trials of the Liverpool Self-Propelled Traffic Association, which will travel from Liverpool to London. The vehicle in question is that of Messrs. Clarkson and Capel, London official number 6, and its total load about three tons. This test is the longest yet undertaken in England or elsewhere.

Destroyed Their Title Deeds.

London, Aug. 18.—An interesting situation has arisen in the little Communistic settlement in the Cotswolds owing to the determination of the leaders of the movement to carry their theories to the logical conclusion. A farm of about 80 acres was purchased on the top of one of the Cotswold Hills for the purpose of sustaining the Communists. But a fundamental doctrine of the sect forbids the possession of landed property, so the title deeds have been destroyed, and if they abandon the land, which is quite possible, anyone, so far as they are concerned, can step in and claim it. The colony is not in a very flourishing condition, though it cannot be called a failure. There are more than 18 people in it, including a local farmer, who added his farming implements to the general stock. There are two graduates of universities, and several well-educated men, but the inspiring force of the colony is a Doctor of Philosophy (Leipsic), who is also a Fellow of the Chemical Society and a lecturer at the Royal College of Science. He bought the first 40 acres of land, the farmer adding the rest. It was owing to the doctor's advice that the title deeds were destroyed.

To Make Him a Cavalryman.

London, Aug. 18.—Mr. William Waldorf Astor intends to put his son onto the Household Cavalry. He was educated at Eton and Oxford.

THE THREE WORLD POWERS.

E. Moffatt, in the Forum magazine, discusses briefly the subject of "Ultimate World Politics." He states that of the 50,000,000 square miles of land on the globe, the major portion is destined to belong to Great Britain, Russia and the United States. Already [illegible] the Soudan covers about 12,000,000 square miles, or one-fourth of the land surface of the globe. Of the remaining 36,000,000 square miles Russia controls 8,661,190—again nearly one-fourth. China which is about to be divided between England, Russia, France and Germany, holds a sixth of the rest. More than half of the remainder belongs to the United States, France, Brazil Turkey, and the Argentine Republic, and the Turkish possessions are fated before long to pass into the hands of stronger powers. Five-eights of all the land on the globe already belong to Great Britain, Russia, the United States, France and Brazil, and, with the impending redistributions in China and Africa, this will be increased to at least three-fourths. The French colonial empire will be held by permission of England, the dominant sea power, and Brazil, like each of the other South American Republics, will owe the preservation of its independence to the United States. Thus the vast bulk of the earth's surface will be controlled by England, the United States and Russia.

The writer contends that there is room for only three world powers, and that these are Great Britain, Russia, and the United States. The French Colonial Empire is an artifical creation that cannot survive the stress of war with a great sea power. So is that of Germany.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Esterhazy and Paty du Clam seem to be the Farce of the Dreyfus trial.

•• •• ••

There is considerable mystery as to where that declaration came from, but it seems rather far fetched.

•• •• ••

More links joining China to modern civilization are being forged. Golf has just been introduced there.

•• •• ••

Every week American troops are returning from the Philippines in transports—but not in transports of joy, judging from the sick lists.

•• •• ••

President Schurman of the United States-Philippines peace commission, has returned home and announces that Great Britain is not as strong in the East as she used to be. It is a curious coincidence that a gentleman named Aguinaldo made the same remark about the United States in his last week's proclamation.

Deputy returning officer Farr's statements regarding West Huron should have been made before the Parliamentary committee. Declarations from a man who hid himself to avoid being questioned, and remains in hiding, are an insult to common sense. The inference is fair that a cross-examination would show [illegible] has far as well as the [illegible] to be.

That hackneyed but expressive simile "between the devil and the deep sea," certainly fits the situation of the officers who compose the Dreyfus court martial. The acquittal of Dreyfus will be to all intents and purposes the condemnation of Mercier—convicting him of subornation of perjury, and of complicity in forgery. To affirm the justice of the former conviction of Dreyfus, on the other hand, will be to acquire—and to merit—the contempt of the civilized world. Moreover, the existing government favors Dreyfus and a decision adverse to him will leave the unfortunate members of the court-martial in disfavor with men high in power. It is truly a painful situation. If they acquit Dreyfus they will be sent to Coventry by their brother officers. If they fail to acquit him they will incur the enmity of the government, which means they might as well resign. Honest men were seldom in a more distressing predicament. They are sure to suffer, no matter how they decide.

A FAITHFUL DOG.

Its Owner Realized Its Worth, as Well He Might.

"Well, I wouldn't have believed it," exclaimed Jones in astonishment as he dropped in to see Smith the other evening and was met in the hall by a St. Bernard dog.

"Wouldn't have believed what?" asked Smith.

"Why, that you'd have a dog in your house," continued Jones. "It belongs to one of your neighbors, I suppose?"

"No, sir; that's my dog," replied Smith proudly.

"You don't really mean it, old man! Why, I've known you now for five years and you've always had a marked aversion for dogs."

"Yes, I did have until lately, but I wouldn't be without one now. This brute is a noble, faithful fellow, and I wouldn't take $100 spot cash for"—

But at this juncture he was interrupted by his wife calling down over the banister:

"Henry Smith, who was it that scattered these cigar ashes all over my dresser?"

"It must have been the dog, my dear," was his reply.

"And who was it that dropped these apple peelings on the floor?" she demanded.

"The dog, my dear," answered Smith.

"And there's a bottle of mucilage spilled on the hall carpet up here too. Is that some of your work, Henry?"

"No, my dear; the dog's to blame for that."

"And, goodness gracious," she continued angrily, "if some one hasn't been whittling up here again! How many times have I told you not to do that in the house?"

"But I had nothing to do with it, my dear. The dog's been up there probably chewing a stick."

"Well, it's a burning shame the way this house is mussed up. Your collars and ties are scattered all over the rooms."

"Are they, my dear? That dog's been up there again then. Yes," continued Smith as he drew his friend into the parlor, "I wouldn't take a big pot of money for that dog. Why, the noble fellow saves me about 20 jawings a week."

"So I see," chuckled Jones, "and you bet I'll have one before noon tomorrow."

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 3 to 15 per cent. copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRyee, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-cut to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $360, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

* * * "In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl schists extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent. of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendall, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I think it is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper. It is near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oil here because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is adapted to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a town could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($460 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.
George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.
Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.
Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.
Col. James. M. Wheaton, Boston, Secretary.
Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Ex-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allotment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

ARCHER CITY, TEXAS, MAY 3, 1899.

Hon. Emery H. Low, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: * * Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States.

* * The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cuperiferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.

The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formation; and there is no deep work.

I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.

* * As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.

Very respectfully yours,
T. BURTON EVERETT, M. E.

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the nine mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Algus with an air of pride and proprietorship, somewhat more prevalent among young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 30 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist as good natured and happy now as she wuz when I courted her, but Mandy ain't all mush and spoon victuals, and there's times when she has to be handled with keer or somethin will be sp'iled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain't afeered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never fergit ef I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wuz only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven or eight head uv fine horses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4-year-olds that we prided ourselves partickeler on, for they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they wuz yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalize us, and I tell you they wuzn't a funeral percession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow come in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week or ten days we had fine sleighin, and one afternoon Mandy said she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough fer me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin fer the lady in less than no time.

"The team wuz feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they slung the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wuz a dozen or more movin up and down at a clippin gait, and we sailed right in among 'em, and in about seven minutes we passed everything on the road.

"Jim Hall wuzn't out with his team, and I could see that Mandy wuz gittin anxious, though she wuzn't sayin much. The road leadin to Jim's place struck the pike about 200 yards from the upper turn, and there wuz no sign uv him as we passed, and we didn't see him as we come back, but just after we got by his road we heard a clatter up the pike, and, by crackey, there wuz Jim a-comin lickety spit. I guess he'd been to the postoffice, and the way he wuz comin after us wuz like a mink after chickens. Mandy took one look over her shoulder and told me to let 'em go for all they wuz wuth. I didn't need to be coaxed, and by the time she had said the words we wuz fairly flyin over the smooth snow track, and Jim wuz comin right behind us too. For the first few rods we gained on him, then he begun to creep up on us in spite uv all we could do. Everybody on the road knowed how me and Jim set store by our teams, and they pulled out to one side and give us all the room there wuz.

"I shook up my beauties as I felt him drawin up on me, but shakin wuzn't enough, and I touched 'em once or twice with the whip, but Jim jist rared back on his strings, lookin like destruction smilin at desolation, and kept a-comin. When his horses' heads passed our dashboard and I could see the snort in their noses, I got kind uv sick and thought I'd have to let go, but Mandy nerved me up, and I hung on and leaned away forrerd as if that would help some. By this time Jim's horses had their heads even with mine, and I held him there fer a minute or such a matter, but jist as I begun to have a hope that it might be a neck and neck at the finish Mandy reached for the line next to her, and, with a sudden jerk, she pulled the team off to one side uv the road, where the snow wuz in a high drift, and Jim went ahead with a yell that made my ears stand out like windmill flappers.

"I wuz that dazed for a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, deacon though I wuz, I'm afeard I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a move Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I wuz dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idea that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wuz killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hundred pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let theirselves out on a spurt that wuz chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream, 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"And so I was, and so wuz Mandy, for before Jim knowed that anything had happened I wuz up with him, alongside, neck and neck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toll gate he wuz ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss.

"Mandy wuz in the middle uv the road brushin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin for me as I come back, and when I said I'd give her a new silk dress for that she said it wuz only what any wife ought to do for her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite uv herself. That's the kind uv a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and fished out a quaint, old fashioned daguerreotype in a brand new gilt frame.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Picture, Not Paint.

An art patron one day came into Turner's studio when the artist was already famous. He looked at a picture and asked what was the price. The artist named the sum he had set upon it.

"What," exclaimed the buyer, "all those golden sovereigns for so much paint!"

"Oh," replied Turner, "it's paint you are buying! I thought it was pictures. Here," producing a half used tube of color, "I'll let you have that cheap. Name your own terms," and, turning his back on the astonished patron he went on painting.

MEN OF MARK.

President McKinley finds little leisure for light reading, but is a careful student of the newspapers.

Joseph Leiter has by no means decided to drop the stock market. He is a constant visitor to Wall street.

J. Pierpont Morgan is an expert pool player and an evening rarely passes when he does not enjoy an after dinner game.

Joel Chandler Harris, Georgia's famous author, breeder and poet, is to have an exhibit of Jersey cattle at the Paris exposition.

Senator Clark has just bought in Paris, for his Washington house, an old stained glass window, once the property of the Countess de Jause, for $30,000.

Sims Reeves says he lost $400,000 during his career as a public singer because he was too conscientious to appear on the stage unless sure he could do his best.

Ex-Representative Ben T. Cable is to furnish much of the money for the building of a chapter house for the Zeta Psi fraternity at the University of Michigan.

John Stuart, superintendent of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, was formerly a telegraph operator at Hokendauqua, Pa. He is now receiving $15,000 a year.

The Russian Prince Cantacuzene, whose betrothal to Miss Julia Grant has just been announced, has retired to his Russian estates to make preparations for the reception of his bride.

Before Rear Admiral Kautz left for Samoa a young woman asked him whether he had ever "felt afraid in battle." "Once," he answered. "A stray ball knocked my cigar out of my mouth and there wasn't another aboard."

The late ex-Governor Flower was once asked by a less successful financier how to succeed in Wall street. "By working harder than at any other trade or profession on earth," was the answer. "But won't that wear you out?" "Not before your time."

Mayor Moir of Scranton was years ago a journeyman tailor in Philadelphia. John Ross of the former city needed a workman, and Mr. Moir, being recommended, was offered inducements to go to Scranton. In February last Mr. Moir was elected chief executive of the city.

Russell Sage is no friend of the camera, and very rarely is it that a photographer is quick enough to get a snap shot of the millionaire. As for sitting for a picture, that has probably occurred less frequently during the millionaire's long life than that of any other equally prominent man in the country.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Robert F. Hayes, a Boston clerk, hanged himself with his necktie as the noose.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Work of laying the cable from Vancouver to Fanning island and thence to Australia and New Zealand will begin this summer, it is announced.

The new Nernst electric light dispenses with the usual vacuum bulb and replaces the hairlike filament with a short bar of refractory material, thereby greatly increasing the light and cheapening the cost.

Experiments have been made lately by French government officials with a new telephone, which enables persons to converse without putting their mouth and ear to the apparatus, the words being distinctly audible in any part of the room.

ONE MINER'S LUCK.

After Hope Had Left Him He Stumbled Over a Nugget Worth About $6,000

This man had reached the very last of his resources without finding a speck of gold, and though men in such extremity are always kind and helpful to each other, he could not expect any one to share his fast-dwindling stores with him. There was nothing for it, therefore, but to turn back on the morrow, while a mouthful of food was still left, and to retrace his steps as best he might to the nearest port. He dwelt with a good deal of rough pathos on the despair of that last day's fruitless work, which left him too weak and exhausted to carry his heavy tools back to the spot they called camp. So he just flung them down, and, as he said, "staggered" over the two or three miles of the scrub-covered desert, guided by the smoke of the campfire. Next morning early, after a great deal of sleep and very little food, he braced himself up to go back and fetch his tools, though he carefully explained that he would not have taken the trouble to do this if he had not felt that his pick and barrow were about his only possessions, and might fetch the price of a meal or two when it came to the last.

I have often wondered since if the impression of the Divine mercy and goodness which was so strong in that man's mind just then has ever worn off. He dwelt with self-accusing horror on how he had railed at his luck, at fate, at everything, as he stumbled back that hot morning over his tracks of the day before. The way seemed twice as long, for, as he said, "his heart was too heavy to carry." At last he saw his barrow and pick standing up on the flat plain a little way off, and was wearily dragging on toward them, when he caught his toe against a stone deeply embedded in the sand, and fell down. His voice sank to a sort of awestruck whisper, as if he were almost at confession, as he said:

"Well, ma'am, if you'd believe me, I cursed awfully. I felt as if it was too hard altogether to bear. To think that I should go and nearly break my toe against the only stone in the district, and with all those miles to travel back! So I lay there like Job's friend and cursed God and wanted to die. After a bit I felt like a passionate child who kicks and breaks the thing which hurts him, and I had to beat that stone before I could feel quiet. But it was too firm in the sands for my hands to get it up, so in my rage I set out briskly with the pick to break up that stone, if it took all my strength. It was pretty deep set in the ground I assure you, ma'am; but at last I got it up and here it is—solid gold and nearly as big as a baby's head! Now, ma'am, I ask you, did I deserve this?"

He almost banged the rather dirty looking lump down on the table before me as he spoke, and it certainly was a wonderful sight, and a still was a wonderful sight, and a still more wonderful weight. He told me he had searched about the neighborhood of that nugget all day, but there was not the faintest trace of any more gold. So, as he had no time to lose on account of the shortness of the food and water supply, he just started back to the coast, which he reached quite safely, and came straight down to Perth in the first steamer. The principal bank had advanced him £900 on his nugget, but it would probably prove to be worth twice as much. I asked him what he was going to do, and was sorry to hear that he intended to go back to England at once and set up a shop or a farm—I forget which—among his own people. Of course it was not for me to dissuade him, but I felt it was a pity to lose such a good sort of man out of the colony, for he was not spending his money in champagne and card playing, as all the very few successful gold finders did in those first days.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound, thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

COUSIN OF EMPRESS EUGENIE.

Romantic Story of a Spaniard who has been Long in Alaska.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 16.—Camilo Espinosa, unquestionably a cousin of ex-Empress Eugenie of France, is here, after having passed the last fifteen years in the wilds of Alaska. Espinosa is not false pretender, which he proves by a considerable number of letters written him by his imperial cousin to various parts of the globe during the past quarter of a century. This cosmopolitan Spaniard, who now is 60 years old, came down from the arctic a few days ago with a colossal fortune in European exchange as a result of the sale of rich mining properties.

He is a modest, retiring man and only accidentally was his close relationship to the late French imperial dynasty discovered. Though he has more than thirty years been in close touch with the rougher element of the world, he retains the polish of a refined Castilian cavalier, even if the hard lines in his face denote the climatic changes he has undergone since he fled from the gay Spanish capital in the latter part of 1868. At that time he was an officer in the royal guard, and one night resented in a deadly way an insult offered him at a cafe by a young fellow officer, who chanced to be a relative of ex-Queen Isabella. Espinoza's antagonist remained dead on the spot and the former hastened from Madrid.

"Despite my family connections," remarked the self-exiled Spaniard, "a large sum of blood money was offered for me, but my friends succeeded in smuggling me aboard an East India-bound vessel, and from that time to this I never revealed my identity. I would not do so now but for this," added he, drawing a letter from his pocket written in French by the ex-empress, assuring him that she had obtained his unconditional pardon from the queen of Spain.

"My family, though one of the most distinguished in Spain," he continued, "was comparatively poor and in my exile I could not largely depend upon it for pecuniary aid. Thus I necessarily was thrown upon my own resources. In 1884 three of my fellow countrymen, also of noble families, whom I met in Bombay, suggested that we go to seek a fortune in Alaska and there we have ever since been. Our adventures would read like incredible tales were we to print them. Oftener than once we were in the locality now known as the Klondike. After a few years we familiarized ourselves with Alaska mining and made several valuable locations. The latest I disposed of to a representative of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, though he did not buy in her name, for $400,000. My colleagues returned to Spain several years ago with great riches. We worked localities as yet unknown to the English and Americans, and from these I shall extract my future fortune."

Despite his strange story Mr. Espinosa impresses one as a thoroughly trustworthy man, and he certainly seems to have no reason to misrepresent himself in any particular.

Cobourg Gets the Bunch.

The latest report says that Roach, the alleged accomplice of Pare and Holden, Napanee bankrobbers, has relented, and will go to Cobourg with the two worthies above mentioned, on September 19th, and stand his trial. It was at first reported that Roach would insist on being tried separately, and at Napanee, he objecting to a change from that town to Cobourg. When before the Magistrate at Napanee, recently, he elected to be tried by jury. At the trial there will be an array of the best legal talent in the Dominion, both for the prosecution and defence. At present it is not known whether Mackie will be brought up from Kingston or not. Gailor Snelgrove will find it necessary to keep a sharp lookout when the above party is quartered in the Cobourg gaol.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I know about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my darnedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

The man-of-war of the ancient Romans had a crew of about 225 men, of which 174 were oarsmen working on three decks. The speed of these vessels was about [illegible] an hour in fair weather.

A HEROIC DEED.

Young Highland Hero distinguishes Himself near Braemar.

Inverness, Scotland, Aug. 18.—Mr. M'Kay, of Kingussie, is the latest addition to the list of British heroes. Fifteen ladies and three gentlemen had [illegible] in [illegible] Ben Muich Dhui, near Braemar, but during the descent one of the ladies showed signs of exhaustion. Mr. M'Kay and a Mr. Smith remained behind to help her, and the rest of the party proceeded on their way. They had not gone far when the lady dislocated her ankle. It was getting dark and the sudden gusts of wind presaged a stormy night. Assistance could not be expected for hours. M'Kay saw the young lady's strength was gradually failing, and knowing well the danger of remaining too long on the cold mountain side, he undertook the perilous task of carrying her down the mountain.

The face of the mountain at this side is very steep and rendered more dangerous by the multitude of loose boulders. The descent, handicapped by darkness was a daring attempt, and could only have been successfully accomplished by one sure of foot and quick of movement.

The young Highlander did not wait to contemplate the risk he was undertaking, but strapping the young lady to his shoulder with a waterproof, began the dangerous descent. Through Corrie Etchachan, which in daylight is a dangerous part and in darkness a veritable death trap, the plucky youth carried his burden in safety. It is the wonder of experienced mountaineers that the young man succeeded in reaching the foot of the mountain with his charge, when one false step might have ended two youthful lives.

Having got clear of the steeper part of the mountain, M'Kay carried the young lady for four and a half miles over one of the roughest parts of the Highlands. Here a party of gamekeepers who had been apprised of the accident met them. The lady was laid on a stretcher and carried by willing hands to Derry Lodge, where her ankle was set. M'Kay, who was dreadfully done up by the [illegible] strain, was nearly down.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone.

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the graphophone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a graphophone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he tells it, or the favorite song of some loved one just as she sings it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Diver Meets His Death.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 18.—Diver William Baldwin was killed near Tacoma today while trying to reach the sunken British ship Andelana, lying at the bottom of the harbor. Death came to the daring submarine expert when he was 150 feet below the surface of the water. Death was due to some accident to the pumping gear which supplied the air. The sunken Andelana lies in 190 feet of water. Baldwin was on his second descent in an attempt to reach the deck of the craft.

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sixteen to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse counts alone for the deranged liver, the altering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

WILLING TO PAY FOR IT.

What Uncle Bill Wanted the Newspaper Publisher to Do.

A number of newspaper men were exchanging reminiscences a few days ago in a Court street inn. One of them, by the way, was an ex-publisher—that is to say, he once owned and edited a paper in the upper section of the state. One of his subscribers was William Makepeace Thackeray Willington, whose neighbors called him "Uncle Bill" to save time and labor.

"One day Uncle Bill walked into my office," said the former publisher. "He placed his whip in a corner and removed his hat. He asked if I was the editor. I pleaded guilty. 'Shake,' said he. 'I am glad to know ye. When I was a young feller, I used to do some writin myself.'

"Uncle Bill lapsed into silence and did some solid thinking for several minutes. Then he resumed the conversation. He said he liked the appearance of The Banner of Freedom mighty well and hoped it was not only bringing me fame, but money also. Naturally my bosom swelled with pride. The old man said he had only a few minutes to spare, and, before leaving, he wished to ask a favor. I supposed that he was about to spring a little poem which he had dashed off all by himself, but that wasn't the case. Uncle Bill said:

"'My son, I want to ask you a special favor. My eyes are not as strong as they were, and I would like to have you print my copy of the paper in a type two or three sizes larger than you use in the regular edition. Now, mind, I don't want you to do this for nothin. I'm willin to pay for it. Here's the money, and if that isn't enough let me know when my subscription is due again and I'll pay what's owin.'

"The old man dove his right hand into his pocket, fished out a silver half dollar and planked it on my table, saying: 'There's the money. If that isn't enough to cover the extree expense, let me know when I call in next spring, and I'll make it good. I'm willin to pay for any little favors.' Before I could explain the impossibility of his scheme he jumped into his buggy and started off for Deep Hollow."

A SIMPLE LITTLE MIX UP.

How It Helped One Man at the Expense of Another.

How a bunch of roses sold a couple of high priced railroad tickets is the basis of a queer little comedy of errors enacted the other day at a leading city hotel. Among the guests of the house was a wealthy Texas merchant who was en route with his wife for a visit to New England. The Texan has a local business representative here in the person of a hustling young man about town, who was especially anxious to make the stay of his principal as pleasant as possible. Accordingly he rushed to a florist's as soon as he saw the names on the register and ordered him to put up the handsomest bunch of roses he had in the shop and send them over to Mrs. Blank at such and such a hotel. In his hurry he forgot to leave his card for inclosure, and, supposing it was omitted intentionally, the florist proceeded to prepare a magnificent bouquet, which he dispatched forthwith by messenger.

It so happened at the moment the flowers arrived that a city passenger solicitor for one of the north bound roads had just handed over his card to be sent to the Texas gentleman's apartment, and quite naturally the pasteboard and the roses went up together. The visitors were both astonished and pleased. "This is certainly a princely way of soliciting business," exclaimed the merchant, examining the flowers. "Why, these things must have cost all of $10. Show the gentleman up."

The solicitor was shown up, received most cordially and given an immediate order for through transportation both ways. He departed, chuckling merrily, but a little dazed by the facility of his deal and puzzled to understand the many references to his "courtesy" and "thoughtfulness."

An hour or so later the local representative dropped around and was met by his employer in the lobby. The greeting was painfully matter of fact, and not a word was said about the flowers. The young man was greatly chagrined and began to believe he had made a bad break. Next day he accompanied the couple to the depot, and incidentally something was said about the route.

"We decided to go this way on account of the gentleman who called to sell us tickets," explained the lady. "He was so courteous and pleasant! Why, would you believe it," she continued, "he actually sent me an enormous bunch of beauty roses with his business card!"

Light dawned on the local representative, and he groaned. In his pocket was a florist's bill for $12.75.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery In Battle.

"It was a toothache," said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues get away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to bat his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

FUNSTON AND HIS MEN.

General Funston has been in the swim.—Boston Herald.

Hail to General Funston, the unosculated Hobson of the orient!—Detroit Free Press.

Ten to one, when Aguinaldo gets his last ditch ready, that man Funston will be on hand to swim it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

General Fred Funston, the Kansas cyclone in the tropics, is not a Chicago man. He didn't stop to boil the water.—Omaha Bee.

Judging by the elegant fight he puts up, Fred Funston must have been a member of some Kansas church choir.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Twentieth Kansas is showing itself ambitious, ambidextrous and amphibious. It is right in the swim all the time.—Topeka Capital.

General Funston can have anything he wants in Kansas when he gets home, even Jerry Simpson's socks, if he can find them.—St. Paul Globe.

We will soon be hearing from the chaps who attended swimming school with General Fred Funston and tied knots in his clothes.—Washington Post.

General Luna is the first to see the sea serpent this season. Some observers say it was the Kansas regiment using a rope for a ferry.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No wonder the Twentieth Kansas volunteers have invariably swept the Filipinos before them. Their battlecry is the Kansas university football yell of "Rock chalk! Jayhawk! K. S. U.!"—St. Louis Republic.

THE CYNIC.

All of us are very clever in finding excuses for not working more.

The most sensible woman will "put on" a little before a preacher.

A man is not really prominent until he has officiated at three prominent funerals.

Some women who never work for anything else will work like slaves for a church.

An old maid dearly loves to watch a quarrel between a husband and wife to see how it comes out.

If a man truly loves his wife, he is very apt to become confidential and tell her a lot of stories on the other fellows.

In talking it is well to know that people will not remember what you are saying unless they can use it against you.

A man always rises in his own estimation when he gets on familiar terms with a person of whom he once stood in awe.

There probably never was a woman too good to try to pass her children off as under age when traveling on the railroad.—Atchison Globe.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

Peacocks are reliable weather prophets. Before a storm the gaudy birds become restless and clamorous.

The green woodpecker is said to laugh his "Ya-ha-ha" in different, more liquid tones when rain is coming, and especially gifted persons claim his cry really changes to "rain, rain, rain!"

In Dorsetshire, England, they foretell storms by the flight of the rooks. When they are pitch falling or playing at tumbling, diving and wheeling in the air, they say a storm is due.

Sea fowl are very clever in foretelling a storm. To a sailor bad weather means wind, and to a landsman it means rain, but the screaming of the water birds usually foretells a change of some sort for the worse in the prevailing weather.

SISTERLY CITIES.

Minneapolis has lost a dam, but then the town was never worth one.—St. Paul Dispatch.

What is being done for art in Chicago is not much. What is being done for art by Chicago is infinitely less.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

If the New York gas war keeps on at its present rate of progress, consumers will soon get the stuff for nothing, with a chromo and a pound of tea thrown in.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

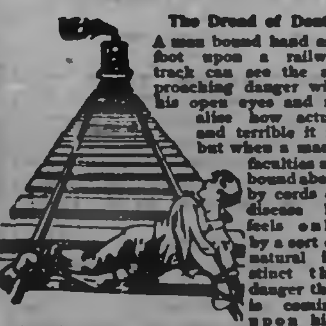
New Yorkers are talking of having a self propelling fire engine. Come up this way, neighbors, and see what the metropolis of Connecticut can show you in that line. You're years behind us.—Hartford Courant.

FOUL TIPS.

For Sale—One baseball team. Answers to the name of "Giants." Any offer will be accepted.—New York Herald.

The ex-prides of Von der Ahe haven't as yet had their batting eyes forwarded from St. Louis.—Cleveland Leader.

As in previous years, the Washington team, as a matter of strict economy, will be known as a baseball club.—Chicago Record.



The Dread of Death.

A man bound hand and foot upon a railway track can see the approaching danger with his open eyes and realise how actual and terrible it is; but when a man's faculties are bound about by cords of disease he feels only by a sort of natural instinct the danger that is coming upon him although he cannot actually see it.

That awful sense of dread, the feeling that death is near at hand is described by a South Carolina gentleman, Thos. G. Lever, Esq., of Lever, Richmond Co., with a truth that everyone who has ever experienced it will immediately recognise:

"I had what the doctors called nervous indigestion," he says: "I took medicine from my family physician for it, but of no avail. In looking over one of the Memorandum Books issued by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., I found a case like mine described exactly. I wrote to Dr. Pierce and made a statement. He sent me a descriptive list of questions, also hygienic rules.

"I carried them out as best I could, but I thought it almost impossible, as I suffered so much with pain under my ribs and an empty feeling in my stomach. At night I would have cold or hot feet and hands alternately. I was getting very nervous and suffered a great deal with uneasiness as to my condition, thinking that death would soon claim me; always expecting something unusual to take place and having a great dread on my mind. I was also irritable and impatient, and was greatly reduced in flesh.

"I could eat scarcely anything that would not produce a bad feeling in my stomach. After some hesitation, owing to my prejudice against patent medicines, I decided to try a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets.' After taking several bottles of each I found I was improving. I have to be careful yet at times as to what I eat, in order that I may feel good and strong. I fully believe if any who suffer with indigestion or torpid liver or chronic cold would take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' and observe a few simple hygienic rules they would soon be greatly benefited, and with little perseverance would be entirely cured."

It is a very simple matter to write to Dr. Pierce. No charge whatever is made for advice; which will be sent you (in a plain sealed envelope) promptly by mail.

He was committed to stand trial at the next assizes and was admitted to bail at $500 in himself and two sureties of $250 each.

Large Number of Applicants for the Office of County Treasurer.

There is as lively fight on for the vacant office of County Clerk and Treasurer. It is said that the applicants now number thirty odd, and before the end of the week the number will no doubt have increased.

Amongst the names mentioned as candidates for the office, are Messrs. R. J. Kidd, F. J. Bell, Joseph Forster, North Monaghan; for Treasurer, Watt, at present acting clerk; J. B. Pearse, Norwood; W. Casement, Lakefield; F. Adams, Reeve of Ashburnham; R. W. Errett, R. H. Fortye, Felix Brownscombe, F. E. Bell, H. C. Strickland and others. It may be that some of the gentlemen above named have not yet consented to allow their names to be presented, but they are being urged by their friends to do so. It is said that Mr. R. J. Kidd is likely to secure the position, as he is very popular with the people of the county as well as being thoroughly competent for the position.

OBITUARY.

The Late Edgecumbe Pearse.

Saturday's Times announced the death of Mr. E. Pearse, County Clerk and Treasurer, which occurred suddenly at Muskoka on Friday last. Last winter he suffered a severe attack of la grip, followed by a slight touch of paralysis. He did not appear to regain strength, and thought a sojourn in Muskoka would effect a cure. With Mrs. Pearse he went to King's wharf about three weeks ago, and on Thursday evening shortly after tea, he suffered another stroke which left him unconscious, in which condition he remained up to the time of his death.

The late Mr. Pearse was a native of [illegible], where he was born [illegible] years ago. After visiting various parts of the world he came to Peterborough when he was 25 years of age. He entered the office of the County Clerk and Treasurer, and was subsequently appointed County Clerk, and on the death of the Treasurer, Mr. Walter Sheridan, he got the Treasurership, a position which he filled with rare ability and great credit to himself and the county. He also filled the position of secretary of the Town Trust Commissioners, for about 10 years.

Mr. Pearse was a member of St. John's Church, and always took great interest in church work.

In 1865 Mr. Pearse married Miss Shelton, grand-daughter of the late William Marshall, of Peterborough. Mrs. Pearse, who it may be mentioned is herself, not in robust health and greatly prostrated by her bereavement survives him, and four children—Thomas Ernest, a successful civil and sanitary engineer, at Newport News, United States. Mrs. Sherwood, Miss Pearse—Edith—now of Kansas city, Mo., and Miss Lily Pearse the youngest.

Mr. Pearse was quiet and retiring in his disposition, and very popular with whom he came in contact. The remains reached town on Friday night, and the funeral will leave the family residence this afternoon at three o'clock.

The Late Archibald Swinton.

One of the oldest and most respected residents of this district died on Saturday last, in the person of Mr. Archibald Swinton, at the advanced age of 80 years. The funeral took place yesterday from the residence of Mr. R. W. Scott, to Little Lake Cemetery and was followed by a large number of sorrowing friends and acquaintances, who showed the great esteem in which the deceased was held.

Big Drives of Logs.

Four drives of logs belonging to the Rathbun Company, are now in the Otonabee River and Little Lake. There are about 100,000 pieces all told. The timber will be run through to Deseronto at once.

Closed the Season.

Capt. Rully Griffin, of Lakefield, called on the Times on Saturday, on his way home from Buckhorn. Capt. Griffin had command of the steamer Stranger, plying on the Sturgeon Lake waters, during the season. The steamer has completed her work for the year and has gone into winter quarters at Lindsay.

A Bobcaygeon Fish Story.

Some very fine catches of fish have been made at Bobcaygeon this summer, both in point of number and weight. Judge Phillips and party, of Kentucky, are prominent among the successful ones, both in number and weight of catch. Last Monday the party, under guide R. Nicholas were successful in capturing the largest bass of the season, weighing five and-a-half pounds. Tuesday the party fished on Sturgeon Lake, and this day brought forth the heroine of the hour, Mrs. Saunders, who was successful in landing a maskinonge which when brought to their head-quarters, the Reid-house, at night, weighed 21 and-a-half pounds, losing about one pound from the time it was caught. This maskinonge was an accompaniment of 20 bass for the day. The party have forwarded both the large bass and maskinonge to Peterborough to have them mounted as souvenirs of their fishing trip to Bobcaygeon.

Awaiting Trial.

Amos Wright, from Galway, who is charged by James Peters with shooting and killing two pigs belonging to the latter on Sunday of last week, was given a short hearing by Magistrate Edmison Friday evening. He refused to plead guilty and calls on the Crown and Peters to prove the case. He asked that the trial be not held for a week or so and the Magistrate fixed Friday next as the day.

TO ELECT A CLERK.

The County Council Called to Meet on Monday Next.

Warden Hawthorne, was in town on Saturday, and it is understood has issued orders to have the County Council summoned for Monday next. The object of the meeting is to elect a clerk and treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Edgar Pearse.

An effort willl be made, it is said to have the office of clerk and treasurer divided. There are already a large number of applications for the office, and a lively scramble will take place.

SOUTH AFRICAN CRISIS

Serious Signs That Bloodshed Will Be Precipitated There.

AND PORTUGAL'S ACTION

In Refusing to Forward the Boers' Munitions of War is Causing Considerable Comment.

Franchise Proposal Has Been Rejected—Paul Kruger Replies to the Demand of Mr. Chamberlain—Fresh Proposals Submitted—Premier Schreiner Has Allowed Cartridges to be Removed for Use of the Transvaal.

London, Aug. 20.—There are serious signs that bloodshed will be precipitated in South Africa by means of a stroke similar to the Jameson raid and in the same interests as that venture. Cecil Rhodes is probably personally inactive, but his henchmen active in anti-Boer menaces. The lapse of a week without any further friction between President Kruger and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain is regarded as presaging a pacific settlement of the franchise dispute.

To offset this, however come cables such as that published in Cecil Rhodes' weekly organ in London, which argues that in order to prove the supremacy of British influence in South Africa, war is imperative. It is evident, however, that a majority of the Cape colonists are with Premier Schreiner and against Cecil Rhodes.

Portugal's Action.

The action of Portugal in refusing to forward the Boers' munitions of war has caused considerable astonishment. One version of the matter is that the Lisbon Government, at the instance of England, has ordered the Lorenzo Marquez officials to hold the supplies until further orders, England maintaining that they will endanger the peace of South Africa, and are unnecessary, as England has not threatened the independence of the Transvaal. It is certain that Mr. Chamberlain will not allow President Kruger to turn the Transvaal into an arsenal and will rather himself take the agressive.

Particular attention is now paid by England to Delagoa bay. It is believed that in the event of hostilities with the Transvaal Great Britain will either have an arrangement with Portugal which will allow her to occupy the bay, or else that she will seize it

Cartridges for Kruger.

Cape Town, Aug. 20.—A sensation has been caused here by a statement in The Times, a local newspaper that Premier Schreiner, since the crisis assumed an acute phase, has allowed 1,000,000 rounds of cartridges to be removed from Port Elizabeth to Bloemfontein for the purposes of the Transvaal. Mr. Schreiner, in an interview, explained that the incident was five weeks old. The cartridges, he said, were the absolute property of the Orange Free State, the relations of which with England were perfectly friendly.

A strong feeling has been aroused here by the fact that the Transvaal is sending large quantities of war material for distribution among its supporters in Cape Colony and the Orange Free state. The Cape Colony Government complains it could not prevent their transportation to a friendly State, and that if permission had been refused supplies would have been sent to Delagoa Bay.

Has Been Rejected.

Cape Town, Aug. 21.—The report, as cabled from here to the Associated Press last night that the Transvaal Government had handed its reply to the British agent at Pretoria, to be forwarded to Sir Alfred Milner, British High Commissioners for South Africa and Governor of Cape Colony, is confirmed. It is believed, however, that the proposition of Great Britain for a joint commission to investigate the effect which the franchise legislation would have on the Uitlanders has not been accepted, but that fresh proposals have been advanced.

Insect Causes Death.

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 21.—Two English ladies left Zinal on an excursion towards the Alp of Lirec. While walking on a wet grassy slope one of them was stung by an insect. This caused her to make a sudden movement and, slipping she rolled down the slope on to the rocks, a fall of about 100 yards, fracturing her skull. A number of guides have gone out to look for her body. The unfortunate lady's name is Miss Bridges, a resident of Brighton, Her family have been advised of the accident.

Drowned at Midland

Midland, Ont., Aug. 21.—At 6 o'clock yesterday morning George Godfrey, night watchman at Elevator No. 1, was drowned here. He was walking along the edge of the dock in front of the elevator, trolling, and it is thought, that he accidently lost his footing and fell in. The body was found shortly afterwards, but life was extinct. He leaves a widow.

ANOTHER BAD DAY FOR THE PRISONER.

Hostile Witnesses Continue to Pile Up Evidence and Accusations Which Counsel Tries to Discredit.

DREYFUS HAS NOW DROPPED THEATRICS.

Extraordinary Conduct of Col. Jouaust, President of the Court, Who Permitted Himself to Make an Unwarrantable Display of Partiality.

Rennes, Aug. 21.—The possible appearance of M. Labori drew a larger number than usual to the court to-day, but his physicans declined to permit his attendance, and on this announcement many quitted the court-room, leaving perceptible gaps along the benches.

By 9 o'clock five witnesses had already appeared at the bar. If this rate is continued, it is calculated the court will be through with the ninety odd witnesses by the beginning of September, and it is considered probable that the verdict will be delivered by September 7th.

Generals Roget, de Boisdeffre and Billot were present on the witness seats, and Col. Picquart took a place a couple of rows behind them. The Colonel sat alone until M. Bertulus, the examining magistrate whose evidence was so favorable to Dreyfus, entered and sat beside Picquart, warmly shaking him by the hand.

Hostile to Dreyfus.

All of the witnesses to-day were hostile to Dreyfus. The evidence was fresh, but mostly a reiteration of old statements. The audience, among whom were a number of woman who always manage to secure seats under some pretext or other, listened to M. Gribelin's statements about Dreyfus relations with demi-mondaines with characteristic relish. A subdued titter went around when M. Gribelin even professed to know the exact amount Dreyfus had spent upon his various amours.

M. Gribelin gave his testimony with an honest demeanor and apparent sincerity, but he did not strike one as being particularly intelligent. Nothing in his appearance would contradict the contention of the Dreyfusards that he was Major Lauth's tool in the machinations of the general staff against Col. Picquart, who listened to M. Gribelin with an air of contemptuous impatience.

Succeeded With a Weak Subject.

Maitre Demange was more successful than usual in cross-examining, and visibly disconcerted M. Gribelin. Counsel scored a distinct hit when he got M. Gribelin to admit that he mixed in the intrigues of Paty de Clam and Coll. Henry to shield Esterhazy, and when M. Grebelin was finally disposed of, his evidence had suffered badly.

Dreyfus Drops Theatrics.

Dreyfus created a better impression to-day. He entered the court with a more confident bearing and replied to the witnesses in a calm voice, without theatrical gestures, and his remarks were put so lucidly that he appeared to make an impression on all the judges, all of whom are reputed to be bitterly opposed to him.

Is Jouaust Unfair

The session wound up with a scene on account of the extraordinary conduct of Col. Jouaust, president of the court, who permitted himself to make an unwarrantable display of partiality. M. Bertulus had been confronted with the last witness, Capt. Junck, and Gen. Gonse had defended the latter, when Col. Picquart rose and asked to be allowed to refute some of Junck's remarks. Col. Jouaust made a gesture of impatience, and shouted: "What, again."

A Correspondent's Views.

An outburst of booing and hissing came from the audience at such a display of unfairness from the President. The judges and gendarmes quickly suppressed the noise, but Jouaust understood the well merited rebuke administered him, turned red and adjourned the court ten minutes later.

Gen. Fabre, former chief of the fourth bureau of the general staff, testified that in his official capacity he compared the handwriting of the bordereau with the writing of various officers in his bureau, including the handwriting of a probationer, who had been in the bureau during the previous year and who had not favorably impressed his comrades.

Dreyfus Was Distrusted.

This probationer, Dreyfus, who was regarded as untrustworthy and insincere in his pretensions, was, according to the witness, equally disliked by his comrades and superiors, was constantly endeavoring by alll sorts of means to learn the secrets of the plan of concentration of the eastern railway system, and, in his anxiety to secure information neglected his duties. His official duties, witness said, placed it in Dreyfus power to disclose the documents referred to in the bordereau. Witness could emphatically deny all Dreyfus had said on this subject. When Major Bertin showed witness the bordereau, the latter was struck with the resemblance of the chirography. Dreyfus was the only officer who made a bad impression in his bureau, and the opinions of the chief of staff and heads of other departments confirmed witness' belief.

Gen. Fabre, in conclusion, declared he was still as firmly convinced as in 1894 that the prisoner was the author of the bordereau. Sensation.

Dreyfus Reply.

After M. Demange had pointed out the discrepancy in Fabre's present statements and those he voiced in 1894, Col. Jouaust invited Dreyfus to reply. The prisoner said Gen. Fabre quite correctly described the work on which he was engaged when a probationer, especially emphasizing that he had to keep the dossier, relating to the concentration centers on the eastern system [illegible] dup. This was not a fictitious task. The prisoner's reply was made in calm, measured tones, and his frankness seemed to favorably impress the judges.

The Offer to Sell Secrets.

Col. d'Aboville, former deputy chief of the fourth bureau, related how Fabre had showed him a photograph of an anonymous note in which the writer intimated to his correspondent, evidently foreign to the army, that he had confidental documents to communicate. The witness told Fabre that the documents mentioned showed the writer could only be a artillery officer, belonging to the general staff, who participated in the expedition of the headquarter's staff in June and July, 1894. The position of Dreyfus corresponded with these conditions, and, "to their great surprise," a striking resemblance was apparent in the writings of Dreyfus and the anonymous letter.

Dreyfus in a Position to Know.

Witness further declared that only a probationer could possess the information mentioned in the bordereau. It was not only because of the resemblance of the handwriting that suspicions were directed at Dreyfus, but because he was in a position to be acquainted with the documents enumerated.

M. Damange wished to know why Col. d'Aboville said in 1894 that he thought it necessary to investigate the officers who particapted in the expedition of the general staff that year, in order to discover the author of the bordereau.

To this question witness replied that he was induced to do so by the expression in the bordereau. "I am going to the manoeuvres," for he considered the expedition of the general staff equivalent to the manoeuvres, although troops were not actually present.

Counsel, pointing out that a great deal of argument was founded on the expression, "I am going to the manoeuvres," said it should not be forgotten that in 1894, the expression was understood to apply to the expedition of the headquarters staff.

Dreyfus Weak Reply.

In reply to the usuall question, Dreyfus remarked that he had never held any conversation with Coll. Sandherr, the late chief of the Intelligence Department, who was so little acquainted with him that he once addressed him by another name.

BEAVER MEETS WITH MISHAP.

An Unfortunate Occurrence Gives the First of the Series of Yacht Races to the United States.

Toronto, Aug. 21.—With every condition favoring the defender, the Canadian representative met with an accident which threw the boat out of the race and left the Genesee to sail the course alone. The heavy breeze and choppy sea which prevailed favored the [illegible]. Beaver bounded less and stood up with extraordinary stiffness, while Genesee with shortened canvas, [illegible] the spray high into the air, and slewed about alarmingly. At the start, too, Beaver, although eight seconds later than Genesee in crossing the line, had a big advantage, and was increasing it when the accident which terminated the contest happened. Beaver was well to windward, and was outpointing the Rochester craft, when a minute after the starting gun the throat bollard block, strained by the repeated jibing made necessary by the battle for position which Skipper Jarvis so cleverly won, gave way, and brought the mainsail down on deck. Beaver returned to the harbor under its jib.

Mysterious Vessel at Sea.

London, Aug. 21.—The London ship Nelson, Captain Farrham, from Lyttelton, which has arrived at Queenstown for orders, reports having, at 11 a.m. on Sunday, July 30, about five hundred miles to the westward, sighted a small vessel under mainsail, foresail, and jib. She had one man on board, but had no flag flying. She appeared to be only of three tons, decked in, and having a small cabin. She was a little to the windward of the Nelson, which at once signalled her, thinking she had lost her latitude, but no response came. The crew also shouted to her, but there was still no answer. They believe her name to be the Great Eastern, but are sure the mysterious craft soon afterwards disappeared.

French Without Rights.

St. John's, Aug. 21.—Sir Hugh McCallum, Governor of Newfoundland, in the speeche she is making to residents along the French treaty coast where he is now inquiring into the fishery dispute, is very outspoken and emphatic respecting the French claims in that region. The governor asserts that they have no right there, save the right of fishing concurrently with British subjects, and that they are entitled to no territorial recognition whatever. This is the strongest declaration yet made in favor of the colony.

Nile Gunboat Refloated.

Cairo, Aug. 21.—The gunboat Zafir, which was stranded while proceeding to Omdurman during the Soudan campaign last autumn, has been refloated and overhauled, and has made successful trial trips.

The stern wheel steamer Allasheh with mails on board, which was blown over in a violent gale some days ago, and sunk in deep water fifteen miles before reaching Omdurman, has become a total wreck. Only three of the mail bags have been recovered.

A bad "wash-out," has occurred on the Sudan railway, south of the Atbara. Troops are at work on the railway bank at Shabluka. The fifth span of the Atbara railway bridge has been completed.

New Theory of Cancer.

Amsterdam, Aug. 21.—At the Medical congress Dr. Robert Bell, of Glasgow, read a paper on the pathogenesis of cancer, which dealt especially with cancer of the breast in women. Dr. Bell does not believe in the microbic origin of tumor. Microbic diseases in his opinion, are destructive, whereas cancer is marked by increased vigor of the part affected. He puts forward the hypothesis that cancer is due to the migration of a cell or cells from some other portion of the body. This lodging in a suitable place begins to multiply and invade the other tissues, producing all the symptoms which make up the disease known as cancer.

The Pope Dispenses Blessings.

Rome, Aug. 21.—At the festival of St. Joachim yesterday the Pope granted an audience of over an hour to three hundred persons, all of whom were presented, in addition to sixteen cardinals and many other prelates. His Holiness appeared in excellent health and spirits.

Rioting Among Soldiers.

Leavenworth, Kansas, Aug. 21.—A riot between the soldiers of the Thirty-Second volunteer regiment and North Leavenworth negroes took place yesterday afternoon. Corporal Johnson was shot in the left leg. Alex Johnson was shot in the left shoulder and was [illegible] injured.

BATTLES WITH THE POLICE.

Many Arrests Made and More Broken Heads—Anarchists Create the Trouble.

Paving Stones Were Torn Up and Used as Missiles—Police Disperse a Mob Burning Newspapers on the Street—The Affair Regarded as a Pro-Dreyfus Demonstration and Will React Greatly to the Detriment of Chances of Acquittal.

Paris, Aug. 21.—Paris was to-day the scene of most serious disturbances, recalling some aspects of the commune.

In response to an appeal of the journals Le Peuple and La Petite Republique, groups of anarchists and socialists gathered at 3 o'clock in the afternoon in the Place de la Republique. The police had taken precautions, and there seemed no danger of disorders.

Sebastien Faure and Faberot, well-known revolutionary anarchists, were the ringleaders. Faure addressed the crowd. Among other things he said that the anarchists should be masters of the streets. The police then interfered and dislodged Faure and Faberot, making three arrests. The crowd dispersed, but a crowd of demonstrators headed by Faure and Henri D'Horr, made for the place de la Nation.

Knives and Guns Used.

The police broke through the column and a struggle for the mastery followed. Shots were fired, and M. Goullier, commissionary of police, was twice stabbed with a knife. The crowd reassembled and ran towards the Place de la Nation. The police, reinforced, made another attempt to stem the current, and fierce fighting occurred, three constables being wounded.

Faure and D'Horr jumped into a passing street car that was going to the Place de la Republique; and the car driver on arriving there gave a signal to the police, who immediately arrested them both, together with two other anarchists, Joseph Ferrier and Jean Perrin.

Wrecking Churches.

The anarchist mob retraced its course to the Place de la Republique, smashing the windows of religious edifices on the way. Suddenly the column made a loop and curved towards the Church of St. Ambroise, where the rioters smashed the windows.

Proceeding thence toward the Faubourg du Temple, they formed up in a compact body. Hatchets were suddenly produced, with long knives, stolen from the counters of shops, and a concerted rush was made upon the Church of St. Joseph. The aged sacristan hastily closed the other gates, but these were soon forced with hatchets and bars of iron. The massive oaken doors were then attacked.

A Wild Scene in the Church.

The wild horde burst into the church, which instantly became a scene of pillage and sacrilege. Altars, fonts and statues were hurled to the floor and smashed, pictures were rent, candlesticks, ornaments, and hosts from high altars were thrown down and trampled under foot. The crucifix above was made the target for missiles, and the figure of the Saviour was fractured in several places.

Then, while raucous voices sang the "Carmagnole," the chairs were carried outside, piled up, and set on fire in the center of the square fronting the church. When this stage was reached, the crucifix was pulled down and thrown into the flames. Suddenly a cry was raised that the statue of the virgin had been forgotten, and the crowd returned and tore this down also.

Battle With Police.

The police and Republican guards came and the anarchists attacked them fearlessly with knives.

At length the officers began to gain the mastery. A score of anarchists took refuge in an adjacent house. Others entrenched themselves in the belfry and fiercely defended themselves by showering missiles, but finally were dislodged.

Twenty Anarchists were arrested, taken to the police station, searched and found to be carrying revolvers, loaded sticks and knives.

When the police entered the church the anarchists had just set fire to the pulpit.

The interior of the edifice was a complete wreck. Several valuable oil pictures that can never be replaced were ruined.

An attempt was made to fire the choir of St. Joseph's church with petroleum, and the firemen were called in to quench the flames. Several parishioners were severely mauled in their efforts to defend the church from sacrilege.

In Poor Quarters Only.

The church is situated in the poorest quarter of the city. No disorders of any kind occurred in the fashionable districts, whose streets were also deserted.

The demonstrators as far as Gare de Lest were repeatedly driven back by police charges, the crowd crying, "Vive l'Armee!" and "Vive La Republique!"

GROWTH OF THE INDEPENDENT PRESS.

The recent report of the Dominion statistician shows that there are published in the Dominion 113 daily newspapers, of which 36 are Conservative 42 Liberal, and 31 independent.

If this means anything it indicates that the people are drifting away from party; that a newspaper to be of any use or influence, must not be fettered. Of what value are the arguments of a paper whose business it is to defend its political party? What show have the people for a fair deal when the press of the country is shackled? How can the Globe, for instance, be expected to condemn the Preston rascality, or the Mail and Empire the Remedial Bill? It is always with such papers, party before everything else. The Times hails with delight this marked change in public sentiment. It argues well for the country.

A DEAD ISSUE.

Conservatives held power in Canada through four parliaments, and the great majority which they secured in the Senate during that long time will disappear in the natural term of two Parliaments, says the Telegram.

Thus the people rule by the operation of natural laws, permitting a party which can be twice victorious at the polls to replace dead enemies with living friends in the Senate.

There is no menace to popular government in the occasional hostility of the majority which does not represent the people in the Senate to the majority which does represent the people in the Commons.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

The deliberate judgement of the people can prevail within the lifetime of two Parliaments by the inevitable changes which will bring the Senate into harmony with the people's representatives in the Commons.

It is not essential to popular government that a party should be able to snatch absolutely supreme power as a result of an accidental success at the polls.

A party which can win two general elections can secure control of the Senate, and there is no good reason why the Senate should not act as a check on a party which may reign by virtue of a lucky chance and has yet to prove its right to represent the deliberate judgement of the Canadian people.

Senate reform is a dead issue. The Liberals journals which have been shrieking themselves hoarse on the subject are hung up high and dry on the rocks of ridicule by their leader's refusal to echo the war cry which he encouraged them to raise.

Two physicians of Greater New York are experimenting with lymph from glands of goats, which has been prepared by Doctor R. F. Roberts of Green City, Mo., Dr. Frederick C. Holden, of Brooklyn says it is of great service in chronic cases which have defied the efforts of physicians for years. He alleges that it is particularly efficacious in locomotor ataxia cases. Dr. Roberts, the discoverer, asserts that he has been at work on this idea of cell transplantation for thirty years. He contends that the lymph increases the richness of the blood; it increases the activity and function of the whole blood cells; it causes an increased the activity and function of the whole blood cells; it causes an increased elimination of the waste products of the body such as discharged cells foreign accumulations and poisonous secretions. It is a positive specific against the poisons of rheumatism and the results of rheumatism. Acute rheumatism is not benefitted neither is any other acute disease. In the twelve hundred cases treated by this lymph there has not been a single death since the experiments began, more than a year ago.

THE LIBERALS TO GO.

This is the Opinion of Mr. Nicholas Flood Davin.

Mr. Nicholas Flood Davin, M.P., passed through Peterborough on his way home from Ottawa, and told the Times that the Liberals would not be able to carry the west. He was of opinion that the whole country was tired of the present condition of affairs. Mr. Sifton, he said, was a heavy load for the Liberals in the west to carry. His action in regard to the Yukon charges had greatly weakened the government, and practically closed the government party out of the west and for the coast. In regard to the Manitoba elections Mr. Davin said that Hugh John Macdonald's chances were good. The moral effect of the bye-election frauds were strongly reflected in the prairie provinces, and would tell heavily against the Liberal party. Speaking of the crops in Manitoba, Mr. Davin said that the outlook never was so promising about fifty million bushels of grain would be harvested in the west, and this meant good business.

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 3 to 15 per cent. copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRyee, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-cut to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $360, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

* * * * "In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl schists extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendall, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I think it is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper. It is near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oil here because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is adapted to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a town could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($400 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.
George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.
Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.
Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.
Col. James. M. Wheaton, Boston, Secretary.
Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Ex-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allotment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

ARCHER CITY, TEXAS, MAY 3, 1899.

Hon. Emery H. Low, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: * * Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States. * * The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cupriferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.
The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formation; and there is no deep work.
I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.
* * As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.
Very respectfully yours,
T. BURTON EVERETT, M. E.

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the nine mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

FLASHED UNDER THE SEA

The Abolition of Penny Post is the Latest Proposal in England.

DESTROYED TITLE-DEEDS.

An English Communistic Settlement Takes This Very Peculiar Step.

A Remarkable Movement Started Among the Hebrews in London—London and Yorkshire Railway to Inaugurate a Fast Service—Long Distance Test of Motor Waggon—Young Astor to be a Soldier.

Liverpool, Aug. 19.—The Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company are about to establish a service of express trains to cover their thirty-six miles' route between Manchester and Liverpool in thirty minutes. Their new powerful locomotives, one of which the other week made a trial trip at the rate of 100 miles per hour will be used in the new service.

Gladstone's Guardian.

London, Aug. 19.—With the retirement of Chief Inspector John Conquest the Metropolitan police force in general and Scotland Yard in particular, will lose an officer, who for twenty-nine years past, has been a faithful and zealous servant of the public. Mr. Conquest is best known as the officer charged with the duty of protecting Mr. Gladstone during the troublous times which extended from 1882 to 1885. He was well known at Hawarden, where he was frequently on duty, and as guardian of the great statesman from the possibility of outrage or assault.

The Jewish Problem.

Berlin, Aug. 19.—The project for emigrating Jews from Russia, Roumania and Germany to Cyprus begins to find much favor here. It is believed that under British rule they will have fair play shown them as agriculturists. A wealthy American Jew named Triesch, who is making this cause his own, has held a meeting, at which a number of leading professors, bankers, lawyers and other prominent members of the Jewish community have promised support to the project.

To Abolish Postage Stamps.

London, Aug. 18.—The abolition of penny postage is the latest proposal that has been made to the Post-office for the improvement of its system. It is suggested that a form of automatic machine should be employed, with a slit into which the letter should be inserted. When a penny is placed in a slot the machine will stamp the letter, and thus obviate the use of ordinary stamps.

Revival Among Jews

London, Aug. 18.—A remarkable movement has just been initiated in the London Jewish community its avowed object being a spirited revival among the members of the Hebrew faith in the metropolis. The movement owes its origin to Mr. Oswald Simon, son of the late Sir John Simon, who was at one time M.P. for Dewsbury. Mr. Simon, who for many years has been a prominent member of the Reform Synagogue of British Jews, will himself act as minister of the new congregation, and will receive active support from, among others, Mr. Israel Zangwill, the novelist, and Mr. J. Solomons, the editor of The Temple Classics.

Long Distance Motor Test.

London, Aug. 18.—A long-distance trial is being made of one of the motors wagons which competed in the recent trials of the Liverpool Self-Propelled Traffic Association, which will travel from Liverpool to London. The vehicle in question is that of Messrs. Clarkson and Capel, London official number 6, and its total load about three tons. This test is the longest yet undertaken in England or elsewhere.

Destroyed Their Title Deeds.

London, Aug. 18.—An interesting situation has arisen in the little Communistic settlement in the Cotswolds owing to the determination of the leaders of the movement to carry their theories to the logical conclusion. A farm of about 80 acres was purchased on the top of one of the Cotswold Hills for the purpose of sustaining the Communists. But a fundamental doctrine of the sect forbids the possession of landed property, so the title deeds have been destroyed, and if they abandon the land, which is quite possible, anyone, so far as they are concerned, can step in and claim it. The colony is not in a very flourishing condition, though it cannot be called a failure. There are more than 18 people in it, including a local farmer, who added his farming implements to the general stock. There are two graduates of universities, and several well-educated men, but the inspiring force of the colony is a Doctor of Philosophy (Leipsic) who is also a Fellow of the Chemical Society and a lecturer at the Royal College of Science. He bought the first 40 acres of land, the farmer adding the rest. It was owing to the doctor's advice that the title deeds were destroyed.

To Make Him a Cavalryman.

London, Aug. 19.—Mr. William Waldorf Astor intends to put his son into the Household Cavalry. He was educated at Eton and Oxford.

A large crowd of people congregated about the Mongra House on Saturday evening listening to the graphophone, operated by one of the guests. The instrument is a very powerful one and the music was much appreciated by those present.

THE MAGICAL MIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected in Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, had also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape, a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

Post Yenuse Fiction.

"Talk about the seven sleepers," muttered the angry traveller; "I'll bet there are 7,000 of them between Albany and New York."

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

Detective Murray Investigates the Death of Alfred James.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—Detective Murray returned this morning from Parry Sound, where he has been investigating the mysterious drowning of Albert James, on August 4th.

An inquest was held at Kernay, on the Canada Atlantic, by Coroner Barber, but nothing in the evidence showed that the suspected men, Joseph Aldrich and his son, who were with James at the time of the accident, were responsible for his death. The postmortem examination of Dr Hogg did not disclose any marks of violence on the body, and no further proceedings will be taken in the case.

A FAITHFUL DOG.

Its Owner Realized Its Worth, as Well He Might.

"Well, I wouldn't have believed it," exclaimed Jones in astonishment as he dropped in to see Smith the other evening and was met in the hall by a St. Bernard dog.

"Wouldn't have believed what?" asked Smith.

"Why, that you'd have a dog in your house," continued Jones. "It belongs to one of your neighbors, I suppose?"

"No, sir; that's my dog," replied Smith proudly.

"You don't really mean it, old man! Why, I've known you now for five years, and you've always had a marked aversion for dogs."

"Yes, I did have until lately, but I wouldn't be without one now. This brute is a noble, faithful fellow, and I wouldn't take $100 spot cash for"—

But at this juncture he was interrupted by his wife calling down over the banister: "Henry Smith, who was it that scattered these cigar ashes all over my dresser?"

"It must have been the dog, my dear," was his reply.

"And who was it that dropped these apple peelings on the floor?" she demanded.

"The dog, my dear," answered Smith.

"And there's a bottle of mucilage spilled on the hall carpet up here too. Is that some of your work, Henry?"

"No, my dear; the dog's to blame for that."

"And, goodness gracious," she continued angrily, "if some one hasn't been whittling up here again! How many times have I told you not to do that in the house?"

"But I had nothing to do with it, my dear. The dog's been up there probably chewing a stick."

"Well, it's a burning shame the way this house is mussed up. Your collars and ties are scattered all over the rooms."

"Are they, my dear? That dog's been up there again then. Yes," continued Smith as he drew his friend into the parlor, "I wouldn't take a big pot of money for that dog. Why, the noble fellow saves me about 20 jawings a week."

"So I see," chuckled Jones, "and you bet I'll have one before noon tomorrow."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound, thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

TO FIGHT OR NOT TO FIGHT

That is the Question Still Agitating the Mind of Briton and Boer.

WAR PREPARATIONS GO ON

And Oom Paul's Latest Kite has Entirely Failed in its Expected Effect on Britain.

There is No Cessation of Warlike Preparations on Either Side—The Transvaal Government Rushing Troops to the Frontier—War Office Has Already Sent Out Forage for 10,000 Horses.

London, Aug. 19.—The Earl of Denbigh, speaking at a Primrose meeting during the week, voiced the general feeling of the Government's supporters by saying "If the break up of the British empire is wanted all we have to do is to show a weak front in South Africa. Great Britain has to win the next trick there, whether by diplomacy or other means."

Mr. William T. Stead, in The Review of Reviews, makes a startling insinuation against Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the Secretary of State for the Colonies. He says that the Liberal leaders, Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, two years ago, had not "made themselves parties to a most scandalous fraud, in the way of whitewashing, ever perpetrated upon the public, Mr. Chamberlain would not be in the Colonial Office to-day.'

Mr. Stead refers, apparently, to the Jameson raid into Transvaal, and intimates that Mr. Chamberlain is entirely responsible for the present crisis, adding, "What is now demanded, almost avowed, is the destruction of the domination of Boer oligarchy." Continuing, Mr. Stead berates Sir Alfred Milner, the British High Commissioner in South Africa, and says if he was away from the Transvaal there would be no threatenings of war in South Africa.

Still Preparing for War.

London, Aug. 19.—The latest franchise kite from Pretoria has failed of its expected effect. It is merely regarded as a device to gain time. There is no cessation of the war preparations on either side. The Transvaal Government is beginning to move troops to the border and the police on the frontier have been ordered to strictly prohibit any cattle leaving the public is receiving large amounts of gold beyond ordinary requirements. Field Marshall Lord Wolseley, commander-in-chief of the British army, was in consultation at the War Office yesterday with General Neville Gerald Lyttleton, assistant military secretary, and the headquarters staff. Tenders for an immediate supply of large stores of forage and general general stores were under consideration. Six months' supply of compressed forage for ten thousand horses has already been sent out. It is reported that Col. Hector Macdonald, recently appointed to an important Indian command, but who has delayed taking up his post, is really waiting to be ordered to South Africa under command of Lieut.-General Sir Frederick Walker, who relieves General Sir William Francis Butler, late commander of the British troops there.

HE TOOK NAILS.

It Was All the Same to the Man Who Was Treating.

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

In a certain little town not a great ways from Cleveland there are probably as many of these peculiar people as any place of its size can boast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is economical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a penny that didn't go for some actual necessity.

There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of bachelorhood, finally married. In this little town it is the custom for the happy bridegroom to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in to wish him joy. So the bridegroom in this instance had a box on the counter, and most of his patrons were regaled from it.

Pretty soon the ancient gentleman first referred to lounged in. The storekeeper, who felt friendly to all the world just then, pushed the box toward the newcomer.

"Have a cigar, Uncle Jim," he smilingly said.

Uncle Jim looked at the box and looked at the storekeeper.

"What's this for?" he asked.

The storekeeper slightly blushed.

"Been gettin married."

"Who? You?"

"Yep. Me."

"An you're standin treat, eh?"

"Yep," said the storekeeper.

The old man picked up a cigar.

"How much did these seegars cost ye, Ab?" he inquired.

"Oh," replied the storekeeper, "they cost me 'bout 4 cents. They're nickel cigars."

The old man dropped the cigar back in the box. Then his gaze wandered around the store.

"Well, Ab," he slowly drawled, "of it's all the same to you, I'll take a pound o' nails."

And he got them.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HE VOTED FOR STONE.

And For One of the Most Remarkable Reasons on Record.

Theodore Bolton of Henry county tells this good story. "I was a strong Stone man," said Bolton, "when the ex-governor was a candidate for governor. One day while the campaign was at its hottest a Democrat from an outlying township came to see me. He called me out from my store and took me into a back alley. I thought he wanted to borrow $5 or ask me to go on his note. Finally, when he got to a selected place, away from the crowd, the old fellow laid down his cob pipe and said:

"'Say, Bolton, I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"'Why, Uncle Billy?' I inquired.

"'Well, they tell me, The, that Bill Stone beats his wife, beats her twice a week.'

"I looked the old man squarely in the eyes and never smiled and said, 'Now, Billy, you wouldn't vote against a man for beating his wife—and you a married man too.'

"'The, you don't beat your wife, do you?'

"'Whenever she needs it, Uncle Billy.'

"'Well, I didn't think that of you, The. The, I like you, but I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"So we parted, and Uncle Billy went back to his home in the back township.

"Three weeks later the county convention to select delegates to the state nominating convention met in Clinton. The first man I met on the streets was Uncle Billy.

"'What are you doing here today, Uncle Billy?' I asked as the old fellow shook hands with me.

"'Why, I am a delegate from my township to this here convention.'

"'And how do you stand on the Stone question now?'

"'Well, I tell you, The. I have been thinking about what you told me, and it's all right. I'm a married man myself, and I am going to vote for Stone.'

"And he did," added Bolton, "and to this day believes Stone beat his wife twice a week, and that's why Stone got his vote in the Henry county convention."—Kansas City Journal

Campaigning With a Fiddle.

When a young man, the late ex-Governor Oglesby worked in the old Macon tavern. There he met the lawyers riding the circuit and formed the acquaintance of Judge Robbins of Springfield, with whom he studied law two years. Returning to Decatur, he began practicing in a town of 400 inhabitants. He soon became popular as a speaker. On one occasion he was making a Whig speech on one side of the square, while a Democrat was making an opposition speech on the other side. The Democrat was fast getting the crowd when Mr. Oglesby, who was an old fashioned fiddler and played as well as he spoke, borrowed a fiddle from a man in the crowd and began to play. That broke up the opposition meeting, and the Democrat, left without an audience, came over and joined the crowd that was dancing to Oglesby's music.

Buffalo Bill's Fine Shooting.

Colonel Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," is one of the finest shots in the world. One of his most wonderful feats was not generally performed in public, for the reason that its failure or success could not be discerned at any great distance. It consisted in driving into a white board five short, flat headed tacks with five successive shots, from a distance just short enough to allow the tacks to be accurately sighted. So great was Colonel Cody's skill with the light rifle he used for this feat that, given favorable light, he could generally perform it six or seven times without a miss.—St Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is a Fact.

"What are you sighing for?" asked the registry department of the dead letter office.

"No one has so many rejected addresses as I," was the sorrowful reply.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph

Any one can distinguish a poisonous serpent from a harmless one, for a venomous snake invariably possesses a triangularly shaped head and a blunt nose, while its tail is correspondingly blunt and stubby.

FAITH HEALER IN TROUBLE.

Evangelist Brooks Held Responsible for a Child's Death in Victoria, B.C.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 20.—Eugene Brooks, termed by himself and his followers Evangelist Brooks, who has been conducting Zion Divine Healing Mission, a branch of Dr. Dowie's Christian Catholic church of Chicago, in this city, may be called upon, on his return from Vancouver, to answer to a serious charge.

Since his arrival here Brooks has secured many converts and among them Mrs. McCoskrie, wife of Captain McCoskrie of the steamer Princess Louise. The woman had been ill for some time and was induced to try divine healing both for herself and her little boy, who was also ill. July 20 Captain McCoskrie went north on his steamer. Upon his return Saturday morning he learned that his child was dead and he holds Evangelist Brooks and his teachings responsible for it. Captain McCoskrie sailed for the north last night, but has left the matter in the hands of the police.

KIPLING NOT APPRECIATED.

Methodist Sunday School Cast "The Drums of the Fore and Aft" Out of its Library.

New York, Aug. 20.—The Sunday school of the Methodist Church at Crawfordville, Indiana, has passed final judgment on Rudyard Kipling, casting out all his books from its library.

The school recently replenished its library through a Methodist firm of publishers in Cincinnati. The publishers, when sending the order, threw in several volumes as a present, among them being Kipling's story of 'The Drums of the Fore and Aft.'

After a while this tale found its way to the family of a strict member of the church, who declared that the book was "fairly reeking of profanity and the most outrageous slang." He then took the book before a meeting of the church trustees and read numerous quotations from it.

The trustees expressed themselves as "amazed that such literature should have invaded the church." and unanimously voted to throw out all the author's works that were in the library.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and angle of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Write for catalogue No. 39 to the COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, No. 313 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Whisky Trust in Ireland.

London, Aug. 19.—A representative of the Associated Press learns that, following the American lead a whiskey trust is to be formed in Ireland. It is also announced that the wall paper manufacturers of the United Kingdom are forming a corner to put up prices. Other industries are showing a desire to consolidate.

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing is rare as charity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the altering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his conquest.

CO  BO

Stimulants and Purgatives cannot cure you, but The GREAT INDIAN BLOOD MEDICINE must and will.

Every bottle of this universal blood maker and flesh builder carries a positive GUARANTEE. Evident sick nostrils of hidden disease. A deranged stomach will undermine the entire system. COBO, in its direct action on the liver, kidneys and stomach, cures every phase of mal-nutrition, makes blood and carries fuel and strength to every tissue, and gives back health when once lurked death. Often in the morning there comes a feeling of weariness, indescribable; not exactly ill, nor fit to work, but too near well to remain idle.

A Ripans Tabule taken at night, before retiring, or just after dinner, has been known to drive away that weariness for months.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey properly kept will improve with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No trash of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

THE ROYAL BOX.

Queen Victoria is preparing for publication another volume of her journal.

The oldest queen of Europe now is the queen of Hanover, who was 81 years old in April. Queen Victoria comes next, being 80, while the ex-Empress Eugenie is 73.

Duke Karl Theodor of Bavaria, the oculist and brother of the late empress of Austria and of the ex-queen of Naples, has just celebrated his silver wedding at the castle of Tegernsee.

The Duke of Connaught is less than six years younger than the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, to whom he now becomes heir presumptive. The latter was born on Aug. 6, 1844, and the Duke of Connaught on May 1, 1850.

The Prince of Wales is said to have determined to give up yachting. His ventures in the sport have never resulted well, and he has already withdrawn from two yacht clubs with which he has been long identified.

The Siberian railway has already 60 refrigerator cars for taking butter to the Russian cities.

On Chinese railways the highest paid employees are the telegraph operators, who get $17.50 per month.

At the railway stations in Russia books are kept in which passengers may enter any complaint they may wish to make.

Railway whistles inflict torture on so many people that the efforts abroad to check the plague will be followed with interest. Austria has introduced a system of dumb signaling to start and stop the trains. Belgium is trying compressed air whistles instead of steam, and Germany experiments with horns.

TRANSFIXED WITH PAIN.

How aptly that sacred type of womanhood the gentle Virgin Mary is depicted in religious art as the Mother of Sorrows transfixed with seven swords. Sometimes when we stop to consider the sorrows and sufferings which are continually borne by so many thousands of our American women, it seems as if the gentler sex had been particularly chosen to endure the most poignant miseries of human kind.

Countless suffering women throughout this land will feel an eager sympathetic heart-throb in reading the frank and earnest letter of Mrs. Josie E. Clark, of Enterprise, Mo., addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y.

"Your kindness to me I can never forget," she says. "I cannot express half my feelings of gratefulness to you. I had despaired of ever getting well, I had been in bad health for twelve years. Had aches all through me, numb hands, cold feet, everything I ate distressed me; my bowels were constipated. I was very nervous, depressed and despondent. When I first wrote you I thought I could never be cured. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and my health is now good. You have my honest recommendation to all sufferers. I think there is no medicine in the world as good as Dr. Pierce's."

This matchless "Discovery" contains no alcohol like many of the "sarsaparillas" and tonics which are so freely sold. It induces no morbid craving for false stimulants; but gives true and lasting strength. Every woman should possess a copy of Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page Common Sense Medical Adviser. A free paper-bound copy will be sent for 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of customs and mailing only; or a cloth-bound copy for 50 stamps.

If suffering from any lingering obstinate disease write to Dr. Pierce and get his advice. It will cost you absolutely nothing. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Painful Accident.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum, while on his way from Paris to Peterborough on Friday evening last met with a very painful accident. The car gave a sudden lurch, loosening the windows which had been raised, and it fell with full force on Mr. Meldrum's second and third fingers. The fingers were so tightly pinned between the fallen sash and frame that an iron bar had to be secured to pry the window up and release Mr. Meldrum. The end of the third finger was badly crushed, the bone being broken. The wound was dressed when the train reached Toronto.

After Forty Years.

Mr. James T. Hooper, of Auburn, N.Y., is visiting Peterborough after an absence of forty years. Mr. Hooper left Peterborough in 1859, to seek his fortune in the United States. He was in the employ of Mr. Clarton and Mr. Joseph Dundas at the time, and his subsequent success is no doubt due to the early training he received under these gentlemen. Mr. Hooper finds a flourishing young city where the village of forty years ago stood.

TO HARNESS FENELON FALLS.

A Lindsay Syndicate Purchase Half the Power.

The syndicate who purchased the water power at Fenelon Falls have sent the engineers to make arrangements to begin operations. They have secured from the Smith Estate one half the river, and the old Howry mill, which will be pulled down and a power erected in its place. The villagers are anxious to have the mill stay where it is, believing that the Rathburn Company will eventually either lease or purchase it from the syndicate for saw mill purposes. Should this occur the power house will be erected alongside the mill, there being plenty of room. It was first proposed by the Lindsay syndicate to build their power house directly above the falls, on the north side of the river, but the owners, Messrs. McDougall, Brandon & Austin, would not have it that way, and this was abandoned.

The Ontario Government are rebuilding the slide and have had a gang of men at work all summer. Mr. Frank Fairban, who is time keeper told the Times the other day that the original plan of the side had to be abandoned on account of the back water that the change of current would create. It was first proposed to build the slide diagonally across the falls so as to form a breakwater below, and assist navigation. The work will not be completed this season.

In Trouble Again.

Freddie Kearns is again figuring in the police court, having been charged with stealing a wheel from the rear of McCallum's restaurant, belonging to Mrs. McCallum. Freddie has been up before on other charges, and the Magistrate was not inclined to leniency. A companion of Kearns told how Freddie took the wheel and rode it down to the wharf, and returned to Hamilton's foundry wher she left it. The Magistrate adjourned the case till Friday, and liberated the prisoner on bail. As soon as Kearns got clear of the court he undertook to give Colby a trouncing for giving evidence against him. The lad may thus have another charge to explain away to the Magistrate.

Down the River.

Quite a large party went on the steamer City of Peterborough down the rive rlast night, on the ocasion of the excursion unde rthe auspices of No 5 Company 57th Battalion. A splendid program of music was rendered by the 57th Battalion band on board. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

A Namesake.

Mr. James Dickson, P.L.S., of Fenelon Falls, has had the honor of having a township named after him in western Ontario. Mr. Dickson is one of the most popular and efficient provincial land surveyors in Ontario and has spent most of his life at "Little Niagara." During the past few years he ha shad some very important assignments from the Ontario Government, all of which have been carefully performed. Mr. Dickson is well and favorably known in Peterborough.

It Beats Them All.

Prof. DeSilberg, the noted optician, called yesterday at the Times, on his way from Lindsay to Millbrook. He says that he finds the Times a great paper to advertise in. It brings the business every time and beats them all.

Youthful Depravity.

At a special session of the police court Saturday afternoon Prescilla Corrigan, a fourteen year old girl from Otonabee was charged with theft. This girl was handed over to the Children's Aid Society in July last and a place was procured for her but she would not remain. Another place was given her at Mr. Flood's at Ennismore on Saturday, 12th inst., and she went there, but on Sunday morning following, while the family were at church she stole a skirt and parasol and ran away to town. Since that time, according to her own story she has been sleeping in a manger near the shelter of the Children's Aid Society, unknown to the officers and inmates and occasionally stealing in to get some food. The rest of her living she managed to procure in all the ways that a girl in her position might. She pleaded guilty to the charge of theft and was remanded till next Friday for judgment.

The Famous Food Delicacy Grape-Nuts

Searching for some palatable, easily prepared dish for breakfast, it is like an inspiration to come across the Grape-Nuts.

No cooking is needed. The food can be served instanter with a little cream or milk and the taste is that of the delicate crisp sweet of grape sugar, to be seen glistening on the small granules.

This grape sugar is produced from the starchy parts of the grains and is crystalized and deposited naturally during the process of manufacture.

The taste of Grape-Nuts is most captivating. Don't let it lead you to eating more than 4 or 5 teaspoonsful.

The food is condensed and great volume is not required.

DIVINE HEALING.

Schrader, the Famous Layer on of Hands, is in Town—Many Visit Him.

Schrader, the self-styled divine healer, is in town. He is occupying two rooms in the White House and his stay will only be for to-day. He is being visited by numbers of people who are seeking health.

The personal appearance of this man who claims to cure the ills of the flesh by the laying on of hands is striking. Clad in a long robe of inky black, the only touch of color on his person is supplied by a small silver cross, which hangs by a black cord about his neck. In grotesque contrast to his sombre dress he wore on his breast a little portrait button, of cheap design, with the picture of a woman on it. Schrader has a mass of dark brown hair, which falls far down about his shoulders. His moustache and short beard are reddish brown. His blue eyes are large, but not unusually thoughtful or dreamy; in fact, his features seem almost expressionless, and it is hard to see how people have received the impression that his face his magnetic. There is nothing of the ascetic about his appearance and his face is the reverse of thin. He is tall and his manner is grave.

To him there came yesterday dozens of people stricken with disease. Men and women advanced in years, and some younger persons, were shown into the little ante-room, where a keen-eyed assistant said sharply, "Your offering, please," and thereupon a piece of silver was placed on the table.

The business-like assistant then wrote the patient's name on a card, with the amount of the offering, and, armed with this, the patient was ushered into the presence of the healer himself. No conversation took place, the healer passed his large hands rapidly over the arms and body of the patient and then blessed a handkerchief, the application of which to the affected portions of the body constitutes an important part of the treatment. The patient then left, [illegible] two minutes having been consumed in the whole process.

"Many are healed immediately," said the healer to a Times' reporter, "but most cases take time for results to be seen." The reporter saw many people after they felt Schrader's hands and has no hesitation in saying that the immediate cures to-day were exceedingly few. One or two laughed as they went out to the street; the affair seemed to them simply an amusing experience; others wore a disappointed air.

A middle-aged man, as he followed his wife out of the hotel, remarked apologetically that he had taken her there, just to see if any good might possibly result. A woman who had gone in remarked that if it didn't do any good it certainly would do no harm. A white-haired man, who knows his Bible thoroughly, and the Greek testament pretty well, complained of having had no chance to discuss matters with the healer. This patient was very doubtful of Schrader and quoted passages about false Christs and false prophets, and the danger of putting one's faith in man.

In the whole number there appeared to be distrust and lack of faith. The healer certainly failed to impress his patients in Peterborough.

Schrader was born near Green Bay, Wisconsin, and is now thirty-two years of age. When he was thirteen years old, he first began to practise healing and since that time he has travelled through the length and breadth of North America, curing he says, all manner of diseases. Four years ago while in Colorado, the first excitement over his work began. Shortly after that time, Schrader went to New Mexico, where he says he fasted forty days and forty nights, an act on which he lays great stress. His authority he derives from the Scriptures which says that "some men are born with the gift of healing." From childhood he says he has had the gift; he healed then as now; there has been no increase of the power and no decrease.

Schrader's religious beliefs are represented by what he calls the "Divine Church," which takes the literal interpretation of the Bible as its watchword.

A Lost Wheel.

A wheel was left in front of the Post Office on Hunter street, shortly after dark on Saturday night, and at midnight it was still there. It was at first thought to belong to one of the junior reporters of our local boiler plate contemporaries, but when two o'clock struck, and no one claimed the wheel, Mr. Irwin, the efficient caretaker of the Post Office, ran it in. The owner can secure it by application to Mr. Irwin.

No Need of Looking Shabby.

It is Quite Easy to Make Old Dresses and Suits Look Like New.

Economical and smart women can make wondrous creations fro seemingly useless garments. The old dress that is out of style or too faded to wear can be readily dyed with Diamond Dyes to a fashionable color, and then made over so that it will look equal to new. Suits for boys can be made from old ones discarded by the father, and a bath in Diamond Dyes will make them as handsome as new. Dresses and cloaks for the little girls can be made with little trouble and at small expense from cast-off garments of the elder folk, and when they are dyed with Diamond Dyes the new make-overs will look as though they were fresh from the dressmaker.

Diamond Dyes are made especially for home use, and it is impossible for even the most inexperienced to have ill luck or meet with disappointments. Diamond Dyes color anything from ribbons, laces and feathers to heavy suits, jackets and dresses, and always make lasting colors that even the professional dyer cannot rival.

CHAMBERLAIN A JUGGLER ?

Sir Alfred Milner Says That His Conduct is Extremely Irritating to a Plain Man.

French Mission Was Received With Shots—Particulars of the Death of Capt Munier and Lieut. Klobb at the Hands of Mutineers—Over Two Thousand Killed in a Hurricane.

London, Aug. 22.—It cannot be denied that a great deal of indignation is simmering in the lower ranks of the A Fleet over the plan of campaign for the manoeuvres adopted by the Admiralty.

From the position in which the convoy—that the A Fleet had to discover—was located, all the start which A had received was neutralized. As for A's torpedo boats, several of them could only steam 11 knots, and one was good for no more than 10. Roars of laughter must greet the suggestion that such craft would be dangerous to B's battleships. They are dangerous to no one but the people who run them.

In short, the belief among the seamen of A is that the manoeuvres was a putup job to show British invincibility.

A word must be said for A's cruisers. The regular Channel Squadron ships did beautifully. The Niobe, for example, steamed 18 knots with ease for 18 hours. By all the writing referring to water-tube boilers she is good for only 12. What nonsense! If she had no had a fog at the time, she and the Diadem—given a fair chance—would have picked up the convoy. Say what anyone likes, these big cruisers can steam, and steam, and steam.

As for Admiral Rawson he played the game, and what more could be said of any British admiral?

Is Chamberlain a Juggler ?

London, Aug. 22.—A parliamentary paper dealing with the Transvaal crisis was issued to-day. It details the efforts of the Boer Government during the past year to have the question of the suzerainty of Great Britain submitted to arbitration and Great Britain's reapted refusals to discuss this basic point. The document adds that Sir Alfred Milner, the Governor of Cape Colony and High Commissioner of South Africa, writing to Mr. Chamberlain, the Secretary of State of the Colonies, last June, said: "The way in which the Secretary of State juggles with the convention of 1894 is rather irritating to a plain man.

The final despatch from Mr. Chamberlain, dated July 13, 1899, to Sir Alfred Milner concurs with the latter's view as to the untenable Transvaal contension, adding that the British Government had no intention to continue to discuss the question of suzerainty with the Transvaal.

French Mission Received With Shot.

Paris, Aug. 22.—M. Decrais, Minister of the Colonies, has received a despatch from the Governor-General of French West Africa, fully confirming the story of the killing of Lieut.-Col. Klobb and Lieut. Munier by rebels of a French expedition, under the conduct of Captains Voulet and Chanoine, in French Soudan.

It appears that on news being received of the barbarity of Voulet-Chanoine mission towards the natives on the march toward Lake Chad, the Dupuy Ministry instructed Lieutenant-Colonel Klobb, who at Kayes, to proceed with a flying column to overtake the mission, investigate the charges, and assume command. On July 14th the Klobb party overtook the mission at Zimbora, near Domangar. Lieut.-Col. Klobb sent word to Captain Voulet, who received it in a hostile manner, opened fire and killed Capt. Munier and Lieut.-Col. Klobb. A bayonet charge routed the remainder of Klobb's force. Nine men were killed. The Voulet-Chanoine mission has taken to the bush, but, according to the advices received by M. Decrais, a strong force is in pursuit.

Victims of a Hurricane.

Ponce, Island of Porto Rico, Aug. 21.—It is now estimated that the bodies of 2,500 victims of the recent hurricane have been buried, that 1,000 persons were injured by the storm, and that 2,000 people are still missing.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS ROOM.

Well Known Provincial Official Dies of Heart Failure.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—H. Lee Rudge, clerk in the Crown Lands Department, was found dead in his room at No. 278 Yonge street, over Burgess' drug store, this morning. Heart failure was the cause of death. He had been ailing for some time past, and only last Sunday he was prescribed for by Dr. Nattress. He was found dead in a chair by the window by Mr. Mitchell, of the Confidential Commercial Agency, Canadian Life Building. The deceased is a brother of Cyril Rudge, now of Chicago, and was a bachelor.

THE WOUNDED COUNSEL IS ON DECK ONCE AGAIN

And is Given an Enthusiastic Recepion by the Court and Spectators on Making His First Appearance.

MORE THEATRICS, ACCOMPANIED BY TEARS.

To-day's Evidence Generally in Favor of Dreyfus, and His Counsel Score Many Points. A Witness Testifies to Having Seen Him Prying Into Papers.

Rennes, Aug. 22.—Maitre Labori, leading counsel for the defense, was present in court yesterday morning, when the second day of the third week of the second trial began.

The arrival of M. Labori was the signal for scenes of extraordinary enthusiasm. At 6.15 a.m., three carriages, preceded by a number of bicycles, drove up. The first carriage contained M. Labori and his wife and physicians. The others contained friends of the lawyer and some police inspectors.

A Warm Welcome.

The crowd about the Lycee building rushed up to M. Labori's carriage, and a number of persons eagerly thrust their hands through the windows to greet the distinguished lawyer.

When M. Labori descended he was surrounded by friends and a hundred hands pressed his, while he was assailed with all sorts of questions, to which he smilingly replied; "I am getting on well, my friends, I thank you. Thank you."

As M. Labori, still accompanied by Mme Labori and a physicans entered the court room, the audience greeted him by standing up, and there was a general roar of applause, accompanied by the clapping of hands, which was distinctly heard in the streets. Tears sprang to the eyes of the wounded man, who was evidently deeply affected by the warm welcome. Among those who greeted M. Labori were Generals Billott and Mercier, who courteously enquired as to his condition.

He Looks Well.

The lawyer looks very well considering his recent experience. He walked quite briskly, but held his left arm close to his side, in order not to disturb the wound. Counsel was conducted to a light, well-cushioned armchair, instead of the ordinary cane bottom chair, behind the table set apart for the lawyers. Madame Labori also received a hearty greeting. As she took a seat in court she was surrounded by friends who overwhelmed her with congratulations on her husband's recovery.

At first the audience seemed to be apprehensive that Col. Jouaust, president of the court might treat the reception to M. Labori as a demonstration which would warrant him in clearing the court. It began, therefore, with a few timid claps of the hands, but was soon followed by general applause upon the part of the whole audience, with the exception of a few persons standing at the back of the court.

Some More Theatrics.

Dreyfus entered the court room soon afterwards, and after saluting the judges in the usual manner, he turned to M. Labori with outstretched hand and a smile of keen pleasure lighted up his pale and usually impassive features. The lawyer took the prisoner's hand and shook it warmly, whereupon Dreyfus gave him another look of gratitude, and took his seat in front of counsel's table, his back toward them.

Col. Jouaust next read from a paper an address from M. Labori, the tone of the president being quite sympathetic. The lawyer made an impassioned reply. He was deeply affected and his voice was clear, though not so strong as before the outrage. He was very nervous and excited, and swayed to and fro when he delivered his reply, which profoundly impressed his hearers. His remarks considerably fatigued him, and he sat down flushed and holding his side. He afterwards once or twice nervously twitched his fingers, and twinges of pain flitted over his face.

Free Notice for an Actress.

Madame Rejane, the celebrated actress, was among those present in court to-day. She made the trip to Rennes especially to see the trial and return of M. Labori.

The first witness to-day was M. Grenier, the former perfect of Belfort. His testimony resulted favorably to Dreyfus, inasmuch as his deposition was distinctly hostile to Esterhazy.

Major Rollin, of the Intelligence Department was asked by M. Labori how a certain document of a later date than Mercier's Ministry, came into General Mercier's possession.

Covering Up Something.

Rollin said it was not his busness to explain, but counsel insisted, asking whose business it was. Finally M. Labori asked Col. Jouaust to request Gen. Mercier to explain. The Gen. arose and said he declined to answer. M. Labori insisted emphatically, but Mercier still refused to answer, and Major Carriere, the Government commissary supported him on the ground that the examination was entering upon a matter which ought not, in the interest of the country, to be discussed publicly.

M. Labori then declared, in a loud voice, that he would reserve to himself the right to take the necessary measures to obtain the desired information.

Dreyfus Scores Again.

The next point was made by Dreyfus, in his reply to Major Rollin. The latter had remarked that all the prisoner's papers were seized when his rooms were searched in 1894, and Col. Jouaust said that certain papers from his text book, The School of War, were found missing. To this the prisoner retorted, "Not in 1894 my colonel."

This caused some sensation, as the obvious interpretation was that the pages were torn out at the War Office, and that then the fact was used against him as an insinuation that he had communicated the missing pages to foreign agents.

Dreyfus as a Peeper.

A porter of the War Office, named Ferrel, next testified to seeing Dreyfus prying into other officers' work during their absence, and the prisoner replied excitedly that Ferrel's statements were concoctions by a former Minister of War, which caused a sensation. Then in a cooler manner, the prisoner made a statement explaining the difficulties in the way of a civilian, such as Farrel, entering the offices of the general staff.

Gen. Gonse, thereupon presented two letters to the effect that the writers both of whom were civilians, obtained easy admittance to the office.

Here Dreyfus retorted smartly that the regulations were most strict in this respect, and that, therefore some persons were guilty of gross breach of discipline, and M. Demange scored by adding that if entry to these offices was so easy, why, anybody could procure the information Dreyfus was alleged to have obtained so surreptitiously.

Bitter Against Dreyfus.

Lt.-Col. Bertin, who was the head of Dreyfus' office in 1894, the next witness, showed himself to be a most virulent enemy of the prisoner. He had evidently learned his testimony by heart, and declared it in a strident, aggressive tone, which grated upon the ears of the audience. Some of his remarks particularly his declaration that he was convinced of Dreyfus guilt by M. Bertillon's chart, and his interpretation of Esterhazy's statements as evidence against Dreyfus, elicited general smiles in court.

After hearing the deposition of M. Gendron and a number of minor officers who did not give interesting evidence, the court adjourned for the day at 11.45 a.m.

GUERIN'S COOK CAPTURED.

He States That the Food Supply is Almost Exhausted.

Paris, Aug. 22.—The gendarmes in charge of M. Guerin's house this evening succeeded in capturing his cook. The latter states that the food supplies are about exhausted, and that his master will be starved into surrender shortly.

Between 7 o'clock and midnight all telegraphic comminication with Paris was cut off by order of the Government. It is learned that there was no trouble during the evening. It is learned that there was no trouble during the evening. It is believed that Guerin has been reduced by starvation and that he will immediately surrender.

The Paris correspondent of The Chronicle says that detachments of infantry and cavalry have commenced a combined assault on M. Guerin's stronghold. An immense crowd prompted by curiosity gathered to witness the attacks, but nobody was allowed to approach the place.

In driving the people back the cavalry charges were needlessly brutal.

TORONTO'S FIRE BRIGADE.

Its Mismanagement Will Cost Policy Holders Very Dear.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—It is understood that at the next meeting of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, to be held on September 1, the question of the rates regarding the city of Toronto will come up for consideration, and it is given out on good authority that an increase of 10 per cent. will be recommended. This recommendation is the result of an investigation by insurance officials, who have carefully gone into the details of recent fires in the city, and made exhaustive investigations as to the management of the fire brigade, and have come to the conclusion that it is in the best interests of the association that the classification in rating be changed, so that the companies will be placed on a basis more in keeping with the present standiong of the fire protection service in Toronto.

The officials who have been invastigating the position of affairs in Toronto will report to the association that while the brigade is composed of a splendid body of men, they are poorly officered, and until the city has placed in charge officers competent to handle the firemen, and with a more up to date knoweldge of fighting the increased rate will be kept in force.

Just what this means to the city will be seen when it is known that the 10 per cent. increase will add $75,000 to the premiums paid to the insurance companies carrying risks on Toronto buildings and contents. This 10 per cent. increase, it must be remembered, is added to an increase of 15 per cent. made some time ago, and instead of Toronto policy-holders having a reduction of $110,000 they are having $75,000 added.

The Montreal men who were in the city paid special attention to the work of the brigade at the Langmuir fire on King street west and the Bay street blaze, and are of the unanimous opinion that changes must be made in the management of Toronto's brigade before the citizens can ask for any reduction in the rates of insurance.

One of the leading officers of the Canadian association stated this morning that the 15 per cent. increase which policy holders have been paying over the rate prevailing before the Globe fire would have been taken off if the brigade had come up to the standard which was expected by the insurance men.

FINNS MAY SETTLE HERE.

Delegates Are Now Spying Out the Land in the West

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Two Finnish gentlemen have arrived in Ottawa on a tour of Western Canada, with the object of selecting a suitable site for the settlement of several thousand of their countrymen, the purpose emigrating from the Czar's dominions. The delegates have been in Newfoundland, whither they were attracted by glowing pictures of its agricultural capabilities set forth in a hand book issued by the Government at St. John's. They found nothing in Newfoundland to justify the claims made for the island as an agricultural country. The delegates are men of culture and wide experience one of them a gentleman who observed, in faultless English, that his name was a "veritable jawbreaker," has travelled extensively in Central America and the Western States, as well as Europe. He says they hope to find in the Red Deer district of Alberta, or in British Columbia, an ideal location for a Finnish settlement. The delegates leave for the West to-morrow.

A Train Piled Up.

Syracuse, Aug. 22.—A disastrous wreck occurred on the New York Central freight track this morning, and a long train of cars are piled up. The engineer and firemen, names not yet known, were taken out from under the wreck badly injured, and section boss Dennis J. Long is now under the engine. A large force of men is working to release him.

HOW HE DID THE TRICK

Percy Davis Tells the Story of Anderson's Detection to the Court.

DOGGED HIS VICTIM AROUND

The Latter Proposed a Trip to China and Offered $2,000 if Davis Would Take Chances.

Anderson Gives Him a Diagram of the Spot Where the Treasure Lay Hidden, But Afterwards Destroys it—Refuses to Tell Who Placed it There—Davis Gets Lost in Bush While Locating Hiding Place.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 22.—In the Molsons Bank case this morning Percy Davis commenced his evidence. He met Anderson last February and became intimate with him. It was about the middle of June that Anderson went near the money the first time to the knowledge of Davis. Witness followed him until a half-mile beyond Louise bridge. Anderson did not know this. He followed Anderson to the railway track, and then while trying to keep up with him witness got lost in the brush and went home again.

Next morning Davis asked Anderson where he had been. He said to Elm Park. After this he shadowed Anderson all over.

The Proposal.

About July 20th, while walking together, they got to scheming, and Anderson asked Davis if he would't like a trip to China. Witness said he would like to go as far as San Francisco if he had the money. Anderson said: "I can give you $2,000 if you will take desperate chances." Anderson said: "Would you blow open a safe for such a sum?" Davis said that was easy, and he would run his chances for the $2,000. After a little while Anderson said he would get the money easily without, and could tell Davis where he could go and put his hands right on it. Anderson then said he knew where Molsons money was, but stopped short and would't give witness any more information, saying he would think the matter over.

Showed a Plan.

On the Wednesday after, Davis said he must have the full facts before doing anything, and Anderson then said, "If I put you in possession of the $62,000, what will you do with it?" Davis said, "He could easily dispose of it." Anderson then gave Davis a slip of paper on which was a diagram of where the money was hidden, and said, "Now you can find the place; don't go out tonight; wait for a couple of weeks, as this thing requires a lot of thought but Anderson said, "We will burn it," and study."

Davis wanted to keep the diagram, and did so in Davis' presence. Davis went to the spot indicated at 1 o'clock that night, but failed to find the place, and went back to bed, getting home about five in the morning.

The Discovery.

Next night Davis told Anderson he had forgotten the plan and would like another diagram. Anderson drew another on the back of an old letter Davis gave him and wanted to burn it, but Davis said no, he wanted the letter. Anderson insisted, however, and Davis gave it to him and it was also burned. Davis said he went out again next Friday and saw if he could find the spot. He found it all right and was within a hundred yards of where the money was buried, but he was still not sure as to the precise spot. He did not make any search that time, but walked over the ground. Anderson was waiting for him on his return and asked if he had found it. Davis said "Yes." Anderson then said, "When you are prepared to leave town I will tell you the exact spot where the money is so that you can put your hand on it." Davis asked who put the money there, but did not give information as to Anderson's answer. Davis here detailed how by means of instructions from Anderson he at last unearthed the treasure.

Grimsby to Manchester.

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—The second shipment this season of apples and pears in cold storage from Grimsby for Manchester is now going forward by the Manchester Enterprise, a vessel of the Manchester Liners, Limited, which was organized this year to develop trade between that city and Montreal. Prof. Robertson, who has been in Grimsby supervising the shipment, found the fruit crop of that district a good one, but not so heavy as last year.

A Somnambulist.

Thamesville Aug. 22.—Geo. Lamport, a farmer, rose in his sleep last night and walking through a door fell to the ground floor, breaking his hip and otherwise injuring himself.

Dewey's Progress.

Villefranche, France, Aug. 22.—The United States cruiser Olympia arrived here at 6.45 o'clock this morning. The usual salutes were exchanged.

Four Negroes Are Out.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 22.—Mobs are chasing negroes in Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia for assaulting women. Despatches received here tell of four instances, and lynchings are expected.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 23, 1899

SUMMER VISITORS.

The Cobourg Saturday Morning Post in its last week's issue says—"To-day there is a much larger number of visitors here than ever before, and it is safe to say that the Arlington management has been obliged to refuse fully two hundred applications for rooms within the past week.'

In the same article we are told that within the past few weeks a number of American visitors have been looking about at different properties with a view to purchasing and erecting residences for themselves to occupy next year. At present there are four or five persons in Cobourg who have expressed delight with the town and surroundings, and no doubt before leaving for home will select suitable sites.

Just what there is to attract visitors to Cobourg is difficult for us who live in Peterborough to see. There is not a single island within sight of the town, neither is there a mountain range, or even one mountain to break the monotonous level of the landscape. There is no river with its waterfall, or large land locked harbor suitable for boating in stormy weather. Yet summer cottages line the shore for a considerable distance, and hundreds of people are turned away from a single hotel because of its gorged condition. Why is this? It may be, and doubtless is, owing in great part to its really first-class hostelry called the Arlington. Pleasantly situated and thoroughly up to date in its appointments, it has more offering to take board and lodging than it can afford.

This is exactly the condition we might reasonably expect to prevail here all summer through, had we a first-class summer hostelry. Of other attractions we have so many and of so superior character to those of Cobourg that there is simply no basis for comparison.

Peterborough has a hotel that could easily, with proper management be turned into a second Arlington. The Times is persuaded if the matter was taken up as it should be by the management, the National Hotel could be filled to the roof every season. Not only this, but other hotels could be used to advantage by summer visitors.

Peterborough is favorably situated for summer tourist traffic. People could spend a day either up or down the river. The town is a sort of a half way place between the Stoney Lake waters and Rice Lake, with easy means of getting either way.

This great family journal can, it thinks, put the management of the National Hotel (which is built specially for this trade) on the way of securing this class of trade, and when it says this, it is not talking through its hat, either.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Lots of work and big crops justify this country's blowing its own horn since it's a horn of plenty.

A Paterson, N.J., man has decided to appeal to the divorce court, because his wife insists in pulling him around by the beard. A cheaper method of discontinuing the habit would be for him to go and get shaved.

It was a mistake for those assassins to suppose they could brighten up the case against Dreyfus by letting daylight through his lawyer.

There is now talk in New York of lengthening the Dewey celebration from one to three days. If the entertainment committee does not have a care, it will make that welcome a more painful and trying ordeal, than was the Battle of Manila.

Those who wonder at the Grit Party stomaching Tarr should remember that the same party went considerable Farrer.

While the police in attendance are not much affected by the Salvation Army exhortations, they seem to grow reminiscent when a collection is taken up.

THE 57TH BAND.

(By The Times' Musical Editor.)

I have heard the grandest music that mortal man can hear
And have listened to Finch Millar play by note and play by ear,
Heard Jack Butcher and Jack Harper do the finest things from Liszt,
And a chance at Paderwiski I have rarely ever missed.

But the music, speaking candidly, that is the best to hear,
And which falls in loud crescendos on my ever-willing ear,
Is on Friday evenings when friend Gliddon does the grand
When all the pink of fashion turns out to hear the band.

They play with crash and thunder! How that old band does toot!
From the man who blows the tuba to the bassoon and the flute,
Then the trambone, and the altos, and Billy's little drum,
Rings out the finest music you'll hear till kingdom come.

Bum-te-bum! the bass would hollow; tweedle-dee! the tenors blow,
To be answered by Jack Butcher, on the shrill-toned piccolo,
Oh; its fine, that glorious music, my, oh, my, but it is grand,
When all the pink of fashion turn out to hear the band!

MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Algus with an air of pride and proprietorship, somewhat more prevalent among young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 50 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist as good natured and happy now as she wus when I courted her, but Mandy ain't all mush and spoon victuals, and there's times when she has to be handled with keer er somethin will be sp'iled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain't afeered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never forgit ef I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wuz only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven er eight head uv fine horses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4-year-olds that we prided ourselves perticklar on, fer they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they wuz yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalize us, and I tell you they wusn't a funeral persession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow come in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week er ten days we had fine sleighin, and one afternoon Mandy said she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough fer me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin fer the lady in less than no time.

"The team wus feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they slung the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wus a dozen er more movin up and down at a clippin gait, and we sailed right in among 'em, and in about seven minutes we passed everything on the road.

"Jim Hall wuzn't out with his team, and I could see that Mandy wus gittin anxious, though she wusn't sayin much. The road leadin to Jim's place struck the pike about 200 yards from the upper turn, and there wus no sign uv him as we passed, and we didn't see him as we come back, but just after we got by his road we heard a clatter up the pike, and, by crackey, there wus Jim a-comin lickety spit. I guess he'd been to the postoffice, and the way he wus comin after us wuz like a mink after chickens. Mandy took one look over her shoulder and told me to let 'em go for all they wuz wuth. I didn't need to be coaxed, and by the time she had said the words we wus fairly flyin over the smooth snow track, and Jim wus comin right behind us too. For the first few rods we gained on him, then he begun to creep up on us in spite uv all we could do. Everybody on the road knowed how me and Jim set store by our teams, and they pulled out to one side and give us all the room there wus.

"I shook up my beauties as I felt him drawin up on me, but shakin wusn't enough, and I touched 'em once er twice with the whip, but Jim jist rared back on his strings, lookin like destruction smilin at desolation, and kept a-comin. When his horses' heads passed our dashboard and I could see the snort in their noses, I got kind uv sick and thought I'd have to let go, but Mandy nerved me up, and I hung on and leaned away forrerd as if that would help some. By this time Jim's horses had their heads even with mine, and I held him there fer a minute er such a matter, but jist as I begun to have a hope that it might be a neck and neck at the finish Mandy reached for the line next to her, and, with a sudden jerk, she pulled the team off to one side uv the road, where the snow wus in a high drift, and Jim went ahead with a yell that made my ears stand out like windmill flappers.

"I wus that dazed for a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, deacon though I wus, I'm afeerd I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a move Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I wus dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idee that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wus killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hunderd pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let theselves out on a spurt that wus chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream: 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"And so I wus, and so wus Mandy, for before Jim knowed that anything had happened I wus up with him, alongside, neck and neck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toll gate he wus ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss.

"Mandy wus in the middle uv the road brushin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin for me as I come back, and when I said I'd give her a new silk dress for that she said it was only what any wife ought to do for her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite uv herself. That's the kind uf a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and fished out a quaint, old fashioned daguerreotype in a brand new gilt frame.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Picture, Not Paint.

An art patron one day came into Turner's studio when the artist was already famous. He looked at a picture and asked what was the price. The artist named the sum he had set upon it.

"What," exclaimed the buyer, "all these golden sovereigns for so much paint!"

"Oh," replied Turner, "it's paint you are buying! I thought it was pictures. Here," producing a half used tube of color, "I'll let you have that cheap. Make your own terms," and, turning his back on the astonished patron, he went on painting.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

SOUTH AFRICAN CRISIS

Serious Signs That Bloodshed Will Be Precipitated There.

AND PORTUGAL'S ACTION

In Refusing to Forward the Boers' Munitions of War is Causing Considerable Comment.

Franchise Proposal Has Been Rejected—Paul Kruger Replies to the Demand of Mr. Chamberlain—Fresh Proposals Submitted—Premier Schreiner Has Allowed Cartridges to be Removed for Use of the Transvaal.

London, Aug. 20.—There are serious signs that bloodshed will be precipitated in South Africa by means of a stroke similar to the Jameson raid and in the same interests as that venture. Cecil Rhodes is probably personally inactive, but his henchmen active in anti-Boer menaces. The lapse of a week without any further friction between President Kruger and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain is regarded as presaging a pacific settlement of the franchise dispute.

To offset this, however come cables such as that published in Cecil Rhodes' weekly organ in London, which argues that in order to prove the supremacy of British influence in South Africa, war is imperative. It is evident, however, that a majority of the Cape colonists are with Premier Schreiner and against Cecil Rhodes.

Portugal's Action.

The action of Portugal in refusing to forward the Boers' munitions of war has caused considerable astonishment. One version of the matter is that the Lisbon Government, at the instance of England, has ordered the Lorenzo Marques officials to hold the supplies until further orders, England maintaining that they will endanger the peace of South Africa, and are unnecessary, as England has not threatened the independence of the Transvaal. It is certain that Mr. Chamberlain will not allow President Kruger to turn the Transvaal into an arsenal and will rather himself take the agressive.

Particular attention is now paid by England to Delagoa bay. It is believed that in the event of hostilities with the Transvaal Great Britain will either have an arrangement with Portugal which will allow her to occupy the bay, or else that she will seize it.

Cartridges for Kruger.

Cape Town, Aug. 20.—A sensation has been caused here by a statement in The Times, a local newspaper that Premier Schreiner, since the crisis assumed an acute phase, has allowed 1,000,000 rounds of cartridges to be removed from Port Elizabeth to Bloemfontein for the purposes of the Transvaal. Mr. Schreiner, in an interview, explained that the incident was five weeks old. The cartridges, he said, were the absolute property of the Orange Free State, the relations of which with England were perfectly friendly.

A strong feeling has been aroused here by the fact that the Transvaal is sending large quantities of war material for distribution among its supporters in Cape Colony and the Orange Free State. The Cape Colony Government complains it could not prevent their transportation to a friendly State, and that if permission had been refused supplies would have been sent to Delagoa Bay.

Has Been Rejected.

Cape Town, Aug. 21.—The report, as cabled from here to the Associated Press last night that the Transvaal Government had handed its reply to the British agent at Pretoria, to be forwarded to Sir Alfred Milner, British High Commissioners for South Africa and Governor of Cape Colony, is confirmed. It is believed, however, that the proposition of Great Britain for a joint commission to investigate the effect which the franchise legislation would have on the Uitlanders has not been accepted, but that fresh proposals have been advanced.

Rioting Among Soldiers.

Leavenworth, Kansas, Aug. 21.—A riot between the soldiers of the Thirty Second volunteer regiment and North Leavenworth negroes took place yesterday afternoon. Corporal Johnson was shot in the left leg. Alex Johnson was shot in the left shoulder and was seriously injured.

THE HORSE REVIEW.

Robert B, 2:14¼ trotting and 2:12 pacing, stands 17½ hands high.

Harry Pennington, 2:15¼, is on the road at Philadelphia, being driven by Tom Tunney.

Notwithstanding his severe lameness last season, Hans McGregor, 2:11¼, is reported in first rate form.

The Toledo Driving club will employ a regular starting judge this year, J. T. Dewey having been chosen.

Cora Tell, a 3-year-old filly by Axtell, out of Cora Belle, pole record 2:19¼, has been bred to Margrave, 2:15¼, and will be trained this season.

Irish Lassie, 2:16, the pride of the Hawaiian Islands, is being prepared at Honolulu for the June races. She is being trained by Jack Gibson.

It is said that Henry Fleischman will bring Derby Princess, 2:08¼, back from Austria. She has not done well since leaving Henry Sanders' stable.

Valney French has signed another year's contract with C. H. Anthony, Muncie, Ind., and will remove to that city. He will handle about 16 matinee horses for the local club.

W. B. Fisk, Coldwater, Mich., who owns Great Heart, 2:12¼, has sold Latitude, 2:15, to Mr. Johnson, Hubbard, O. Latitude is a great knee actor and may appear later in a bangtail costume.

George Dougherty, who trained Marion Mills, the late guideless pacing queen, has been engaged by E. B. Bulkley, Philadelphia, to educate the chestnut mare Lizzie Meyers and the bay mare Ravenwood to do the guideless act.

Helen K, 2:18¾, and mate, May K, who won the blue ribbon in the class for pairs to wagon at Boston horse show, are owned by W. M. V. Hoffman, New York. Helen was purchased by her present owner from the Forest City farm, Cleveland, and is a daughter of Patron.—Horseman.

FUNSTON AND HIS MEN.

General Funston has been in the swim.—Boston Herald.

Hail to General Funston, the uncoated Hobson of the orient!—Detroit Free Press.

Ten to one, when Aguinaldo gets his last ditch ready, that man Funston will be on hand to swim it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

General Fred Funston, the Kansas cyclone in the tropics, is not a Chicago man. He didn't stop to boil the water.—Omaha Bee.

Judging by the elegant fight he puts up, Fred Funston must have been a member of some Kansas church choir.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Twentieth Kansas is showing itself ambitious, ambidextrous and amphibious. It is right in the swim all the time.—Topeka Capital.

General Funston can have anything he wants in Kansas when he gets home, even Jerry Simpson's socks, if he can find them.—St. Paul Globe.

We will soon be hearing from the chaps who attended swimming school with General Fred Funston and tied knots in his clothes.—Washington Post.

General Luna is the first to see the sea serpent this season. Some observers say it was the Kansas regiment using a rope for a ferry.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No wonder the Twentieth Kansas volunteers have invariably swept the Filipinos before them. Their battlecry is the Kansas university football yell of "Rock chalk! Jayhawk! K. S. U.!"—St. Louis Republic.

THE CYNIC.

All of us are very clever in finding excuses for not working more.

The most sensible woman will "put on" a little before a preacher.

A man is not really prominent until he has officiated at three prominent funerals.

Some women who never work for anything else will work like slaves for a church.

An old maid dearly loves to watch a quarrel between a husband and wife to see how it comes out.

If a man truly loves his wife, he is very apt to become confidential and tell her a lot of stories on the other fellows.

In talking it is well to know that people will not remember what you are saying unless they can use it against you.

A man always rises in his own estimation when he gets on familiar terms with a person of whom he once stood in awe.

There probably never was a woman too good to try to pass her children off as under age when traveling on the railroad.—Atchison Globe.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

Peacocks are reliable weather prophets. Before a storm the gaudy birds become restless and clamorous.

The green woodpecker is said to laugh his "Ya-ha-ha" in different, more liquid tones when rain is coming, and especially gifted persons claim his cry really changes to "rain, rain, rain!"

In Dorsetshire, England, they foretell storms by the flight of the rooks. When they are pitch falling or playing at tumbling, diving and wheeling in the air, they say a storm is due.

Sea fowl are very clever in foretelling a storm. To a sailor bad weather means wind, and to a landsman it means rain, but the screaming of the water birds usually foretells a change of some sort for the worse in the prevailing weather.

SISTERLY CITIES.

Minneapolis has lost a dam, but then the town was never worth one.—St. Paul Dispatch.

What is being done for art in Chicago is not much. What is being done for art by Chicago is infinitely less.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

If the New York gas war keeps on at its present rate of progress, consumers will soon get the stuff for nothing, with a chromo and a pound of tea thrown in.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

New Yorkers are talking of having a self propelling fire engine. Come up this way, neighbors, and see what the metropolis of Connecticut can show you in that line. You're years behind us.—Hartford Courant.

FOUL TIPS.

For Sale—One baseball team. Answers to the name of "Giants." Any offer will be accepted.—New York Herald.

The ex-prides of Von der Ahe haven't as yet had their batting eyes forwarded from St. Louis.—Cleveland Leader.

As in previous years, the Washington team, as a matter of strict courtesy, will be known as a baseball club.—Chicago Record.

"ADMIT WITHIN FIRE LINES."

An Extraordinary Motto For a Reporter's Funeral Emblem.

In his story of "The Last of the Mulberry Street Barons," in The Century, Mr. Jacob A. Riis, author of "How the Other Half Lives," tells a rather gruesome but very amusing anecdote of a fellow reporter attached to police headquarters in Mulberry street, New York.

There had been a feud of long standing between the reporters in Mulberry street, and in consequence news was plentiful. There were mutual scores to be paid off, and we paid them off in the coin of the realm. The coin of Mulberry street was murder, fire and sudden death (we had passed the stage of boxing gloves and did not speak as we passed by), and it went a long way. I do not mean, of course, that we murdered or burned up one another, but these things were the staples of our daily work as police reporters, and when we were "out" the precinct returns received an extra sifting, with the result that many a grain of newspaper wheat that would otherwise have escaped was rescued from the dust bin.

We had our specialties in this contest of wits. One was distinguished as a sleuth. He fed on detective mysteries as a cat on a chicken bone. He thought them out by day and dreamed them out by night, to the great exasperation of the official detectives, with whom their solution was a commercial, not in the least an intellectual, affair. They solved them on the plane of the proverbial lacking of honor among thieves, by the formula, "You scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours."

Another came out strong on fires. He knew the history of every house in town that ran any risk of being burned, knew every fireman and could tell within $1,000, more or less, what was the value of the goods stored in any building in the dry goods district and for how much they were insured. If he couldn't, he did anyhow, and his guesses often came near the facts, as shown in the final adjustment. He sniffed a firebug from afar and knew without asking how much salvage there was in a bale of cotton after being 24 hours in the fire. He is dead, poor fellow. In life he was fond of a joke, and in death the joke clung to him in a way wholly unforeseen.

The firemen in the next block, with whom he made his headquarters when off duty, so that he might always be within hearing of the gong, wished to give some tangible evidence of their regard for the old reporter, but, being in a hurry, left it to the florist, who knew him well, to choose the design. He hit upon a floral fire badge as the proper thing, and thus it was that when the company of mourners was assembled and the funeral service in progress there arrived and was set upon the coffin, in the view of all, that triumph of the florist's art, a shield of white roses, with this legend written across it in red immortelles: "Admit Within Fire Lines Only." It was shocking, but irresistible. It brought down even the house of mourning.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. French Without Rights.

St. John's, Aug. 22.—Sir Hugh McCallum, Governor, of Newfoundland, in the speeches he is making to residents along the French treaty coast where he is now inquiring into the fishery dispute, is very outspoken and emphatic respecting the French claims in that region. The governor asserts that they have no right there, save the right of fishing concurrently with British subjects, and that they are entitled to no territorial recognition whatever. This is the strongest declaration yet made in favor of the colony.

New Theory of Cancer.

Amsterdam, Aug. 21.—At the Medical Congress Dr. Robert Bell, of Glasgow, read a paper on the pathogenesis of cancer, which dealt especially with cancer of the breast in women. Dr. Bell does not believe in the microbic origin of cancer. Microbic diseases in his opinion, are destructive, whereas cancer is marked by increased vigor of the part affected. He puts forward the hypothesis that cancer is due to the migration of a cell or cells from some other portion of the body. This lodging in a suitable place begins to multiply and invade the other tissues, producing all the symptoms which make up the disease known as cancer.

Paving Stones Were Torn Up and Used as Missiles—Police Disperse a Mob Burning Newspapers on the Street—The Affair Regarded as a Pro-Dreyfus Demonstration and Will React Greatly to the Detriment of Chances of Acquittal.

Paris, Aug. 21.—Paris was to-day the scene of most serious disturbances, recalling some aspects of the commune.

In response to an appeal of the journals Le Peuple and La Petite Republique, groups of anarchists and socialists gathered at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in the Place de la Republique. The police had taken precautions, and there seemed no danger of disorders.

Sebastien Faure and Faberot, well-known revolutionary anarchists, were the ringleaders. Faure addressed the crowd. Among other things he said that the anarchists should be masters of the streets. The police then interfered and dislodged Faure and Faberot, making three arrests. The crowd dispersed, but a crowd of demonstrators headed by Faure and Henri D'Horr, made for the place de la Nation.

Knives and Guns Used.

The police broke through the column and a struggle for the mastery followed. Shots were fired and M. Goullier, commissionary of police, was twice stabbed with a knife. The crowd reassembled and ran towards the Place de la Nation. The police, reinforced, made another attempt to stem the current and fresh fierce fighting occurred, three constables being wounded.

Faure and D'Horr jumped into a passing street car that was going to the Place de la Republique, and the car driver on arriving there gave a signal to the police, who immediately arrested them both, together with two other anarchists, Joseph Ferrier and Jean Perrin.

Wrecking Churches.

The anarchist mob retraced its course to the Place de la Republique, smashing the windows of religious edifices on the way. Suddenly the column made a loop and curved towards the Church of St. Ambroise, where the rioters smashed the windows.

Proceeding thence toward the Faubourg du Temple, they formed up into a compact body. Hatchets were suddenly produced, with long knives, stolen from the counters of shops, and a concerted rush was made upon the Church of St. Joseph. The aged sacristan hastily closed the other gates, but these were soon forced with hatchets and bars of iron. The massive oaken doors were then attacked.

A Wild Scene in the Church.

The wild horde burst into the church, which instantly became a scene of pillage and sacrilege. Altars, fonts and statues were hurled to the floor and smashed, pictures were rent, candlesticks, ornaments, and hosts from high altars were thrown down and trampled under foot. The crucifix above was made the target for missiles, and the figure of the Saviour was fractured in several pieces.

Then, while rancous voices sang the "Carmagnole," the chairs were carried outside, piled up, and set on fire in the center of the square fronting the church. When this stage was reached, the crucifix was pulled down and thrown into the flames. Suddenly a cry was raised that the statue of the virgin had been forgotten, and the crowd returned and tore this down also.

Battle With Police.

The police and Republican guards came and the anarchists attacked them fearlessly with knives.

At length the officers began to gain the mastery. A score of anarchists took refuge in an adjacent house. Others entrenched themselves in the belfry and fiercely defended themselves by showering missiles, but finally were dislodged.

Twenty Anarchists were arrested, taken to the police station, searched and found to be carrying revolvers, loaded sticks and knives.

When the police entered the church the anarchists had just set fire to the pulpit.

The interior of the edifice was a complete wreck. several valuable oil pictures that can never be replaced were ruined.

An attempt was made to fire the choir of St. Joseph's church with petroleum, and the firemen were called in to quench the flames. Several parishioners were severely mauled in their efforts to defend the church from sacrilege.

In Poor Quarters Only.

The church is situated in the poorest quarter of the city. No disorders of any kind occurred in the fashionable districts, whose streets were also deserted.

The demonstrators as far as Gare de l'Est were repeatedly driven back by police charges, the crowd crying, "Vive l'Armee!" and "Vive La Republique!"

The Pope Dispenses Blessings.

Rome, Aug. 21.—At the festival of St. Joachim yesterday the Pope granted an audience of over an hour to three hundred persons, all of whom were presented, in addition to sixteen cardinals and many other prelates. His Holiness appeared in excellent health and spirits.

A CLEVER RUSE.

The Auctioneer Was Quick Witted and Finally Made a Sale.

An auctioneer on East Washington street—one of those redoubtable individuals commonly termed "slick"—was the cause of a farcical scene recently that would have done credit to a burlesque show. He had been talking industriously for a long time to a crowd of interested but enthusiastic listeners.

The affable auctioneer conscientiously went through his repertory from beginning to end, but somehow the crowd did not "warm up to him—to quote his own language. Finally, with a dark look that bordered on despair, he grabbed up a well known pasteboard hatbox containing about 50 spools of silk thread of different colors. With the grace of a conjurer he extracted five of the spools, and, arraying them in a tempting semicircle on the counter, announced that they were "to go at any price."

But the audience, while admitting with nods of approval that they were good spools of thread, displayed no marked inclination to become excited over them. Not a bid was offered.

"I'll sell 'em for 10 cents," suggested the auctioneer timidly. It was plain from the tone of his voice that he was losing faith in himself and in all the world. There were no takers. The man of the red flag added three more spools to the semicircle. "All for 10 cents," he declared. But thread stock was far below par. The auctioneer caught up all the spools from the counter and flung them into the box with an impressive gesture. The light of inspiration flashed from his eyes.

"The whole blamed box for 10 cents!" he cried.

"I'll take it," was the prompt response, and a little man in a washed out overcoat and wearer of red chin whiskers stepped out from the crowd with a dirty 10 cent piece in his upraised hand. The auctioneer clutched the money feverishly, and, turning the box upside down so that all the spools dropped into a basket on the counter, he handed the worthless piece of ancient pasteboard to the anxious customer. A roar of hilarious laughter rose from the crowd that was heard throughout that neighborhood.

"I don't want your blamed old box!" wailed the unfortunate purchaser.

"You said you'd take it," replied the auctioneer. "I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came in a strong chorus from the delighted audience.

"I bought the spools!"

"No, you didn't! You bought the box! I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came the answer again, stronger than ever. The red whiskered man stalked indignantly from the place with the box under his arm.

"What you going to do with it?" yelled the crowd.

"That's what!" cried the speculator as he held the pasteboard box in both hands, football fashion, and kicked it vigorously into the middle of Washington street.

Insect Causes Death.

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 21.—Two English ladies left Zinal on an excursion towards the Alp of Lirec. While walking on a wet grassy slope one of them was stung by an insect. This caused her to make a sudden movement and, slipping she rolled down the slope on to the rocks, a fall of about 100 yards, fracturing her scull. A number of guides have gone out to look for her body. The unfortunate lady's name is Miss Bridge, a resident of Brighton. Her family have been advised of the accident.

Drowned at Midland

Midland, Ont., Aug. 21.—At 6 o'clock yesterday morning George Godfrey, night watchman at Elevator No. 1, was drowned here. He was walking along the edge of the dock in front of the elevator, trolling, and it is thought that he accidently lost his footing and fell in. The body was found shortly afterwards, but life was extinct. He leaves a widow.

WILLING TO PAY FOR IT.

What Uncle Bill Wanted the Newspaper Publisher to Do.

A number of newspaper men were exchanging reminiscences a few days ago in a Court street inn. One of them, by the way, was an ex-publisher—that is to say, he once owned and edited a paper in the upper section of the state. One of his subscribers was William Makepeace Thackeray Willington, whose neighbors called him "Uncle Bill" to save time and labor.

"One day Uncle Bill walked into my office," said the former publisher. "He placed his whip in a corner and removed his hat. He asked if I was the editor. I pleaded guilty. 'Shake,' said he. 'I am glad to know ye. When I was a young feller, I used to do some writin myself.'

"Uncle Bill lapsed into silence and did some solid thinking for several minutes. Then he resumed the conversation. He said he liked the appearance of The Banner of Freedom mighty well and hoped it was not only bringing me fame, but money also. Naturally my bosom swelled with pride. The old man said he had only a few minutes to spare, and, before leaving, he wished to ask a favor. I supposed that he was about to spring a little poem which he had dashed off all by himself, but that wasn't the case. Uncle Bill said:

"'My son, I want to ask you a special favor. My eyes are not as strong as they were, and I would like to have you print my copy of the paper in a type two or three sizes larger than you use in the regular edition. Now, mind, I don't want you to do this for nothin. I'm willin to pay for it. Here's the money, and if that isn't enough let me know when my subscription is due again and I'll pay what's owin.'

"The old man dove his right hand into his pocket, fished out a silver half dollar and planked it on my table, saying: 'There's the money. If that isn't enough to cover the extree expense, let me know when I call in next spring, and I'll make it good. I'm willin to pay for any little favors.' Before I could explain the impossibility of his scheme he jumped into his buggy and started off for Deep Hollow."

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one bolt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

Peterborough's Walks.

Lindsay Post—Peterborough, like Lindsay, has awakened to the importance of serviceable walks, and has a large number of men employed laying granolithic pavements on some of the streets joining the main thoroughfares. For a number of years Peterborough has enjoyed good walks on the main streets but the others have fallen into a state of delapidation, and are now being replaced, as Lindsay's will be are long, with more serviceable material.

Death of a Former Resident.

Cards are out announcing the funeral of the late Mrs. John R. Benson, whose death occurred at Winnipeg on Monday. The deceased was the wife of Col. John R. Benson, for many years one of Peterborough's most prominent citizens, having filled the office of Mayor for several years. The interment takes place from the C.P.R. station on the arrival of the 11.27 express from Toronto this morning.

A Serious Charge.

Three youths were charged yesterday at the Police Court with assaulting Priscilla Carrigan, an unfortunate girl of 14 years of age, whose record appeared in yesterday's issue. The boys are comparatively speaking mere children, and it is difficult to believe that they are capable of the offence charged. They all pleaded not guilty, bail being accepted for their appearance on Friday morning.

THE VACANT OFFICE.

The Number of Applicants Said to be Steadily Increasing.

The fight for the office of County Clerk and Treasurer is now on in earnest. The Times on Monday published a list of applicants who are mentioned in connection with the office, but the number has increased since then.

The following was given the Times as a correct list by a member of the County Council:—Messrs. R. J. Kidd, F. J. Bell, Joseph, Forster, member of the Council, for the office of Treasurer; Watt, the acting clerk; R. H. Fortye, Geo. E Elliott, Geo. W. Bennett, F. Adams, Geo. Stewart, ex-county councillor, Otonabee, office of Treasurer; J. B. Pearce, member county council, Norwood; W. H. Casement, Lakefield; J. H. Roper, ex-manager Bank of Toronto; F. Brdwn-teague, Town Treasurer; W. H. Stephenson, Norwood; R. W. Errett, W. Middleton, ex-Walden, Smith, office of Treasurer; Thomas Kelly, Arthur Stevenson, Robert Hall.

The above named gentlemen are all worthy citizens and while they may not all be in the field, they have each hosts of friends to support them.

The Council will meet on Tuesday of next week, when the matter will be formally disposed of.

Wise ones say that the real fight will between Messrs. Kidd and F. J. Bell, and that Mr. Casement will not consent to be a candidate.

The Vacant Office.

Dear Times,—Please allow one who has no axe to grind to suggest a few names for the now vacant county offices—W. H. Stephenson, a native of Asphodel, a very worthy man, would make a most efficient officer; J. H. Roper should make a first class treasurer. Robert Hall, ex-dry goods merchant, also Thomas Kelly, both lifelong citizens and good men, should be suitable for the offices. Then James Coyl Brown would be a good man, and his office of P.S.I. would suit a younger man. Some of the above may be guilty of the crime of not being rich, but the questions should be, is he qualified? Has he been a good citizen? If the answer is yes, then by all means give the office not to the rich to make them richer, but to the qualified men who need it most.

FAIR PLAY.

Peterborough, Aug. 22.

A Big Fish.

Peterborough people are always interested in fishing matters, especially when maskinonge and bass, the native fish of our inland waters, are concerned. An ardent fisherman from across the line stopped over one day at Orillia, and trolled for an afternoon on Lake Couchiching. He captured a genuine prize, and showed it to several local acquaintances in its ice-box in the baggage car. The fish was a maskinonge, a little over five feet long, and weighed 57 pounds. It is said to be the largest fish ever taen in these waters. It is full time for our local disciples of Isaak Walton to get their work in.

The Chemong Cat.

The wild "cat" scare at Chemong park is having its effect. The residents now go around armed; even in daylight. It is said that Mr. Dan Burrett, who occupies a handsome cottage at this popular resort carries a shot gun to the danger of the rest of the inhabitants. The cat, it is said, is black as ink, and makes fearful noises, especially when the lager at the bar is light. A boarder at the Chemong Park Hotel recently confided to the Times a startling theory in regard to this cat. He said that it was no cat at all, but is an apparition, or in other words it is the ghost of the unfortunate feline that recently met death in such a shocking manner in the window of Mr. Ed. Brown's grocery store. His idea is that the cat ghost thinks that it is Ed. who runs the hotel—don't know that it is his brother—and is taking this means of getting even. "The cat came back," our friend thinks, sure enough.

Leaving all jokes aside, however, the cat is safe as long as Dan Burrett carries a gun.

The Permanent Walks.

The permanent walks that are being laid throughout the town are a credit to the contractors. What a pity it is that the levels are so bad. There is no help for it, we suppose, as the "powers that be," seem to be pushing the work ahead in their own way without regard to what the ratepayers think. As an example of how badly the roads are let anyone lookk at the "fiar" alongside St. Paul's church, and the very next block south, the walk is away down so llow that it will surely be covered with water when the spring comes round. Again, in front of Dr. Burnham's on water street, the walk is built so that it will receive a.. the water that runs from the bank alongside when a thaw sets in, and the Times will wager a new hat that this piece of walk will be useless in certain seasons of the year on account of ice forming in the way. The contractors are in no way responsible for these serious blunders. It rests with the engineer and the Times is greatly mistaken if there will not be trouble in store for members of the council next January.

A Popular Captain.

Captain Scollard, the popular commander of the steamer Majestic, plying on the Stony Lake waters, has received a very handsome silver mounted briar pipe from the members of the Lyric Quartette of Toronto. A letter accompanied the gift stating that the Quartette felt that they could not be the recipients of the many courtesies extended to them by the captain without endeavoring to express in some way their appreciation of his kindness. The party recently camped at Stony Lake.

The first race was declared no race, so that the Beaver has yet a chance to win. Three out of five sailings will decide which is to hold the cup.

A Family Gathering.

A pleasant reunion was held in town yesterday, being a family gathering to celebrate the eightieth birthday of Mr. Bernard Matchkey, of Dublin St. Mr. Matchkey, despite his eighty years, is enjoying good health and his facuitities, and to-day has with him his four sons, who are all residents of Uncle Sam's domains where they have prospered. The sons are Emil, of Minneapolis, Bernard A., of New York, George of Des Moines, Iowa and Fred, of Cleveland. Needless to say the home gathering was a happy one for the parents of the four sons who have achieved success in life. An incident connected with this family reunion is decidedly out of the ordinary. Emil, the eldest son is 58 years of age, but he has never been seen or met by his brother Bernard. The latter, who holds a good position in the fire department in New York, went to the train to meet his brother, and although he had never seen him in his life he was sure he would know him by sight. Sure enough when the crowd came from the train he walked up to one of the gentlemen and said, "You're Emil," and the gentleman replied "Yes, and you're Barney." And they shook hands as only brothers can. It was a peculiar first meeting for brothers well up in years.

Actual Case of a Brutal Criminal Who Was Also a Philanthrophist.

GIVES AWAY IMMENSE SUMS

Charles Peace, a Notorious Rogue, Becomes Churchwarden and Gives to the Poor.

Many a Bank Note Passed From His Hand Into the Pocket of Poor Persons, and Charitable Institutions Their Funds Satisfactorily Increased Without Knowing the Individuality of the Giver.

London, Aug. 23.—No character in the history of modern crime appears further removed from the philanthropic and sentimental than Charles Peace. The man is known to have been a type of all that is callous, brutal and crafty. One would as soon expect a tigress to suckle a lamb as for Peace to have done anything for the benefit of his fellow-creatures. Yet Peace was an exceedingly generous creature, and was greatly esteemed in Peckham for his philanthropy. And let it not be fancied that this murderer's generosity was ostentatious, and meant to add gloss to the Peckham part of his dual existence for such is far from the actual fact. Peace gave considerable sums of money away openly, it is true, but his most handsome philanthropic acts were secret, and many of them were not discovered until he had been hanged.

It is well known that Peace was warden of a Peckham church. During his considerable term of office he did much to improve the financial position of the parochial institutions, and his generosity to individuals would serve as a good example to many living persons infinitely more wealthy than even Peace was.

Many a bank note passed from his hand into the pocket of some poor person who never learned the individuality of the donor, and more than one charitable institution had their funds substantially increased by Peace, without having any idea of the donor's name until years after. Probably the extent of this callous wretch's philanthropy will never be known, but it is pretty certain that he must have given many hundreds of pounds away in acts of unostentatious charity.

CURED BY SCHRADER.

At Least so Says Mrs. Johnston, Who Had Been Suffering Incessantly from Neuralgia.

Mrs. Wm. Johnston, of 80 Weller street claims to have been cured of a prolonged and serious case of neuralgia by Schrader, the divine healer.

Mrs. Johnston's son, when seen yesterday in regard to the matter, stated that the case is genuine. Over a month ago Mrs. Johnston had a tooth extracted which had been troubling her for some time previously. When it was removed a bad attack of neuralgia followed and she has been afflicted with severe and incessant pains in the region of the jaw and ear and running up to the head. The result of the continuous pain for such a length of time was that Mrs. Johnston failed greatly and was almost unable to take food, especially anything solid.

She paid a visit to Schrader at the White House yesterday afternoon and he treated her in his usual manner, that is, prayed over her and placed his hands on the parts affected. He then blessed her handkerchief and gave it back to her. She claims that although she did not experience an instant cure, on the way home she found to her great joy that she was perfectly cured, and for the first time in a month she was able to eat a hearty meal. Mrs. Johnston is naturally very grateful to Schrader, and has sufficient faith to believe that she is permanently cured.

God Save the Queen,

A Fight at the Ball Match.

At the baseball match on the P. A. A. A. grounds yesterday an altercation took place between two men under the influence of liquor, resulting in a fight. One man drew a razor on his opponent, but the pair were speedily separated before this fearful weapon could be brought into use. The disputants then adjourned to Hogan's hotel, where the quarrel was renewed and fists resorted to. The man with the razor was severely kicked about the head and body before they could be parted. No arrests were made.

Killed With One Blow.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 23.—F. R. Howery, a patient in the insane asylum here, yesterday walked up to John Butcher, another patient, and struck him a blow on the point of the jaw that killed him.

GOOD AND BAD FOR THE PRISONER.

A Great Deal of Damaging Evidedce Against His Character, But Little Legal Evidence.

DREYFUS EXCITEDLY INTERRUPTS WITNESS.

Counsel Labori Fiercely Attacks Witnesses for the Prosecution. Esterhazy Called, But Fails to Appear. Labori's Theatrics.

Rennes, Aug. 23.—As M. Labori was entering the court to-day he was informed by a newspaper man that Gen. Roget yesterday received documents from Major Count Esterhazy, who is now in London. Counsel was much interested, and gleaned all the information possible. On the arrival in court of Gen. Roget, it was noticed that he carried a bulky envelope containing the documents referred to.

Opportunities to Secure Secrets.

The session began with the testimony of minor witnesses, including Comptroller Roy and Major Dreviell. The latter deposed that Dreyfus, while on the general staff, could have had access to documents unperceived, during ceratin hours of the day. The prisoner, replying, admitted he was present during those hours, but explained that his presence was connected with his duties.

M. Dubrieul, one of M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire's witnesses, told a gossipy story of meeting Dreyfus at the house when Dreyfus was a lieutenant, and to seeing the latter conversing with a man described to the witness as a German attache.

M. Labori took M. Dubrieul in hand and beautifully ascertained that he only knew the visitor was a German attache because he was told so, and he did not know whether he was a military or a civil attache. He did not even know his name. In fact, the whole story was of the flimsiest description. Moreover, a foreign military attache would have had nothing to gain by cultivating the acquaintance of a simple lieutenant as Dreyfus was then.

Dreyfus, when he arose to reply to this witness, spoke in a quiet, convincing voice, denying that he had any relations with a German attache, military or civil.

M. Labori finished with M. Dubrieul by asking for the production of his record in the law courts, which, counsel hinted, was discreditable.

The prisoner was very indignant during M. Dubrieul's deposition, and once tried to interpose, but the president of the court waived him down, telling him he might reply when M. Dubrieul had finished, which he did as the witness uttered his concluding words, requesting an inquiry, saying: "Because it must be known here who is lying and who is speaking the truth."

A Witness for Esterhazy.

Capt. Valdant testified to seing Maitre Leblois in Col. Picquart's office at the beginning of 1896, and Capt. Lerond, of the Artillery, who followed him, spoke of the notorious ignorance of Esterhazy in artillery matters, and saying that the latter could not therefore have divulged what was promised in the bordereau. Capt. Lerond also deposed that Picquart, in October, 1896, connected Esterhazy with espionage, but Col. Picquart confronted the witness, and denied the allegation.

No Intrigue for Esterhazy.

Leading counsel then submitted to Gen Gonse a number of searching questions on Esterhazy's relations with the general staff. The General became very excited, especially when he asked if there was not an intrigue in favor of Esterhazy, and if he did not take part in it.

"It is false! It is false!" shouted the General, and, from his manner, one would imagine he spoke sincerely, unless he is a fine actor. The General, however, was visibly disconcerted at several of M. Labori's questions. The witness' voice grew so faint that it was scarcely audible. Finally counsel asked why Esterhazy was not arrested after the enquiry, and Gen. Gonse replied: "Because Gen. Saussier deemed it proper to leave him at liberty.

"Yes," retorted M. Labori, "but Gen Saussier must have been deceived by the general staff."

Labori's Threatrics.

This abrupt declaration, accompanied by an expressive gesture, was in counsel's best style, and caused a sensation in court, amid which the General returned to his seat, looking very ill at ease.

Major Gendron, who deposed yesterday, was recalled after Gen. Gonse, and supported the latter's statements.

Gen. Boisdeffre then jumped to his feet, and denied in the most formal manner Esterhazy's statements, adding that had he been present he would have "given him the lie with all the contempt he deserves."

Dreyfus Friendly With the Germans.

M. Dubrieul said he was greatly astonished at the suspicious familiarity between the attache and Dreyfus, and that, perceiving they disapproved of his presence, M. Drieul ceased his visits to M. Bodson. When the latter asked the reason for this, saying, according to the witness, that Dreyfus was the friend and even lover of his wife, and asking witness' advice as to how to get rid of her.

Witness asked M. Bodson if he had proofs and Bodson replied: "Proofs, yes, I have even proofs enough to drive Dreyfus out of the French army."

Witness could not remember the name of the attache.

M. Labori—Was he a military or a civil attache?

M. Dubrieul—I do not remember. I do not know. Let Maitre Labori put himself in my place—laughter—and he will see the difficulty of remembering the name of a stranger he met 12 years ago.

M. Labori—If I was unable to give his name I should not come here to testify. So, here is another Beaurepaire witness, who knows nothing, yet testifies against the prisoner without being able to substantiate his allegations. The court will draw its own conclusions.

Dreyfus Denies It.

Dreyfus protested excitedly against the evidence of M. Dubrieul, who is a Parisian friend of M. De Beaurepaire, but Col. Jouaust exhorted him to be calm, promising the prisoner a chance to reply. This arrived shortly afterwards, and Dreyfus thundered out; "I won't speak here of Monsieur or Madame Bodson, except to say that my relations with Madame Bodson ceased in 1886 or 1887, since then I have never seen her. I wish simply to assert that the witness is lying. I never dined at M. Bodson's with an civil or military attache. This matter must be cleared up. People must produce definite facts here, and not mere tittle-tattle. The name of the person with whom I am alleged to have dined must be ascertained. It must be known who is lying and who is speaking the truth". Great sensation.

The name of Mademoiselle Pays was called, but as there was no response the evidence that she had given before the Court of Cassation was read.

SPORTING ITEMS.

LACROSSE.

The final match for the Canadian championship between the Tecumseh-Elms (champions of Toronto), and the Markhams will take place this afternoon, commencing at four o'clock. Markham will shut up shop, and the whole town will take in the game at Hanlan's Point. It is expected that fully 500 excursionists will go up on the excursion train, and a large crowd from eastern and western towns will be on hand to witness the match.

The Hastings lacrosse team leaves by the morning train to-day for Cannington, where they have been ordered to play the team of that place in a semi-final game. The return game will be played at Hastings on Labor Day, Sept. 4th. Mr. P. McMillan, of Beaverton, will referee at Cannington and Mr. Alf. Terrill, of Peterborough, will officiate at Hastings on Sept. 4th.

BASEBALL.

Following is the standing of the City League:

Coal Heavers	3	0
Wine Clerks	2	1
Bankers	0	1
Wm. Hamilton	0	1
Barbers	0	2

Games scheduled, Friday, Coal Heavers vs. Wine Clerks; Monday, Barbers vs. Tailors,; Tuesday, Coal Heavers vs. Grocery Clerks.

On the P. A. A. A. grounds yesterday the Coal Heavers demonstrated their superiority over the Bankers in a rather one-sided game. The hitting of the Coal Heavers was something terrific, Harry King alone having three triple baggers. Lionel King pitched a good, steady game for the shovelers and was ably seconded in his good work by Dunsford, the receiving end of the battery. While Hollinshead pitched a good game for the Bankers, his support was somewhat erratic and their batting on the whole was rather weak.

Score 35 to 14 in favor of Coal Heavers.

The following team will represent the Peterboroughs in the game with Lindsay on the P. A. A. A. grounds at 3 o'clock sharp: Sheridan, 3b; Parnell, ss; Graham, c; McCabe, p.; Thompson, lf; Connors, 1b.; King, 2b; Grady, cf; Guern or McTelland rf. Previous to the ball game a lacrosse match will be played between the Elms of Ashburnham and the Lindsay team.

The Grocers and Coal Heavers are matched for Tuesday afternoon next, and a barrel of flour is the trophy. The grocers will close part of the afternoon to enable employes to attend the game.

LACROSSE.

The hotel keepers have chosen the following team in their lacrosse match with the printers:

Goal, Harry Nell; point, C. LaBrun cover point, Wm. Croft, defence field, Pat Cluney, L. B. Fletcher, Geo. Graham, centre, Frank White, home field, Wm. Overend, Wm. Snowden, John Clancy, inside home, Steve Holland, outside home, Jerry Carew: field captain, W. Bunton: extra man, Martin Conners.

A match will be played to-day between the Elms and a Lindsay team, commencing at one o'clock.

ACQUATIC.

In the second race of the series for the Canada's Cup yesterday morning, the breeze was so light that the Genesee had to be towed out of the bay, and it did not freshen up till 2.20. Owing to the light and variable breeze the start was delayed till after twelve o'clock, and when the two boats got away the American was seen to have the advantage, which it kept to the end of the race, winning by 30 seconds.

A meeting of the rowing committee of the Brockville Rowing Club was held recently, at which it was decided to hold the annual fall regatta on the afternoon of Saturday, Sept. 9th. This is a couple of weeks earlier than on previous years, and will, it is hoped, be more successful. The days being longer gives more time for practice, and there is a better chance of having all the events called off before dark. The programme will consist of fours, singles, a war canoe race, also swimming races and water polo, making up a splendid afternoon's entertainment.

TO PUNISH TRAITORS

THe Natal Government Will Punish Those Abetting the Boers.

A LAGER ON THE BORDER.

Boers Preparing to Defend the Frontier Vigorously—Franco-German Alliance.

Hon. David Mills Says the Talked of Alliance is at the Root of the Transvaal Situation—English Firm Receives an Emergency Order for Cartridges From South Africa.

Pietermaritzburg, Natal, South Africa, Aug. 23.—In connection with the rumor that there are many Boers who are British subjects and who outwardly sympathize with the British while in reality they are secret agents of President Kruger of the Transvaal Republic, the Premier of Natal yesterday evening declared that it was the intention of the Government to take steps to detect and punish any British subjects co-operating with the enemies of the Queen.

It is alleged that much secret information has been conveyed to President Kruger and that even ambuscades have been prepared for the British troops in the event of war by these secret agents. A force of police has been ordered to Colenso owing to rumors of the intention of the Boers to destroy the railroad bridge at that place.

Fortification Erected.

Cape Town, Aug. 23. — Although the cabled summary of the counter proposals of the Transvaal Government to Great Britain's proposition for a joint commission to inquire as to what effect the reform franchise measures would have on the Uitlanders is probably incomplete, it undoubtedly gives the general lines accurately.

The Mafeking horse regiment is mobilizing rapidly. Several hundred recruits have arrived and been equipped here and have joined Vivian's camp. Every train is bringing fresh recruits. It is rumored that three hundred Boers have formed a lager on the border.

Cartridges Wanted Badly.

Birmingham, Eng., Aug. 23.—A firm of this place has received an order for fourteen million Mauser cartridges for urgent delivery in South Africa. Secrecy is being observed as to the exact destination of the cartridges, but it is said that the Boers alone use Mauser rifles in the territory.

MOB STONED THE TROOPS.

Infantry at Amsterdam Fire Upon Citizens With Fatal Results.

Amsterdam, Aug. 23.—The disturbance at Hilversum, fifteen miles from here, where martial law has been proclaimed, continued last evening. The mob stoned the troops who are occupying the town, and the cavalry charged on the rioters with drawn swords. Finally the infantry fired on the mob, killing one person and wounding two others. Quiet was restored at midnight.

CHURCH PAYS TAXES.

Jarvis Street Baptists Send the Treasurer a Cheque for $387.50.

Toronto, Aug. 23.

Jarvis street Baptist Church was promptly on hand this year again with its first instalment of taxes. The trustees yesterday gave Mr. Coady a cheque for $387.50, which is about half of their annual taxes. The church has voluntarily paid taxes for a number of years past, and its members are strong advocates of the abolition of exemptions.

A Special Programme.

The 57th Battalion Band will play in the park to-morrow evening one of the two programmes specially prepared for rendition at the Toronto Exhibition, where this well-known musical organization has been engaged for the afternoon and evening of Labor Day. Mr. Glidden, with his customary courtesy, desires our citizens to enjoy the immediate benefit of what he assures us to be the best programme yet prepared by our premier band, and, as the programme will be of unusual length, he urges everyone to be on hand at eight o'clock sharp in order that they may not miss a single number. The programme will be announced in detail to-morrow morning.

A Boer who sat in the road,
Thought Chamberlain shamefully bad;
So he made a harrangue
In South African twangue,
Which is not the Queen's English, be-dad.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 22, 1899

A RAILWAY TO BOBCAYGEON.

Efforts are being made to secure the construction of the Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Pontypool Railway. A meeting was recently held in Lindsay, at which steps were taken to have the bonuses which had been voted by the various municipalities, and which have lapsed, re-voted. It was felt that Mr. Geo. McHugh, M. P., having succeeded in obtaining a grant from the Dominion Government of $3,200 a mile for a distance of 40 miles between Pontypool and Bobcaygeon, if the municipalities would revote the amounts given before, the time was now favorable for financing the undertaking. Accordingly the Board formed itself into Committees to confer with the various municipalities, for the necessary revote of bonuses, and it is understood that north Harvey and north Emily will also be asked to assist. It is proposed to have the undertaking proceeded with at once.

Is it not time that Peterborough opened her eyes to what is going on? We have a so-called Board of Trade, that has never done anything that we know of worthy of its name. Here we have a railway proposing to cut in the west of us and deprive Peterboro' of its back country trade. Then another section of the north country are trying to get the C. P. R. to construct a line to Apsley from Norwood, cutting away entirely all that is left, not only of the northern trade, but also east. Here is a chance for the Board of Trade to get to work and do something. Peterborough ought to have some influence with the politicians and railway constructors. This Journal has more than once suggested the course to be pursued. Let a meeting be called of all interested in the construction of a road to Apsley. The meeting might be held under the auspices of the Board of Trade, and the whole matter could be discussed and some plan devised that would be acceptable to all concerned.

THE ASSESSMENT ROLLS.

The Council of Ottawa has had the assessment rolls of the city published, and every ratepayer in the city is supposed to receive a copy, delivered at his place of business or residence. The published rolls are prepared in condensed form, showing the property, whether freehold or leased, assessable value of the realty and personal property or income. They have been judiciously arranged so that any citizen can at once refer to his own locality and compare the assessment of himself with those of his neighbors. The printing and distribution of the assessment rolls in this manner has been found, says the Citizen, to be a valuable factor in securing the equalization of the assessment. Every ratepayer is in a position to judge whether he has been justly dealt with and if he is not satisfied that his property has been fairly assessed as compared with similar property in the neighborhood he can lodge an appeal with the court of revision and cite the instances necessary to convince the court that in the interests of equalization a change should be made. Comparatively few ratepayers take the trouble to go to the Clerk's office to specially examine the assessment rolls in order to satisfy themselves that they have received fair treatment by the assessors; but under the system of printing and distributing the rolls every ratepayer has an opportunity to examine them at his leisure, and, if not satisfied, to take action to have what he may consider a mistake remedied by the court of revision. If, after this opportunity to examine the rolls, any ratepayer is not equally assessed as compared with the propetry in his vicinity, he will have no one but himself to blame. This is worthy of the attention of the Peterborough Council.

No doubt it does show a witness is pretty badly broken up when he bursts into tears on the witness stand.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Supposing the dogs of war fall to it in France, remembrance of Zola calls for the Spits being represented.

We hope all these gentlemen who are testifying in the Dreyfus case have got their liar's licenses with them.

Great Britain does not value the courage of the Boers lightly, because they don't seem to scare worth a cent.

A promising new industry in Germany is the manufacture of alcohol from sawdust, and the time will doubtless soon come when the man with the buck saw will place a convenient receptacle beneath his saw horse and saw off a few jugs with every cord of wood.

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 3 to 15 per cent. copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRyee, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-cut to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $360, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

* * * "In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl schists extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent. of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendall, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I[illegible] is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper [illegible] near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oi[illegible] because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is ada[illegible] to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a to[illegible] could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($400 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.
George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.
Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.
Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.
Col. James. M. Wheaton, Boston, Secretary.
Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Ex-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allottment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

Archer City, Texas, May 3, 1899.

Hon. Emery H. Low, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: * * Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States.
* * The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cuperiferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.
The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formation; and there is no deep work.
I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.
* * As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.
Very respectfully yours,
T. BURTON EVERETT, M. E.

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the nine mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

CHAMBERLAIN A JUGGLER?

Sir Alfred Milner Says That His Conduct is Extremely Irritating to a Plain Man.

French Mission Was Received With Shot—Particulars of the Death of Capt. Munier and Lieut. Klobb at the Hands of Mutineers—Over Two Thousand Killed in a Hurricane.

London, Aug. 22.—It cannot be denied that a great deal of indignation is simmering in the lower ranks of the A Fleet over the plan of campaign for the manoeuvres adopted by the Admiralty.

From the position in which the convoy—that the A Fleet had to discover—was located, all the start which A had received was neutralized. As for A's torpedo boats, several of them could only steam 11 knots, and one was good for no more than 10. Roars of laughter must greet the suggestion that such craft would be dangerous to B's battleships. They are dangerous to no one but the people who run them.

In short, the belief among the seamen of A is that the manoeuvres was a putup job to show British invincibility.

A word must be said for A's cruisers. The regular Channel Squadron ships did beautifully. The Niobe, for example, steamed 18 knots with ease for 18 hours. By all the writing referring to water-tube boilers she is good for only 12. What nonsense! If she had not had a fog at the time, she and the Diadem—given a fair chance—would have picked up the convoy. Say what anyone likes, these big cruisers can steam, and steam, and steam.

As for Admiral Rawson he played the game, and what more could be said of any British admiral?

Is Chamberlain a Juggler?

London, Aug. 22.—A parliamentary paper dealing with the Transvaal crisis was issued to-day. It details the efforts of the Boer Government during the past year to have the question of the suzerainty of Great Britain submitted to arbitration and Great Britain's reputed refusals to discuss this basic point. The document adds that Sir Alfred Milner, the Governor of Cape Colony and High Commissioner of South Africa, writing to Mr. Chamberlain, the Secretary of State of the Colonies, last June, said: "The way in which the Secretary of State juggles with the convention of 1884 is rather irritating to a plain man.

The final despatch from Mr. Chamberlain, dated July 13, 1899, to Sir Alfred Milner concurs with the latter's view as to the untenable Transvaal contention, adding that the British Government had no intention to continue to discuss the question of suzerainty with the Transvaal.

French Mission Received With Shot.

Paris, Aug. 22.—M. Decrais, Minister of the Colonies, has received a despatch from the Governor-General of French West Africa, fully confirming the story of the killing of Lieut.-Col. Klobb and Lieut. Munier by rebels of a French expedition, under the conduct of Captains Voulet and Chanoine, in French Soudan.

It appears that on news being received of the barbarity of Voulet-Chanoine mission towards the natives on the march toward Lake Chad, the Dupuy Ministry instructed Lieutenant-Colonel Klobb, who at Kayes, to proceed with a flying column to overtake the mission, investigate the charges, and assume command. On July 14th the Klobb party overtook the mission at Zimbora, near Domangar. Lieut.-Col. Klobb sent word to Captain Voulet, who received it in a hostile manner, opened fire and killed Capt. Munier and Lieut.-Col. Klobb. A bayonet charge routed the remainder of Klobb's force. Nine men were killed. The Voulet-Chanoine mission has taken to the bush, but, according to the advices received by M. Decrais, a strong force is in pursuit.

FINNS MAY SETTLE HERE.

Delegates Are Now Spying Out the Land in the West

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Two Finnish gentlemen have arrived in Ottawa on a tour of Western Canada, with the object of selecting a suitable site for the settlement of several thousand of their countrymen, the purpose emigrating from the Czar's dominions. The delegates have been in Newfoundland, whither they were attracted by glowing pictures of its agricultural capabilities set forth in a hand book issued by the Government at St. John's. They found nothing in Newfoundland to justify the claims made for the island as an agricultural country. The delegates are men of culture and wide experience one of them a gentleman who observed, in faultless English, that his name was a "veritable jawbreaker," has travelled extensively in Central America and the Western States, as well as Europe. He says they hope to find in the Red Deer district of Alberta, or in British Columbia, an ideal location for a Finnish settlement. The delegates leave for the West to-morrow.

A Train Piled Up.

Syracuse, Aug. 22.—A disastrous wreck occurred on the New York Central freight track this morning, and a long train of cars are piled up. The engineer and firemen, names not yet known, were taken out from under the wreck badly injured, and section boss Dennis J. Long is now under the engine. A large force of men is working to release him.

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an assistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $79 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of undecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

Reciprocal.

"Yes, sir," remarked the amiable man, "I look to see an Englishman come over here and drop his h's once in awhile."

"Yes," answered the man who has been to Epsom downs, "and he likes to see us go over there and drop our R's and V's."

TORONTO'S FIRE BRIGADE.

Its Mismanagement Will Cost Policy Holders Very Dear.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—It is understood that at the next meeting of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, to be held on September 1, the question of the rates regarding the city of Toronto will come up for consideration, and it is given out on good authority that an increase of 10 per cent. will be recommended. This recommendation is the result of an investigation by insurance officials, who have carefully gone into the details of recent fires in the city, and made exhaustive investigations as to the management of the fire brigade, and have come to the conclusion that it is in the best interests of the association that the classification in rating be changed, so that the companies will be placed on a basis more in keeping with the present standing of the fire protection service in Toronto.

The officials who have been investigating the position of affairs in Toronto will report to the association that while the brigade is composed of a splendid body of men, they are poorly officered, and until the city has placed in charge officers competent to handle the firemen, and with a more up to date knowledge of fighting the increased rate will be kept in force.

Just what this means to the city will be seen when it is known that the 10 per cent. increase will add $75,000 to the premiums paid to the insurance companies carrying risks on Toronto buildings and contents. This 10 per cent. increase, it must be remembered, is added to an increase of 15 per cent. made some time ago, and instead of Toronto policy-holders having a reduction of $110,000 they are having $75,000 added.

The Montreal men who were in the city paid special attention to the work of the brigade at the Langmuir fire on King street west and the Bay street blaze, and are of the unanimous opinion that changes must be made in the management of Toronto's brigade before the citizens can ask for any reduction in the rates of insurance.

One of the leading officers of the Canadian association stated this morning that the 15 per cent. increase which policy holders have been paying over the rate prevailing before the Globe fire would have been taken off if the brigade had come up to the standard which was expected by the insurance men.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS ROOM.

Well Known Provincial Official Dies of Heart Failure.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—H. Lee Rudge, clerk in the Crown Lands Department, was found dead in his room at No. 278 Yonge street, over Burgess' drug store, this morning. Heart failure was the cause of death. He had been ailing for some time past, and only last Sunday he was prescribed for by Dr. Nattress. He was found dead in a chair by the window by Mr. Mitchell, of the Confidential Commercial Agency, Canadian Life Building. The deceased is a brother of Cyril Rudge, now of Chicago, and was a bachelor.

Grimsby to Manchester

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—The second shipment this season of apples and pears in cold storage from Grimsby for Manchester is now going forward by the Manchester Enterprise, a vessel of the Manchester Liners, Limited, which was organized this year to develope trade between that city and Montreal. Prof. Robertson, who has been in Grimsby superintending the shipment, found the fruit crop of that district a good one, but not so heavy as last year.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it is constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

HOW HE DID THE TRICK

Percy Davis Tells the Story of Anderson's Detection to the Court.

DOGGED HIS VICTIM AROUND

The Latter Proposed a Trip to China and Offered $2,000 if Davis Would Take Chances.

Anderson Gives Him a Diagram of the Spot Where the Treasure Lay Hidden. But Afterwards Destroys it—Refuses to Tell Who Placed it There—Davis Gets Lost in Bush While Locating Hiding Place.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 22.—In the Molsons Bank case this morning Percy Davis commenced his evidence. He met Anderson last February and became intimate with him. It was about the middle of June that Anderson went near the money the first time to the knowledge of Davis. Witness followed him until a half-mile beyond Louise bridge. Anderson did not know this. He followed Anderson to the railway track, and then while trying to keep up with him witness got lost in the brush and went home again.

Next morning Davis asked Anderson where he had been. He said to Elm Park. After this he shadowed Anderson all over.

The Proposal.

About July 20th, while walking together, they got to scheming, and Anderson asked Davis if he would't like a trip to China. Witness said he would like to go as far as San Francisco if he had the money. Anderson said: "I can give you $2,000 if you will take desperate chances." Anderson said: "Would you blow open a safe for such a sum?" Davis said that was easy, and he would run his chances for the $2,000. After a little while Anderson said he would get the money easily without, and could tell Davis where he could go and put his hands right on it. Anderson then said he knew where Molsons money was, but stopped short and would't give witness any more information, saying he would think the matter over.

Showed a Plan.

On the Wednesday after Davis said he must have the full facts before doing anything, and Anderson then said, "If I put you in possession of the $62,000, what will you do with it?" Davis said, "He could easily dispose of it." Anderson then gave Davis a slip of paper on which was a diagram of where the money was hidden, and said, "Now you can find the place; don't go out to-night; wait for a couple of weeks, as this thing requires a lot of thought but Anderson said, "We will burn it," and study."

Davis wanted to keep the diagram, and did so in Davis' presence. Davis went to the spot indicated at 1 o'clock that night, but failed to find the place, and went back to bed, getting home about five in the morning.

The Discovery.

Next night Davis told Anderson he had forgotten the plan and would like another diagram. Anderson drew another on the back of an old letter Davis gave him and wanted to burn it, but Davis said no, he wanted the letter. Anderson insisted, however, and Davis gave it to him and it was also burned. Davis said he went out again next Friday and saw if he could find the spot. He found it all right and was within a hundred yards of where the money was buried, but he was still not sure as to the precise spot. He did not make any search that time, but walked over the ground. Anderson was waiting for him on his return and asked if he had found the place. Davis said "Yes." Anderson then said "When you are prepared to leave town I will tell you the exact spot where the money is so that you can put your hand right on it. Davis asked who put the money there, but did not give information as to Anderson's answer. Davis here detailed how by means of instructions from Anderson he at last unearthed the treasure.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 22.—Mobs are chasing negroes in Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia for assaulting women. Despatches received here to-day tell of four instances, and lynchings are expected.

THE SPICE OF LIFE.

An Ohio girl laughed four hours without stopping. The name of the youth who wore the golf suit is not given.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Twentieth Kansas regiment is a vindication of the scholar in war. It contains more students than any other regiment under the flag.—Kansas City Star.

If the peace conference does any good in disarming Europe, it might be a good idea to try disarming the man who carries a gun in the United States.—Pittsburg Times.

Seats on the New York Stock Exchange sell at $40,000 nowadays. Few are more costly, but Uncle Sam's expenses at the seat of war to date have not been small.—Boston Globe.

It is stated that the English language is growing faster than any other, past or present. This is because those who use it have a great deal to say in this world.—Philadelphia Times.

An eastern prophet is quite positive that we are booked for a "long, hot, dry summer." Perhaps this seer is a first cousin to the fellow who predicted an early spring.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Chelsea woman who planted some peanuts this spring and mourned because the expected plants did not result has just learned that peanut growers usually select nuts for planting that have not been roasted.—Washington Post.

One way of distinguishing diamonds from glass and paste is to touch them with the tongue. The diamond feels much the colder. None of the editors of our acquaintance are complaining of chilblains on their tongues.—Minneapolis Times.

"With secret initiatory exercises," says a Chicago dispatch, "the well known suffrage leaders, Susan B. Anthony and the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, have been made members of the American Woman's Relief corps, No. 31." Was there a sidesaddle on the goat?—Buffalo Express.

Giovanni Cattetta came to this country on the Bretagne with a hump on his back. Some superstitious custom house officials touched it, obeying the old adage that to touch a hump brings good luck. They were rewarded, for the hump was artificial and filled with $1,000 worth of jewelry.—Boston Traveler.

PERT PERSONALS.

May Irwin is billed to play Juliet. Probably she will do it by the pound.—St. Louis Republic.

It is Russell Sage's desire to die rich—and be buried as cheaply as possible.—Washington Post.

Joe Choate is a happy man. The British are "seeing" his jokes.—Philadelphia North American.

If money talks, John D. Rockefeller can hold the floor the balance of his natural life.—Nashville American.

There will be no Hobson business when General Funston comes home. There is a Mrs. Funston.—Kansas City Star.

The kaiser has been called a "poodle prince" and can't do anything but treat the aspersion with dogged indifference.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Capitalist Hetty Green and Capitalist Russell Sage are standing closely together against all newfangled Scottish doctrines.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Congressman Elect Roberts only hears an occasional Mauser bullet from the firing line now, but wait until he gets into range at Washington.—San Francisco Chronicle.

William Winter sarcastically says that "Maude Adams as Juliet bleats her part." This has aroused such a protest that probably William feels sheepish himself.—Boston Advertiser.

We understand that Dr. Mary Walker is opposed to woman's rights. She believes only she and other sensible men can understand the blessed privileges of the ballot.—Louisville Post.

General Merritt says he hugs himself because he is an American citizen. A man who would rob his wife of that marital right is scarcely worthy to be called an American citizen.—Denver Post.

THE ROYAL BOX.

Queen Victoria is preparing for publication another volume of her journal.

The oldest queen of Europe now is the queen of Hanover, who was 81 years old in April. Queen Victoria comes next, being 80, while the ex-Empress Eugenie is 73.

Duke Karl Theodor of Bavaria, the oculist and brother of the late empress of Austria and of the ex-queen of Naples, has just celebrated his silver wedding at the castle of Tegernsee.

The Duke of Connaught is less than six years younger than the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, to whom he now becomes heir presumptive. The latter was born on Aug. 6, 1844, and the Duke of Connaught on May 1, 1850.

The Prince of Wales is said to have determined to give up yachting. His ventures in the sport have never resulted well, and he has already withdrawn from two yacht clubs with which he has been long identified.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

What a congressman learns during his first term he doesn't always tell when seeking a second.—Chicago News.

Every candidate for speaker this side of the Hudson river appears to be running as a western man.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The dinner has come to be a big factor in politics—not that men must eat, but that men must talk.—Cascade (Ia.) Courier.

When he insists that only honest men should hold office, Governor Roosevelt forgets how many offices there are.—Detroit News.

A majority of our politicians have small knowledge of the science which they assume to represent and in which they presume to teach their fellow citizens.—Atlanta Journal.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

The Siberian railway has already 50 refrigerator cars for taking butter to the Russian cities.

On Chinese railways the highest paid employees are the telegraph operators, who get $17.50 per month.

At the railway stations in Russia books are kept in which passengers may enter any complaint they may wish to make.

Railway whistles inflict torture on so many people that the efforts abroad to check the plague will be followed with interest. Austria has introduced a system of dumb signaling to start and stop the trains. Belgium is trying compressed air whistles instead of steam, and Germany experiments with horns.

TRUST THRUSTS.

The plow trust does not want the earth. It merely wants to turn it over.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Why not finish up the job by putting everything in one big combine and calling it worth $1,000,000,000,000?—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The laws of Missouri hit trusts in a tender spot by prohibiting collections by them in that state. Missouri is not a hopelessly benighted commonwealth, after all.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

Nothing so rare as chastity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. FISHING FOR SEA SPIDERS.

Encounter With an Uncanny Creature in Alaskan Waters.

I once had an exciting experience, says a returned Klondiker, while fishing for sea spiders, with a party of Indians, near Sitka. We dropped anchor in the lee of a little points of rocks where we began fishing. It is a famous country for fish, and it was nothing but pull in for the natives, while I did not have a bite.

My time was coming, however. I had on a heavy sinker, so that every time the boat lifted I felt a sharp jerk, which deceived me. But once when the boat rose on a big wave, my line did not give, and I shouted to the Indian next to me that I was foul. He took the line, gave a tremendous jerk, and received one in return; then, bracing himself back, he began to pull and scream; then all hands screamed and I understood that a sea spider had the line and also the bottom. I expected every minute to see the canoe go over, as the men went from side to side, now forcing the rail down so that the water poured in, now lifting with a mighty yell, then slacking off so suddenly that they fell into a heap.

One man armed himself with a knife, while a companion held a short-handled caseknife between his teeth—movements suggestive of the coming of an enemy. Suddenly one of the crew seized a sharp boat hook, which after another look; he jabbed into the unknown and invisible. In response a long, slender tentacle shot into the air and formed a wierd interrogation point, then it grasped the pike; then three more appeared, creeping insidiously over the edge of the canoe, at which the natives struck wildly, some shouting to slack the line, others to haul in.

In the midst of the confusion the sea spider concluded to come aboard. Torn from the bottom, it had come up easily then, seeing the canoe, and possibly thinking it a vantage ground, it grasped it and slid over the side, a mass of living, slimy, reddish brown snakes. When they were raised I could see rows of suckers, each of which was a veritable air pump, and as there were seemingly thousands of them, the sucking power of this spider of the sea was apparent. Blows were aimed at it whenever opportunity offered, but the weird animal fairly slid over the rail, winding one of its arms around an oar. Its head or body hung on the rail—a brown mass the size of a man's head—from which gleamed two greenish-yellow eyes. The strange animal changed color like a chameleon; flushes of red, brown and gray followed one another over it, while from its lower portion oozed a stream of ink which splashed our faces as the tentacles flew about. It was 15 minutes before they had the life hammered out of the frightful creature, and then it was a question who had won.

The canoe was now half full of water, as a hole had been knocked in the side, which was finally stopped with a piece of skin. It was five miles to camp, but I preferred walking, and had the men put me ashore. I got to the camp in time to meet them and see the sea spider taken out. It had a spread of nearly 25 feet, measuring from the tip of the outspread tentacles

John's Objections Sustained.

"Look ye, man, why haven't you cleaned and polished my boots?" asked Dean Swift of his eccentric servant, John, at an inn where they had just passed the night.

"What's the use of polishing such things?" asked John, as he held up the boots, discolored and grimy.

"Very true," said the dean, and without further protest he put them on. Then he went to the office and gave orders that John should have no breakfast. He partook of his own, and directed the hostler to saddle the horses and lead them to the door.

"Mercy!" cried John, when he found the dean ready to start, I haven't had any breakfast yet."

"Oh," replied Swift, "I can't see the use of your breakfasting; you would soon be hungry again."

John could think of no answer to such unexpected application of his own sophistry, so he maintained a stoical silence.

They mounted and rode on, the dean in advance reading his prayer-book, and the servant following at a respectable distance.

"Hark, ye, my man," said the stranger whom they met, after he had observed the two closely, "you and your master seem to be an uncommonly sober pair; may I ask who you are and where you are going?"

"We are as near saint as we can be," replied John solemnly, "and we are going to heaven, I hope. My master's praying and I'm doing the fasting."

THE OLD MAN AND ME.

(Written for the Times.)

Jenny went an' married, Billy's moved away;
Dick has been in Manitoba for many a weary day;
An' nothin' of the old times about the place we see,
They's only two—like shadders:—the old man an' me.

He keeps the chimney corner, an' smokes his pipe an' sighs;
An' frequent I can see him brush the tear drops from his eyes;
An' I say some word o' comfort, though I'm lonesome as can be,
For they's little in the worl' now for the old man an' me.

Can't keep the children with us—they've got to drift away:
We've reaped a worl' o' roses—we've had our happy day;
An' now we're only shadders, an' soon we'll cease to see
The light that makes shadders o' the old man an' me!

Otonabee, Aug. 1899.

A Modest Request.

A letter was recently received at the Ontario Bank from a man residing in the West Indies, asking Mr. Parker, the genial manager, for a loan of two hundred pounds. The writer has a great scheme on hand and requires this amount to enable him to carry it through. He said that he will be obliged to visit England, and get the co-operation of the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial secretary. "Joe," he has no doubt will come down with the dust and assist him in his great work. The enthusiastic promoter says he saw the advertisement of Ontario's popular financial institution in a copy of The Morning Times, and that's how he came to write.

FUNSTON AND HIS MEN.

General Funston has been in the swim. —Boston Herald.

Hail to General Funston, the unosculated Hobson of the orient!—Detroit Free Press.

Ten to one, when Aguinaldo gets his last ditch ready, that man Funston will be on hand to swim it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

General Fred Funston, the Kansas cyclone in the tropics, is not a Chicago man. He didn't stop to boil the water.—Omaha Bee.

Judging by the elegant fight he puts up, Fred Funston must have been a member of some Kansas church choir.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Twentieth Kansas is showing itself ambitious, ambidextrous and amphibious. It is right in the swim all the time. —Topeka Capital.

General Funston can have anything he wants in Kansas when he gets home, even Jerry Simpson's socks, if he can find them.—St. Paul Globe.

We will soon be hearing from the chaps who attended swimming school with General Fred Funston and tied knots in his clothes.—Washington Post.

General Luna is the first to see the sea serpent this season. Some observers say it was the Kansas regiment using a rope for a ferry.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No wonder the Twentieth Kansas volunteers have invariably swept the Filipinos before them. Their battlecry is the Kansas university football yell of "Rock chalk! Jayhawk! K. S. U.!"—St. Louis Republic.

THE CYNIC.

All of us are very clever in finding excuses for not working more.

The most sensible woman will "put on" a little before a preacher.

A man is not really prominent until he has officiated at three prominent funerals.

Some women who never work for anything else will work like slaves for a church.

An old maid dearly loves to watch a quarrel between a husband and wife to see how it comes out.

If a man truly loves his wife, he is very apt to become confidential and tell her a lot of stories on the other fellows.

In talking it is well to know that people will not remember what you are saying unless they can use it against you.

A man always rises in his own estimation when he gets on familiar terms with a person of whom he once stood in awe.

There probably never was a woman too good to try to pass her children off as under age when traveling on the railroad.—Atchison Globe.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

Peacocks are reliable weather prophets. Before a storm the gaudy birds become restless and clamorous.

The green woodpecker is said to laugh his "Ya-ha-ha" in different, more liquid tones when rain is coming, and especially gifted persons claim his cry really changes to "rain, rain, rain!"

In Dorsetshire, England, they foretell storms by the flight of the rooks. When they are pitch falling or playing at tumbling, diving and wheeling in the air, they say a storm is due.

Sea fowl are very clever in foretelling a storm. To a sailor bad weather means wind, and to a landsman it means rain, but the screaming of the water birds usually foretells a change of some sort for the worse in the prevailing weather.

SISTERLY CITIES.

Minneapolis has lost a dam, but then the town was never worth one.—St. Paul Dispatch.

What is being done for art in Chicago is not much. What is being done for art by Chicago is infinitely less.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

If the New York gas war keeps on at its present rate of progress, consumers will soon get the stuff for nothing, with a chromo and a pound of tea thrown in.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

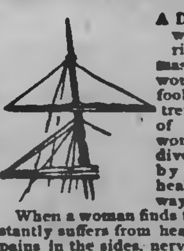
New Yorkers are talking of having a self propelling fire engine. Come up this way, neighbors, and see what the metropolis of Connecticut can show you in that line. You're years behind us.—Hartford Courant.

FOUL TIPS.

For Sale—One baseball team. Answers to the name of "Giants." Any offer will be accepted.—New York Herald.

The ex-prides of Von der Ahe haven't as yet had their batting eyes forwarded from St. Louis.—Cleveland Leader.

As in previous years, the Washington team, as a matter of strict courtesy, will be known as a baseball club.—Chicago Record.



A Dive to Death. The woman who would risk a leap from the masthead of a ship would be considered foolhardy in the extreme. What, then, of the thousands of women who take the dive to certain death by neglecting their health in a womanly way.

When a woman finds that she almost constantly suffers from headaches, weak back, pains in the sides, nervousness, irritability and despondency, she may be certain that all is not well with her special womanly organism. There is weakness and disease there, and if it is neglected her general health will soon break down completely. There is a remedy that will promptly cure troubles of this description. It may be taken in the privacy of the home without the necessity of obnoxious examinations or local treatment. It is Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes the organs that appertain to womanhood, new, clean, well and strong. It banishes pain and cures ulceration and inflammation. It does away with debilitating drains. During the anticipatory period of maternity it alleviates morning sickness and other discomforts, at the critical hour makes labor light. It restores health to women broken down by weakness and disease.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 828 East College Street, Jacksonville, Ills. "For three years I suffered continually. Words cannot express what I suffered. I sought relief among the medical profession and found none, until induced by kind friends to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed 95 pounds. After taking 'Favorite Prescription' I was built up until now I weigh 156 pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing down pains in the lower part of my bowels, and such distress every month, but now I never have a pain."

Constipation poisons slowly, but surely. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure speedily and surely.

Four Hundred Teachers Shut Out.

The Education Department has been obliged to refuse the applications of nearly four hundred students who wished to attend the provincial Normal schools at Toronto and Ottawa this year. A Rich Find.

Some three or four years ago when Messrs. Jer. Britton, Thos. Stewart and a couple of friends, all of Lindsay, made a canoe trip to the Lakes Temiscamingue and Temangamingue region, they heard rumors of a great find of arsenical ore in that neighborhood. Now the secret has been disclosed by the lucky prospector. The ore is a solid body 1,020 feet long and 310 feet wide, and will afford a supply for [illegible]. The ore assays 62 per cent. of arsenic, which sells at $65 per ton, and there is also $2.20 in gold to the ton. The find is a phenomenal one.

When President Drummond asked for offers, Mr. Rollins launched out at 10c which was sufficient indication that he intended having a share of the board. Mr. Whitton followed with an offer of 10 10-5-8 but was quickly out done by Mr. Rollins who went 10 7-16

Mr. Moore then took a hand in matters and offered 10 1-2 but Mr. Rollins not to be outdone closed the first bidding at 10 9-16. He called North Smith, Oakdale, Maple Leaf, Warminster, Cedardale, and Daisy B, all of which readily accepted.

Mr. Rollins wanted more cheese, but did not care to give 10 9-16, but offer 10 1-2 for further selections. Mr. Whitton went 10 9-16, and Mr. Moore 10 5-8. The latter had the privilege of making his selections which accepted and were as follows; Keene, Otonabee Union, Indian River, Warsaw and Villiers.

Mr. Jones opened the next bidding at 10 9-16 but Mr. Wrighton clinched matters at 10 5-8. He called Lakefield, Lakeview, Fraserville, Central Smith and Pine Grove, none of which refused.

At 10 5-8 Mr. Cook took Westwood, Melrose Abbey, and Ormond.

The bidding still kept brisk and opened again at 10 9-16 by Mr. Rollins, Mr. Jones offered 10 5-8 and took Fleetwood, Cavanville, Missing Linkk, and Peterborough.

Stony Lake, Myrtle, North Dummer Young's Point, Shearer and Lang, went to Mr. Rollins at 10 9-16.

Offers of 10 7-16 were made for the remainder of the board subject to inspection at Belleville, but refused by the salesmen of the factories.

Board adjourned then for two weeks.

Bear vs. Lynx.

Commenting upon the wild cat scare at Chemong Park the Lindsay Post says—Sturgeon Point cottagers have for years regaled visitors with werid tales concerning a huge bear said to frequent the dense cedar swapm northeast of the hotel property. Various valiant sportsmen have at times recounted with thrilling fervor the details of alleged meetings with the monster, who only escaped with his life owing to the hunters being loaded—that is, their guns—for partridge instead of "bar." Now Sturgeon Point has ceased to be unique among summer resorts, as Chemong Park is said to have a real live lynx prowling about its darkest thickets, and its howling at night is said to have alarmed a number of cottagers. Our Sturgeon Point friends will have to rout out the bear or else discover a tame moose.

Church Opening and Tea.

St. George's Church (Church of England) at Hall's Glen, near McCracken's Landing, will be formally opened for divine worship on Sunday next, services being conducted at 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. Collections in aid of the building fund will be taken up. On Tuesday evening, August 29th, a tea meeting will be held in the church grounds, when tea will be served from 4 p.m. A grand concert follows at 8 o'clock, when Prof. Honeywell, the celebrated comedian and the well known violinist, Prof. Tucker, will assist in the programme. The tickets for the tea and concert are 15 and 25 cents and a collection in aid of the organ fund will also be taken up and an opportunity given for any who wish to subscribe to the building fund.

The Street Watering Contracts

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The street watering during the years in most cases has been very poorly done during the present season. It is simply an outrage to impose a tax on people for work that is so imperfectly performed.

I hope the Times will take the matter up and see that the people get what they are asked for to pay.

Good Food
Will Alone
Cure Many DISEASES.
USE
Grape-Nuts

QUICKLY RENOVATES THE ENTIRE BODY.

Improper food is responsible for many ailments of humanity.

When one finds a sickness impending it is safer to make a radical change in the food than to go to self drugging.

Your physician would tell you that's true.

There are times when one needs the advice and care of a physician, but for slight disorders the surest and safest way is to change the food completely.

Try for example for 10 days the following breakfast: A little fruit (little if any sugar) a dish of Grape-Nuts, (a famous breakfast food) and cream, a cup of Postum Cereal Food Coffee and nothing more. Our word for it, you will feel a distinct gain in health and strength much as if the whole body had been washed clean and put in first-class order. It is certainly worth a trial if active good health is worth anything.

LINDSAY EXCURSIONS.

Lindsay Citizens Steal Quietly Out of Town on a Pleasure Trip.

(We reprint the following from the Lindsay Post—

Mr. Editor,—Were you at home, or were you asleep, or were you aware that you might have had a soporific for your idleness, or a little relief for your drowsiness, on the first day of of the week, namely, the 20th day of August, 1899? It was, you know, a day long to be remembered, because the thermometer was away up into the nineties, and some over, even, that the mercury had been up to and gone beyond the hundred in the shade. Well, you see, it was on that day that the excursion steamer, which sails upon the beautiful waters, so lately named Kawartha, was seen to be quietly getting up steam at the new wharf just below the Lindsay-st. bridge. A little after the hour of one o'clock in the afternoon stragglers and groups of two and three began quietly wending their way to the steamboat landing, and were seen stepping on board the Str. Crandella.

The idea began to grow upon our astonished vision that she was really going out for a cruise. About two o'clock there was a goodly number of quiet, demure-looking inhabitants of our town on board. The steamer was loosed from her moorings, and began to move down stream.

The bridge on Wellington-st was swung. Not a whistle was blown to indicate that she was about to go. Not a sound to tell the bridge-keeper that his presence was needed. Nevertheless, she crept stealthily down the stream, just as if she feared to disturb the quietness, or even the solemnity of the day. The hush on board as she lay at the wharf, and as she moved out, was very unlike the usual hilarity and merry-making of the excursion party. The quiet pervading those on board was almost stifling. Persons looked at each other as if they were surprised to see each other there. It looked as if conscience was either accusing, or else excusing, what appeared to be an unseemly act. This feeling gradually gave way, and such a sense of relief was felt when the boat was away from the eye of those who live along the river's bank.

When the shades of night had fallen the same steamer, with her party, crept quietly home again, without the sound of a whistle to say that she had returned in safety. Oh! the joy, the satisfaction of getting in the thin edge of the wedge, of opening up a new avenue of pleasure during the warm days of July and August. Just ask your confrrs through the district to copy this epistle and let them know of the new business venture, which has come to bless our town and surrounding country.—Yours, etc.,

APOSTLE OF THE FREE.

Destroyed by Fire.

The fire brigade was called out at about 4.30 yesterday afternoon, to quench a fire which had been started through the agency of mischevious children in some old stables at the rear of the central school. Quickly responding to the call our firemen soon had the flames under control, and the surrounding property out of danger, but not before the stables had been destroyed.

Commander of a British Warship Repudiates Sizing Up the Yankee General.

HE IS ON HIS WAY HOME.

Commander St. John, of H.M.S. Peacock, En Route to England for a Rest, Invalided.

The Commander Was Made to Say That General Otis Was a Silly Old Fool, an Old Woman and Other Opprobious Things—He Says the Interview Was Untrue and Unauthorized.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Commander St. John, of her Majesty's ship Peacock, who is en route to England, is in Toronto for a few days. The commander has just returned from the Philippines, being a passenger on the steamer Empress of Japan, and on reaching Victoria last week was subjected to a serious misrepresentation.

The operations of the United States army on the islands are arousing some controversy, and arrivals from the country are eagerly sought for interviews. The presence of Commander St. John was taken advantage of by a representative of the Victoria Colonist, who printed a long interview, in which the commander is alleged to have caustically criticized General Otis.

One View o' Otis.

Commander St. John was made to say that General Otis was a silly old fool, an old woman and other opprobious things; that the mortality among the United States troops was dreadful; that the press censor kept the truth from the people at home; and that the British would eventually be asked to step in and take over the Philippines. The commander was also reported to have said that there was a deadly jealousy between the United States army and navy and that there was no discipline in the army at all. In fact the interview read like a reports of Captain Cochrane's jingo utterances at the New York dinner.

Denies the Interview.

Commander St. John was affected with sunstroke at Manila and was invalided home. He recovered, however, and his memory was in good working order when he reached British Columbia. He says the interview was totally untrue and unauthorized.

"I have no recollection of being interviewed," said Commander St. John, "and as a British officer, even had I been in conversation I would certainly have refrained from any criticism of General Otis or of the United States army. The only comment I could or would make was as to the climate of the Philippine Islands, which is bad, somewhat like that of Cuba."

Even before leaving the Pacific coast the commander took means of denying the language of the interview, instructing the legal firm of Tupper, Peters & Gilmore to communicate with the several newspaper and request publication of a denial in which communication it is said that "Commander P. S. St John instructs us to inform you that an interview appearing in the Victoria Colonist is entirely without his authority. Commander St. John made no criticism of General Otis at the William's Head quarantine station or elsewhere. He instructs us to require you to publish a repudiation of this article in as conspicuous a manner as you have published the so-called interview, and this without delay."

Three Girls Drowned.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 24.—A sad accident happened on Saturday night at 5 o'clock at the Government bridge over the Amable Dufonde River, about three miles south of the Euclaire station on the C.P.R., in the township of Calvin. Three girls aged respectively 17, 12 and 3 years of age slipped off a boom, and were drowned. They were the daughters of Thomas Walls, a farmer who lives at the bridge. The youngest child was playing on a boom when she fell into the current and her sister aged 12 years jumped in to save her, but the current swept them away to the bridge, on which the eldest, aged 17 saw them. She jumped in too, and all were drowned.

Fell Forty Feet.

Chatham, Ont, Aug. 24.—A very sad accident happened yesterday morning on Wm. McGregor's farm, just outside of the town of Blenheim, shortly after 7 o'clock whereby a young man named John McLeod will undoubtedly lose his life. He in company with several others was shingling McGregor's barn. In going up on the roof early in the morning, while the shingles were wet, he slipped and fell to the ground, a distance of nearly forty feet, fracturing his scull and injuring his spine. Dr. Hanks was called and gives no hope of his recovery.

COLONEL MAUREL SHOWS ANXIETY.

President of the Court Which Convicted Dreyfus Gives Some Sensational Evidence.

WHERE HE GOT THE SECRET DOSSIER.

It Was Handed to Him by the Rascal Paty de Cam, But, Strange to Say, Was Not Used. A Scene of Babel in Court.

Rennes, Aug. 24.—When the court-martial of Captain Dreyfus opened at the Lycee here at 6.40 a.m. to-day, Col. Jouaust, president of the court, ordered that the evidence given by M. Penot, a friend of the late Col. Sandherr, chief of the Intelligence Department, be read by the clerk of the court. It was to the effect that Col. Sandherr said that the Dreyfus family had offered him 150,000 francs on condition that he would clear Dreyfus.

Maitre Demange, for the defence, disposed of this allegation by reading the actual note on the subject written by Sandherr, thereby proving that the Colonel's remarks had been distorted, Dreyfus brother only having said: "We are convinced of the innocence of our brother and will spend our entire fortune to discover the truth."

The testimony of the first witness of the day, M. Linolle, a former official of the Government, was also in favor of Dreyfus, as it was in direct contradiction of what M. Dubreuil deposed yesterday regarding the alleged intimacy of Dreyfus with the German attache at the house of M Bodson a mutual friend.

Conscience Stricken.

The president of the court then called Col. Maurel, who was president the Dreyfus court-martial in 1894. Complete silence fell upon the court as the infantry sergeant who was acting as usher entered the hall and conducted Col. Maurel to the witness bar. The Colonel was attired in a black frock coat and wore the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor at his buttonhole. His hair is gray and he has a ragged iron grey moustache. His face showed anxiety as though the Colonel was conscience stricken as M. Labori lashed him with pointed questions the Colonel hesitated and then answered in a short choppy manner, and when M. Labori finally disposed of him the witness left the platform with the pale face and scared look of a man who has awakened from a nightmare. Counsel has drawn from the Colonel a confession that the secret document was communicated to the judges of the court-martial of 1894 by Col. Du Paty de Clam. This avowal produced a sensation in court, and Maurel's declaration that he only read one of the documents did not affect the main fact, while his protestation that the reading of the document had no effect upon him as his mind was already made up was nullified by his subsequent declaration that this one document sufficed to convince him.

Mercier Cross-Examined.

M. Labori then put a series of searching questions to General Mercier with reference to the communication of the secret dossier for the court-martial his attitude in 1894 and an interesting scene ensued. The general refused to reply to all the questions and there were sharp passages at arms between counsel and Colonel Jouaust, who upheld General Mercier, while the dialogue between the General and M. Labori became acrimonious. Counsel became very heated and showed it in his voice and gestures. The general, however troubled his mind might be, seldom departed from the callous demeanor characteristic of him. The lawyer made a strong point on the part Esterhazy played. Mercier said he did not know Esterhazy and had only seen him once, at the Zola trial.

"That is very interesting," exclaimed M. Labori. "But surely General Mercier was present at the Esterhazy trial."

The General replied that he was not there and that he knew nothing about the evidence in the Esterhazy prosecution.

"What!" cried M. Labori, "General Mercier who was the chief accuser of Dreyfus did not even follow the proceedings in the Esterhazy trial?"

Surprise and Indignation.

A loud murmur of surprise and indignant comment came from the audience, but Colonel Jouaust immediately suppressed it. Counsel then brought General Mercier to his assertion that thirty-five million francs were spent by the defenders of Dreyfus and asked the General to say how he knew this, who spent it, and other awkward question which the General was unable to answer. A question as to how the bordereau arrived at the offices of the General staff, its date, etc., was then introduced which led to a strange scene for a court of law.

A Scene of Babel.

General Roget, on mounting the platform to give explanations was followed by General De Boisdeffre, M. Gribelin, Major Lauth, and other military witnesses, all holding up their hands to signify that they desired to speak, while at the same time M. Labori was firing questions. The result was a perfect Babel, until the president of the court could stand it no longer, and when the Government commissary, Major Carriere, also interpellated a few remarks, Col. Jouaust turned to him and asked him to be quiet, remarking that the judges could not hear half a dozen persons at the same time.

During the course of the morning M. Labori questioned General Mercier with reference to a document in the secret dossier which it is affirmed, existed prior to 1894 and yet was not produced at the first court-martial of the prisoner. The General confessed that he did not know of its existence, and the same statement was elicited from General Gonse, who declared Col. Sandherr was responsible for its non-production.

A Damaging Confession.

These replies were tantamount to a confession that Col. Sandherr and Lieut.-Col. Henry played with the Minister of War, and even that General Gonse, assistant chief of the headquarters staff, the chief of the intelligence department was shown as keeping from the two latter just what he pleased. Then M. Labori proceeded to trace the Panizzardi despatch and to bring out the contradictory translations of it, and the fairness of the final version.

After hearing General Mercier and General Chamoin on the subject, Col. Jouaust declared the court would rule the despatch out of the evidence.

Dreyfus Denial.

The examination of General Mercier having been concluded, Col. Jouaust asked Dreyfus if he had anything to say, and the prisoner in a calm voice, replied to Mercier's statement that Mr. Dreyfus, could have obtained the information about the artillery, promised in the bordereau, while staying at Bourges, where artillery trials were being held. Dreyfus entered into an explanation as to how he spent his time, showing that he did not inform himself about the trials of the new gun brake.

General Risbourg recounted what Captain Lebrun-Renault said about Dreyfus, and this brought the latter to his feet with a thrilling declaration. He pointed out that the captain shook him by the hand when he returned to his prison which is at variance with what General Risbourg recounted.

"Moreover," cried Dreyfus, "when a frightful charge has been hanging over a man's head for five years, people ought not to talk of convictions, but should bring proofs. Otherwise, I cease to understand the matter."

This indignant protest caused a deep sensation in court.

Continuing, Dreyfus proceeded to totally denie the story that he had a confession to Captain Lebrun-Renault.

STRENGTHENING BRITAIN.

Recent Mutiny Shows Englishmen That France is Incompetent.

London, Aug. 24.—Now that the official despatches have confirmed the extraordinary story of sheer mutiny on the part of French officers in charge of the exploring expedition in the French Soudan, Englishmen are more than ever congratulating themselves on their diplomatic victory in the Fashoda affair. It is reckoned here that this is not only another glaring example of France's utter incompetence as a colonizing nation, but is to be regarded as strengthening England's hand in the whole African question.

Military circles here are already checking two trump cards against the opportunity of playing them arising. In the first place they consider that France's predicament for the Dreyfus affair is bound to remain critical long after the trial is over, while the War Ministers and generals confessions that they were absolutely panic-stricken with fear that war might arise in 1894 or 1895 render France incapable of assuming a threatening attitude in order to back up diplomatic tending. Secondly, the stories of French officers' rule of blood and lust over the unfortunate natives afford England an opportunity of interfering in the French colonial possessions or in districts wherever France may possibly claim rights, on the favorite British plea of acting on humanitarian principles.

In fact, it is not too much to say that Englishmen are beginning to thank France entirely a negligible quantity in their schemes and policy the world over.

DAWSON IS OVERSTOCKED.

Too Many Doctors and Lawyers in the Yukon Capital.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Mr. Archie Martin of Aylmer, Que., who went out to the Klondike over a year ago, returned home on Tuesday. Speaking of Dawson City, Mr. Martin said that there were far too many people there. The legal fraternity are coming in by the score and soon they will have to get out or else take a pick and shovel. There are a large number of doctors in Dawson. In fact there are as many doctors as patients, with the result that a number of them have been compelled to seek work with a pick and shovel to keep from starving. It is no uncommon sight to see half a dozen doctors working among the laboring men in the construction of roads. A few months ago these fellows came to Dawson, said Mr. Martin, all dressed to kill. They put out their shingles and commenced to practise. The practice did not materialize, and as their money ran out they had to accept the only other way of living, that is by hard work.

SAVED BY A SUSPENDER.

Had Not a Shot Struck It Burdick Would Died.

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 24.—John H. Burdick, a farmer was saved from death yesterday by a suspender buckle.

Joseph W. Starr and Burdick own adjoining farms in Brookfield, five miles from here, and have long been friends. Yesterday Burdick called on his neighbor. The quarrelled and Burdick's wife saw him emerge from the house and stagger down the road toward his own home with his hand clasped over his heart.

Burdick says that Starr became enraged and without warning drew a revolver and fired twice. One bullet went wide, but the other struck a buckle of Burdick's suspenders and the force of the ball was spent before it entered the flesh and imbedded itself between the ribs after it was detected.

Burdick was brought to the hospital in this city, and there is every prospect of his recovery. The doctors declare that the suspender buckle alone saved him from probably instant death. Burdick refuses to make a complaint against his former friend.

Houses Burned in Japan.

Vancouver, Aug. 24.—The Kinshu Maru brings news from Japan that in a conflagration the village of Echinjo was wiped out, four hundred houses destroyed and 120 Japanese killed.

A British pilot boat was looted at the mouth of the Yangtse by Chinese pirates. Capt. Roberts was injured by the pirates and removed to Shanghai for medical treatment.

Hutton's Criticism.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Major-General Hutton inspected to-day the Royal Royal Regiment of Canadian Infantry in camp here.

It was noticed that the movements were much more steadily performed in company drill under the drill sergeants than under the officers.

The General was especially severe on all officers made by the officers.

The British Premier and Her Majesty Discuss the South African Situation.

A THOUSAND MEN EMBARK.

The Manchester Regiment Leaves Gibraltar En Route for the Cape To-day.

Germans Will Fight for the Boers—The Reserves Ordered to Hold Themselves in Readiness—Eight Hundred Officers and Men Leave Southampton—Decrease of Warlike Goods in the Transvaal is Necessary.

London, Aug. 24.—The Marquis of Salisbury spent the afternoon and evening with Queen Victoria. It is believed the grave situation of affairs in the Transvaal was partly responsible for the Premier's visit to her Majesty.

Reserves Notified.

Durban, Natal, Aug. 24.—The men belonging to the British first-class reserve residing here have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to re-join their regiments.

Germans Will Fight for Boers

Johannesburg, Aug. 24.—At a meeting here of two hundred Germans a committee was appointed to express to the Government the willingness of the Germans to volunteer for service in case of war, but requested that they be enrolled in a separate corps on account of the hardships endured by the Germans in the Magato campaign.

A Thousand Men for Cape Colony.

Gibraltar, Aug. 24.—That the imperial authorities are taking a determined stand with President Kruger of the Transvaal is evidenced by the departure of the Manchester Regiment—one thousand strong—for the Cape of Good Hope, which took place this morning. This fine contingent of soldiers will go to swell the British force now being prepared in the Cape Colony and Natal to march upon the Transvaal in the event of the failure of diplomacy to master the obstinacy of Oom Paul.

Soldiers Sail From England.

Southampton, Eng., Aug. 24.—The British steamer Arundel Castle sailed from this port to-day with thirty officers and 770 men of various regiments bound for Cape Town.

Reduction of Armaments.

Cape Town, Aug. 24.—The Delagoa Bay incident, coupled with the recent transmit of a large amount of ammunition, has directed the attention of the British officials to the immense accumulation of munitions of war in the South African Republics, especially in the Transvaal. The Uitlanders being debarred from carrying arms, the supply of weapons, as shown in Lorenzo Marques (Delagoa Bay) returns for three years, is greatly in excess of the burghers' requirements and consequently there is a growing feeling among the British community in South Africa that no settlement of the existing crisis will insure peace unless it includes a provision for the reduction of armaments.

YAQUIS SEVERELY DEFEATED.

Gen. Torres Captures Vicam by Desperate Fighting.

Potam, Aug. 15, via Nogales, Ari., Aug. 24.—On Thursday Gen. Torres gave the order to advance on Vicam. Three sharp engagements were fought before the troops succeeded in entering the stronghold. It required a desperate struggle before the Indians were driven from their position. In three engagements two Mexicans were killed and twenty-two wounded. Forty Yaquis were killed and the number of wounded is heavy.

The Yaquis retreated in the jungle to the southwestward and were followed by Gen. Torres, who overtook them again at a point about two miles below Potam. The Indians numbered about 700, while the General's command was about 1,000 strong. The battle was fought on Aug. 13, and the Mexicans had two men killed and nineteen wounded. Twenty dead Yaquis were found in the holes from which they fought.

Three hundred Yaquis attacked the town of Cumuripa, but were beaten off by citizens after a desperate fight of ten hours. Many were killed.

Factories to Close.

Quebec, Aug. 24.—All the boot and shoe factories in this city will be closed by Saturday for two or three weeks. In the interval the manufacturers will draw up a uniform scale of wages, to be submitted to the employees for signatures. The factories will then re-open as soon as there is an understanding for not less than one year between employers and employed, on the question of wages.

JUSTICE OR REVOLUTION.

France has reached a point when her tribunals must accord full and manly justice to Captain Dreyfus or accept revolution. The Republic could not survive a second conviction of Dreyfus in the face of the overwhelming testimony establishing his innocence, and in the face of the next to universal judgement of the civilised world.

No civilization has presented a case like that of Captain Dreyfus during the present century. It is the most fiendish in conception and the most devilish in execution of any national crime that has been committed under color of law. Even in the bloody times of the French revolution more than a century ago, there was some consistency of purpose in the fiendish murders committed by the flood-tide of passion and in the name of public safety; but the Dreyfus crime was conceived, planned and executed in cold blood, and it proves a measure of demoralization and perfidy in the French army that if sustained must speedily invite revolution.

The conviction and imprisonment of Dreyfus and his persecution while a prisoner at Devil's Island present the most fiendish record of modern times. The punishment of death would have been tenfold more merciful than the imprisonment with inflicted tortures that even the Inquisition could not invent. The Inquisition could torture and kill, but there is no record that it ever intensified the agonies of its victims by false information of dishonor in the sanctity of their homes.

A crime thus conceived and executed with the utmost deliberation by the highest army officials of France gave its logical sequel in the suicide of one of the guilty officers, and in the attempted assassination of Labori, the leading counsel for the defence. And yet it is an open secret that the military court, before which Dreyfus is now being tried, will gladly reconvict him if it shall find the slightest pretext for such a wicked judgement.

Dreyfus has already been acquitted, and fully acquitted by the French people and by the accepted judgement of all the civilisations of the world, and the Republic of France could not survive another judgement against him. The issue is plain to all who choose to see and can see intelligently, that France must judge between justice to Dreyfus or revolution.

TOO WELL GOVERNED.

The assertion that we are being governed too much has frequently been made in all seriousness. Unhappily it loses much of its force from the circumstance that those who put it forth as illustrative of a state of affairs generally belong to the party or people out of office.

Nevertheless, without expatiating too much in this antagonistic spirit, but allowing facts to speak for themselves, it sometimes does seem that legislation and its enforcement is carried to a point where the point comes pretty near being whittled down to nothing.

'Thus in the annals of the civic weal a western village has just passed a law requiring that baby carriages out after night shall be provided with lamps. The glow from such lights casts a reflection upon the curfew laws that prevailed for a time in Peterborough and elsewhere, that makes them look bright by contrast.

A WEST ELGIN ERROR

The World bobs up with the statement, in a despatch in reference to the West Elgin Conservative convention that "Finlay McDiarmid, of course, was the man (nominated) as every Conservative was eager to avenge the thefts that have twice deprived Mr. McDiarmid of his rightful place on the floor of the House," says the Star.

The World evidently forgets that Mr. McDiarmid was deprived of the seat in the first instance by the courts, which unseated him because his election had been fraudulently won by his agents. Or does the World mean that the courts stole the seat?

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Another reason for the powers not recognising Aguinaldo is his not meeting their views. See the point?

•• •• ••

No worse reports could be heard in connection with the Dreyfus case than that of the pistol aimed at his counsel.

•• •• ••

While France may be standing on the edge of a volcano crater, it's often happened of late and there was found to be nothing in it.

•• •• ••

A Whiskey Trust is proposed in Canada. Such a trust knows the country is getting hot on the subject of trusts, and the hotter people get the more they must drink.

•• •• ••

The average duration of human life, is about thirty-three years. One fourth of the inhabitants die before they reach their seventh year, one half before their seventeenth year. Of every 1,000 persons only one reaches the age of 100 years; of every 100, only six reach the age of sixty-five and not more than one in 500 lives to see the eightieth year. There are about 1,500,000,000 inhabitants on the globe. Of these 50,000,000 die every year, 137,736 per day, 5,595 per hour; about ninety per minute or three every two seconds.

•• •• ••

Firing that pistol at Labori shows more proof of conspiracy against Dreyfus. Where there's smoke there's fire.

•• •• ••

For that matter, the very scarcity of men at the summer resorts is a reason why they should not venture in too far when bathing.

•• •• ••

Does not etiquette often rule a woman's action too much? Lots of girls who never bathe at the shore appear to put on bathing dresses as a mere matter of form.

LUMBERMEN ARE ACTIVE.

Better Prices for Stock Stirring Them to Increase the Cut.

Messrs. McCormick & McLeod will have a couple of shanties on Trout Creek, Muskoka, and have already a camp of men in Harcourt, Haliburton county, cutting cedar.

The Dickson Co., Lakefield will make a large cut in the old Scott limits in Cavendish and Anstruther.

The Gilmour Co sent in a gang of men three weeks ago to their old depot in Harvey township, about eight miles from Bobcaygeon. They will make a clean sweep of the old limit, taking every stick of pine, cedar, hemlock, birch and elm that is fit to cut.

The Rathburn Co. will operate largely in Muskoka and Haliburton.

Fisher & Turner, of Saginaw, will have four big camps in their Muskoka and Georgian Bay limits.

Everything points to a brisk season for men in the woods.

Teachers' Salaries.

The Toronto Globe is urging that school teachers deserve more remuneration than they get, says that, "What is needed is that the teacher shall be placed out of the reach of sordid care so that he may devote his mind wholly to his calling, and that he shall have access to books and other means of intellectual growth," which is all true enough, but the trouble that The Globe complains of is one for which the teachers are largely to blame themselves. The supply is in excess of the demand and the natural result is a steady decrease in the average salary in rural schools, especially.

A Safe Investment.

The Times calls the attention of its readers to the Hillside Consolidated Mining Company, whose property is situated at Republic, Ferry County, Washington. Mr. E. Gartly Parker, Mining broker, 12 Adelaide Street E., Toronto, is the Canadian representative of the Company and will be pleased to send circulars and applications to intending investors. There is perhaps fewer mining properties with brighter prospects than this one. For every dollar invested now there is a strong probability that a much greater sum will be taken out before long.

Professor Watt Clarke.

Professor Clarke of 195 College-st., Toronto, who has been supplying a high class massage to our leading families during the past season, will visit Peterborough sometime in September for the purpose of organizing a stock company to establish and equip a first-class Turkish Bath establishment. This is an important undertaking, something our town sadly needs, and as the Professor has had nearly thirty years experience it would seem that he should meet with hearty support from everyone.

New Methodist Paper.

A movement is on foot in Toronto to establish a new paper in connection with the Methodist church. Already several meetings of those interested have been held, and it is understood that the new journal will be issued early in the fall. It will not be an official organ, but will be purely Methodist, nevertheless. The idea is to have an independent, unhampered paper, aiming at an aggressive policy, rather than mere denominationalism. It is understood the staff in control of the paper will consist of several widely-known literary men of the church.

A False Jewel.

When Mrs. Smith decided to give a tea party she made up her mind that it should be the event of the season. With that in view she started elaborate preparations, promising Mary, the cook, an extra week's wages if she would do her best to make the party a success. Finding that she would need a girl to help serve the tea she asked Mary if she knew of any one that she could get.

"Sure, mum," answered Mary. "there's me sister what's used to waitin' an' who'll be glad to get the chance, for she's a poor gurl just out of a job."

As Mary herself was a jewel Mrs. Smith did not question her further, and Mary received orders to have her sister on hand.

Mary's sister reported for duty, and Mrs. Smith gave her minute instructions how she should act, wishing to give the guests the impression that she was a regular member of the household.

Things went on swimmingly until Mary's sister, seeing that one of the guests was out of tea, came up and wanted to know if the laidy would have "naither." The guest smilingly answered that she would, whereupon Mary's sister snatching up the cup, bawled across the room in the most approved cheap restaurant code. "Draw one!"

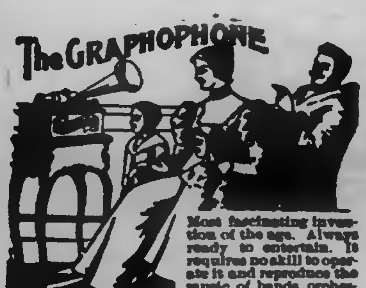
The GRAPHOPHONE



Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound, thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

TO PUNISH TRAITORS

THe Natal Government Will Punish Those Abetting the Boers.

A LAGER ON THE BORDER.

Boers Preparing to Defend the Frontier Vigorously—Franco-German Alliance.

Hon. David Mills Says the Talked of Alliance is at the Root of the Transvaal Situation—English Firm Receives an Emergency Order for Cartridges From South Africa.

Pietermaritzburg, Natal, South Africa, Aug. 23.—In connection with the rumor that there are many Boers who are British subjects and who outwardly sympathize with the British while in reality they are secret agents of President Kruger of the Transvaal Republic, the Premier of Natal yesterday evening declared that it was the intention of the Government to take steps to detect and punish any British subjects co-operating with the enemie of the Queen.

It is alleged that much secret information has been conveyed to President Kruger and that even ambuscades have been prepared for the British troops in the event of war by these secret agents. A force of police has been ordered to Colenso owing to rumors of the intention of the Boers to destroy the railroad bridge at that place.

Fortification Erected.

Cape Town, Aug. 23. — Although the cabled summary of the counter proposals of the Transvaal Government to Great Britain's proposition for a joint commission to inquire as to what effect the reform franchise measures would have on the Uitlanders is probably incomplete, it undoubtedly gives the general lines accurately.

The Mafeking horse regiment is mobilizing rapidly. Several hundred recruits have arrived and been equipped here and have joined Vivian's camp. Every train is bringing fresh recruits. It is rumored that three hundred Boers have formed a lager on the border.

Cartridges Wanted Badly.

Birmingham, Eng., Aug. 23.—A firm of this place has received an order for fourteen million Mauser cartridges for urgent delivery in South Africa. Secrecy is being observed as to the exact destination of the cartridges, but it is said that the Boers alone use Mauser rifles in the territory.

A good cure for corns is to rub them night and morning with a piece of ordinary sandpaper. If this method is persevered in, great relief is at once obtained, and the corns will gradually disappear.

"A good stout toothbrush, plenty of water and some antiseptic dentifrice applied morning and night," says one who has given much thought in the interests of antiseptic purity, "will afford a greater safeguard against many diseases than most people are aware."

THE NEW SPAIN.

About the worst that can be said of Spain now is that it is the Washington Baseball club of nations.—Chicago News.

Nothing seems to be said about what Spain is going to do at the Paris exposition. It might at least make a display of mananas.—Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

Now that we are friends with Spain once more, she may give us the contract of building her new navy. She has reason to know that we build a fairly good article of warship.—St. Louis Republic.

WANTED FIRE BELL CLOTHES.

He Just Made Up His Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tall young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jes' agoin to kill that town of St. Joe. Show me the heatedest clothes yo' got in the house."

He was not cool as to raiment to start with. His overcoat was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousers were green and ended in yellow shoes with brown shot silk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his cane heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah come from Raytown," he muttered. "Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kansas City, because mah clothes is so inconspicuous, and Ah just save up mah money, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some scarlet hosiery, banded with wide white stripes

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwear."

He inspected some red underwear with white stripes, some of baby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neckscarfs of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included zebra collars and pale pink shirts, diamond scarfpins at 85 cents each, but with $85 of shine, and a brown waistcoat with scarlet moons emblazoned on it.

"Ah've got 'em dead," he exclaimed when he had finished. "They've ceased to live. When Ah get back to that town of St. Joe they'll ask me if I come from Raytown, will they? Ah'm agoin to take back to that little ole burg such wahm clothes that they'll meet me with the fiah department. That town's dead now, and Ah've killed it."

How Wealth Is Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pocketbook, in which the greenbacks lie flat; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Mina.

"The half civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of these belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings."—London Answers.

CRIMINAL ANIMALS.

A Naturalist's Study of Thoroughly Wicked Wild Beasts.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the government of Manitoba, gives in his book, "Wild Animals I Have Known," some curious examples of depravity among wild beasts.

The best story is that of the New Mexican wolf who led a band that killed a cow a day for five years. Finally the ranchers offered $1,000 for this wolf's pelt. He was easily distinguished. His track was an inch wider than that of other wolves.

A professional wolf hunter tried to earn the bounty, but the wolves killed his dogs, and he gave it up. Then Mr. Thompson took the case. He melted cheese in the fat of a heifer in a china dish, cut it into lumps with a bone knife to avoid the taint of metal and put in strychnine and cyanide in odor proof capsules. He wore gloves steeped in cow's blood and avoided breathing on the baits.

The baits were picked up. He followed the track and found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves then took to killing sheep. Traps were set to the number of 130 in different parts of the ranch. The trails of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of traps, and the doings of the leader were marked in the dust.

He had stopped the rest, warned by scent, and scratched around the trap till he found the buried chain and picket. On another part of the ranch he entered an H-shaped series of traps and detected the danger. The trail showed that he had slowly backed out on his own track, putting each paw down backward until out of the dangerous ground. He had then sprung some of the traps by scratching clods and stones backward at them with his hind feet.

He was at last caught by dragging over the traps the body of a female wolf, the scent of which he followed.

No more skillful criminal than this wolf was ever known. Old Eph, a lame grisly, which in two years ruined half the hog raisers in the Sacramento valley by his wasteful love of pork, was a close second. A bobtailed wolf kept the whole city of Paris in terror for ten years at the beginning of the fourteenth century, and the Lochnee panther, in India, killed 300 human beings in less than two years.

A famous rogue dog of Derbyshire was conspicuous by its faithful care of sheep in the daytime, but was savage and ugly toward men strangers. It slept in the house and was never suspected, though sheep worrying took place on the farms near.

At last it was tracked in the snow from a fold where 20 sheep had been killed to the farm where it lived, the dog having forgotten that the track would show, though it took partial means to conceal it by running along the top of a stone wall

The Unattainable One.

She—Indeed it's not an easy thing for a girl to get a husband.

He—Why, a pretty girl can make her choice of four out of every five men she meets!

She—But it's the fifth that she wants.—Harlem Life.

A bundle of spider webs, not larger than a buckshot and weighing less than a dram, would, if straightened out and untangled, reach a distance of 350 miles.

MOB STONED THE TROOPS.

Infantry at Amsterdam Fire Upon Citizens With Fatal Results.

Amsterdam, Aug. 23.—The disturbance at Hilversum, fifteen miles from here where martial law has been proclaimed continued last evening. The mob stoned the troops who are occupying the town, and the cavalry charged on the rioters with drawn swords. Finally the infantry fired on the mob, killing one person and wounding two others. Quiet was restored at midnight.

CHURCH PAYS TAXES.

Jarvis Street Baptists Send the Treasurer [illegible] a Cheque for $387.50. [illegible]

[illegible] Toronto, Aug. 23.

Jarvis street Baptist Church was promptly on hand this year again with its first instalment of taxes. The trustees yesterday gave Mr. Coady a cheque for $387.50, which is about half of their annual taxes. The church has voluntarily paid taxes for a number of years past, and its members are strong advocates of the abolition of exemptions.

WOMEN OF NOTE.

Mrs. James M. Barrie, wife of the author of "The Little Minister," is said to be a very pretty woman.

Mme. Navarro's (Mary Anderson's) sister is Mother Dominica, a nun in the Convent of the Assumption in London.

Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer disposes of some $75,000 each year on her whims and never asks the price of an article that strikes her fancy, but orders it sent home.

Erie, Kan., has two newspapers edited by women. Mrs. Belle Harbaugh edits The Republican-Record and Miss Elizabeth Frazier has charge of the Erie Sentinel.

Helen Gould's income is the largest of any unmarried woman in the country. She does not spend much on herself. On churches and charities she spends $100,000 a year.

Mme. Loubet greatly resembles her friend, Mme. Carnot, in her charitable tendencies. She disposes of large sums among the poor, and is a regular visitor at the hospitals.

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, formerly Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, is said to be the most extravagant woman in society. She spends quite $100,000 each year on trifles and knickknacks.

Mrs. S. V. Harkness of New York city, formerly of Cleveland, has offered to build a chapel at the College For Women of the Western Reserve university in Cleveland. She had previously founded a biblical professorship in that college.

The young Duchess of Marlborough and several other ladies of much wealth and rank are going in for falconry. It is an expensive form of sport, an ordinary hawk costing as much as $500 and requiring quite an outlay for maintenance and training.

Mrs. William Rockefeller's hobby is for carnations, one of the greenhouses at her country place at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson being devoted exclusively to their culture. She is said to spend thousands of dollars every year for the plants she imports for her own pleasure.

At a public dress rehearsal of a new play in Paris Mme. Casimir-Perier, wife of the former president of the French republic, was requested to remove her hat, but declined to do so. When she learned that the rule would be enforced in her case as in all others, she left the theater in disgust.

Lady Randolph Churchill is thus described by T. P. O'Connor in his weekly: She is still a very pretty woman. Her raven black hair does not show a single thread of gray; her figure is slight and svelte, and the deep, dark blue eyes have all their vivacity undimmed by their years of tears. She is certainly one of the most widely accomplished women of her time.

John's Objections Sustained.

"Look ye, man, why haven't you cleaned and polished my boots?" asked Dean Swift of his eccentric servant, John, at an inn where they had just passed the night.

"What's the use of polishing such things?" asked John, as he held up the boots, discolored and grimy.

"Very true," said the dean, and without further protest he put them on. Then he went to the office and gave orders that John should have no breakfast. He partook of his own, and directed the hostler to saddle the horses and lead them to the door.

"Mercy!" cried John, when he found the dean ready to start, I haven't had any breakfast yet."

"Oh," replied Swift, "I can't see the use of your breakfasting; you would soon be hungry again."

John could think of no answer to such unexpected application of his own sophistry, so he maintained a stoical silence.

They mounted and rode on, the dean in advance reading his prayer book, and the servant following at a respectable distance.

"Hark, ye, my man," said the stranger whom they met, after he had observed the two closely, "you and your master seem to be an uncommonly sober pair; may I ask who you are and where you are going?"

"We are as near saint as we can be," replied John solemnly, "and we are going to heaven, I hope. My master's praying and I'm doing the fasting."

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and oftentimes—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the altering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

Actual Case of a Brutal Criminal Who Was Also a Philanthrophist.

GIVES AWAY IMMENSE SUMS

Charles Peace, a Notorious Rogue, Becomes Churchwarden and Gives to the Poor.

Many a Bank Note Passed From His Hand Into the Pocket of Poor Persons, and Charitable Institutions Their Funds Satisfactorily Increased Without Knowing the Individuality of the Giver.

London, Aug. 23.—No character in the history of modern crime appears further removed from the philanthropic and sentimental than Charles Peace. The man is known to have been a type of all that is callous, brutal and crafty. One would as soon expect a tigress to suckle a lamb as for Peace to have done anything for the benefit of his fellow-creatures. Yet Peace was an exceedingly generous creature, and was greatly esteemed in Peckham for his philanthropy. And let it not be fancied that this murderer's generosity was ostentatious, and meant to add gloss to the Peckham part of his dual existence, for such is far from the actual fact. Peace gave considerable sums of money away openly, it is true, but his most handsome philanthropic acts were secret, and many of them were not discovered until he had been hanged.

It is well known that Peace was warden of a Peckham church. During his considerable term of office he did much to improve the financial position of the parochial institutions, and his generosity to individuals would serve as a good example to many living persons infinitely more wealthy than even Peace was.

Many a bank note passed from his hand into the pocket of some poor person who never learned the individuality of the donor, and more than one charitable institution had their funds substantially increased by Peace, without having any idea of the donor's name until years after. Probably the extent of this callous wretch's philanthropy will never be known, but it is pretty certain that he must have given many hundreds of pounds away in acts of unostentatious charity.

EUGENE FIELD AND TABOR.

How the Humorist Made Life a Burden For the Millionaire.

"Up to middle age the late Senator Tabor's life was one of great hardship," said a former resident of the Silver State, "and when he suddenly became fabulously rich he plunged into luxuries like a starving man wading into a banquet. One of his early freaks was the purchase of several magnificent lace nightrobes which cost $100 apiece and which he kept locked up in a safe during the day. Eugene Field was editor of the Denver Tribune at the time, and those lace nightrobes made him simply hysterical. He wrote column upon column about them, describing the garments in detail, with numerous diagrams depicting sections fore and aft. The diagrams were hideous affairs, which Field carved out himself with a penknife on the back of old wood type. He used to describe how Tabor would forget the combination of the safe and sit up, shivering and naked, half the night trying to remember the right figures.

"Altogether he kept Denver in a roar for weeks and made Tabor so wild that one day he rushed into his office, snatched the unfortunate nightrobes out of their compartment and tore them to threads. 'There, now!' he exclaimed, wiping his forehead and kicking the tattered fragments into a corner, 'I hope that fool will be satisfied. I'll be hanged if I ain't going to get a gunny sack,' he continued, 'cut some holes in the end for my head and arms, and then sleep in it for the rest of my life!'

"When Tabor was appointed to the senate to fill an unexpired term of exactly 30 days, Field broke loose again and had all kinds of fun with the old man. He declared that Tabor opposed the tariff bill on the ground that it encouraged lawlessness in the west. 'I don't know this tariff bill,' he reported the senator as saying in a speech, 'but we have entirely too many of 'em out where I live. There's Wild Bill and Pecos Bill and Billy the Kid—all no good. If you let Tariff Bill have everything to do with the custom house he is liable to steal the Atlantic ocean.' Many of the honest frontier folk took these flights of fancy seriously, and drove Tabor nearly distracted by long letters of remonstrance, urging him to read up and get posted, so as not to disgrace the state.

"At the expiration of the senator's brief term he circulated an autograph album among his fellow members, and the incident tickled Field immensely. He gave what purported to be a copy of the 'sentiments' inscribed in the volume by the different statesmen—such things as 'When this you see, remember me, Roscoe Conkling,' and 'Sure as the moss grows 'round a stump you are my darling sugar lump—I mean chump—George F. Hoar,' and similar nonsense, all of which maddened his victim.

"I think 'Gene Field was the only man Tabor never forgave, for in spite of his gaunt, forbidding exterior, the miner magnate was as tender hearted as a girl. He was really full of sterling qualities, and in his proper sphere he would have been anything but grotesque. One thing is sure—if every fellow he helped in secret would have joined his funeral procession he would have gone to his grave like an emperor of old."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Killed With One Blow.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 23.—T. R. Howery, a patient in the insane asylum here, yesterday walked up to John Butcher, another patient, and struck him a blow on the point of the jaw that killed him.

MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Algus with an air of pride and proprietorship, somewhat more prevalent among young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 50 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist as good natured and happy now as she wuz when I courted her, but Mandy ain't all mush and spoon victuals, and there's times when she has to be handled with keer or somethin will be sp'iled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain't afeered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never forgit of I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wuz only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven or eight head uv fine horses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4-year-olds that we prided ourselves perticklar on, for they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they wuz yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in them neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalize us, and I tell you they wuzn't a funeral procession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow come in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week or ten days we had fine sleighin, and one afternoon Mandy said she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough for me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin for the lady in less than no time.

"The team wuz feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they slung the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wuz a dozen or more movin up and down at a clippin gait, and we sailed right in among 'em, and in about seven minutes we passed everything on the road.

"Jim Hall wuzn't out with his team, and I could see that Mandy wuz gittin anxious, though she wuzn't sayin much. The road leadin to Jim's place struck the pike about 200 yards from the upper turn, and there wuz no sign uv him as we passed, and we didn't see him as we come back, but just after we got by his road we heard a clatter up the pike, and, by crackey, there wuz Jim a-comin lickety split. I guess he'd been to the postoffice, and the way he wuz comin after us wuz like a mink after chickens. Mandy took one look over her shoulder and told me to let 'em go for all they wuz wuth. I didn't need to be coaxed, and by the time she had said the words we wuz fairly flyin over the smooth snow track, and Jim wuz comin right behind us too. For the first few rods we gained on him, then he begun to creep up on us in spite uv all we could do. Everybody on the road knowed how me and Jim set store by our teams, and they pulled out to one side and give us all the room there wuz.

"I shook up my beauties as I felt him drawin up on me, but shakin wuzn't enough, and I touched 'em once or twice with the whip, but Jim jist rared back on his strings, lookin like destruction smilin at desolation, and kept a-comin. When his horses' heads passed our dashboard and I could see the snort in their noses, I got kind uv sick and thought I'd have to let go, but Mandy nerved me up, and I hung on and leaned away forred as if that would help some. By this time Jim's horses had their heads even with mine, and I held him there for a minute or such a matter, but jist as I begun to have a hope that it might be a neck and neck at the finish Mandy reached for the line next to her, and, with a sudden jerk, she pulled the team off to one side uv the road, where the snow wuz in a high drift, and Jim went ahead with a yell that made my ears stand out like windmill flappers.

"I wuz that dazed for a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, deacon though I wuz, I'm afeerd I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a move Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I wuz dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idee that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wuz killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hundred pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let themselves out on a spurt that wuz chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream: 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"'And so I wuz, and so wuz Mandy, for before Jim knowed that anything had happened I wuz up with him, alongside, neck and neck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toll gate he wuz ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss.

"Mandy wuz in the middle uv the road brushin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin for me as I come back, and when I said I'd give her a new silk dress for that she said it wuz only what any wife ought to do for her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite uv herself. That's the kind of a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and fished out a quaint, old fashioned daguerreotype in a brand new gilt frame.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Picture, Not Paint.

An art patron one day came into Turner's studio when the artist was already famous. He looked at a picture and asked what was the price. The artist named the sum he had set upon it.

"What," exclaimed the buyer, "all these golden sovereigns for so much paint!"

"Oh," replied Turner, "it's paint you are buying? I thought it was pictures. Here," producing a half used tube of color, "I'll let you have that cheap. Make your own terms," and, turning his back on the astonished patron, he went on painting.

FISHING FOR SEA SPIDERS.

Encounter With an Uncanny Creature in Alaskan Waters.

I once had an exciting experience, says a returned Klondiker, while fishing for sea spiders, with a party of Indians, near Sitka. We dropped anchor in the lee of a little points of rocks where we began fishing. It is a famous country for fish, and it was nothing but pull in for the natives, while I did not have a bite.

My time was coming, however. I had on a heavy sinker, so that every time the boat lifted I felt a sharp jerk, which deceived me. But once when the boat rose on a big wave, my line did not give, and I shouted to the Indian next to me that I was foul. He took the line, gave a tremendous jerk, and received one in return; then, bracing himself back, he began to pull and scream; then all hands screamed and I understood that a sea spider had the line and also the bottom. I expected every minute to see the canoe go over, as the men went from side to side, now forcing the rail down so that the water poured in, now lifting with a mighty yell, then slacking off so suddenly that they fell into a heap.

One man armed himself with a knife, while a companion held a short-handled caseknife between his teeth—movements suggestive of the coming of an enemy. Suddenly one of the crew seized a sharp boat hook, which after another look; he jabbed into the unknown and invisible. In response a long, slender tentacle shot into the air and formed a wierd interrogation point, then it grasped the pike; then three more appeared, creeping insiduously over the edge of the canoe, at which the natives struck wildly, some shouting to slack the line, others to haul in.

In the midst of the confusion the sea spider concluded to come aboard. Torn from the bottom, it had come up easily then, seeing the canoe, and possibly thinking it a vantage ground, it grasped it and slid over the side, a mass of living, slimy, reddish brown snakes. When they were raised I could see rows of suckers, each of which was a veritable air pump, and as there were seemingly thousands of them, the sucking power of this spider of the sea was apparent. Blows were aimed at it whenever opportunity offered, but the weird animal fairly slid over the rail, winding one of its arms around an oar. Its head or body hung on the rail—a brown mass the size of a man's head—from which gleamed two greenish-yellow eyes. The strange animal changed color like a chameleon; flushes of red, brown and gray followed one another over it, while from its lower portion oozed a stream of ink which splashed our faces as the tentacles flew about. It was 15 minutes before they had the life hammered out of the frightful creature, and then it was a question who had won.

The canoe was now half full of water, as a hole had been knocked in the side, which was finally stopped with a piece of skin. It was five miles to camp, but I preferred walking, and had the men put me ashore. I got to the camp in time to meet them and see the sea spider taken out. It had a spread of nearly 25 feet, measuring from the tip of the outspread tentacles.

A Modest Request.

A letter was recently received at the Ontario Bank from a man residing in the West Indies, asking Mr. Parker, the genial manager, for a loan of two hundred pounds. The writer has a great scheme on hand and requires this amount to enable him to carry it through. He said that he will be obliged to visit England, and get the co-operation of the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial secretary. "Joe," he has no doubt will come down with the dust and assist him in his great work. The enthusiastic promoter says he saw the advertisement of Ontario's popular financial institution in a copy of The Morning Times, and that's how he came to write.

A Boer who sat in the road
Thought Chamberlain shamefully bad;
So he made a harrangue
In South African twangue,
Which is not the Queen's English, bedad.

CARNEGIE'S MILLIONS.

Mr. Carnegie has a great opportunity to set a philanthropic example for rich men. Perhaps he can even start a "wave" of philanthropy.—Indianapolis News.

In his determination to go into the humanitarian business Andrew Carnegie need fear no fierce competition from other millionaires.—Albany Times-Union.

Mr. Carnegie will have to be as wise as a serpent and harmless as a dove if he expects to put his charitable millions out of unworthy hands.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mr. Carnegie nobly decides to retire from the mad whirl of money getting. His example should not be lost upon all who have attained the modest competence of $100,000,000.—Oregonian.

It will be interesting to watch Mr. Carnegie and note the size and character of his benefactions, the territory he will select as the chief scenes of his labors and their effect upon him and the communities.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Andrew Carnegie has retired from business with $200,000,000. He intimates that it is his purpose to give away nearly all of it in such a way that he will not be called a fool. He will find the first part of the proposition much easier.—Colfax Press.

Deceived by a Thread.

As we came in on a Big Four train from Delaware we noticed a well barbered and highly scented "young man of the period" complacently admiring a fine pair of patent leather shoes which were elevated on the seat in front of him. Finally he espied a thread on one of his shoes, and, seizing it, he gently drew it to him. It seemed to be quite long, so he wound around it his kid gloved hand. After getting quite a knot of it he found it was fast to his side, and, glancing along his leg, he discovered that he had unraveled one seam of his trousers leg, which hung in a loose flap. The last we saw of him he had borrowed two pins from the conductor and was retreating sidewise toward the smoking car with horror and disgust plainly depicted on his countenance.—Ohio State Journal.

Its Owner Realized Its Worth, as Well He Might.

"Well, I wouldn't have believed it," exclaimed Jones in astonishment as he dropped in to see Smith the other evening and was met in the hall by a St. Bernard dog.

"Wouldn't have believed what?" asked Smith.

"Why, that you'd have a dog in your house," continued Jones. "It belongs to one of your neighbors, I suppose?"

"No, sir; that's my dog," replied Smith proudly.

"You don't really mean it, old man? Why, I've known you now for five years, and you've always had a marked aversion for dogs."

"Yes, I did have until lately, but I wouldn't be without one now. This brute is a noble, faithful fellow, and I wouldn't take $100 spot cash for"—

But at this juncture he was interrupted by his wife calling down over the banister:

"Henry Smith, who was it that scattered these cigar ashes all over my dresser?"

"It must have been the dog, my dear," was his reply.

"And who was it that dropped these apple peelings on the floor?" she demanded.

"The dog, my dear," answered Smith.

"And there's a bottle of mucilage spilled on the hall carpet up here too. Is that some of your work, Henry?"

"No, my dear; the dog's to blame for that."

"And, goodness gracious," she continued angrily, "if some one hasn't been whittling up here again! How many times have I told you not to do that in the house?"

"But I had nothing to do with it, my dear. The dog's been up there probably chewing a stick."

"Well, it's a burning shame the way this house is mussed up. Your collars and ties are scattered all over the rooms."

"Are they, my dear? That dog's been up there again then. Yes," continued Smith as he drew his friend into the parlor, "I wouldn't take a big pot of money for that dog. Why, the noble fellow saves me about 20 jawings a week."

"So I see," chuckled Jones, "and you bet I'll have one before noon tomorrow."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THE TURF REVIEW.

Streck, 2:14¼, is to be tried this year at the pace, by George Saunders, according to report.

Marion, 3, by Arion, dam Nancy Hanks, is said to be showing a good gait and good speed this year.

It is said that Rose Croix, 2:13½ at three years, has shown a mile in 2:15 at the pace for McHenry, at Pleasanton, Cal.

Nelly R, ch. m., 2:28, by Red Cloud, although 19 years old, has never had a foal until this year. It is by Dan T, 2:06¾.

A horse with the peculiar name of Esaw, by Seesaw, dam by Independence, is to be raced this year by D. H. McGill.

All reports to the contrary notwithstanding, it is thought that Willis O. Foote will be able to be in the sulky this season.

There is a great deal of talk about Directly, 2:03¾, beating all the pacers out this year and taking a record faster than 2:00 besides.

Since the sale of Advertiser, Palo Alto farm has only three sons of Electioneer remaining in the stud, Altire, Azmoor and Mendocino.

A race for a purse of $1,000 is projected for July 4, at Youngstown, O., with Lord Vincent, 2:16¼; La Honda, 2:10¼ pacing, and Oddity, 2:10¼ pacing, among the starters.

The 3-year-old bay filly Marion, by Arion, dam Nancy Hanks, is eligible to start in the New England $10,000 Futurity, and is likely to do so if the reports of the speed she is showing are correct.

The first new 2:30 trotter of the year is a dun gelding named Dot, breeding unknown, who took the first heat of the 2:40 race at Norfolk, Va., May 16, in 2:27¼.—Turf, Field and Farm.

THE COOKBOOK.

A nourishing dish may be made from cooked meat by stewing it very slowly in really good stock or gravy for 1½ hours.

An Italian way to give the touch of garlic to the salad is to rub a piece of bread with it and put it in the salad dish, where it lends its flavor through the dish as the salad is tossed.

Cook twice as much hominy as you want for a meal and pack what is left in a square dish. Next day cut in slices, fry in pork fat and serve with maple sirup. Rice is good fried in the same way, and children are very fond of both.

For baking, the banana should be green, but neither too green nor too ripe. It may be made most delicious by peeling and rolling in brown sugar and baking in a buttered pan in a very hot oven. It should be served around blanc mange.

THE MAGICAL MIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected In Its Oval Surface. Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still keep the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his house, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

Fact Versus Fiction.

"Talk about the seven sleepers," muttered the angry tragedian; "I'll bet there are 7,000 of them between Albany and New York."

Your 'Golden Medical Discovery', 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets' are the best medicines for the diseases for which they are recommended that I ever used. They saved my wife's life at the time of 'change of life'. I also cured the worst case of lunacy that we ever had with your 'Favorite Prescription'. The case had been under the doctor's care for three years. I gave your medicine and the patient became well. This was nine years ago, and she is still in good health. I have been recommending your medicines to many. I have told our druggist that if the people came back and said Dr. Pierce's medicines did not give satisfaction, to give them back their money and charge it to me. I have not once been called upon to refund. I think I have guaranteed seventy-five or one hundred cases."

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. LINDSAY BEATEN.

For the Third Time This Season Peterboro Wins—An Eastern League Battery

The local Baseball Club clearly demonstrated their ability yesterday to cope with the best ball players in the country, as their victory over Lindsay, with the assistance of Brown and Hardy, of the Toronto Eastern League team, by a score of 14 to 5, will show. When it became known around town that Hardy, the celebrated south-paw, of Toronto, was to pitch for Lindsay, the largest crowd of the season came out to see the game. Hardy pitched splendid ball for Lindsay, but his support was very erratic, but, at the same time, with gilt-edged support, the local team would have won, for Lindsay could get but five hits of McCabe. The Peterboroughs were on their mettle and work of Graham behind the bat, and that of Conners on 1st and King on 2nd was up to professional standard.

Following is the score:

On Wednesday afternoon Fred. Richen, residing on Park street, an employee of the Matthews Company, was found lying on the stairs in the rear of the packing house, in an unconscious condition. KNOWS DREYFUS.

Mr. Sandy Smythe, Engineer on the City of Peterborough.

There is a man in town who has met Captain Dreyfus, the French Martyr. The man is Mr. Sandy Smythe, engineer on the City of Peterborough, plying on the Rice Lake waters. Mr. Smythe, whose mother is an Alsatian, lived in the same town with Captain Dreyfus, and naturally feels intensely interested in the fate of the unhappy Frenchman. Mr. Smythe is a firm believer in Dreyfus innocence.

Where is John McDermid?

John H. McDermid, of Havelock, has been staying in town for a week or more, during which time he has been spending money freely in the hotels. Yesterday morning at about six o'clock McDermid's coat and vest were found on the bank in front of St. John's church by Mr. John Robinson, and has nothing has been seen of the man since yesterday, his friends are becoming anxious as to his whereabouts.

McDermid is a married man and at one time kept the Havelock House, in Havelock. Of late he has been running in hard luck, being out of work, so that it may be possible that in a despondent state of mind he may have done away with himself. The authorities are trying to locate him, and in the meantime his friends are earnestly hoping he will turn up. A letter from his wife upbraiding him for his drinking was found in his pocket and as he appeared to have a number of troubles the finding of the clothes naturally leads to the suspicion that he may have met with harm.

Lindsayites Visiting the Hub.

It isn't often that the citizens of Lindsay have an opportunity to shake the sticky mud of the Scugog from their feet and visit the town. Yesterday a cheap excursion, run under the auspices of the Grand Trunk Library Board, brought 360 pleasure seekers to Peterborough from the town on the banks of the Scugog. A number of the passengers got off at the depot but the majority remained on the train, which backed up the Lakefield line as far as Nicholls and Inverlea parks, where a picnic was held and where a programme of sports and games conducted by the railway men were run off. The Lindsay baseball team came down with the excursionists. They were short a battery but had arranged with Hardy and Brown, of the Eastern league, who came down on the 11.27 C.P.R. train from Toronto.

The Local Press Only.

The results of the departmental examinations will not be published in the daily papers after this year. A number of protests have been made by High School masters, who say that comparisons are made between schools, and some schools use the number of students who pass as an advertisement. This leads to the belief that the end of education is the passing of examinations. In future the results of each school will be sealed and sent out to the head masters of the schools, when they will be published in the local papers the same as the reports of the entrance examinations.

Around the Lakes.

An excursion is being run from Campbellford and all intermediate points to Lindsay to-day, and these by Steamer Crandella to Lakefield, returning at 8 o'clock this evening. Tickets from Peterborough are only $1.00. Many of our citizens propose to take it in.

Conquest of the Philippines Not a Question of Weeks But of Months.

UNCLE HAS HIS WORK AHEAD

All Ships Coming and going Pay Tribute to Insurgents, and They do not Lack Money.

Candid Report by Associated Press, Recognizing the Fact That the United States Has in the Philippines Just Such a Long and Almost as Hopeless a Task as Spain Faced There and in Cuba.

Manila, July 22, via San Francisco, Aug. 25.—In Manila talk of the ending of the war deals no longer with weeks, but with months and even years. The whole effort of the natives for thirty months was to hold off the invaders until their ally, the rains, came, and in this they have been as successful as they could have hoped. Unless affairs take some unforeseen turn the Filipinos will resume the war this fall with fresh spirit and a replenished stock of arms and ammunition.

Getting Plenty of Money.

Of money the leaders of the natives have no lack. All the ships coming and going into the ports recently opened to trade, pay heavy tribute to the insurgents. Much of the profits of this informal sort of government are supposed to go into the pockets of the leader, excepting Aguinaldo, who is generally acquitted of enriching himself by the present war; but when the public treasury becomes empty the politicians who are exploiting Aguinaldo may, if they see a possibility of success, consider the war a good private investment.

Filipinos in High Spirits.

Reports brought through the lines to Spaniards and Filipinos in this city are that the spirits of the natives are improving. The generals are telling their followers that United States inaction during the past month is due to discouragement and demoralization.

Through the United States secret service come different stories, that the Filipino army is becoming decimated by desertion to the number of twenty or thirty a day and is fast losing heart and on the verge of disruption.

Fooling Uncle Sam.

Past experience with the secret service justifies a suspicion that many of its employes, most of whom are natives or Spaniards, are deeply interested in holding their places by seeming to earn their pay, while the refugees who come through the lines have been disposed to give reports which they think will please the authorities. There was a time when Aguinaldo's biggest army held in the balance, when its destruction appeared inevitable. That was when MacArthur had captured San Fernando and Lawton was marching upon San Isidro.

The assassination of Luna was expected to bring the whole Philipino organization toppling down in civil war, but its only result, so far as outward appearances go, was to leave Aguinaldo the undisputed leadership.

Wearing Out the U. S. Army.

The Filipinos read the United States newspapers and think the home sentiment against war is growing. Their policy after the rains will be as it was before—a campaign for gaining time and wearing out their opponents. They profess to imagine that Congress will declare against annexation. If Congress fails them they will try to prolong the struggle until the Presidential campaign, with the expectation that one of the political parties which a party may win declare Imperialism and hope that

To whip them while they are pursuing such tactics, an army will be needed that can move rapidly and strike day after day, follow up a defeat without waiting for rations and thus giving the enemy no time to reorganize. To capture them, most of the generals here think, cavalry will be necessary.

She Came From Ontario.

Vancouver, Aug. 24.—Two weeks ago Annie Nelson retired to rest with a bottle of carbolic acid beside her. This morning the door was forced open, and the police found the remains of the woman in an advanced state of decomposition. Her real name was Tewthuck. She came from near Exeter, Ontario.

A FRENCH CRANK AND HIS FREAK SYSTEM.

M. Bartillon, the Celebrated Anthropometer, Gives Expert Evidence at the Dreyfus Trial.

HIS PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION A FAILURE.

An English Newspaper Man Deposed to the Fact That Esterhazy Confessed to Him That He Wrote the Famous Borderean.

Rennes, Aug. 25.—The court martial of Captain Dreyfus opened at 6.35 a.m. to-day without any extraordinary incident.

The clerk of the court read a medical certificate signed by two doctors whose names were unknown to the audience, declaring it was impossible for Col. Du Paty de Calm to leave his bed to come to Rennes to testify.

Maitre Labori, leading counsel for the defence asked the president of the court, Col. Jouaust, to instruct two well-known medical men to exaine Du Paty de Clam, but Col. Jouaust refused.

Mr. Rolland Strong, an English newspaper man, was then called to the witness bar, and deposed to the fact that Major Count Esterhazy confessed to him that he wrote the famous bordereau.

M. Gobert Pitiful.

The next witness was M. Gobert, ann expert of the Bank of France, who can claim the honor of being the first man in France to have declared in favor of Dreyfus. He reported, on examing the documents in the case that Esterhazy, and not Dreyfus, wrote the bordereau. The witness opened his deposition with a brief personal statement protested against being characterized as a "doubtful expert" by the military party.

"But," he added, in tones of profound pity and turning towards Dreyfus, "I have no right to complain and am silent when I see before me the unfortunate man who sits there."

A murmur of approval from the audience greeted these words of sympathy.

Esterhazy Wrote It.

M. Gobert then repeated the evidence he had given before the Court of Cassation. He gave his testimony in a clear, convincing manner, and was most emphatic in attributing the bordereau to Esterhazy.

Answering questions of the judges, M. Gobert declared his conviction that the bordereau was written in a running natural hand and said there was no tracing or other trickery.

General Gonse asked to be confronted with M. Gobert and put a number of questions, over one or two of which the witness stumbled, to the infinite satisfaction of the military witnesses, who smiled and exchanged joyful glances.

Bertillon Had a Load.

M. Bertillon, the noted anthropometer, or specialist in the measurement of the human body, was then called as the next witness. He wore a dark blue frock coat and, to the general surprise of the audience, entered the court room without a single paper and carrying a high hat in his hand in tead. But the astonishment was short-lived, the first words of M. Bertillon being to request the court to permit his diagrams and papers to be brought in. The request was granted and M. Bertillon retired for a moment. Later he returned at the head of a squad composed of an infantry sergeant and four privates, all staggering under the weight of immense leather satchels, bulging with documents, charts, etc., which they deposited on the stage as a roar of laughter echoed through the court. Even the judges were unable to suppress a smile as they gazed on M. Bertillon's stage properties strewed over half the platform. A table was brought in, upon which the plans he was using could be placed.

Intelligent Men Wanted.

The witness began by saying that only intelligent men could follow his explanations, and the court was half emptied as the audience, after smiling audibly at his extraordinary words and expressions, soon became bored and went out.

M. Bertillon commenced his deposition at 8.50 a.m. It occupied the whole session and will, perhaps, occupy the whole of to-morrow's session. The court room presented a curious scene while M. Bertillon, whom the Dreyfusards in their most indulgent moments describe as a "dangerous maniac," spent the remaining hours of the session in explaining, in unintelligible terms, his "infallible system" of proving Dreyfus was the author of the bordereau. The majority of the people, however, utterly unable to comprehend M. Bertillon's theories had left the court room.

Owl-Like Wisdom.

In the meanwhile M. Bertillon, with gestures and in the shrill, pitched voice of a quack at a country fair, continued his monologue, producing every minute some fresh paper covered with wonderful hieroglyphics, copies of which he presented to the judges, who, with an expression of owl-like wisdom, carefully examined them. Their heads clustered together, their eyes gazing on the long, wide strips of paper while M. Bertillon leaned over their table, trying to explain his mystifying diagrams, which were afterwards passed to M. Labori and Demange, who, however, apparently did not derive much profit from their persual.

A Practical Demonstration.

Dreyfus gazed at the scene with a look of stupefaction. The clearest utterance of M. Bertillon during the course of his demonstration was that the writing of the bordereau "obeys a geometrical rhythm, of which I have discovered the equation in the prisoner's blotting pad." The witness finally announced that he would give a practical demonstration of the writing of the bordereau according to his system. Then he theatrically cleared the desk attached to the witness box, drew his chair nearer, deposited his high hat on the floor, and, sitting down, began copying the bordereau. The audience watched him, bent over the desk, busily drawing letters, the judges gazing at him, until at the end of ten minutes the people and judges became restlessly impatient and Colonel Jouaust remarked that it was not necessary to copy the whole bordereau, and that a few lines would suffice.

A Dismal Failure.

A few minutes later M. Bertillon rose, strode to the judges' table and laid before them his copy. The judges examined it ... commentary. Major Carriere, and the clerk of the court clustered around in one group, eager to see the result. The audience watched this strange spectacle until Colonel Jouaust shrugged his shoulders and then the spectators knew that M. Bertillon had failed to satisfy them.

M. Bertillon noticed this and said, apologetically: "I was too badly placed."

Maitre Demange, of counsel for the defence, returned to counsels' table, and in response to a look of inquiry from Dreyfus, whispered a few words to the prisoner, with a shrug of his shoulders and a smile on his face. Dreyfus appeared perfectly satisfied.

Col. Jouaust then, at 11.45 a.m., adjourned the court, and M. Bertillon packed up his belongings and the soldiers carried them out. To the newspapermen who crowded around Maitre Labori, asking him for his impressions, counsel said there was a certain resemblance to the bordereau, adding: "But that is all. M. Bertilon only did what dozens could do. It only proves a clever forgery. That is all."

A LETTER FOR THE QUEEN.

A German Threw It in Her Carriage.

London, Aug. 25.—Considerable alarm was created yesterday evening by a man throwing a letter into Queen Victoria's carriage as she was driving into Osborne Castle, Isle of Wight.

A rumor spread to the effect that the letter contained an explosive. This turned out to be false. The police quickly arrested the man whose letter was only an appeal to Her Majesty to secure for him a new trial of a civil suit which he recently lost.

The prisoner was found to be a German who was not aware that his action was against the law. As it was evident that he had no intention to do any harm the man was released. The Queen was surprised when the letter fell into her lap, but she betrayed no alarm.

MAY END FATALLY.

A Painter Accused of Assaulting an Old Man.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Wm. Bell, a house-painter, is in jail on a charge of aggravated assault, and Samuel Hogarty aged 80, his alleged victim is in a fair way to die.

Bell was employed to paint a house occupied by the Hagarty's at 33 Harbord street, and was engaged at it on August 19th, when old Mr. Hogarty came along to get some things. Bell it is said, asked his business, and then started to forcibly eject him the result being that the old man fell off the steps and broke two ribs.

He is now very low, and last night an information was laid against Bell. The latter appeared in the police court to-day, and was remanded to wait developments.

Will Test a Court's Decision.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—The police magistrate is seeking to bring about the long desired cancelation of the law forbidding the search of persons arrested for drunkness, and therefore he is sending Michael McEvialy, charged with stabbing a prisoner in the cells, for trial at a higher court, by way of saying to the said higher court, "Now see what you did." McEvielly, who is up in years, was put in the cells at No. 1 police station ten days ago for drunkenness, and got into an altercation with some boys. Another prisoner named William Jordan, also drunk, advised McEvielly to lie down, whereupon, according to his statement, McEvielly buried a jack knife into him.

Bedloe a Traitor?

Washington, Aug., 25.—Consul Edward Bedloe, who has been stationed at Canton, China, during the administration of President McKinley, has been suspended by the State department. Consul Bedloe is said to have granted a certificate of ownership to the steamer Abbey, which was seized by the gunboat McCullough on September 23 of last year, at Batangas, after she landed a cargo of arms and ammunition for the Filipinos.

Money King Meets With Disaster.

London, Aug. 24.—The Leader to-day publishes a despatch from its St. Petersburg correspondent, saying that the suspension of M. Vonderweiss, a millionaire of that city, has produced a depressing effect on the Bourse and in financial circles. His capital was estimated to have been between 50 and 60 million roubles, but after his debts are paid he will scarcely have six million roubles left. His fortune has been largely sunk in a group of undertakings, each one supporting the other. He regarded one of the most important systems of railroads in Russia as his own, and he was connected with this road and a number of steamers plying on the Volga and the Caspian Sea, a machine factokkry, an insurance company, a cement factory, and a number of smaller concerns. It is thought that the failure is likely to ruin many other houses, including that of a Moscow capitalist named Mamatouw, who has suspended for 24,000,000 roubles.

Discrimination Against Canada.

London, Aug. 25.—Hon. R. R. Dobell presided at a meeting of the Canadian marine insurance section of the London Chamber of Commerce to-day to consider whether the time had not now arrived for a reduction in the shipping rates of insurance in Canada. Mr. Dobell quoted figures proving the security of the St. Lawrence route. In 1898, he said, 249 ships containing large cargoes traversed the route, with but one loss, this year to date 198 steamers with no loss. A resolution was passed urging the underwriters to alter the conditions now favoring the United States against Canadian trade.

No Alliance Yet.

Pekin, Aug. 25.—The Japanese mission will return to Tokio to-morrow. Apparently it has accomplished nothing. The Conservative party, headed by Yung-Lu, has influenced the Empress Dowager, unless she seems to have veered again to the conclusion of any alliance. Prince Ching favors an alliance with Japan, but it is inconceivable that he will be able to do anything against the powerful opposition.

ANTI-RITUALIST PARTY

Will Demand Pledges From Different Parliamentary Candidates.

HIS SALARY IS FIXED.

Germans Are Making Special Efforts to Capture Russia's Trade.

A Sailor Jumps Thirty Feet on to a Theatre Stage—Colonel Maxwell's Report Regarding Work in the Soudan—Biggest North Sea Fishing Fleet Being Disbanded.

London, Aug. 25.—Everything at present appears to be going in favor of the anti-Ritualist party in the Church. Contributions to the funds of the Evangelical associations have been larger within the last four weeks than at any former period in its history. The Imperial Protestant Federation has been especially successful in its appeal for contributions to its propaganda. A scheme is now under consideration to establish a corps of electoral lecturers and speakers whose duty it should be to go into constituencies at election election times and demand from candidates a distinct pledge as to their attitude on the Ritualistic question. One of the leaders of the party, Mr. Austin Taylor, has recently received three different invitations to stand for constituencies in East Anglia and the South of England. At this moment the Church Association's electoral organization has 280 branches.

The Premier Fixes His Salary.

Melbourne, Australia, Aug. 25.—In the South Australian Assembly, Mr. Kingston, Premier, hoped that the Governor of Federated Australia would be appointed and paid by the Imperial Government, or alternatively, that his salary will not exceed $15,000.

Jumped From the Gallery.

Portsmouth, Aug. 25.—During a performance at the Empire Palace Music Hall, Portsmouth, a sensation was caused during the singing of Lily Marney of "The Boy in the Gallery' by a bluejacket mounting the box adjoining the gallery and jumping on to the stage, a distance of thirty feet. The sailor, it is supposed, thought that he was "the boy" referred to in the song. Strange to say he was unhurt.

German Eye on Russian Trade.

Bremen, Aug. 25.—The German industrials are making special efforts to capture the Russian markets, being inspired to this attempt by the success of American importers into Russia, and the aggressiveness with which they are occupying the field. An organization has just been formed in Bremen, known as the Germano-Russian Merchants' Association. This association has a branch in St. Petersburg, with large sample room, for the exhibition of German manufactures.

Bridge Nearing Completion.

Cairo, Aug. 25.—Col. Maxwell has returned here from the Soudan. The erection of the Gordon Memorial College, of the palace, and other public buildings at Khartoum is proceeding satisfactorily. No private buildings, however, are being constructed. The Atbara bridge is nearly completed, though bad weather and washouts on the railway have delayed the progress of the work. The crops will probably be good. According to the latest reports the Khalifa is at Gebel Gedir.

Steam's Latest Triumph.

London, Aug. 25.—The Short Blue fishing fleet, consisting of two hundred vessels, which for many years has had its headquarters at Yarmouth, has now begun to lay up in harbor preparatory to its final withdrawal from the industry. The Short Blue fleet has been established for more than a century, and originated in the days of small owners when smacking was very lucrative and fortunes were readily made. Just as steam power ruined home spinning and weaving, so steam trawling has brought about the downfall of fishing by bait. While the southern ports have in recent years developed steam fishing on an immense scale, the older method has continued at Yarmouth, with the result that the competition by steamers has run the industry off its legs. As a thousand or more men are employed on the fleet, the loss to Yarmouth will be considerable.

War Risks Increasing.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—The following despatch was received to-day by commission houses having New York connections. Its interpretation caused considerable discussion, as it is claimed by many traders that it does not refer to risks on vessels and cargoes, but merely a gamble which the company takes that war will result. At any rate it looks as if the chances for war in the Transvaal are less doubtful. London reports Lloyd's war risks on South Africa which were yesterday quoted at 15 guineas are to-day quoted at 30 guineas asked.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 26, 1899

THE SITUATION IN FRANCE.

Treason stalks throughout France. Open foes outside her frontier lines and secret enemies within them menace the republic, and never in her history has she been closer to disintegration than now. From the English capital Louis Philippe of Orleans directs the movements of his factions in Paris, while from another quarter Victor Bonaparte, rival pretender to the throne of France tells his followers how best to affect a Napoleonic restoration. Each princeling looks alone to the interest of a dynasty and the welfare of France has no place whatever in his ambitious schemes.

From the Baltic to the Mediterranean, from partitioned Poland to the Land's End, France has not a single friend to counsel her in peace or flash the sword from its scabbard for her in war. Ever since the disastrous days of Sedan Germany has been eagerly awaiting a pretext to pour her leigons across the Rhine and again lay siege to Paris, Austria remembers her vain appeal to the Third Napoleon to save her from the defeat and humiliation of Sadowa, while Italy has forgotten that the bayonets of France on the fields of Magenta and Solferino placed Victor Emmanuel of Sardinia on the throne of the Caesars. As for England, she made no move toward mediation in the Franco-Prussian war, when her Queen and the Emperor and Empress of the French were so closely associated, and would now rather attack France than save her from attack.

Of all the European powers Russia alone looms up as the friend of France, and to the Russo-French alliance is due, perhaps, the fact that the Dreibund has not made as great a change in the map of Europe as Bismark did in 1870. And yet, strange to say, while Russia's friendship effectually bars an attack on the republic from without, it is calculated to encourage one within the frontier lines of France. While detesting the Duke of Orleans the Czar Nicholas is a personal friend of Prince Victor Bonaparte, and there are those of the latter's adherents who hold that a Bonapartist restoration would not be unpleasing to the Czar, who naturally would prefer as an ally a monarchy to a republic, and that republic is one in which changes of government are the rule and not the exception.

Taken all in all the situation in France just now is critical and unique. Momentous events hang upon the outcome of the Dreyfus trial. Should the prisoner be acquitted there is danger of a military revolt, for those who control the army are the bitterest foes of the persecuted Jew. Should he be convicted the public opinion and national conscience of France would be so outraged and wounded by the verdict that a revolution would be almost inevitable. On the one hand is Scylla on the other Charybdis, and to steer the ship of state safely between the two is a difficult task indeed.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Are the people being too much governed? It would appear so from the fact that in Ottawa the council propose to tax baby carriages. It is quite evident that the Ottawa City Fathers are a bunch of crusty old bachelors.

They in Manitoba, and further west are offering $2 a day for farm hands. Harvest hands can get even more than that, and they are scarce in both sections. One reason for this is that there is a more general disposition to be the man who rings up fares on a street cars than the man who boosts hay with a pitchfork.

An American Senator.

Senator Pipes, a member of the United States Senate, who has been rusticating in Orillia for some time, passed through town on a flying visit to the lakes. He is accompanied by his wife and six children, and is immensely pleased with our inland lakes. Hon. Mr. Pipes was mainly instrumental in breaking up the Louisiana State Battery.

Peterboro Man's Tender Lowest.

The Lindsay Post says—The board of works held a short session this morning to consider tenders for sewers, also the granolithic walk to be built on the north side of Kent-st., between William and Lindsay-sts. Four tenders were submitted for the walk, as follows—J. E. Hayes, Peterboro', 14c per square foot for walk complete, and 35c per lineal foot for granolithic kerb; John McDonald, Lindsay, 22c per square foot, for walk, and 65c for kerb, Jas. Bogue, Peterborough, 22c per square foot for walk, and 65c for kerb. A motion was passed recommending the acceptance of Mr. Hayes' tender. The sewer tenders were refered to Engineer Ashbridge for consideration.

A Big Excursion.

The excursion under the auspices of the Keene Curling Club took place yesterday. Four loaded cars arrived on the Belleville train to Lindsay, where they took the Steamer Crandella and made the circle of the lakes, arriving at Lakefield in time for the evening train to Peterborough, and there to Keene and Campbellford.

His Wonderful Parent.

Papa went a-fishing
With his pockets full of bait;
He went all by his lonesome,
And the luck he had was great.

He came home, bringing with him
A string of fish that weighed
Just twenty pounds, he told us,
And a lovely meal they made.

Papa went a-fishing
Upon another day,
And mama she went with him—
He couldn't say her nay.

They came a-trudging homeward
All tired out at night,
And mama told us papa
Had never had a bite.

My papa's broken records
Of nearly every kind,
A greater man than he is
It would be hard to find.

He's always doing wonders,
But here's what bothers me
He never seems to do them
When folks are there to see

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 3 to 15 per cent. copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRyee, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-cut to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $360, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

* * * "In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl schists extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent. of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendall, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I think it is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper. It is near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oil here because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is adapted to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a town could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($400 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.
George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.
Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.
Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.
Col. James. M. Wheaton, Boston, Secretary.
Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Fx-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allotment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

ARCHER CITY, TEXAS, MAY 3, 1899.

Hon. Emery H. Low, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: * * Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States.

* * The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cuperiferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.

The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formation; and there is no deep work.

I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.

* * As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.

Very respectfully yours,

T. BURTON EVERETT, M. E.

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the nine mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

Commander of a British Warship Repudiates Sizing Up the Yankee General.

HE IS ON HIS WAY HOME.

Commander St. John, of H.M.S. Peacock, En Route to England for a Rest, Invalided.

The Commander Was Made to Say That Gen. Otis Was a Silly Old Fool, an Old Woman and Other Opprobious Things—He Says the Interview Was Untrue and Unauthorized.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Commander St. John of her Majesty's ship Peacock, who is en route to England, is in Toronto for a few days. The commander has just returned from the Philippines, being a passenger on the steamer Empress of Japan, and on reaching Victoria last week was subjected to a serious misrepresentation.

The operations of the United States army on the islands are arousing some controversy, and arrivals from the country are eagerly sought for interviews. The presence of Commander St. John was taken advantage of by a representative of the Victoria Colonist, who printed a long interview, in which the commander is alleged to have caustically criticised General Otis.

One View of Otis.

Commander St. John was made to say that General Otis was a silly old fool, an old woman and other opprobious things; that the mortality among the United States troops was dreadful; that the press censor kept the truth from the people at home; and that the British would eventually be a [illegible] to step in and take over the Philippines. The commander was also reported to have said that there was a deadly jealousy between the United States army and navy and that there was no discipline in the army at all. In fact the interview read like a reports of Captain Cochrane's jingo utterances at the New York dinner.

Denies the Interview.

Commander St. John was affected with sunstroke at Manila and was invalided home. He recovered, however, and his memory was in good working order when he reached British Columbia. He says the interview was totally untrue and unauthorized.

"I have no recollection of being interviewed," said Commander St. John "and as a British officer, even had I been in conversation I would certainly have refrained from any criticism of General Otis or of the United States army. The only comment I could or would make was as to the climate of the Philippine Islands, which is bad, somewhat like that of Cuba."

Even before leaving the Pacific coast the commander took means of denying the language of the interview, instructing the legal firm of Tupper, Peters & Gilmore to communicate with the several newspaper and request publication of a denial in which communication it is said that "Commander P. S. St John instructs us to inform you that an interview appearing in the Victoria Colonist is entirely without his authority. Commander St. John made no criticism of General Otis at the Williams Head quarantine station or elsewhere. He instructs us to require you to publish a repudiation of this article in as conspicuous a manner as you have published the so-called interview, and this without delay."

Fell Forty Feet.

Charham, Ont, Aug. 24.—A very sad accident happened yesterday morning on Wm. McGregor's farm, just outside of the town of Blenhiem, shortly after 7 o'clock whereby a young man named John McLeod will undoubtedly lose his life. He in company with several others was shingling McGregor's barn. In going up on the roof early in the morning, while the shingles were wet, he slipped and fell to the ground, a distance of nearly forty feet, fracturing his scull and injuring his spine. Dr. Hanks was called and gives no hope of his recovery.

A CLEVER RUSE.

The Auctioneer Was Quick Witted and Finally Made a Sale.

An auctioneer on East Washington street—one of those redoubtable individuals commonly termed "slick"—was the cause of a farcical scene recently that would have done credit to a burlesque show. He had been talking industriously for a long time to a crowd of interested but enthusiastic listeners.

The affable auctioneer conscientiously went through his repertory from beginning to end, but somehow the crowd did not "warm up" to him—to quote his own language. Finally, with a dark look that bordered on despair, he grabbed up a well known pasteboard hatbox containing about 50 spools of silk thread of different colors. With the grace of a conjurer he extracted five of the spools, and, arraying them in a tempting semicircle on the counter, announced that they were "to go at any price."

But the audience, while admitting with nods of approval that they were good spools of thread, displayed no marked inclination to become excited over them. Not a bid was offered.

"I'll sell 'em for 10 cents," suggested the auctioneer timidly. It was plain from the tone of his voice that he was losing faith in himself and in all the world. There were no takers. The man of the red flag added three more spools to the semicircle. "All for 10 cents," he declared. But thread stock was far below par. The auctioneer caught up all the spools from the counter and flung them into the box with an impressive gesture. The light of inspiration flashed from his eyes.

"The whole blamed box for 10 cents!" he cried.

"I'll take it," was the prompt response, and a little man in a washed out overcoat and wearer of red chin whiskers stepped out from the crowd with a dirty 10 cent piece in his upraised hand. The auctioneer clutched the money feverishly, and, turning the box upside down so that all the spools dropped into a basket on the counter, he handed the worthless piece of ancient pasteboard to the anxious customer. A roar of hilarious laughter rose from the crowd that was heard throughout that neighborhood.

"I don't want your blamed old box!" wailed the unfortunate purchaser.

"You said you'd take it," replied the auctioneer. "I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came in a strong chorus from the delighted audience.

"I bought the spools!"

"No, you didn't! You bought the box! I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came the answer again, stronger than ever. The red whiskered man stalked indignantly from the place with the box under his arm.

"What you going to do with it?" yelled the crowd.

"That's what!" cried the speculator as he held the pasteboard box in both hands, football fashion, and kicked it vigorously into the middle of Washington street.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Impure water in summer often causes disease among poultry.

The objection to late hatched fowls is the danger of their being stunted.

Poultry matures within a year and is easily changed in any of its characteristics.

Irregular feeding invites derangement of the digestive organs and often causes disease.

In nearly all cases the male imparts the color. When white males are used all the chickens will be white.

Generally, ground bone is one of the best forms in which to give lime to the laying hens when they need it.

By using milk instead of water in mixing the soft [illegible] for fowls it serves both for moisture and nourishment.

One advantage in favor of the white breeds is that the pin feathers do not show so plainly as in the black plumaged birds.

Cornmeal does not contain all the essential elements of growth, and for this reason chickens often die off when fed upon it.—St. Louis Republic.

RAILROAD TIES.

It is proposed to construct a railway in French Guinea.

Khartum will be reached by the railroad by November next, barring accidents. The railroad is now 50 miles south of the Atbara river.

The original capital of the Pennsylvania railroad was $250,000. The system on its fifty-third birthday represented an investment of $900,000,000. Last year it carried 71,000,000 passengers.

An "improvement" introduced by the Great Eastern railway, England, consists in widening the cars to the limit of safety in order to allow six passengers to wedge themselves into one seat.

Smoking In the Dark.

"How can you account for the well known fact that a cigar when smoked in the dark loses much of its flavor?" was asked of an alleged philosopher.

"The reason is," said the philosopher, "that when all the senses are active each sense is more active than it would be if it were doing duty alone. So that when the eye ceases to work the palate and nose become dulled. To express it figuratively, the eye is endowed with a rudimentary power of smell and in the dark loses not only its sight, but its contributing power of smell."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Cost Her Her Reason

A once renowned French actress lost her reason through a trifling occurrence. She was visiting at an ancient chateau, in the vicinity of Mentone, when a friend challenged her to pass the night alone in an alleged haunted chamber. She accepted the challenge. During the night she called for aid, and an attendant found her in a state of pitiful fright through certain uncanny sounds she had heard. Finally she developed a nervous disorder, which culminated in insanity. The ghostly visitants were rats.

Moving Strains.

Elderly Beau (who is making a long call, to fair singer rapturously)—Ah, that song takes me back to the home of my childhood!

Fair Singer's Irrepressible Younger Sister (in a loud whisper)—Can't you sing something that will take him back to the home of his old age?—Harper's Bazar.

Vigorous Language.

"I tell you," said Sammy Snaggs, "that man talked straight from the shoulder."

"Samuel," said Mr. Snaggs severely, "you should not use slang."

"But, father, this was a deaf and dumb man, and he used the sign language."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

SAVED BY A SUSPENDER.

Had Not a Shot Struck It Burdick Would Died.

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 24.—John H. Burdick, a farmer was saved from death yesterday by a suspender buckle.

Joseph W. Starr and Burdick own adjoining farms in Brookfield, five miles from here, and have long been friends. Yesterday Burdick called on his neighbor. The quarrelled and Burdick's wife saw him emerge from the house and stagger down the road toward his own home with his hand clasped over his heart.

Burdick says that Starr became enraged and without warning drew a revolver and fired twice. One bullet went wide, but the other struckk a buckle of Burdick's suspenders and the force of the ball was spent before it entered the flesh and imbedded itself between the ribs after it was deflected.

Burdickk was brought to the hospital in this city, and there is every prospect of his recovery. The doctors declare that the suspender buckle alone saved him from probably instant death. Burdick refuses to make a complaint against his former friend.

A False Jewel.

When Mrs. Smith decided to give a tea party she made up her mind that it should be the event of the season. With that in view she started elaborate preparations, promising Mary, the cook, an extra week's wages if she would do her best to make the party a success. Finding that she would need a girl to help serve the tea she asked Mary if she knew of any one that she could get.

"Sure, mum," answered Mary, "there's me sister what's used to waitin' an' who'l be glad to get the chance, for she's a poor gurl just out of a job."

As Mary herself was a jewel Mrs. Smith did not question her further, and Mary received orders to have her sister on hand.

Mary's sister reported for duty, and Mrs. Smith gave her minute instructions how she should act, wishing to give the guests the impression that she was a regular member of the household.

Things went on swimmingly until Mary's sister, seeing that one of the guests was out of tea, came up and wanted to know if the laidy would have "anither." The guest smilingly answered that she would, whereupon Mary's sister snatching up the cup, brawled across the room in the most approved cheap restaurant code. "Draw one!"

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Houses Burned in Japan.

Vancouver, Aug. 24.—The Kinshu Maru brings news from Japan that in a conflagration the village of Echinjo was wiped out, four hundred houses destroyed and 120 Japanese killed.

A British pilot boat was looted at the mouth of the Yangtse by Chinese pirates. Capt. Roberts was injured by the pirates and removed to Shanghai for medical treatment.

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and oftenlost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the altering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

HE VISITS THE QUEEN.

The British Premier and Her Majesty Discuss the South African Situation.

A THOUSAND MEN EMBARK.

The Manchester Regiment Leaves Gibraltar En Route for the Cape To day.

Germans Will Fight for the Boers—The Reserves Ordered to Hold Themselves in Readiness—Eight Hundred Officers and Men Leave Southampton—Decrease of Warlike Goods in the Transvaal is Necessary.

London, Aug. 24.—The Marquis of Salisbury spent the afternoon and evening with Queen Victoria. It is believed the grave situation of affairs in the Transvaal was partly responsible for the Premier's visit to her Majesty.

Reserves Notified.

Durban, Natal, Aug. 24.—The men belonging to the British first-class reserve residing here have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to re-join their regiments.

Germans Will Fight for Boers.

Johannesburg, Aug. 24.—At a meeting here of two hundred Germans a committee was appointed to express to the Government the willingness of the Germans to volunteer for service in case of war, but requested that they be enrolled in a separate corps on account of the hardships endured by the Germans in the Magato campaign.

A Thousand Men for Cape Colony.

Gibraltar, Aug. 24.—That the imperial authorities are taking a determined stand with President Kruger of the Transvaal is evidenced by the departure of the Manchester Regiment—one thousand strong—for the Cape of Good Hope which took place this morning. This fine contingent of soldiers will go to swell the British force now being prepared in the Cape Colony and Natal to march upon the Transvaal in the event of the failure of diplomacy to master the obstinacy of Oom Paul.

Soldiers Sail from England.

Southampton Eng, Aug 24.—The British steamer Arundel Castle sailed from this port to-day with thirty officers and 770 men of various regiments bound for Cape Town.

Reduction of Armaments.

Cape Town, Aug. 24.—The Delagoa Bay incident, coupled with the recent transit of a large amount of ammunition, has directed the attention of the British officials to the immense accumulation of munitions of war in the South African Republics, especially in the Transvaal. The Uitlanders being debarred from carrying arms, the supply of weapons, as shown in Lorenzo Marquez (Delagoa Bay) returns for three years, is greatly in excess of the burghers' requirements and consequently there is a growing feeling among the British community in South Africa that no settlement of the existing crisis will insure peace unless it includes a provision for the reduction of armaments.

YAQUIS SEVERELY DEFEATED.

Gen. Torres Captures Vicam by Desperate Fighting.

Potam, Aug. 15, via Nogales, Ari., Aug. 24.—On Thursday Gen. Torres gave the order to advance on Vicam. Three sharp engagements were fought before the troops succeeded in entering the stronghold. It required a desperate struggle before the Indians were driven from their position. In three engagements two Mexicans were killed and twenty-two wounded. Forty Yaquis were killed and the number of wounded is heavy.

The Yaquis retreated in the jungle to the southwestward and were followed by Gen. Torres, who overtook them again at a point about two miles below Potam. The Indians numbered about 700, while the General's command was about 1,000 strong. The battle was fought on Aug. 13, and the Mexicans had two men killed and nineteen wounded. Twenty dead Yaquis were found in the holes from which they fought.

Three hundred Yaquis attacked the town of Cumuripa, but were beaten off by citizens after a desperate fight of ten hours. Many were killed.

Three Girls Drowned.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 24.—A sad accident happened on Saturday night at 5 o'clock at the Government bridge over the Amable Dufonde River, about three miles south of the Eucleire station on the C.P.R., in the township of Calvin. Three girls aged respectively 17, 12 and 3 years of age slipped off a boom, and were drowned. They were the daughters of Thomas Walls, a farmer who lives at the bridge. The youngest child was playing on a boom when she fell into the current and her sister aged 12 years jumped in to save her, but the current swept them away to the bridge, on which the eldest, aged 17 saw them. She jumped in too, and all were drowned.

A New Jersey minister has begun a crusade against Sunday funerals. If he should succeed in abolishing the undesirable things entirely, Sundays and weekdays, none of us would rise to file a protest.—Denver Post.

If the fad for sending messenger boys on long journeys takes hold of this country, there will be a rush to secure places in the service only equaled by the strife for the privilege of carrying water to the circus elephant.—Omaha Bee.

Protect us, heaven! They have begun sending snakes to New York druggists through the mail. At least a druggist says he got one. Of course it is possible he may have been putting up rock and rye for medicinal purposes. — Indianapolis Sentinel.

The Rev Winfield Hawkes, who has spent 11 years in Utah, says the Mormon girls favor polygamy and the young men are opposed to it. This is natural. The young men know what it is to have to foot their own bills when they go shopping, and the girls know what it isn't.—St. Louis Republic.

Where the Pot of Gold is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will secure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small place and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annette Halliday-Antona in Woman's Home Companion.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—Youth's Companion

His Prerogative.

Speaking about speeches in the senate, Don Cameron had the record for the senator with the longest service and the shortest speech. The then senator from Pennsylvania spent a good deal of time in the senate chamber, but he always lolled around in his chair, apparently taking no interest in the proceedings. The whole session seemed to bore him until late in the afternoon, when he used to put enough energy in himself to rise in his seat and say to the vice president, "I move the senate adjourn." Toward the end of his service in the senate Mr. Cameron seemed to consider this motion his prerogative, and no one disputed his claim, as it seemed to be the only way of recording his presence.

STRENGTHENING BRITAIN.

Recent Mutiny Shows Englishmen That France is Incompetent.

London, Aug. 24.—Now that the official despatches have confirmed the extraordinary story of the mutiny on the part of French officers in charge of the exploring expedition in the French Soudan, Englishmen are more than ever congratulating themselves on their diplomatic victory in the Fashoda affair. It is reckoned here that this is not only another glaring example of France's utter incompetence as a colonizing nation, but is to be regarded as strengthening England's hand in the whole African question.

Military circles here are already checking two trumps against the opportunity of playing them arising. In the first place they consider that France's predicament for the Dreyfus affair is bound to remain critical long after the trial is over, while the War Ministers and generals confessions that they were absolutely panic-stricken with fear that war might arise in 1891 or 1895 render France incapable of assuming a threatening attitude in order to back up diplomatic fencing. Secondly, the stories of French officers' rule of blood and lust over the unfortunate natives afords England an opportunity of interfering in the French colonial possessions or in districts wherever France may possibly claim rights, on the favorite British plea of acting on humanitarian principles.

In fact, it is not too much to say that Englishmen are beginning to think France entirely a negligible quantity in their schemes and policy the world over.

DAWSON IS OVERSTOCKED.

Too Many Doctors and Lawyers in the Yukon Capital.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Mr. Archie Martin of Aylmer, Que., who went out to the Klondike over a year ago, returned home on Tuesday. Speaking of Dawson City, Mr. Martin said that there were far too many people there. The legal fraternity are coming in by the score and soon they will have to get out or else take a pick and shovel. There are a large number of doctors in Dawson. In fact there are as many doctors as patients, with the result that a number of them have been compelled to seek work with a pick and shovel to keep from starving. It is no uncommon sight to see half a dozen doctors working among the laboring men in the construction of roads. A few months ago these fellows came to Dawson, said Mr. Martin, all dressed to kill. They put out their shingles and commenced to practise. The practice did not materialize, and as their money ran out they had to accept the only other way of living, that is by hard work.

Hutton's Criticism.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Major-General Hutton inspected to-day the Royal Regiment of Canadian Infantry in camp here.

It was noticed that the movements were much more steadily performed in company drill under the drill sergeants than under the officers.

The General was especially severe on all officers made by the officers.

LAKEFIELD'S CIVIC HOLIDAY.

How the Day Was Observed in Peterboro's Lively Suburb.

Thursday was Lakefield's Civic holiday, and the citizens united in making the day a pleasant one. The committee in charge engaged the fine band of the 57th Battalion, which rendered a fine programme of music on the market square in the evening to some thousands of thoroughly delighted spectators. The committee consisted of Rev. G. Warren, chairman, Messrs. T. H. Benson, treasurer, R. C. Strickland, R. J. Munro, J. H. Sherin, G. Newbury and J. W. Lidpath. The principle event was which took place in the harbor. Almost the entire surface of the water was covered with crafts of every description, while the band was stationed on the barge which was moored alongside the island opposite. The first event was the Men's Double Canoe Race—The entries were Abel Hendren and R. C. Strickland, Rollie Richardson and Geo. Baptie, M. Strickland and Percy Blomfield, David Miller and J. G. Brown and the McIlmoyle Brothers, of Deer Bay. This was a sharply contested race and resulted as follows 1st, McIlmoyle Bros.; 2nd, M. Strickland and Percy Blomfield; 3rd, Abel Hendren and R. C. Strickland. Objection was made to the McIlmoyle Bros. as professionals, and if the protest is allowed, the prizes will go to the next two teams.

Men's Single Canoe Race—This race brought entries from Charles Mathias, town; Reg. Blomfield, Mel. Strickland, D. Miller, C. Blomfield and Joseph Payne. This was a spirited race. Reg. Blomfield won easily with Strickland, 2nd, and D. Miller, 3rd. Charlie Mathias claimed that he was fouled when he had second place at his paddle's end. But for this he would have won which is admitted by [illegible]. The committee decided that Strickland, who was awarded second the race was to be rowed over again for the contestants for second place but as the second paddle was called immediately after the swimming race, in which Charlie won third place he of course was too fatigued to undertake so long a paddle. This protest stands.

Ladies double canoe race—The entries were Misses Etta and Ada Cox, Miss Strickland and Miss Jones, Miss E. Strickland and Miss C. Strickland, Miss Ethel Blomfield and Miss Edith Griffin. The first entry, after a lively paddle won first place and the last entry, second place.

For the girls' double canoe race the only entries were Miss Ethel Cox and Miss Maggie Kennedy.

The ladies and gentlemens double canoe race brought out five entries—Miss Kate Blomfield and Mr. Reg. Blomfield, Miss Clementine Strickland and Mr. Frank Gordon, Miss Ella Cox and Mr. Dan Morin, Miss Ethel Blomfield and Mr. Mel. Strickland, and Miss Ada Cox and Mr. George Baptie. The first place was an easy prey to the Blomfield "party"—Miss Kitie and Mr. Reg.—the youngest pair in the quintette and second place fell to Miss Ethel Blomfield and Mr. Mel. Strickland..

Boys double canoe race—For this three entries lined up—Masters Charlie Blomfield and Guillyme Dunn' Bruce Ridpatch and Norman Bell, C. Gordon and Allan Moodie. The winning was in the order of entries.

Boys single canoe race was contested by Masters Charlie Blomfield 1st and Bruce Redpath 2nd.

The mens' skiff race attracted the biggest fleet of the contest. Those entering were Messrs. E. R. Tate R. Cockburn Mc. Strickland, Dan. Morin George Brown, Charlie Blomfield and Frank Morin. It was a hard pull race but there was a nasty mix-up at the middle, being something very like fouling. First prize was awarded Mr. E. R. Tate and second to Mr. Mel. Strickland.

The hurry scurry race was contested by Messrs. Reg. Blomfield, C. Mathias, C. Blomfield and Mel. Strickland. Reg. Blomfield 1st., and C. Mathias 2nd.

Upset race—Entries, Messrs. Mel. Strickland, C. Mathias and Reg. Blomfield. In this event the canoe is overturned at a signal in the course emptied of water, righted and the paddle continued. Reg. Blomfield achieved marvellous expertness in overturning, emptying and righting his canoe—in fact he doubly won first place. He overturned and righted his canoe twice to his opponents' once, and came in first under the wire on a canter. Charlie Mathias 2nd. Mel. Strickland's canoe became permanently foundered and had to be towed, while he swam ashore.

There were three contestants in the tub race which was won by Bruce Ridpath 1st; Allan Moodie 2nd.

The swimming race brought out five entries, C. Mathias, W. Watson, Fred Mason, Gordon Hendren and Reg. Blomfield. Blomfield was "in the swim" in the end as he was in the beginning, and won first place easily, Fred Mason 2nd, and Charlie Mathias, 3rd.

This ended the regatta, which afforded a delightful afternoon's sport. "God Save the Queen" from the band on the barge brought the daylight event of a delightful afternoon's sport to an end.

In the Evening.

In the evening the 57th band delighted the villagers with a splendidly performed programme of popular music. The concert was given on the market square and lasted till 9.30. The splendid music of the band was highly appreciated and very heartily applauded. It is, we learn the intention of the villagers to have the band give periodical concerts in the village, the first [illegible] place early in September.

After the concert the regatta prizes were presented to the lucky winners, and thus happily ended a most successful celebration of Lakefield's civic holiday.

IS FACED BY THREE WIVES.

Louis Newman's Fourth Spouse is Now Diligently Sought.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Louis Newman, confessed bigamist, well known in Peterborough, Ont., faced three of his wives in Justice Sabbath's crowded courtroom yesterday, and the fourth is yet to come from Toronto, Ont.. When his first wife and baby appeared on the scene the other day and found him living with another spouse and their child Newman figuratively threw up his hands. He admitted that he was a bigamist, but said he couldn't help it—he was drugged and married to one of his wives without his knowledge. When informed that the whole story of a third wife in Canada was known he denied all knowledge of her until confronted with so many facts that he could not deny them. And his hands figuratively went up still higher. But when the fourth wife appeared suddenly in police court with a strange tale of a false divorce and of a Jewish "get" later, his hands could not be elevated any more. He collapsed.

The charge of wife abandonment against him was dismissed, and he was promptly rearrested on a bigamy warrant sworn out by his first wife, Rachel Firoth Newman. Justice Sabbath will hear testimony on this charge Wednesday afternoon.

All three of the Mmes. Newman have snapping black eyes, and it was a question whose orbs flashed the most indignation yesterday. The latest wife to appear on the scene had been separated from Newman for some time. Her name was Rose Karsten and she lived at 178 Liberty-street. As far as can be ascertained, she is the wife No 3. She married the tailor a year ago and was herself a married woman at the time. When he proposed to her she told him that a wedding between them was impossible for that reason, but he came to her in a short time with a man who he said was an officer of the law, with full power to grant divorces. The supposed officer corroborated Newman's statement.

"I will divorce you," he said. "You are free to marry Newman.'

She did not understand much about American customs, and so she consented to the ceremony. After they had lived together five weeks she discovered her bad predicament from a legal and social standpoint and demanded a divorce. Newman gave her a "get," or Jewish divorce, valueless under the state law. She had not heard of him until his arrest. She decided of him until his arrest. She decided then to join his prosecutors, and so appeared without warning in court.

Word is daily expected from the Toronto wife, who has been sent for.

A FRIEND OF THE NEGRO.

LILLIAN CLAYTON JEWETT'S ANTI-LYNCHING CRUSADE.

The Girl Who Brought the Baker Family to Boston.

A new emancipator, or emancipatress, if you will, of the negroes has arisen in the person of Miss Lillian Clayton Jewett a young Boston woman, who has just achieved prominence and fame, bringing north the family of Postmaster Baker, who was the victim of the last southern lynching at Lake City, S. C. Miss Jewett's idea is to use this family as an object lesson to stir up public opinion against such crimes as the one of which the father of the family was a victim.

Miss Jewett did not have everything her own way, even among the negroes, whose race she is trying to benefit. Nevertheless, the Lillian Clayton Jewett Anti-Lynching League is now gaining followers rapidly. The movement began with her raising $1,000 to bring from Charleston, N. C., the family of Baker, and to present the widow and children to northern audiences. Miss Jewett's plan stirred some of the negro people of Boston, particularly the members of the Coloured National League and the New Era Club, of which Mrs. Josephine St. Pierre Ruffin is president, on account of personalities, and within two weeks the opposition twice came near developing into riots. The opposers to the scheme had tried to carry out the same project, but, for lack of sympathy, had to sidetrack it. Hence the opposition which has now somewhat abated.

Miss Jewett, who is looked upon by many of the negro people as a modern Joan of Arc, is 24 years old, Boston born, boarding school bred, and is still under the guiding care of her mother. She looks like an attractive summer girl, has rather light hair and baby-eyes. She is certainly not an orator, and whatever she may accomplish in the way of missionary work will hardly be due to her eloquence.

In her first campaign speech, at the Revere street Baptist church, she did not appear to be particularly embarrassed at finding herself before an audience, but she did seem to be at a loss as just what to say. Practically all she said was—"I can only tell you how grateful I am to you for trusting in me, and thank you for dedicating your league to me. I hope you will tell your friends that there are to be 10,000,000 signatures on our membership roll, and that they are to be backed by law and liberty. When the league is perfected we shall see who shall have a voice in the United States."

Miss Jewett is not only a philanthropist but an author. Owing to ill health, partially up to this time she has contented herself with short flights, but looks forward to the early completion of her first long novel. The story which has gained her the widest reputation is that known as "Life's Passionate Guest," published about a year ago under the name of Clark Jewett.

Of the South and the negroes and lynching she lately said—"I have no wish to favour the black man who commits a crime, but whatever his crime may be it is no worse because his skin is black. The people of the North must act, and if I may be their leader, or if I may inspire in the heart of some more able person the leadership, I shall be satisfied. Boston may well be the centre of the movement that shall make known every injustice to the black man and gain to him the rights and privileges which were accorded him when the Emancipation Proclamation was signed. My only purpose in bringing the Baker family to Boston, is to let the people see these helpless children, that maimed and destitute mother, whose husband was killed for no other reason than that a black man, under the provisions of our Government, an office which was desired by a white man. And if their coming to Boston is not the beginning of the end of lynching in the South, I shall be very much much mistaken in the people of New England."

Physicians as a class are opposed to what they call "patent medicines." It is not often they openly endorse them. Now and then, however, some doctor, who has been the eye witness of a remarkable cure by the use of Dr. Pierce's remedies, feels it a duty to tell what he knows. Dr. Joseph Fike, of Lost Springs, Marion Co., Kansas, is such a man. He writes: "I am using a good many of your medicines in my practice. Ten years ago I had a patient who was badly affected with scrofula. Her mouth and throat were in an awful condition, and there were lumps on the outside below the jaws the size of a hen's egg. Other doctors said it was a fatal case. I felt confident that none of my remedies would benefit her. It came to my mind that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended for such cases, so I went to the drug store and bought one bottle and gave it to her to use as directed. Five bottles cured her, and she is well to-day."

For more than thirty years Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has enjoyed a far larger practice than many physicians who charge large fees for advice. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made without alcohol, and is a preparation based upon his extended experience with disease. It is a temperance medicine, pure and simple, and without alcohol, whiskey, sugar or syrup to preserve its properties, keeps perfectly in any climate for any length of time. Others may imitate the remedy; they cannot imitate its cures. Let no one talk you into using an imitation medicine as a substitute for Dr. Pierce's. Sick people who cannot visit Buffalo may consult Dr. Pierce by mail. He gives free, fatherly advice for treating and curing diseases of a chronic, obstinate and lingering nature. No charge is made for such consultation.

Found Guilty.

Amos Wright, a Galway farmer, was charged in county police court yesterday with malicious destruction to property in that he shot two pigs belonging to a neighbor. He pleaded not guilty but was found guilty in a case lasting about three hours. He was remanded till Monday for sentence.

Pointed a Gun.

At the county police court yesterday morning, a North Monaghan man named Jackson was charged by a neighbor named Karr with pointing a gun at him in retaliation for the latter having set his dog at Jackson's cow while it fed along the road. From the evidence it seemed that Jackson had no intention of shooting but he frightened his man and in so doing was guilty of common assault. He was fined $1 and costs.

FOR STEALING A HORSE.

Eugene Daly of Norwood Arrested Yesterday in Town.

Chief Rossel arrested a man named Eugene Daly, charged with stealing a horse belonging to a Norwood livery man. It appears that Daly hired a horse last Tuesday to drive to Havelock. He was traced to the mines near Havelock, and thence to town. When he reached town it is alleged that he tried to dispose of the animal, but was arrested before he succeeded in doing so.

Police magistrate Dumble, before whom he appeared last night, remanded him until next Friday at ten o'clock.

A Sad Death.

A private funeral took place yesterday from the residence of Mr. J. Titterson, when the remains of the late Rev. H. Gurney of Freelton Baptist church were carried to their last resting place in Little Lake cemetery.

The Rev. gentleman's death was a particularly sad one, ending a life of usefulness and promise. He was taken ill with appendicitis and after six day's illness was operated on, but survived the operation only a few hours. He was 37 years of age, and leaves a wife and two boys to mourn his sad and untimely end.

He was a brother-in-law of Mr. Titterson and the remains were brought here last night. They were accompanied by his wife and two brothers, Mr. Frank of Detroit, and Mr. Walter, of Toronto.

The "City" in Town.

The steamer City of Peterborough, which ran aground at Hastings was got afloat yesterday at four o'clock in the afternoon, and reached her wharf in town at midnight. She will therefore, run her regular afternoon trip to Jubilee this afternoon, leaving at two p.m.

A Pleasant trip.

A family party consisting of Mrs. A Rose, Miss Rose, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Dickson, Buffalo; Mrs. M. W. Brandon, and Miss Fanny Brandon, Fenelon Falls; Mr. W. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Robertson and Miss Mattie Robertson, Peterborough, enjoyed a delightful trip per city of Peterborough to Hastings on Wednesday, returning in the evening by train. Mr. Dickson says that if the people of Buffalo only knew of the beauty of these water stretches they would flock over here in hundreds every summer. He is of the opinion that it would pay the people at various points on our back lakes to club together and advertise them extensively on the other side. He thinks a little pamphlet, showing views of the lakes, together with a description of how to reach the various points, and hotel accommodation with rates, would be just the thing. The Times thinks so too.

Cleared Up.

Despatch from Ottawa says—The Standard Bank officials have been notified, it is alleged, that the mystery surrounding the robbery of $11,000 on May 13th last from the Bowmanville branch has been cleared up, and six men are now in Hull gaol who have been identified by the night watchman as having been seen by him in the bank on the night of the robbery. It is understood that Chief Genest notified Provincial Detective Jos. Rogers that he had arrested men against whom he had proof implicating them in the crime. Their names are given as James Collins, Wm. Hastings, John Murray, William Gilmour, William Johnson and Pat Ryan. The men were arrested and convicted of vagrancy, and during their term Chief Genest has been able to work out his clues. has secured the work.

Local Contractors Abroad.

The Works Committee of the Lindsay Council recently advertised for tenders for the construction of 5,000 feet of sewers and a block of granolithic sidewalk. Mr. James Bogue, Peterborough's hustling contractor, tendered for the work as also did Mr. Jack Hayes. It is not yet known who

A New Flavor for the Coffee

ADD

Grape-Nuts

A COMBINATION OF BEVERAGE WITH FOOD.

Coffee in itself contains no nourishment we all know, but when two teaspoons of Grape-Nuts food are added to a cup of coffee, a new flavor is found and the best of nourishing food obtained.

It is a novel experience in food and drink and worth trying. People who cannot digest coffee will find Postum Cereal Coffee, when properly boiled, a charming beverage with coffee taste and color, but with great food value, being in reality a food drink. Grape-Nuts stirred into hot Postum gives one an ideal combination.

ANOTHER DROWNING ACCIDENT

The Otonabee Claimed Another Victim Yesterday Evening.

A drowning accident occurred yesterday afternoon about five o'clock at Nassau. It appears that a young man named Joseph Starr, a resident of Ashburnham, employed by the Rathbun Company, whose logs are now in the river undertook to run the slide at Nassau in a punt. The punt struck the side of the slide in some way, and went over the slide sideways. When it reached the foot of the slide it capsized. Starr made frantic efforts to catch the boat, but the current carried him down, and he disappeared. The deceased was about 35 years of age, and was a member of the Sons of England fraternal society. The body has not been recovered.

THE CORRIGAN CASE.

A Portion of the Evidence Taken Yesterday Morning.

The adjourned hearing of the Corrigan case was begun before Magistrate Dumble this morning, in the police court.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey gave evidence as to the date of the girl's baptism and her age.

The father of the girl also gave evidence regarding her age, stating that she was born in November 1884. Witness also stated that the girl was always in the house at nights whilst she lived at home. She had come up to Peterborough on occasions but always returned home before dark, except on one occasion when some boys walked part of the way back with her and a younger sister. The boys wanted the girl to return to Peterborough again the following day, but she began work at Doughty's instead. She only remained at Doughty's the one day and had afterwards got into the trouble which was the cause of the case in court.

The taking of evidence was not concluded at yesterday's sitting of the court, and will be continued this morning.

Many Happy Returns.

Edward Gottfried, for twenty years past a resident of Peru, has filed a claim at the state department, Washington, for $100,000 damages against the Peruvian government for injuries inflicted on his person by the rebels during the revolution in Peru last year. Money was demanded of Gottfried and when he refused, the rebels dragged him through the public streets of Hocamanchuro and on the public square, strung him up by the thumbs and beat him with their guns. He suffers from his injuries.

Gottfried's property was also badly damaged. It is understood that the Peruvian government will set up the plea that foreigners were on the same footing

KRUGER'S SPIES SPYED

The Portuguese Authorities at Delagoa Bay Make Several Arrests.

EXCITEMENT ON THE COAST

And Troops Kept in Readiness to Repel Transvaal Raid Upon Coverted Land.

The Position in the Transvaal is That of Marking Time—Nothing is Yet Definitely Known of the Contents of the Transvaal Government's Reply to the Demands of Great Britain.

Laurenzo Marquez, Delogoa Bay, Aug. 27.—Several persons suspected of being emissaries of the Transvaal Government has been arrested here. Excitement prevails, and in view of a contemplated Transvaal raid the Portuguese troops are kept in readiness for an emergency.

More Gold Shipments.

London, Aug. 27.—The position of the South African trouble is that of marking time. Nothing is yet definitely known of the contents of the Transvaal Government's reply to the demands of Great Britain, though it is practically certain it makes alternative proposals, as already cabled to the Associated Press, and it is rumored from Pretoria that it proposes to leave the suzerainty question quiescent and asks Great Britain to accept the principle of arbitration, but not by the subjects of foreign powers. In the absence of exact details this is regarded favorably as an indication that the negotiations will continue. Further gold shipments to Cape Town for war purposes are reported to be imminent, the gold usually shipped to San Francisco being diverted thither.

The Grapes Are Sour, Says The Standard.

London, Aug. 26.—The Government blue book on the Boer troubles has been issued. It gives the history of the Transvaal negotiations up to date and tells of the efforts of Mr. Chamberlain to secure the arbitration of the whole question before some independent and impartial tribunal and of the Government's rejection of President Kruger's scheme for arbitration.

The pressure upon the Transvaal is getting strenuous. From Johannesburg comes the news that the Imperial Government has notified the Transvaal that colored British subjects must be exempt from the law removing the colored population to a location outside the town.

At Amsterdam to-day a meeting of the citizens passed an expression of sympathy with the Transvaal in its dispute with Great Britain. A resolution was adopted declaring that the Transvaal had a right to sovereign autonomy, and that those who were pressing for war were most wrongly informed.

Sanitation In The Field.

The army medical service to-day cabled Surgeon-General Sternberg of the United States army, asking him for three hundred copies of his publication called "Sanitary Lessons of the War." The copies will be distributed among the medical officers of the British army. The cable request is another indication of the rapid preparation being made for a possible war in South Africa.

The morning papers are unanimous in their support of Mr. Chamberlain's policy as disclosed by the blue book. They are convinced that he has determined not only on franchise reform but on securing general improvement of the Uitlanders.

Worthless Territory.

The Standard says—"Nobody in England wants war, and the Government is doing all it can to avoid a rupture. Still less do we want the Transvaal itself. Apart from its gold reefs, its territory is almost worthless. Its mines will probably be exhausted in half a century. We do not desire the Boers as fellow subjects; we do not want another Ireland. It is merely political justice that the Government is determined to obtain."

Financial Crisis in Turkey

Berlin, Aug. 27.—The Lokal Anzeiger publishes the following despatch from Constantinople: "A financial crisis is imminent. The Ottoman exchequer is empty. The Finance Minister, Reshad Bey has fled from those seeking payments and has taken refuge in a private residence, which is now under the protection of the police.

Telegraph to Dawson.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—A report had just been received from Mr. J. B. Charleson, superintendent of the Yukon telegraph construction, which indicates that, whatever it may be costing, he is certainly rushing the work. Already there is telegraphic communication between Skaguay and Selkirk, and, according to the latest report, the line is now within 150 miles of Dawson City, so that by the 15th or 20th of September Dawson will be telegraphically connected with the coast.

CANNOT OBTAIN THE NECESSARY PROOFS

So Recourse Has Been Had to a System of Espionage Upon Letters for German and Italian Governments.

IS COLONEL MAUREL A LIAR ?

The President of the First Court-Martial Utterly Discredited. Scene in Court Shows Maurel and Mercier in Odious Light.

London, Aug. 27.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "Italy and Germany have obtained proofs that diplomatic correspondence passing between Paris and other places is systematically opened. This has been the case particularly since the campaign against Dreyfus began, the French War Office having sought proofs to strengthen the accusation against him. Questions on this subject will be asked in the Italian Parliament."

Bertillon Not Taken Seriously.

Rennes, Aug. 25.—When the court-martial of Captain Dreyfus began early this morning in the Lycee, M. Alphonse Bertillon, chief of the anthropometric department of the Paris Prefecture of Police, resumed his testimony, interrupted yesterday by the adjournment of the court for the day. In this case M. Bertillon is testifying as a handwriting expert and gave his reason for believing Dreyfus to be the author of the famous bordereau, upon which the prosecution mainly depends to establish the charge against the prisoner.

The comic aspect of M. Bertillon's performance again appealed to the risibilities of the audience, though the judges paid close attention to his demonstrations which were concluded at 8:30 a.m., the witness saying in a declamatory tone: "I am convinced the writer of the bordereau is the prisoner sitting there."

Dreyfus Disdainful.

Dreyfus heard him without flinching and with an expression of disdain, which he showed in a still more noticeable manner just before the specialist's testimony, when M. Demange handed him a paper which M. Bertillon had submitted to the judges as convincing proof of the guilt of the accused. The prisoner perused it for a few moments and then handed it back with a shrug of his shoulders and without uttering a word.

A Dramatic Scene.

There was a highly dramatic scene towards the end of the session. Maitre Labori, leading counsel for the defence, asked to have Major Freystatter, one of the members of the court-martial of 1894, which convicted Dreyfus, called in contradiction of the deposition of Col. Maurel, the presiding judge upon that occasion who had testified that he only read one of the documents out of the secret dossier communicated to the court martial.

The Major, who is a finely-built officer, and who has a handsome, honest face, ascended the platform with a firm step and a fearless air. When he was asked to recount what occurred he said his conviction of the guilt of the prisoner was formed by the evidence of the experts in handwriting, the deposition of Colonel Du Paty de Clam "and," he continued, "I must add, some slight influence was exercised over my mind by hearing the secret dossier read."

Called Maurel a Liar.

The witness was then questioned as to whether one or more of the documents were read and he said there were all read. This was in direct contradiction of Colonel Maurel, and M. Labori at once demanded the attention of Major Freystatter with Colonel Maurel. The latter mounted the stage and presented a miserable object, his shifty eyes peering out beneath heavy eyebrows and looking around with a vicious hang-dog look. "How do you explain this?" asked M. Labori.

Then the colonel, at bay, replied saying: "I said I only read one document. I did not say only one document was read."

The Colonel Hissed.

This statement called forth an outburst of hisses and indignant oh's from the audience, which looked upon it as an infamous confession. The witness, trembling with shame, but evidently determined to fight to the last, threw a fierce look of hatred at M. Labori and the audience as the gendarmes shouted "Silence!" silence.

After this the audience listened spellbound as Major Freystaetter, in a distinct, bold voice, told exactly what the documents of the dossier were and how Col. Maurel not only read these documents but made comments upon them. This was practically calling Maurel a thorough liar, and the Colonel glared at the Major ferociously.

Freystaetter, however, was not dismayed, and his words, spoken in a tone of candor and fearlessness, must have carried conviction to every heart.

Two Villains Together.

General Mercier then asked to be heard, and placed himself beside Maurel. The forbidding appearance of these two men, both addressed in civilian attire was in striking contrast with the erect unflinching attitude of Freystaetter who wore the smart uniform of a major of artillery, with medals on his breast. It was a remarkable scene.

"It Is a Lie."

General Mercier at once denied Major Freystaetter's declaration that the Panizzardi despatch was contained in the dossier. "It is a lie." Tremendous sensation.

Major Freystaetter, however, was undaunted, and replied firmly, looking Col. Jouaust straight in the face.

"I swear that what I have said is true."

"And," Freystaetter added, "I do not merely remember the despatch, but I have a vivid recollection of the fact that the first words were "Dreyfus is arrested. Embassy warned."

This emphatic declaration increased the sensation. General Mercier then made the self-saving reply that he did not make up the dossier, which was made up by the late Col. Sandherr, Chief of the Intelligence Department. M. Labori was hotly indignant at Gen. Mercier's equivocation, and asked Col. Jouaust again and again to have special doctors to make an official examination of Col. du Party de Clam to see if he was really incapable of giving evidence. But the president of the court refused, whereupon M. Labori, beside himself, cried: "Col. Sandherr is dead, Col. Henry is dead, and Col. Du Paty de Clam won't come here."

Labori Boils with Anger.

Then counsel sat down, boiling with indignation. Col. Jouaust told M. Labori not to make observations. Dreyfus said he had nothing to ask the witnesses. Col. Maurel, General Mercier and Major Freystaetter then left the stage and were followed by an expert in handwriting. The scene to-day showed both Col. Maurel and General Mercier in an odious light. Maurel was shown to put it mildly, not to have told the truth, while Mercier, when cornered, threw the awkward responsibility for the illegalities of the court martial of 1894 on dead men, as M. Labori pointed out, and to which counsel was severely reprimanded by Colonel Jouaust. The audience held their hearts in their mouths from the moment Major Freystaetter opened his lips until the three confronted witnesses left the stage and every moment a murmur of disgust and the growing cry of "Oh" burst from the hearers.

Mercier's Accusation

General Mercier accused Major Freystaetter of lying in the matter of Robin Shell, concerning which there is a report accusing Dreyfus of communicating the details of the shell to Germany. Freystaetter had said that it was included in the secret dossier. "I have caught Major Freystaetter in the very act of lying," said General Mercier, amid the greatest excitement in court, "for the Robin shell was not delivered until 1895."

Major Freystaetter replied, promptly maintaining the truth of his previous statements, and he spoke like an honest man. Col. Maurel on the other hand when driven to confess, told untruths and tried to wiggle out of it. He presented a desperate appearance, his voice broken as though choking, while his limbs were shaking with suppressed furious passion.

The court adjourned at 11.50.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

THE GUERINITES SUICIDED ?

Black Flag Out And No One to be Seen And No Answer to Ring at Door.

Paris, Aug. 27.—6.30 a.m.—All was quiet in the vicinity of rue Chabrol throughout the night, but at 4 o'clock this morning a black flag appeared in the attic windows. Some days ago M. Guerin stated that in the event of his death the party would hoist the black flag. It is known that two of the party have been ill, one seriously, from congestion of the lungs. Guerin however, resumed his watch on the roof at 5 a.m.

By permission of the police commissary, the Abbe de Sers to-day several times rang the door bell of the house, but received no reply. He renewed his efforts to communicate with the occupants later, but with the same result. The Abbe said he had listened intently but could hear no sound inside the building except the ringing of the bell. He added: "I do not believe, however, that there has been a general suicide of the inmates. The suicide theory is not in accordance with Guerin's ideas."

M. Guerin's brother, Louis, was asked to try to communicate with the besieged party, but he refused to do so.

Stonehenge For Sale.

London, Aug. 27.—A curious craze has sprung up for the protection of landmarks and places of historical interest against the assaults of American millionaires. Stonehenge is the latest monument which is alleged to be threatened, and the newspapers are now lashing the public into a patriotic fervor, subsequent to the announcement that it is for sale. Thomas Hardy, the novelist, is among those who have been writing to the papers urging the Government to purchase Stonehenge. An official of the Antiquarium Society says an American speculator has already made an offer with the view of transporting Stonehenge to the United States. A committee, supported by the Prince of Wales, is trying to secure for the nation the late Lord Leighton's house. This is also threatened according to rumor, by American capital. But, it is rather believed that the furore originates in the shrewd methods of selling agents who wishing to stimulate the market, invent the reports of American enterprises when appealing to British patriotism. This, apparently, is not meeting with much practical success, for, in spite of rumors to the contrary, the famous Lakes of Killarney are still for sale.

Europeans Are Ahead.

London, Aug. 27.—Congressman Geo. Edmund Foss, of Chicago, has completed an inspection of the Armstrongs' works, the Thompsons works, the Fairfield, Liverpool and Belfast shipyards and the Vickers-Maxim works. Mr. Foss says—"I was much impressed, especially with the Vickers-Maxim establishment. Their facilities for manufacturing and placing guns on board ships are not equalled. From the results of my extended trip I have come to the conclusion that the European are far ahead of us in naval stations, yards and docks. We are not the only people on earth, and we have much to learn. One of the first measures I intend to introduce is for a national naval reserve body upon which the nation can call in the hour of need without having to consider the feelings of each State's organization."

War on Christian Science.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25.—The death of James Vantist Hedenburg, 12 years old, at Needham, Friday night after eighteen day's treatment by two Christian Science healers, has aroused bitter feelings in that rich old town, and the seven local physicians have decided to carry the case into court. Their object is to ascertain the status of Christian Scientists and it is a test case that will attract widespread attention.

McKinley's Foreign Policy.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 26.—President McKinley, addressing 12,000 persons in the Auditorium here yesterday afternoon, declared his policy in the Philippines as follows—

"Peace first, then, with charity for all, establish a government of law and order, protecting life and property, and education for the well-being of the people who will participate in it under the Stars and Stripes."

Sir Charles Tupper's Plain Talk Hit the United States Embassy Hard—It is Claimed There That Sir Charles Quite Misrepresented the Facts and That Delay Was Entirely Due to Canadians.

London, Aug. 27.—Upon authority of undoubted reliability a representative of the Associated Press has ascertained that into the Alaskan dispute there has crept the craftiness of Russian diplomacy. Russia, it can be stated, will do everything, with all possible energy, to prevent the practical cohesion of the two great English-speaking nations. In all her embassies instructions have been received to thwart the Anglo-American understanding.

A prominent diplomat, who is intimately acquainted with the details of the negotiations of the past years, said to the representative of the Associated Press—

"In any arrangement looking to a working agreement between England and the United States, Russia sees the defeat of her dearest projects. I believe her intense activity in China is to no small extent due to her fear that Anglo-Saxon power, once centralized, will sweep everything before it in the Far East. Dreading the rapid realization of this nightmare, she is making hay while the sun shines, intriguing the utmost to tie the hands of those who are working to materialize Anglo-American sentiment.

Russia Distorts Facts.

"The latest evidence of this is in the Alaska affair. Though, strictly speaking, it is a matter of internal politics and would have been settled long ago if left solely to Great Britain and the United States. Russia has managed adroitly to suggest motives never dreamed of by Americans, by distorting these. It is impossible for me to divulge exactly how or to what extent Russia has her paws into the dispute. But the attitude of her press, official to the core, is quiet sufficient to show her motives."

Caused Dissatisfaction.

The report that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier of Canada, and Sir L. H. Davies, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, are to come here in regard to Alaska is thought at the Canadian High Commissioner's office to be quite probable, but nothing is known definitely of the matter. Both there and at the United States Embassy it was said that the state of negotiations had not changed and is spoken of rather wearily. The caustic remarks of Sir Charles Tupper, formerly Canadian High Commissioner, in the interview which a representative of the Associated Press had with him on Aug. 18, when he said the United States was purposely delaying the settlement of the Alaska dispute on account of the pecuniary benefit accruing to miners and coast cities through the delay and had refused to have the boundary delimited, as was being done in Venezuela, created considerable dissatisfaction at the United States Embassy.

Facts Were Misrepresented.

It was claimed there that Sir Charles Tupper quite misrepresented the facts, and that the dilatoriness was entirely due to the Canadians. It was also said that his declaration that the commission proposed by the United States provided for no umpire was a deliberate evasion, as the facts are the United States proposal included an umpire to be chosen by both sides from North America. Though this was not committed to writing, it was thoroughly understood. The hitch came through the absolute refusal of the Canadian to accede, they insisted upon a European umpire. It may be said that the impression exists that Canadian politics are chiefly responsible for the Alaskan impasse. This is not only the American idea, but it obtains among some of the British officials, though most of the latter are inclined to believe the United States should make vast concessions in order to convince true British of the sincerity of their friendship and as a return of the war services. In other words, the British now rather expect a quid pro quo, an expression not uncommon in these days.

Will Was Not Signed.

Hamilton, Aug. 26.—The late S. E. Treble, who died suddenly last Tuesday, left the whole of his estate, amounting to $55,000 or $60,000, to his brother, J. M. Treble, of Toronto. This will was made some fourteen years ago. On the 13th of June last Mr. Treble made another will, leaving a large portion of the money to his adopted daughter, Miss Mamie Patterson, and the remainder, some $20,000 to be divided among his four brothers and two sisters. He neglected, however, to sign the document, and consequently it is not valid. When, however, Mr. J. M. Treble heard of the second will he allowed the young lady $5,000.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 28, 1899

CANADA'S FOREST WEALTH.

The forest covered land of Canada exceeds in extent that of any other country. A table in Science places the area of such land in this country at 799,210,720 acres as against 450,000,000 in the United States. Russia leads the latter by about 48,000,000 acres. India has the next largest area to that of the United States, 140,000,000 acres, France possesses 53,466,450, and Germany 34,347,000 acres, while the British Islands have only 2,695,000. There are immense forests in Africa and South America, not included in these statistics. A remarkable fact is that several European countries, Germany among them, have a larger percentage of forest-covered land according to their relative sizes than the United States. This may, perhaps, be accounted for in part by the large areas of certain States originally destitute of forest.

A HARD GAME

Young men in positions of trust are necessarily amateurs in the game of playing for riches by purchasing margins upon New York stocks.

The men who win at this game are almost invariably professionals and rumour always multiplies the number of these winners and the amount of their winnings.

It is so easy for young men to use other people's money in the pursuit of riches for themselves. Margin trading is like the rainbow with the pot of gold at the far end—the hope of wealth through the New York stocks fades in the certainty that the appropriated money has gone round a wrong turn in the market and that the appropriator is on the high road to penitentiary.

Speculation is a hard game and success is not sure to crown the possessor of money and knowledge, and slim are the chances of the young man who takes a whirl in New York stocks with the knowledge he can pick up and the money he can appropriate when his employer is not looking.

NOTES AND COMMENT

It begins to look that if the Transvaal doesn't throw up the sponge England will simply use it to wipe it off the map of Africa.

•• •• ••

At a distance it looks as if this hearing of the Dreyfus case with closed doors was with a view of preventing the truth getting out.

•• •• ••

A paragraph in the Examiner asks "why should not the American eagle scream over the big harvest?" Without looking into the matter very fully, the Times thinks that any bird would do so with a full crop.

•• •• ••

One explanation of so many tramps coming into the town and cities is that the country is crying out for help to harvest the big crops.

•• •• ••

Forest fires are beginning to have a picnic in the woods in different parts of the country. This is the time for the showers that are always said to accompany picnics in the woods.

A Chelsea woman who planted some peanuts this spring and mourned because the expected plants did not result has just learned that peanut growers usually select nuts for planting that have not been roasted.—Washington Post.

One way of distinguishing diamonds from glass and paste is to touch them with the tongue. The diamond feels much the colder. None of the editors of our acquaintance are complaining of chilblains on their tongues.—Minneapolis Times.

"With secret initiatory exercises," says a Chicago dispatch, "the well known suffrage leaders, Susan B. Anthony and the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, have been made members of the American Woman's Relief corps, No. 31." Was there a sidesaddle on the goat?—Buffalo Express.

Giovanni Cattetta came to this country on the Bretagne with a hump on his back. Some superstitious custom house officials touched it, obeying the old adage that to touch a hump brings good luck. We understand that Dr. Mary Walker is opposed to woman's rights. She believes only she and other sensible men can understand the blessed privileges of the ballot.—Louisville Post.

General Merritt says he hugs himself because he is an American citizen. A man who would rob his wife of that marital right is scarcely worthy to be called an American citizen.—Denver Post.

THE ROYAL BOX.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. A FRIEND OF THE NEGRO.

LILLIAN CLAYTON JEWETT'S ANTI-LYNCHING CRUSADE.

The Girl Who Brought the Baker Family to Boston.

A new emancipator, or emancipatress, if you will, of the negroes has arisen in the person of Miss Lillian Clayton Jewett a young Boston woman, who has just achieved prominence and fame, bringing north the family of Postmaster Baker, who was the victim of the last southern lynching at Lake City, S. C. Miss Jewett's idea is to use this family as an object lesson to stir up public opinion against such crimes as the one of which the father of the family was a victim.

Miss Jewett did not have everything her own way, even among the negroes, whose race she is trying to benefit. Nevertheless, the Lillian Clayton Jewett Anti-Lynching League is now gaining followers rapidly. The movement began with her raising $1,000 to bring from Charleston, N. C., the family of Baker, and to present the widow and children to northern audiences. Miss Jewett's plan stirred some of the negro people of Boston, particularly the members of the Coloured National League and the New Era Club, of which Mrs. Josephine St. Pierre Ruffin is president, on account of personalities, and within two weeks the opposition twice came near developing into riots. The opposers to the scheme had tried to carry out the same project, but, for lack of sympathy, had to sidetrack it. Hence the opposition which has now somewhat abated.

Miss Jewett, who is looked upon by many of the negro people as a modern Joan of Arc, is 24 years old, Boston born, boarding school bred, and is still under the guiding care of her mother. She looks like an attractive summer girl, has rather light hair and baby-eyes. She is certainly not an orator, and whatever she may accomplish in the way of missionary work will hardly be due to her eloquence.

In her first campaign speech, at the Revere street Baptist church, she did not appear to be particularly embarrassed at finding herself before an audience, but she did seem to be at a loss as just what to say. Practically all she said was—"I can only tell you how grateful I am to you for trusting in me, and thank you for dedicating your league to me. I hope you will tell your friends that there are to be 10,000,000 signatures on our membership roll, and that they are to be backed by law and liberty. When the league is perfected we shall see who shall have a voice in the United States."

Miss Jewett is not only a philanthropist but an author. Owing to ill health, partially up to this time she has contented herself with short flights, but looks forward to the early completion of her first long novel. The story which has gained her the widest reputation is that known as "Life's Passionate Guest," published about a year ago under the name of Clark Jewett.

Of the South and the negroes and lynching she lately said—"I have no wish to favour the black man who commits a crime, but whatever his crime may be it is no worse because his skin is black. The people of the North must act, and if I may be their leader, or if I may inspire in the heart of some more able person the leadership, I shall be satisfied. Boston may well be the centre of the movement that shall make known every injustice to the black man and gain for him the rights and privileges which were accorded him when the Emancipation Proclamation was signed. My only purpose in bringing the Baker family to Boston is to let the people see these helpless children, that maimed and destitute mother, whose husband was killed for no other reason than that a black man, under the provisions of our Government, an office which was desired by a white man. And if their coming to Boston is not the beginning of the end of lynching in the South, I shall be very much much mistaken in the people of New England.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE.

Peculiar Experience of the Man Who Dealt in High Explosives.

"Nitroglycerin, sir; high explosives accomplished it," said a well dressed man with a youthful face and snow white hair to a chance acquaintance at the Great Northern.

"But your face is not scarred? It would seem that an explosion"—

"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a big blasting contract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"'Is there such a thing as high explosives ripening?' asked the Englishman I was accompanying on the second day of our voyage.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was of this character. Indeed 25 days after it was compounded it was almost certain to explode of its own volition, so to speak. Now, on the upper shelf of the checkroom of my New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 20 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a multimurderer. In vain I drew an awful picture of the devastation that would overwhelm a certain New York hotel in exactly 17 days and called upon the captain to put his ship about. He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if an opportunity presented itself, but fortune failed me, and I was obliged to cross the ocean. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the life of my ripening high explosive I sprang from a carriage and rushed into the hotel.

"No reprieved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fluid disappear in a catch basin. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel bar, where I had gone for a 'bracer,' in absolute dismay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

VETERANS UNDER FIRE.

The Reason They Don't Stoop When the Bullets Are Flying.

"The temptation to stoop when under fire is almost irresistible," said a veteran, "and that accounts for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You see, when a man happens to be hit in a stooping posture the chances are that the bullet plows right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the probabilities are in favor of the wound being slight, anyhow not mortal. Old soldiers are well aware of this, and while they will drop flat and hunt cover every chance they get they never stoop.

"After a soldier has been in a few engagements he learns such tricks, and, as far as the rest of it is concerned, he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his experiences appear to lend color to that doctrine. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get killed when it really seemed as if they had reached for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are continually happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrade of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refuge behind a little hut. He was wornout under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear and a little to one side was a pile of crossties full of wrought iron nails. A bullet came along, splintered a tie and drove out one of the nails at right angles. The jagged iron struck my chum in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

"That's the blind chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a fellow is apt to acquire a sort of sang froid that is immensely impressive to a recruit. It isn't because he has a contempt for danger; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Appearances.

Briggs—Appearances, you know, are often deceptive

Griggs—Yes. A person can never tell just how much it is going to cost to keep them up.

Early Impressions.

Memory plays queer antics at times. As our ideas of things develop and make progress the relation to ourselves, as we were of a remembered place or incident, keeps pace with the advance. When we were in youth, we thought the house in which we lived in those days a veritable mansion and the yard was as large and commodious as a park now seems to us. Our memory keeps them thus, although we have long outgrown our little selves.

But when we again visit the haunts of the early years we find that the mansion has diminished to a cottage and the yard seems miserably small. We have outgrown them. There seems to be a self adjusting lens that, as we fare farther from the scenes and surroundings we once knew well, keeps magnifying them so that they are always the same to us.

And it must be so of incidents and people as well. Memory is kind and throws a mantle of softening mist over whatever comes into her realm. And when we go back and find the old neighborhood or see again our long remembered friends we must not put all the blame of changing upon them. It is we who have changed, perhaps far more than have they, only we do not stop to realise the fact.—Exchange.

Minutes and Seconds.

At least 25 centuries B. C. the Babylonians used a sexagesimal system of notation, consisting of sari and sossi, of which we have vestiges when we reckon 60 minutes to the hour and 60 seconds to the minute, or 3,600 seconds—that is, a saros of sossi—to the hour. That we count 12 inches to the foot, 24 hours to the day, 360 degrees of longitude around the equator, 90 degrees of latitude from the equator to the poles and 60 miles to a degree may also be traced to the same duodecimal Babylonian system of numeration, which originally reckoned 60 shekels to the mina and 60 minas to the talent. All these numbers are factors or multiples of the saros, or 60. Our measures of time, money, of linear and angular space, are all derived from the Greeks, who obtained them from the Babylonians, probably through the Phoenicians.

THE ENTREE AN ECONOMY.

It Dulls the Eater's Appetite For the Dinner Proper.

In the French and Italian cuisine, where economy is studied far more scientifically and thoroughly than in the English or American kitchen, the entree is not considered an extravagance. On the contrary, it is looked upon rather as an attractive economy—like soup, which dulls the eater's appetite so that he partakes less heartily of the more costly meat courses that follow. On the continent the luncheon never begins, as with us, with the chief dish of substantials. There is an introduction in the shape of a soup, or a dish of eggs, or of rice, or of macaroni, or semolino prepared in appetizing mode. Upon this the luncher tries the first edge of his appetite, so to speak. The piece de resistance comes afterward.

In the same manner, at dinner, the soup is almost invariably followed by one or two entrees. In the more ambitious menus these may consist of fish or poultry, or even of meat, prepared in croquettes or rissoles, or vol-au-vent. If there are two entrees, the vegetable will come second. But when, as is the case at many tables, there is only one entree, this is nearly always a vegetable and is served directly after the soup.

It must be borne in mind that the old fashioned custom which prevailed so generally some years ago in America, and is still to be found in certain places, of serving a number of vegetables with the principal meat dish is not followed on the continent. In England it is not unusual to see half a dozen dishes of vegetables appear with the roast. There they have even less idea of variety than is common with us, for precisely the same vegetables are offered day after day until one grows weary of the very sight of them. This, of course, is not the case among those people who have made a study of dinner giving and have grafted French customs on the British stock.

On the continent, however, things are done in a different fashion. At a simple dinner, containing, let us say, five courses, the first will be soup, the second a vegetable entree, the third meat of some kind, with one, or at the most two, vegetables, and one of them rarely fails to be a salad. Then comes a sweet, and after it fruit or cheese. The vegetable that appears as an entree need not of necessity be costly or unusual. Perhaps it is only a cauliflower, served with a good white sauce, or spinach, not cooked as we see it here—the stems and leaves coarsely chopped—but minced to a powder and then put through a colander, so that it is deliciously smooth and soft before it is dressed with butter or cream and surrounded with three cornered bits of toast or friend bread, or the entree may be nothing more elegant than white turnips or young carrots cut into small pieces, stewed tender and served with a cream sauce, or celery divided into three inch lengths, fried brown and seasoned with a tomato gravy. The name of the combination is legion, but they all have one point in common—that they are comparatively inexpensive.—Harper's Bazar.

Poison Bottle Ornaments.

At the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York city, there is a great collection of ancient jewelry, much of it in gold richly adorned with precious stones. Jewelers in the metropolis frequently visit the museum for the purpose of obtaining suggestions. This collection at the Metropolitan museum is in fact the finest assemblage of antique objects of personal ornaments in existence. Some of them date as far back as 900 B. C. Those of them which are made of silver have been practically destroyed by oxidation, but the gold ones being cleaned are as bright and new looking as they were 2,500 or 3,000 years ago. The jewelry from Cyprus is the work of ancient Phoenicians and Greeks.

One thing very noticeable is the frequency of tiny gold bottles attached to objects of jewelry derived from those ancient times. All evidence points to the conclusion that they were employed to hold poison, for in those days life was by no means secure, and at any time an emergency might arise where a man or woman would be glad to end existence promptly to escape lifelong imprisonment or indescribable torture by the horrible means used by the ancients.

Money King Meets With Disaster.

London, Aug. 24.—The Leader to-day publishes a despatch from its St. Petersburg correspondent, saying that the suspension of M. Vonderweiss, a millionaire of that city, has produced a depressing effect on the Bourse and in financial circles. His capital was estimated to have been between 50 and 60 million roubles, but after his debts are paid he will scarcely have six million roubles left. His fortune has been largely sunk in a group of undertakings, each one supporting the other. He regarded one of the most important systems of railroads in Russia as his own, and he was connected with this road and a number of steamers plying on the Volga and the Caspian Sea, a machine factokkry, an insurance company, a cement factory, and a number of smaller concerns. It is thought that the failure is likely to ruin many other houses, including that of a Moscow acpitalist named Mamatouw, who has suspended for 24,000,000 roubles.

ANTI-RITUALIST PARTY

Will Demand Pledges From Different Parliamentary Candidates.

HIS SALARY IS FIXED.

Germans Are Making Special Efforts to Capture Russia's Trade.

A Sailor Jumps Thirty Feet on to a Theatre Stage Colonel Maxwell's Report Regarding Work in the Soudan—Biggest North Sea Fishing Fleet Being Disbanded.

London Aug 25.—Everything at present appears to be going in favor of the anti-Ritualist party in the Church. Contributions to the funds of the Evangelical associations have been larger within the last four weeks than at any former period in its history. The Imperial Protestant Federation has been especially successful in its appeal for contributions to its propaganda. A scheme is now under consideration to establish a corps of electoral lecturers and speakers whose duty it should be to go into constituencies at election election times and demand from candidates a distinct pledge as to their attitude on the Ritualistic question. One of the leaders of the party, Mr. Austin Taylor, has recently received three different invitations to stand for constituencies in East Anglia and the South of England. At this moment the Church Association's electoral organization has 160 branches.

The Premier Fixes His Salary.

Melbourne, Australia, Aug. 25.—In the South Australian Assembly, Mr. Kingston, Premier, hoped that the Governor of Federated Australia would be appointed and paid by the Imperial Government, or alternatively, that his salary will not exceed $15,000.

Jumped From the Gallery.

Portsmouth, Aug. 25.—During a performance at the Empire Palace Music Hall, Portsmouth, a sensation was caused during the singing of Lily Marney of "The Boy in the Gallery" by a bluejacket mounting the box adjoining the gallery and jumping on to the stage, a distance of thirty feet. The sailor, it is supposed, thought that he was "the boy" referred to in the song. Strange to say he was unhurt.

German Eye on Russian Trade.

Bremen, Aug. 25.—The German industrials are making special efforts to capture the Russian markets, being inspired to this attempt by the success of American importers into Russia, and the aggressiveness with which they are occupying the field. An organization has just been formed in Bremen, known as the German-Russian Merchants' Association. This association has a branch in St. Petersburg, with large sample rooms for the exhibition of German manufactures.

Bridge Nearing Completion.

Cairo, Aug. 25.—Col. Maxwell has returned home from the Soudan. The erection of the Gordon Memorial College, of the palace, and other public buildings at Khartoum is proceeding satisfactorily. No [illegible] however, are being constructed. The Athara bridge is nearly completed, though bad weather and washouts on the railway have delayed the progress of the work. The crops will probably be good. According to the latest report the Khalifa is at Gebel Gedir.

Steam's Latest Triumph.

London Aug. 25.—The Short Blue fishing fleet, consisting of two hundred vessels which for many years has had its headquarters at Yarmouth, has now begun to lay up in harbor preparatory to its final withdrawal from the industry. The Short Blue fleet has been established for more than a century, and originated in the days of small owners when smacking was very lucrative and fortunes were readily made. Just as steam power ruined home spinning and weaving, so steam trawling has brought about the downfall of fishing by sail. While the southern ports have in recent years developed steam fishing on an immense scale, the older method has continued at Yarmouth with the result that the competition by steamers has run the industry off its legs. As a thousand or more men are employed on the fleet, the loss to Yarmouth will be considerable.

Discrimination Against Canada.

London Aug 25.—Hon. R. R. Dobell presided at a meeting of the Canadian trade insurance section of the London Chamber of Commerce to-day, to consider whether the time had not now arrived for a reduction in the shipping rate of insurance in Canada. Mr. Dobell quoted figures proving the security of the St. Lawrence route. In 1898, he said, 240 ships containing large cargoes traversed the route, with but one loss, this year to date 196 steamers with no loss. A resolution was passed urging the underwriters to alter the condition now favoring the United States against Canadian trade.

No Alliance Yet.

Pekin, Aug. 25.—The Japanese mission will return to Tokio to-morrow. Apparently it has accomplished nothing. The Conservative party, headed by Yung-Lu, has influenced the Empress Dowager, unless she seems to have veered against the conclusion of any alliance. Prince Ching favors an alliance with Japan, but it is inconceivable that he will be able to do anything against the powerful opposition.

THE FASHION PLATE.

Straight, full skirts continue to be used in making up sheer transparent summer textiles for slender waists.

The new corded taffeta silks in a great variety of summer colorings and effects are in favor for making up dressy shirt waists.

The black and white striped fabrics in silk or silk and wool effects, which impart length and slenderness to the figure, are uncommonly handsome and varied in design this year.

The pretty Tudor sleeve, cut off at the top and finished above the deep upward point with a small gathered cap of fabric matching the yoke or guimpe, is a model used on costumes and toilets of every sort.

On many of the costumes of foulard, figured taffeta or surah, drap de chine, drap d'ete, summer costume cloth, etc., the waist is bolled at the back and on the sides, but in front is in jacket style, with tabbed ends falling below the waist line.

One of the most graceful summer models for a rather full figure, to use in making up organdie muslin, dimity, batiste and similar goods, is the new seven gored model, with a pretty demitrain, to be made up separately over a foundation skirt of exactly the same shape.

Skirts with closings at the side instead of at the back are now the most favored. If so arranged, the round waist or basque bodice can be permanently fastened to the skirt at the back, thus avoiding the time and trouble necessarily given to a waist and skirt differently laced or hooked.

White veiling or barege may be as elaborately trimmed as a white organdie. It will have as cool an effect, be nearly as comfortable on a hot day as cotton, and during a sudden change in the temperature the light wool gown will give the needed protection.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Kyrle Bellew denies the rumor that he is coming to the United States with Henry Irving.

Rose Coghlan, who plays in "Mlle. Fifi," has patented a sunshade for use at the seashore.

A dramatization of "The Hidden Hand," by Mrs. Southworth, was recently produced in Chicago.

Digby Bell is to be seen in "Arizona." Next season he will be in one of Charles Frohman's companies.

Phoebe Davies has a belt made from Mauser shells found on dead Spaniards after the fight on San Juan hill.

Since Calve has her tombstone and Sarah Bernhardt her coffin, why do not certain would be players go and bury themselves?

At the Filipino theaters of Manila it is the custom to show appreciation by tossing coins on the stage in lieu of bouquets.

The German emperor's play, "Eisenzahn," means "The Iron Tooth," and, with his imperial pull, it should draw well.

Venie Bennett, sister to the late Alice Atherton and widow of the comedian John A. Mackey, will appear in the vaudeville theaters.

As an instance of how the romantic drama has revived abroad, no less than six companies are touring England with "The King's Musketeer."

It is stated that Reginald De Koven has received about $75,000 from "Robin Hood." Barrie will probably take $100,000 or more from "The Little Minister."

Aubrey Boucicault, who plays the husband in "Mlle. Fifi," is said to have inherited some of his father's talent as a playwright and is now finishing two plays which may be produced next season.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

A folding stepladder has recently come into use in which the legs and step supports are hinged at the center to close up when not in use, allowing the ladder to be stored in about half the space of the old ladder.

A carving knife sharpener and fork guard are combined in a Pennsylvanian's patent, the upper portion of the guard having two disks carried on spindles to rotate as the edge of the knife is drawn between them.

In a new bicycle tire the resiliency is obtained by hollowing the face of the rim deeply and stretching a strip of fabric across the face, with a ring of rubber or other flexible material suspended in the center of the fabric.

A pneumatic axle bearing for vehicles has been patented to take the place of inflated tires on road wagons, being less liable to puncture, the weight being carried by pneumatic rings placed inside drums surrounding the axle.

THE BOOKMAKERS.

Margaret Deland says she reads economics, history and the newspapers for instruction and novels only for entertainment.

R. W. Chambers, when not writing books, gives his time to many fads. He collects butterflies, designs uniforms and keeps up his painting.

Max Pemberton, the author, is also a good business man and combines with his literary labors the London agency for an American publishing house. His home in West Hempstead is an ideal place.

Dr. Conan Doyle, it is reported, intends to contest a seat in parliament. Meanwhile he is turning into a playwright. He has just brought out a play (a domestic drama called "Halves") in Scotland and is about to produce another.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

After a good soaking shower is the best time for hand weeding.

A good plan is to keep the growing orchard in cultivation until it comes into bearing well and then seed to clover.

Increased sunlight among the trees brings increased growth and blossom and decreases the tendency to mold and rot.

Peach, cherry and pear trees will bear very little forcing, and on this account wood ashes are better for them than ground bone.

Fruits, especially the apple, are largely controlled in character by soil and climate. Get varieties that are adapted to your locality.

Scraping the moss and old dead bark off the mature trees in the orchard and washing the trunks with some alkaline liquid can always be recommended.—Exchange.

A Sporty Youngster.

He was the youthful son of a well known horseman. He had been to an evening party, and at 9 o'clock a servant announced that Master ——'s nurse had called for him.

The young gentleman replied as well as he could while burying his fourth piece of mince pie: "All right. Throw a blanket over her and let her wait."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

IS FACED BY THREE WIVES.

Louis Newman's Fourth Spouse is Now Diligently Sought.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Louis Newman, confessed bigamist, well known in Peterborough, Ont., faced three of his wives in Justice Sabbath's crowded courtroom yesterday, and the fourth is yet to come from Toronto, Ont. When his first wife and baby appeared on the scene the other day and found him living with another spouse and their child Newman figuratively threw up his hands. He admitted that he was a bigamist, but said he couldn't help it—he was drugged and married to one of his wives without his knowledge. When informed that the whole story of a third wife in Canada was known he denied all knowledge of her until confronted with so many facts that he could not deny them. And his hands figuratively went up still higher. But when the fourth wife appeared suddenly in police court with a strange tale of a false divorce and of a Jewish "get" later, his hands could not be elevated any more. He collapsed.

The charge of wife abandonment against him was dismissed, and he was promptly rearrested on a bigamy warrant sworn out by his first wife, Rachel Firoch Newman. Justice Sabath will hear testimony on this charge Wednesday afternoon.

All three of the Mmes Newman have snapping black eyes, and it was a question whose orbs flashed the most indignation yesterday. The latest wife to appear on the scene had been separated from Newman for some time. Her name was Rose Karsten and she lived at 178 Liberty street. As far as can be ascertained, she is the wife No 3. She married the tailor a year ago and was herself a married woman at the time. When he proposed to her she told him that a wedding between them was impossible for that reason, but he came to her in a short time with a man who he said was an officer of the law, with full power to grant divorces. The supposed officer corroborated Newman's statement.

"I will divorce you," he said. "You are free to marry Newman."

She did not understand much about American customs, and so she consented to the ceremony. After they had lived together five weeks she discovered her bad predicament from a legal and social standpoint and demanded a divorce. Newman gave her a "get," or Jewish divorce, valueless under the state law. She had not heard of him until his arrest. She decided of him until his arrest. She decided then to join his prosecutors, and so appeared without warning in court.

Word is daily expected from the Toronto wife, who has been sent for.

MAY END FATALLY.

A Painter Accused of Assaulting an Old Man.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Wm. Bell, a house-painter, is in jail on a charge of aggravated assault, and Samuel Hogarty aged 80, his alleged victim is in a fair way to die.

Bell was employed to paint a house occupied by the Hagarty's at 33 Harbord street, and was engaged at it on August 19th, when old Mr. Hogarty came along to get some things. Bell it is said, asked his business, and then started to forcibly eject him the result being thaGt the old man fell off the steps and broke two ribs.

He is now very low, and last night an information was laid against Bell. The latter appeared in the police court to-day and was remanded to wait developments.

Will Test a Court's Decision.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—The police magistrate is seeking to bring about the long desired cancellation of the law forbidding the search of persons arrested for drunkness, and therefore he is sending Michael McEvielly, charged with stabbing a prisoner in the cells, for trial at a higher court, by way of saying to the said higher court, "Now see what you did." McEvielly, who is up in years, was put in the cells at No. 1 police station ten days ago for drunkenness, and got into an altercation with some boys. Another prisoner named William Jordan, also drunk, advised McEvielly to lie down, whereupon, according to his statement, McEvielly buried a jack knife into him.

War Risks Increasing.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—The following despatch was received to-day by commission houses having New York connections. Its interpretation caused considerable discussion, as it is claimed by many traders that it does not refer to risks on vessels and cargoes, but merely a gamble which the company takes that war will result. At any rate it lookks as if the chances for war in the Transvaal are less doubtful. London reports Lloyd's war risks on South Africa which were yesterday quoted at 15 guineas are to-day quoted at 90 guineas askked.

UP IN THE CLOUDS.

THE PERILOUS LIFE OF AERONAUTS IN MIDAIR

And the Many Fatalities and Mishaps That Attend Them—Some Tragic Happenings of the Present Year.

The life of the aeronaut is a perilous one and every year witnesses thrilling fatalities and hair-breadth escapes. The other day, at Corry, Pa., Frank Reynolds, an amateur aeronaut and parachute jumper, whose ambition it was to win money and fame in this perilous business, lost his life because he could not swim. He had never dropped from dizzy hights with a parachute, but his opportunity for a thrilling exhibition came when he was engaged as an attraction for a summer assembly at Findlay's lake, 15 miles from Corry.

On the afternoon of July 31, in the presence of a large crowd, the young man made his ascension. He soared skyward to the hight of 3,000 feet. He struck a current of air which caried his balloon out over the lake. In the great crowd which watched Reynolds as he swung loose from the trapeze bar of the balloon and opened his parachute to drop was his young wife, who realized the peril to which he was at that moment exposed, and who suddenly startled everybody by crying out in a frenzy of terror—"He can't swim and he will drown!" Down, down came the young husband, unconscious, probably, of the danger which threatened him from below. Boats were quickly manned and put out in response to the alarm, but Reynolds struck the water where there is a depth of 90 feet, threw up his hands and sunk like a stone, 200 feet away. It was his first and last spectacular exhibition in the presence of a great assembly. He was 25 years old.

Aeronaut Was Never Found.

Edward M Burt, 21 years old, met a similar fate in a Minnesota lake one pleasant evening in the first week of August. He began the hazardous work of kiting balloons and jumping with parachutes early this season, hoping to make a 'pot' of money and win the plaudits of admiring multitudes, but unfortunately his meteoric career was cut short in the fifth ascension.

It was in the town of Walker. According to advertisements the young aeronaut made his ascension in the evening, and there was a big crowd on hand to watch the performance. Everything was made ready and the hot air balloon shot heavenward at the rate of a mile a minute. At an altitude of several hundred feet a strong wind caught the balloon and carried it out over the south arm of Leech Lake. Soon the aerial vehicle, with the young man still sitting on the trapeze bar, was lost to sight. A sense of impending danger spread through the crowd. Then a steamer hastened to the rescue, and although the balloon was recovered the aeronaut was not found.

How Keep Met His Death.

Charles Keep, a Cleveland aeronaut, met death in that city July 19 in the presence of several hundred persons who had assembled to witness his balloon ascension and parachute jump at Euclid Beach Park. The balloon and parachute were attached to a guy rope, which in turn was fastened to a stake. As the balloon became inflated it swayed and tugged so powerfully as to pull the stake from the ground. Released from its moorings, the airship shot upward with a sudden jerk and the trapeze bar was broken by coming in contact with the flying stake. Aeronaut Keep frantically clung to the ropes of the balloon. Almost before anyone realized the situation he had been lifted to a hight of 150 feet from the ground. At this point he glanced downward over his shoulder, with a look of terror on his face. He probably felt that it meant certain death to cling longer to the ropes and allow the balloon to carry him higher, so he took the one chance in a thousand which remained to him and released his grip for a fall. He landed squarely on his feet. The crowd stood breathless with horror as he shot downward like a plummet. Both his legs were broken and his internal injuries were very severe. He died without regaining consciousness.

Thaylor's Fight For Life In Midair.

One of the most thrilling fights for life in midair this season was that of Balloonist W. A. Thayer at Streator, Ill., July 27. He fought bravely, but the odds were against him and he lost the battle. Thayler went to Streator from Collins, Mich., to make an ascension at the picnic given by the local camps of the Modern Woodmen of America. Early in the afternoon, everything being in readiness, he started on his aerial voyage. The balloon rose rapidly to a hight of about 1,000 feet and then drifted toward the southwest.

Suddenly the balloon began to descend quickly and the parachute opened. Thousands of spectators were watching every movement. They were seized with a panic of terror when they saw the frantic but unsuccessful attempts of Thayer to loosen the parachute from the balloon. Time and again in the short space of a few seconds he could be seen using every effort and straining every muscle and nerve to free himself and his parachute, until all of a sudden the balloon collapsed. A few seconds later Thayer struck the ground. He was dead when the first man reached his side. He fell a distance of 200 feet, landing on his back on a railroad track. His back, neck, both legs and both arms were broken. It seems that when he attempted to make his parachute descend the balloon turned over and the gas escaped. The big bag fell faster than the parachute. Thayer had not yet cut loose from the balloon. The result was that the balloon caused the parachute to turn upside down and the aeronaut was left helpless. Thousands were shocked by the sight, but none more so than one of Streator's popular young women to whom Prof. Thayer was soon to have been married.

Two Narrow Escapes.

The city of Streator furnished another balloon sensation this season. Mme. Carmon, a professional aeronaut, had a narrow escape from death in a burning balloon there early in July. Gasoline was used to hasten the inflation, and the flames ignited the balloon. Some excited spectators shouted to let go, and the workmen dropped the guy rope. Mme. Carmon, in her ballet costume, was carried heavenward with the burning balloon. She became entangled in the ropes and was carried up head downward, like a flying trapeze performer. Thousands of onlookers witnessed her perilous ascent, powerless to help her. Soon the fire burned a hole in the balloon, allowing the gas to escape, and this caused a speedy descent. The balloon found a landing on a housetop and the madame escaped with a few bruises.

W. A. Ward, the Sioux City aeronaut, was equally lucky. He made an ascension at Lakeview, Ia., July 5, before a crowd of 5,000 people, and when at a hight of more than 150 feet his parachute tore loose, but did not open, and he fell to the ground in a midst of the crowd, causing a whirlwind of excitement. To the great surprise of the doctors who examined him he did not receive fatal injuries.

OUTWITTING AN ELEPHANT

A Hunter Saved by His Knowledge of the Beast's Habits.

Only those familiar with the "manners and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and slow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feats that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. Especially is this the case with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Moreover, accustomed for ages to lead a wild life and often depending on their alertness and speed of foot for their very existence, they have acquired a skill in gymnastics which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surprise

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a story told by one of the sportsmen in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in slightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its enormous ears spread out like sails and emitting shrill notes of rage, it came thundering over the ground like a runaway locomotive. The hunter fired another shot, but missed. His nerve was shaken, and, throwing down his "express" rifle, he sought safety in flight. Near at hand was a steep hill, and to this he directed his steps, for, being but slightly acquainted with the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be baffled by the steepness of the ascent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could climb a hill just as quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken if he had not thought of a really ingenious ruse. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep incline, but always crouch down, gather their feet together, lean well back and slide down. Just as the ferocious animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the wily hunter suddenly doubled and ran down the hill again.

Quick as a flash the elephant turned, gathered himself together and, trumpeting with baffled rage, slid down after his victim. The hunter had just time to spring out of the way as the great beast came "tobogganing" after him, smashing trees and shrubs and carrying everything before it like an avalanche. Then once more the hunter dashed to the top of the hill, while the elephant, unable to stop itself, went careering down to the very foot, where, apparently feeling very sore and disappointed, it rose and walked wearily back to its native woods.—Chums.

Odd Disasters.

In an English coal mine a few years ago a callous youth viciously pricked a pony with his penknife. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. The naked flames fed the foul gases in the air and created an appalling explosion, which wrought the death of over a hundred miners.

Sun rays, shining through a decanter of water on to the cartridge of a loaded rifle, slew a sleeping man on a lounge near by. The innocent owner of the rifle was arraigned for the supposed crime and was sentenced to death, when the testimony of a shrewd detective solved the mystery and secured his reprieve.

A German family, seven in number, lost their lives by a somewhat unique accident. They slept in one large apartment, lighted by gas. Before retiring the father hung his overcoat above the gas burner. During the night this garment slipped and fell on the tap, turning the gas full on and so suffocating the slumbering inmates.

THE HANGING SWORD.

Do you know the story of Damocles in the ancient mythology—the man who lived with a sword continually hanging above his head, suspended only by a single hair? Many a woman of the present day is like Damocles. She is living with a constant menace of danger hanging over her head because of some weakness or disease of the special organism which makes her a woman. It may seem comparatively slight and trivial at first but any instant it may develop into a serious and dangerous complaint, totally unfitting her for all the duties and responsibilities of a true womanly career.

"I suffered very much with female weakness and other ailments for more than two years, when I wrote to you for advice," says Mrs. Anna Willy, (Michigan House), Northville, Spink Co., So. Dak., in a letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. "After carefully following your advice and taking six bottles each of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' I am now a well and happy woman. I have also taken several vials of your 'Pleasant Pellets' which did me a great deal of good. I shall always recommend your medicine wherever I go."

Women who would know how to avoid the dangers to which they are exposed at every critical stage of their physical development should read that grand book The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D. It contains over one thousand pages profusely illustrated with engravings and colored plates. It is a complete medical library in one volume. More than half-a-million copies were sold at $1.50 each. But a free copy will be sent handsomely cloth-bound for cost of customs and mailing, 50 one-cent stamps; or strongly paper-bound, 31 stamps. Address, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Rice Lake Summer Resorts.

The summer resorts out Rice Lake have had a good season, the houses being full most of the summer. At Jubilee Point the hotel has had a exceptionally good run of business, being capably managed. An Arm Broken.

On Thursday afternoon Mr. Edward Flaherty, carter, met with an accident near the Smith-st. bridge. He had been watering his horse at the river and in turning around on the bank his truck upset and Mr. Flaherty was thrown to the ground. One arm was broken and he sustained an ugly gash in the back of the head, besides receiving a genral of the head, besides receiving a general shake-up.

Still Searching for the Body

The body of Joseph Starr, whose death by drowning occurred on Friday last, has not yet been recovered. The logs in the dam at Nassau have been removed, and the waters lowered as much as possible, and every effort made to recover the body of the unfortunate man, but without avail up to the time of going to press.

CHARGES DISMISSED.

The Accused Boys in the Corrigan Case Are Dismissed.

At the police court Saturday morning the preliminary hearing into the charge against Fred Roddy of abduction was continued. At the conclusion of the evidence the charge was dismissed.

The two young men in that case were also put on trial for assault. They were both discharged. The charge of assault against Wm. Gross was withdrawn. In this way the whole case ended.

The Corrigan girl, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of theft, was allowed to go with a warning.

BURGLARS AT FRAZERVILLE.

Miss Wright's Store Broken Into and Some Goods Stolen.

On Thursday evening last when Miss Wright entered her store she was surprised to discover a lamp burning, and on further investigation the door was found to have been forced. It was apparent that the premises had been burglarized. A bar of iron was found by which the door had been pried open, and which had been stolen from the blacksmith shop close by. The glass on the lamp had been darkened with soot, so as not to attract attention.

Fortunately the burglars failed to get any cash, as the money had been removed by Miss Wright. They, however, stole some candies and other trifling things, but nothing of account was taken. There is no clue to the identity of the thieves.

OBITUARY.

The Late A. H. Macdonnell.

On Friday Mr. Louis M. Hayes received a telegram announcing the death of his brother-in-law, Mr. A. H. Macdonnell of the firm of German & Macdonnell, barristers-at-law, Welland. The deceased gentleman was the youngest son of the late Angus had lately been appointed town solicitor of Welland, where he was held in high esteem. He also practised for some time in Lindsay, where he met many warm friends. His untimely death is greatly regretted. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes went to Toronto to attend the obsequies which took place from the family residence yesterday.

The Late Louisa J. Gardiner.

The death of Louisa J. Gardiner, occurred at her home in Dummer on Tuesday morning, at the early age of eighteen years. A year ago she was in full enjoyment of life, the picture of robust health. Her illness lasted about eight months, and during that time she bore her sufferings with cheerful patience.

She was a faithful member of the Presbyterian church for five years. She was always in her place on the Sabbath when she could be present.

The funeral which was largely attended, took place from the family residence on Thursday afternoon to the Norwood cemetery. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. F. Somerville.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Alex. Ross, William McMillan, John Kingsley, Robert Sedgwick, Richard Andrews, and George Ross.

The deceased leaves a father, mother, three sisters and one brother to mourn her loss. Her life on earth was soon ended but her good influence will long be felt in her home by her loving thoughtfulness and among those who knew her.

AN ALMOST SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

A Horse Falls into a Ditch and Occupants of the Vehicle Thrown Out.

What might have been a very serious accident occurred last evening about nine o'clock, when a young lady and gentleman were driving on Park street, near Mr. Pammett's residence, where the horse stumbled into a ditch, caused by the laying of the new pavements. Both occupants were thrown violently from the vehicle, but escaped with a few bruises. It took the united effort of the neighborhood to pull the horse out of its dangerous position. The accident was caused by gross carelessness in leaving such a place open and an action for damages is quite possible.

Accident on a Crossing.

The levels made in granolithic walks to enable vehicles to cross, are likely to prove dangerous, and involve the town in suits for damages. On Saturday evening an old lady stepped into one of those cuttings on Water-st., and fell, receiving a severe shaking up. In front of the bishop's residence, on Hunter-st., a similar accident occured a few days ago. These crossings should be remedied as soon as possible.

Raised a Pay-cheque.

Dectective Cockburn of the G. T. R., was in town on Wednesday, says the Lindsay Post, soliciting Chief Bell's aid in locating a young man named Myron Seymour, who was in the employ of the G. T. R. here very recently, and who boarded in the south ward. Seymour got possession of an order calling for 24c., and raised it to $24, which he succeeded in getting cashed. Chief Bell wants the young man on another charge—that of stealing a lady's hunting case watch. No trace of him has yet been found.

Another Dog Show.

At a meeting of the Bench Show Committee of the Kennel Club, it was decided that a one-day show be held in connection with the Central Exhibition in September. It was decided that no fee would be charged for entering the dogs, and that a number of medals would be offered. President C. B. McAllister has already offered to constitute two. Entries close on Sept. 16. All information will be cheerfully supplied by the energetic secretary, Mr. Alf. Tyrell.

Caught On.

A young man employed in a George street store, known to be passionately addicted to angling entered the private office of his employer and said; "My sister is going to be married, sir, and I should like to——"

"Just so. Well, I don't see any objections to your sister's marriage now and then, only you might bring me a fish, you know.

There is a deep feeling of dissatisfaction at the way the new granolithic walks are being put down. People everywhere seem to think that the grading is bad.

A SENSATION IN CHURCH

An Anglican Clergyman in Quebec Creates a Stir by a Sermon.

PROTEST BY A MEMBER.

Ex-Mayor of Montreal Repudiates the Views of a Summer Church's Rector.

The Incident Caused a Tremendous Sensation and the Majority of the Congregation Left the Sacred Edifice in Disgust, Threatening Never to Return.

Montreal, Aug. 28.—The Anglican church at Ste. Agathe, in the Laurentian Mountains, was yesterday morning the scene of an unusual incident. The service was being conducted by Rev. Mr. Garth, retor of Narragansett R.I., who in the course of his sermon, denied the divine inspiration of the Bible as it is usually maintained by the members of the Church of England. He asserted the belief that the Bible was no more divinely inspired than were the writings of Shakespeare, George Eliot, or any other great writer. The story of Adam and Eve he dubbed a legend impossible to believe.

The sermon created a veritable sensation. Almost before the preacher had concluded his sermon, Mr. R. Wilson Smith, the former Mayor of Montreal, and the chief contributor to the fund for the construction of this summer church, rose to his feet and protested, long and loudly, against any doctrine being accepted in any church to which he belonged. He believed the Bible from cover to cover, and did not consider that any amn who believed otherwise should say that he belonged to the Church of England.

The incident caused a tremendous sensation and a majority of the congregation left the sacred edifice in disgust, threatening never to return.

Sixteen Men Killed.

St. Etienne, Aug. 28.—While sixteen men were descending into the Couchard mine, at Haute Croix, to-day, the cable broke and they were all killed.

FRENCH BLOW AT ENGLAND.

A Frenchman Suggests a Canal Connecting the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Paris Aug. 28.—Capt. Vignot, of the French navy, searching for additional means to neutralise the greatted and dreaded naval power of Britain, puts forward a project for a canal between Narbonne and Arcachon, joining the Mediterranean and the Atlantic. The value of such a canal in a strategic sense he observes, would be the following: Preparations for the invasion of England could be made in Provence as easily as in Brittany. The maritime forces could be scattered by threats of a descent on Egypt or of an attack on Malta or Gibraltar. Gibraltar would be turned. The French forces would be as good as doubled against England itself. France would probably be able to effect powerful alliances. The cost of the canal is estimated at $200,000,000, which means an annual debt of $6,000,000.

The Wireless Wonder.

London, Aug. 28.—Mr. Marconi, as the outcome of further experiments with his system of wireless telegraphy, has accomplished the remarkable feat of signalling through four miles of cliff. Recently he sent messages from an instrument connected with a wire running up the flagstaff of Dover Town Hall to the South Foreland, and also to the East Goodwin lightship. Though between the terminals in both cases there are four miles of the high cliffs on which Dover Castle stands, with in the case of the lightship, the addition of a stretch of sea of about twelve miles, the messages were received with the greatest ease and without a hitch.

Soap and Salvation.

London, Aug. 28.—The most extraordinary way of raising church funds is told of by one of the heads of a great firm of soap makers, who spend very large sums in advertising their specialty. This gentleman in the course of business has received a communication from the authorities of a Presbyterian church in Scotland asking for the firm to advertise the soap on the walls of the church. The letter intimated that the church was in pecuniary difficulties, and that this way had been decided on as the best means of raising money.

Yachtsmen Squabble Over the Cup.

Toronto, Aug. 28.—The Canada cup is still in Toronto, although it was presented to the Chicago Yacht Club on Saturday. There is a little trouble over the engraving on the cup, and the difficulty is between the Rochester club and the Chicago club. The former want the inscription to read: "The Genesee, of Rochester," while the latter insist on the wording "Genesee of the Chicago Yacht Club." It is expected the difficulty will be adjusted satisfactory to both American clubs.

"NOW LET LOOSE THE DOGS OF WAR."

The Transvaal Government Declines to Grant the Conditions Demanded by Great Britain.

JUST ONE MORE HINT TO OLD OOM PAUL.

Mr. Chamberlain Delivers an Informal Ultimatum in a Speech. Natives in South Africa Affected. Special Peace Commission From Kruger.

Cape Town, Aug. 28.—Replying to the latest propositions of Great Britain, the Government of the Transvaal has notified him that it adheres to its latest offer and will not make any fruther concessions.

Birmingham, Eng., Aug 28. — In throwing open his gardens to the members of the St. Bartholomew's Ward Liberal-Unionists Mr. Joseph Chamberlain was drawn to make the most important speech on the Transvaal situation he has made since the adjournment of Parliament.

"But what am I to speak about?" Cries of "The Transvaal."

"Yes," he replied, "the situation is too fraught with danger, it is too strained for indefinite postponement. The knot must be loosened, to use Mr. Balfour's words, or else we shall have to find other ways of untying it. If we are forced to do that, then I would repeat now words used by Lord Salisbury in the House of Lords.

Weary Of The Delay.

"I say that, if forced to make further preparations, if this delay continues much longer, we shall not hold ourselves limited by what we have already offered; but, having taken this matter in hand, we will not let go until we have secured conditions which, once for all, will establish us as the paramount power in South Africa and secure for our subjects there these equal rights and privileges promised by President Kruger when the Transvaal's independence was granted

The Empire Unity.

"It comes to this—if this rupture which we have done everything in our power to avoid is forced upon us, I am confident we shall have the support of the vast majority of Britons of the whole empire. In all this bad business there is onething upon which we may congratulate ourselves, and that is the unity of the empire. No British subject can suffer injustice anywhere without awakening a responsive chord in our most distant colonies, which stand shoulder to shoulder in maintaining the honor and interest of the empire."

Views On The Speech.

The Times says—'Mr. Chamberlain's speech clearly indicates that the Transvaal has not yet made up its mind to abandon equivocation and procrastination. It would be idle to ignore the scale of the expenditure of the military preparations. In addition to the men and ammunition that have gone from here, arrangements are ripe for the despatch of a considerable British force from India. There is reason to believe that the final arrangements for the general direction of the expedition which may be necessary in the event of a rupture have been completed by the War Office.'

The Daily Telegraph calls Mr. Chamberlain's speech an "informal ultimatum."

The Standard says it marks the most critical stage yet reached.

The Daily News observes "We cannot but suppose such grave words were well weighed beforehand."

Bad Effect Of British Delay.

The Johannesburg correspondent of the Standard says that the action of the Volksraad in refusing to agree to the cancellation of the dynamite monopoly has almost obliterated the hopes of peace. The correspondence adds—'President Steyn, of the Orange Free State, is still silent regarding the intention of that Republic. I am informed that the natives think England fears the Boers, and that they prefer English rule,b ut they fear to speak openly lest the Boers be victorious.'

Regiments In Rhodesia.

The Telegraph's correspondent at Fort Salisbury, Rhodesia, says that Colonel Baden-Powell, who arrived at Buluwayo three weeks ago, has already raised two regiments of mounted rifles, and that the formation of gun detachments is progressing rapidly. There are many volunteers for the cavalry. There is an abundance of material without drawing on the police or miners.

Ruin In The Transvaal.

A despatch to the Daily News from Johannesburg says that many small traders are being ruined b ythe political uncertainty, which has caused the stagnation of business. Fifteen hundred families are in receipt of daily relief. Unless something decisive occurs speedily thousands of British subjects will be alienated from their allegiance to England.

Stopping Kruger's Supplies.

The Government of Natal has refused to allow the transport of empty cartridges cases intended for the Transvaal.

The Pretoria correspondent of the Daily Chronicle declares President Kruger's concessions are so far-reaching that it is doubtful whether the burghers will ratify them. He thinks it more likely they will demand Mr. Kruger's resignation and the appointment of a younger man.

A Special Peace Mission.

A despatch from Johannesburg says word has been received there from Pretoria that President Kruger and Gen. Joubert favor sending a special peace mission to England, composed of members of the Volksraad, headed by F. W. Reitz, State Secretary.

Not For Oom Paul.

The Birmingham Mail makes the statement authoratatively that an order received by the Kynochs for 14,000,000 cartridges, which, it was reported, were to be deliverd to the Transvaal government, was placed by the Chinese Government.

A Transvaal Bluff.

Commander-General Joubert, addressing a meeting of Burghers on Saturday, said they would never cease to strive for peace, but that the Transvaal, if forced to take up arms to maintain its independence, would fight to the death.

Commandant Viljoen has given notice in the Volksraad that he will ask the Government if, in case of war, it is prepared to confiscate the property of inhabitants who take up arms against the Government. In the course of an interview after the session, Commandant Viljoen said that if war broke out military government would be established at Johannesburg, and all British subjects would be compelled to leave.

BRITISH OFFICER SUICIDES.

The Task of Navigating Icelandic Waters Too Much for Him.

London, Aug. 28.—Lieutenant Wyndham, H. Sandford, navigating lieutenant of Her Majesty's ship Blonde, third-class cruiser, now employed in Iceland waters on fishing duties under the Admiral Superintendent of Naval Reserves, has destroyed himself by blowing his brains out. The navigation of an iron ship in Icelandwaters, owing to the incessant fogs and abnormal variations of the compass consequent on the magnetic attraction of the masses of lava both submerged and on shore, is rendered more arduous than usual. For several days before his rash act Lieutenant Sandford was heard to complain of the difficulty of his position, but his complaints were not regarded by his mess mates as singular. After a special heavy bout of duty, the Blonde having twice circumnavigated the island of Iceland, Lieutenant Sandford shut himself in his cabin, loaded a rifle, placed the muzzle against his head, and pushed the trigger with a walking stick. The bullet nearly caused a second catastrophe. It passed through the bulkhead dividing Lieutenant Sandford's cabin from that of Lieutenant Rice, and passed with a few inches of the head of the latter.

DRIVEN OFF BY THE BRITISH.

Attempt of the Russians to Seize British Property Defeated by a Gunboat.

Shanghai, Aug. 28.—Trouble has occurred between the British and Russians at Hankow, growing out of an attempt on the part of the latter to seize territory which belongs to a private English firm. Jardines, Matheson & Co., of Hankow, own property lying within the Russian concession at that place. The Russians have frequently attempted to appropriate it, and have as frequently been preventd.

On Friday last, acting under instructions from Mr. Hurst, the British Consul, Jardines, Matheson & Co. built a fence around their property, the work men being protected by consular constables. When the work was nearly completed a dozen Cossacks from the Russian Consulate forcibly ejected the workmen from the premises.

The captain of the British gunboat Woodlark was nottified of the occurrence by the Consul, and he landed fifteens marines, and trained his quick-firing guns on the Russian Consulate. A fight was averted, however, and blue jackets are now protecting the property. The gunboat Esk is now proceeding to Hankow from Shanghai.

Justice for Tommy Atkins

London, Aug. 28.—By an order issued at Portsmouth by the general commanding, all the public houses owned by Messrs. Brickwood in the Portsmouth Gosport, and Fareham districts were placed out of bounds to the troops, the alleged reason being an insult offered to two sergeants of the Royal artillery by the landlord of a Southsea hotel in refusing to serve them in the saloon bar, and having them turned out because they were wearing Her Majesty's uniform. The owners of the hotel, however, visited the general and having promised that the tenant of the house should at once be given notice to quit the order was withdrawn.

Good Harvesting Weather.

Winnipeg, Aug. 28.—The weather throughout Manitoba and the Territories still continues fine and favorable for harvesting. About one-third of the total crop is now cut. Threshing has commenced at Emerson and Gretna, and everywhere the sample of wheat is pronounced extra No. 1 hard. This week will see most of Manitoba's wheat crop safely cut if present weather conditions continue. About 6,300 harvest helpers have arrived from the East and are now distrubted over the province. Nearly twice as many have come from the East as were expected. All will find employment.

SPORTNG ITEMS.

Baseball.

—Lindsay Post:—The secretary of the Lindsay baseball club is arranging for a game with Peterborough on Labor Day, Monday, Sept 4th. The boys hope to have Hardy and Reid as a battery from Toronto, and will select the best players in town. They say that the tables must be turned, and that Peterborough must fall victims.

A baseball match between the coalheavers and the grocers will be played at the P.A.A.A. grounds this afternoon. The coalheaver's match with the wine clerks has been cancelled owing to other attractions that will be coming off about the end of the week.

The Rifle.

The team of the 57th Battalion for the Dominion Rifle Association matches at Ottawa, left for the city Saturday night. It was composed of Messrs. E. R. Clegg, V. Eastwood, Geo. Fitzgerald, A. Blade, J. B. Peatland, D. Cameron, W. H. Meredith and W. Hilton. Mr Geo. Ames goes down to-night.

Mr. P. J. Clunan is to-day shipping his running horse, Chetham, and Mr. Fred Jones is also shipping two of his flyers down to Quebec to compete in the races at the big fair there. W. Green will ride Chetham and Eddie Jones will ride the Jones horses.

THE DREYFUS TRIAL.

A Witness States That M. Bertillon's System is Without Base.

A FALSE CALCULATION.

An Inspector of Mines, Who Follows, Corroborates the Above Statement.

The Session Closed on the Request That a Rogatory Commission be Sent to Colonel Paty du Cam, Whose Illness Prevents His Attendance in Court.

Rennes, Aug. 28.—When the trial of Captain Dreyfus opened in the Lycee building this morning, General Mercier, who was Minister of War when Dreyfus was first tried, in 1894, was present as usual, in the front row of the witness seats, thus definitely setting at rest the reports as to his having fled to the Island of Jersey and as to his arrest.

The first witness called to-day was M. Paraf-Javal, the draughtsman, whose evidence was interrupted on Saturday by the adjournment of the court. M. Paraf-Javal was called by the defence to refute the system by which M. Alphonse Bertillon, chief of the anthropometric department of the Paris Prefecture of Police, last week attempted to prove that the prisoner had written the bordereau in a disguised hand and by means of a key word, 'interest,' and that it could not have been written by Esterhazy, although the document was in a handwriting resembling that of Esterhazy.

When the two first witnesses had testified and argued against M. Bertillon's system, it was the opinion of the sympathizers of Dreyfus that if the statements of the witnesses were correct they had simply pulverized M. Bertillon. The latter wished to reply, but the President of the court, Colonel Jouaust, declined to allow the specialist to go over his evidence again, taking the ground that the trial would never end if every expert did the same.

Bertillon Suppressed.

An amusing scene followed. M. Bertillon pleaded that he had a personal statement to make, and mounted the platform. But he had hardly uttered half a dozen words when Col. Jouaust saw he was merely re-grinding his evidence, and, to the great satisfaction of the audience, the President curtly told the specialist to leave the platform, which he did discomfitted.

Had Made a Mistake.

M. Teysonier's testimony against Dreyfus follow, and then M. Charavay, the expert who had previously declared Dreyfus was the author of the bordereau, was called to the witness bar. His testimony proved to be of the greatest interest, as he came to confess he had made an error, and said he was now convinced that Esterhazy, and not Dreyfus had written the bordereau. This announcement made a deep impression on the court, and was greeted with a general murmur of satisfaction.

Witnesses For Dreyfus.

Then art expert, M. Pelletier, also testified favourably to Dreyfus.

M. Gouard, another expert, then deposed that as the result of his examination he had acquired the conviction that the bordereau was not written by Esterhazy. But he could not say it was written by Dreyfus, because he had not seen the prisoner's handwriting.

This witness kept the court in a continual roar of laughter by the extraordinary modulations of his voice, misplaced emphasis and gestures. The final witness, M. Varinaud, maintained the declaration he has made before the Court of Cassation, that the bordereau was not written by Esterhazy.

Col. Jouaust then announced that M. De Freycinet, who resigned as Minister of War, May 6, of thepresentyear, and who had been succeeded by M. Krantz, who in turn was succeeded by General Le Marquis de Galifet on the downfall of the Deputy Minister, would be among the witnesses to-morrow, and the session was closed on the request that a rogatory commission be rent to Col. Paty de Clam, whose illness prevents his attendance in court, to which Col. Jouaust agreed. This step does not satisfy the defence, but they acquiesce to the commission taking Du Paty de Clam's testimony on the principle that half a cafl is better than none.

The court adjourned for the day at 11.50 o'clock a.m.

Record for Automobiles.

London, Aug. 28.—The advance which has been made during the past year in the construction of heavy motor vehicles has received yet another demonstration. One of Messrs. Clarkson & Capel's steam lorries has completed a run of 226 miles—from Liverpool to London—in a total running time of 42 3-4 hours, with a load of three tons. The car on the first day completed forty-nine miles, the second thirty-ten, and on the third reached Birmingham. On the followind day a distance of fifty-one miles was covered. A stop was made at St. Alban's for necessary repairs, and the final stage of twenty-one miles to London was completed in five and a quarter hours. This run is the longest that has ever been made with such a load. Beyond injury to the burner, nothing whatever went wrong with any part of the car, and the cost works out at one penny per ton per mile.

JUVENILE OFFENDERS.

The criminal law makes practically no distinction between juvenile criminals and adult criminals. Magistrates charged with the administration of the law have to modify the hard-and-fast rules in favor of the juvenile offenders, and sometimes must stretch their discretion very far in order to do so. The result is less bad than would be making no distinction between juvenile offenders and adult offenders, but it is not good. It tends to inculcate in the rising generation of offenders a certain contempt for the law and its officers. The Illinois Legislature has attempted to meet the difficulty by creating a "children's court" especially for the trial of offenders under sixteen years of age, and a sort of juvenile penal code which leaves to the magistrate or judge of the "children court' a very wide discretion, placing him in a sort of parental attitude toward the juvenile offenders arraigned before him. Under the provisions of this law no child under twelve years of age can be held in a police station. A place especially for the detention of children must be provided. No child under twelve years of age can be arrested. He must be brought into court by a summons served upon his parent or guardian. The judge can always use his discretion as to the commitment of the juvenile offender. The Illinois experiment will be watched with a good deal of interest.

COMPETITION IN THE PULPIT.

The law of supply and demand is being felt in the pulpit. It is safe to say that at no time in the Christian Church has the supply of efficient clergymen been so large as at present. Not only are nearly all congregations supplied, but there are many ministers without charge, not a few of whom are anxious to obtain settlement. In case of a vacant church the pulpit committee is at once in receipt of many applications and recommendations. The effect is evident. Congregations gain the impression that in view of the lack of difficulty in securing a pastor a little less compensation will obtain one who will be quite satisfactory. One Toronto church, with an endowment, has been in the habit of paying $2,500. That congregation has settled a pastor on $2,000. Another charge not 100 miles from Peterborough is expecting to call a minister on $1,000, which is only one-half of the amount formerly paid. A strong rural congregation, which is abundantly able to pay $1,000, has decided to give no more than $700. It would be possible to greatly multiply examples of a similar character. The fact is that the Church has no further use for drones. Live men only are required for the pulpit, as it is with other walks of life

GOVERNMENT TIMBER.

One excellent step taken by the Dominion government has been the appointment of a special officer to look after the timber on Dominion and Indian lands. Mr. Stewart, who will have charge of this important work, will be requested to report as to what timber should be preserved, what should be cut for lumber, railway ties, etc., what areas should be preserved permanently at the source of streams, what precautionary rules should be adopted and enforced to mitigate as much as possible the destruction of the forests by fire, and to attend to the general work connected with the office. The office is a very important one, very desirable in the public interest, and those who know Mr. Stewart think that he will do justice to it.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Would Make Sugar Here.

Messrs. Long and Thompson returned from a two week's trip to American cities on Saturday, says the Orillia News-Letter. The purpose of their trip was to look up new lines for manufacture at their foundry and they have returned with a number of ideas. Mr. Thompson found that sugar making from beets was a profitable industry in Michigan, one firm alone paying out $188,000 for beets last year. He is of the opinion that this section of this country could not do better than follow the example of Michigan. It is an industry that passes through many hands before the manufactured article is reached and would thus furnish abundant employment.

Golf on Sunday

A rich old English lady has offered to endow the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour with an income of $25,000 a year if he will engage not to play golf on Sundays. In the event of Mr. Balfour decling the offer, this great family journal hereby give notice that it can name a person who, for the same consideration, will engage never to play golf either on Sundays or week days either.

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 3 to 15 per cent. copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRyee, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-cut to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $360, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

* * * "In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl schists extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent. of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendell, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I think it is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper. It is near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oil here because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is adapted to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a town could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($400 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.
George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.
Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.
Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.
Col. James. M. Wheaton, Boston, Secretary.
Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Ex-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allotment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

ARCHER CITY, TEXAS, MAY 3, 1899.

HON. EMERY H. LOW, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: * * Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States. * * The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cupriferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.

The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formation; and there is no deep work.

I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.

* * As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.

Very respectfully yours,
T. BURTON EVERETT, M. E.

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the nine mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

NICHOLAS IS CRAFTY.

The Czar is Opposed to a Settlement of Alaskan Question.

FEARS ANGLO-SAXON UNION.

It is Considered to be Against Russian Interests That England and America Agree.

Sir Charles Tupper's Plain Talk Hit the United States Embassy Hard—It is Claimed There That Sir Charles Quite Misrepresented the Facts and That Delay Was Entirely Due to Canadians.

London, Aug. 27.—Upon authority of undoubted reliability a representative of the Associated Press has ascertained that into the Alaska dispute there has crept the craftiness of Russian diplomacy. Russia, it can be stated, will do everything, with all possible energy, to prevent the practical cohesion of the two great English-speaking nations. In all her embassies instructions have been received to thwart the Anglo-American understanding.

A prominent diplomat, who is intimately acquainted with the details of the negotiations of the past years, said to the representative of the Associated Press—

"In any arrangement looking to a working agreement between England and the United States, Russia sees the defeat of her dearest projects. I believe her intense activity in China is to no small extent due to her fear that Anglo-Saxon power, once centralized, will sweep everything before it in the Far East. Dreading the rapid realization of this nightmare, she is making hay while the sun shines, in trying the utmost to tie the hands of those who are working to materialize Anglo-American sentiment.

Russia Distorts Facts.

"The latest evidence of this is in the Alaska affair. Though, strictly speaking, it is a matter of internal politics and would have been settled long ago if left solely to Great Britain and the United States. Russia has managed assiduously to suggest motives never dreamed of by America, by distorting facts. It is impossible for me to divulge exactly how or to what extent Russia has her paws into the dispute. But the attitude of her press, official to the core, is quite sufficient to show her motives."

Caused Dissatisfaction.

The report that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier of Canada, and Sir L. H. Davies, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, are to come here in regard to Alaska is thought at the Canadian High Commissioner's office to be quite probable, but nothing is known definitely of the matter. Both there and at the United States Embassy it was said that the state of negotiations had not changed and is spoken of rather wearily. The caustic remarks of Sir Charles Tupper, formerly Canadian High Commissioner, in the interview which a representative of the Associated Press had with him on Aug. 18, when he said the United States was purposely delaying the settlement of the Alaska dispute on account of the pecuniary benefit accruing to miners and coast cities through the delay and had refused to have the boundary delimited, as was being done in Venezuela, created considerable dissatisfaction at the United States Embassy.

Facts Were Misrepresented.

It was claimed there that Sir Charles Tupper quite misrepresented the facts, and that the dilatoriness was entirely due to the Canadians. It was also said that his declaration that the commission proposal by the United States provided for no umpire was a deliberate evasion, as the facts are the United States proposal included an umpire to be chosen by both sides from North America. Though this was not committed to writing, it was thoroughly understood. The hitch came through the absolute refusal of the Canadian to accede, they insisted upon a European umpire. It may be said that the impression exists that Canadian politics are chiefly responsible for the Alaskan impasse. This is not only the American idea, but it obtains among some of the British officials, though most of the latter are inclined to believe the United States should make vast concessions in order to convince true British of the sincerity of their friendship and as a return of the war services. In other words, the British now rather expect a quid pro quo, an expression not uncommon in these days.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

A new comedy called "Wheels Within Wheels" is expected to go the rounds.

Robert Drouet will play John Storm in "The Christian" with Miss Allen next season.

"Annie Rooney" is undergoing a revival in Paris to the temporary eclipsing of Dreyfus.

Richard Mansfield is reputed to have taken out a life insurance policy for $100,000 recently.

David Belasco has completed an original play which will be produced early in the season with a specially selected company.

An elaborate revival of Shakespeare's tragedy of "Macbeth" will be the feature of Frederick Warde's repertory next season.

It is unofficially announced that Rudyard Kipling is to write the fairy play to be produced at the London Lyceum next season.

Some German statistician has discovered that stage dancing is conducive to longevity. Taglioni lived to be 80 and Fanny Elssler to be 74.

Rose Coghlan has been re-engaged for her original role of "Mlle. Fifi" for next season, the piece to open its tour in August in Chicago.

Emma Calve's much talked of monument represents her as Ophelia, and the sculptor has promised to exhibit it at the Paris exposition.

Minnie Seligman will appear in the vaudeville houses in a one act play called "Therese," which has been done in Europe by Sarah Bernhardt.

In a play called "Wine, Women and Song," recently produced at the Princess theater, London, two demimondaines, armed with butchers' knives, fight to the death in a beautiful setting profusely decorated with flowers.

George Bernard Shaw submitted his new play, "Caesar and Cleopatra," to Richard Mansfield, but as Shaw had required a 56-year-old baldheaded Caesar to make love to a 16-year-old Cleopatra the manuscript was returned.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey properly kept will improve with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No track of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

"ADMIT WITHIN FIRE LINES."

An Extraordinary Motto For a Reporter's Funeral Emblem.

In his story of "The Last of the Mulberry Street Barons," in The Century, Mr. Jacob A. Riis, author of "How the Other Half Lives," tells a rather gruesome but very amusing anecdote of a fellow reporter attached to police headquarters in Mulberry street, New York.

There had been a feud of long standing between the reporters in Mulberry street, and in consequence news was plentiful. There were mutual scores to be paid off, and we paid them off in the coin of the realm. The coin of Mulberry street was murder, fire and sudden death (we had passed the stage of boxing gloves and did not speak as we passed by), and it went a long way. I do not mean, of course, that we murdered or burned up one another, but these things were the staples of our daily work as police reporters, and when we were "out" the precinct returns received an extra sifting, with the result that many a grain of newspaper wheat that would otherwise have escaped was rescued from the dust bin.

We had our specialties in this contest of wits. One was distinguished as a sleuth. He fed on detective mysteries as a cat on a chicken bone. He thought them out by day and dreamed them out by night, to the great exasperation of the official detectives, with whom their solution was a commercial, not in the least an intellectual, affair. They solved them on the plane of the proverbial lacking of honor among thieves, by the formula, "You scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours."

Another came out strong on fires. He knew the history of every house in town that ran any risk of being burned, knew every fireman and could tell within $1,000, more or less, what was the value of the goods stored in any building in the dry goods district and for how much they were insured. If he couldn't, he did anyhow, and his guesses often came near the facts, as shown in the final adjustment. He sniffed a firebug from afar and knew without asking how much salvage there was in a bale of cotton after being 24 hours in the fire. He is dead, poor fellow. In life he was fond of a joke, and in death the joke clung to him in a way wholly unforeseen.

The firemen in the next block, with whom he made his headquarters when off duty, so that he might always be within hearing of the gong, wished to give some tangible evidence of their regard for the old reporter, but, being in a hurry, left it to the florist, who knew him well, to choose the design. He hit upon a floral fire badge as the proper thing, and thus it was that when the company of mourners was assembled and the funeral service in progress there arrived and was set upon the coffin, in the view of all, that triumph of the florist's art, a shield of white roses, with this legend written across it in red immortelles: "Admit Within Fire Lines Only." It was shocking, but irresistible. It brought down even the house of mourning.

He Couldn't Help It.

"That boy of mine," said the angry father, "is just a natural born fool."

"Of course," retorted the neighbor, and there was that in his tone that made the father want to climb the fence and go after him.—Chicago Post.

It is said that in many Welsh villages the yew tree and the church are of the same age, the one being planted when the other was built.

THE GUERINITES SUICIDED?

Black Flag Out And No One to be Seen And No Answer to Ring at Door.

Paris, Aug. 27.—6.40 a.m.—All was quiet in the vicinity of rue Chabrol throughout the night, but at 4 o'clock this morning a black flag appeared at the attic windows. Some days ago M. Guerin stated that in the event of his death the party would hoist the black flag. It is known that two of the party have been ill, one seriously, from congestion of the lungs. Guerin, however, resumed his watch on the roof at 5 a.m.

By permission of the police commissary, the Abbe de Sers to-day several times rang the door bell of the house, but received no reply. He renewed his efforts to communicate with the occupants later, but with the same result. The Abbe said he had listened intently but could hear no sound inside the building except the ringing of the bell. He added: "I do not believe, however, that there has been a general suicide of the inmates. The suicide theory is not in accordance with Guerin's ideas."

M. Guerin's brother, Louis, was asked to try to communicate with the besieged party, but he refused to do so.

War on Christian Science.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25.—The death of James Vanalst Hedenburg, 12 years old, at Needham Friday night after eighteen day's treatment by two Christian Science healers, has aroused bitter feelings in that rich old town, and the seven local physicians have decided to carry the case into court. Their object is to ascertain the status of Christian Scientists and it is a test case that will attract widespread attention.

McKinley's Foreign Policy.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 26.—President McKinley, addressing 12,000 persons in the Auditorium here yesterday afternoon, declared his policy in the Philippines as follows—

"Peace first, then, with charity for all, establish a government of law and order, protecting life and property, and occupation for the well-being of the people who will participate in it under the Stars and Stripes."

Snap Shots With a Graphophone.

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. KRUGER'S SPIES SPYED

The Portuguese Authorities at Delagoa Bay Make Several Arrests.

EXCITEMENT ON THE COAST

And Troops Kept in Readiness to Repel Transvaal Raid Upon Coverted Land.

The Position in the Transvaal is That of Marking Time—Nothing is Yet Definitely Known of the Contents of the Transvaal Government's Reply to the Demands of Great Britain.

Lourenzo Marquez, Delagoa Bay, Aug. 27.—Several persons suspected of being emissaries of the Transvaal Government has been arrested here. Excitement prevails, and in view of a contemplated Transvaal raid the Portuguese troops are kept in readiness for an emergency.

More Gold Shipments.

London, Aug. 27.—The position of the South African trouble is that of marking time. Nothing is yet definitely known of the contents of the Transvaal Government's reply to the demands of Great Britain, though it is practically certain it makes alternative proposals, as already cabled to the Associated Press, and it is rumored from Pretoria that it proposes to leave the suzerainty question quiescent and asks Great Britain to accept the principle of arbitration, but not by the subjects of foreign powers. In the absence of exact details this is regarded favorably as an indication that the negotiations will continue. Further gold shipments to Cape Town for war purposes are reported to be imminent, the gold usually shipped to San Francisco being diverted thither.

The Grapes Are Sour, Says The Standard.

London, Aug. 28.—The Government blue book on the Boer troubles has been issued. It gives the history of the Transvaal negotiations up to date and tells of the efforts of Mr. Chamberlain to secure the arbitration of the whole question before some independent and impartial tribunal and of the Government's rejection of President Kruger's scheme for arbitration.

The pressure upon the Transvaal is getting strenuous. From Johannesburg comes the news that the Imperial Government has notified the Transvaal that colored British subjects must be exempt from the law removing the colored population to a location outside the town.

At Amsterdam to-day a meeting of the citizens passed an expression of sympathy with the Transvaal in its dispute with Great Britain. A resolution was adopted declaring that the Transvaal had a right to sovereign nationality, and that those who were pressing for war were most wrongly informed.

Sanitation In The Field.

The army medical service to-day cabled Surgeon-General Sternberg of the United States army, asking him for three hundred copies of a publication called "Sanitary Lessons in the War." The copies will be distributed among the medical officers of the British army. The cable request is another indication of the rapid preparation being made for a possible war in South Africa.

The morning papers are unanimous in their support of Mr. Chamberlain's policy as disclosed by the blue book. They are convinced that he has determined not only on franchise reform but on securing general improvement of the Uitlanders.

Worthless Territory.

The Standard says—"Nobody in England wants war, and the Government is doing all it can to avoid a rupture. Still less do we want the Transvaal itself. Apart from its gold reefs, its territory is almost worthless. Its mines will probably be exhausted in half a century. We do not desire the Boers as fellow subjects; we do not want another Ireland. It is merely political justice that the Government is determined to obtain."

The Times has been asked for information concerning anyone cured in Peterborough by the "divine healer," Schrader. Surely this information is not hard to obtain and we hope somebody will relieve our contributor's thirst for knowledge.

A SIMPLE LITTLE MIX UP.

How It Helped One Man at the Expense of Another.

How a bunch of roses sold a couple of high priced railroad tickets is the basis of a queer little comedy of errors enacted the other day at a leading city hotel. Among the guests of the house was a wealthy Texas merchant who was en route with his wife for a visit to New England. The Texan has a local business representative here in the person of a hustling young man about town, who was especially anxious to make the stay of his principal as pleasant as possible. Accordingly he rushed to a florist's as soon as he saw the names on the register and ordered him to put up the handsomest bunch of roses he had in the shop and send them over to Mrs. Blank at such and such a hotel. In his hurry he forgot to leave his card for inclosure, and, supposing it was omitted intentionally, the florist proceeded to prepare a magnificent bouquet, which he dispatched forthwith by messenger.

It so happened at the moment the flowers arrived that a city passenger solicitor for one of the north bound roads had just handed over his card to be sent to the Texas gentleman's apartment, and quite naturally the pasteboard and the roses went up together. The visitors were both astonished and pleased. "This is certainly a princely way of soliciting business," exclaimed the merchant, examining the flowers. "Why, these things must have cost all of $10. Show the gentleman up."

The solicitor was shown up, received most cordially and given an immediate order for through transportation both ways. He departed, chuckling merrily, but a little dazed by the facility of his deal and puzzled to understand the many references to his "courtesy" and "thoughtfulness."

An hour or so later the local representative dropped around and was met by his employer in the lobby. The greeting was painfully matter of fact, and not a word was said about the flowers. The young man was greatly chagrined and began to believe he had made a bad break. Next day he accompanied the couple to the depot, and incidentally something was said about the route.

"We decided to go this way on account of the gentleman who called to sell us tickets," explained the lady. "He was so courteous and pleasant! Why, would you believe it," she continued, "he actually sent me an enormous bunch of beauty roses with his business card!"

Light dawned on the local representative, and he groaned. In his pocket was a florist's bill for $12.75.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery In Battle.

"It was a toothache," said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues get away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to bat his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

Light and Airy.

The Abyssinian soldier's ordinary dress is not very attractive. It consists, it is said, of a white linen shirt down to his knees and a pair of light linen trousers to half way down his calf. Over this he wears a belt of folded linen, and, as a rule, a "shamma," or white cotton sheet, draped round him. Cloaks of blue, red, green, yellow or violet, ornamented with rough embroidery, leopard skins, sheepskins and even lion skins are worn on special occasions by the officers and small chiefs, and the army then presents a noble show.

Any man who has killed a lion or an elephant or has distinguished himself much in battle wears an aureole, or lion's mane, on his head. For each five men he has killed he wears a silver band on his sword scabbard. The highest recompense for valor is a sort of velvet top hat ornamented with silver, and great officers are given shields covered with velvet and ornamented with gold and silver.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

One Exception.

"Do you love me so much," she demanded, "that you would be willing to give up your all for me?"

"Yes," he replied, "I would willingly give up all for you; but, of course, that doesn't include what I expect from your father."—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

Looking Ahead.

"It is only a matter of time," said Golfer, "when the expansion policy will carry us into Canada."

"What makes you think that?"

"Oh, we will need the land on the other side of the border for golf links!"—Philadelphia North American.

The Unattainable One.

She—Indeed it's not an easy thing for a girl to get a husband.

He—Why, a pretty girl can make her choice of four out of every five men she meets!

She—But it's the fifth that she wants.—Harlem Life.

A bundle of spider webs, not larger than a buckshot and weighing less than a dram, would, if straightened out and untangled, reach a distance of 350 miles.

A FAITHFUL DOG.

Its Owner Realised Its Worth, as Well He Might.

"Well, I wouldn't have believed it," exclaimed Jones in astonishment as he dropped in to see Smith the other evening and was met in the hall by a St. Bernard dog.

"Wouldn't have believed what?" asked Smith.

"Why, that you'd have a dog in your house," continued Jones. "It belongs to one of your neighbors, I suppose?"

"No, sir; that's my dog," replied Smith proudly.

"You don't really mean it, old man? Why, I've known you now for five years, and you've always had a marked aversion for dogs."

"Yes, I did have until lately, but I wouldn't be without one now. This brute is a noble, faithful fellow, and I wouldn't take $100 spot cash for"—

But at this juncture he was interrupted by his wife calling down over the banister:

"Henry Smith, who was it that scattered these cigar ashes all over my dresser?"

"It must have been the dog, my dear," was his reply.

"And who was it that dropped these apple peelings on the floor?" she demanded.

"The dog, my dear," answered Smith.

"And there's a bottle of mucilage spilled on the hall carpet up here too. Is that some of your work, Henry?"

"No, my dear; the dog's to blame for that."

"And, goodness gracious," she continued angrily, "if some one hasn't been whittling up here again! How many times have I told you not to do that in the house?"

"But I had nothing to do with it, my dear. The dog's been up there probably chewing a stick."

"Well, it's a burning shame the way this house is mussed up. Your collars and ties are scattered all over the rooms."

"Are they, my dear? That dog's been up there again then. Yes," continued Smith as he drew his friend into the parlor, "I wouldn't take a big pot of money for that dog. Why, the noble fellow saves me about 20 jawings a week."

"So I see," chuckled Jones, "and you bet I'll have one before noon tomorrow."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THE SPECTRAL BELL.

A Superstition of the Sea Sometimes Met With on Land.

The tolling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and especially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobile to the passes who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is entirely different, they say, from any other noise of the ocean, and they scout the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old seafaring man the other night, "and, for that matter, it's sometimes heard on land. I know, because I've listened to it myself. Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story, I quit sailorizing for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sierra Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcropping of rotten quartz that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink a shaft, although it was the most God forsaken spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in a little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhere, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, while Whicher was in the hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and seemed right over a mountain spur, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solemn and plainer than ever. It was broad daylight, and that made the thing all the worse, which sounds funny, but is true. We stood it four times, and then Whicher climbed out of the hole and said, 'Let's go.' I was willing. I believe we had a good thing, but that bell—it was too many for us. It makes my flesh crawl to think about it even now."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily begotten and often lost—the envy of all and the greatest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of cheapness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the altering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

CO BO REMEDIES

Stimulants and Purgatives cannot cure you, but The GREAT INDIAN BLOOD MEDICINE must and will

Every bottle of this universal blood maker and flesh builder carries a positive GUARANTEE. Evidence [illegible] tells of hidden disease. A deranged stomach will undermine the entire system. CO BO, in its direct action on the liver, kidneys and stomach, cures every phase of mal-nutrition, makes blood and carries food and strength to every tissue, and gives back health when once lurked death. GEORGE STEVENS
MARK STREET, ASHBURNHAM

Often in the morning there comes a feeling of weariness, indescribable; not exactly ill, nor fit to work, but too near well to remain idle.

A Ripans Tabule taken at night, before retiring, or just after dinner, has been known to drive away that weariness for months.

WANTED—A case of bad health that R-I-P-A-N-S will not benefit. Send five cents to Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce Street, New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials. R-I-P-A-N-S, 10 for 5 cents, or 12 packets for 48 cents, may be had of all druggists who are willing to sell a standard medicine at a moderate profit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R-I-P-A-N-S on the packet. Accept no substitute.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Does Your Head Ache?

Are your nerves weak? Can't you sleep well? Pain in your back? Lack energy? Appetite poor? Digestion bad? Boils or pimples? These are sure signs of poisoning.

From what poisons?

From poisons that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

There is a common sense cure.

AYER'S PILLS

They daily insure an easy and natural movement of the bowels.

You will find that the use of

with the pills will hasten recovery. It cleanses the blood from all impurities and is a great tonic to the nerves.

BLIND MAN TOOK HONORS.

John Swearingen of Edgefield, S. C., made totally blind by an accident while 7 years old, has just graduated from the South Carolina college at the age of 20, taking the full classical course and making the highest record during the entire four years of any man since the founding of the college the first part of this century. He was first honor man, delivering an oration, entitled "Our Heritage."

The faculty regard Mr. Swearingen as a wonder. Dr. J. W. Flynn says he had been a professor only 10 years, but had spent years in half a dozen colleges of high standing, including Heidlsberg, "and," said he, I have never met a man to compare with Swearingen. I sincerely regret the alumni has not a fund to send him to the best places in the world to thoroughly develop his powers. His family have not the means to do this.

"In whatever he undertakes he must stand at top. He is uncertain whether to study for the ministry or the law. As a lawyer he would make a great success, even before a jury, and he would make a mark as an author.

"His imaginative powers of mind and fine logical reasoning are astonishing. His memory is such as other men have had; for instance, he can deliver a lecture complete that he has heard once, but not in the same language. If vital points have been touched upon by the professor he will bring them out and elaborate them.

"In such branches as mathematics, astronomy and psychology, as now taught, where the sight would be considered so important, Swearingen never faltered. He answered, with less than two minutes thought, a catch complex mathematical proposition that I have never had answered by another student. He has a perfect conception of relative positions and distance of heavenly bodies, and experienced no difficulty in drawing correctly geometrical figures"

In further exemplification of the man's extraordinary faculties, Dr. Flynn said he had tested him in various ways, even to his own astonishment, when one day he handed Swearingen a wooden nut-cracker. The cracking portion was a finely carved head of Bismarck, giving a capital likeness. The young man passed his fingers over the face and unhesitatingly said: "Why, that is Bismarck."

A class and roommate read aloud his studies in Swearingen's hearing. That was how he studied in college.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after line receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said. "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

All Roads Lead to the Dressmaker.

Mr. Hornbill—Do you know, darling, I could pick you out of a crowd of women just by your style!

Mrs. Hornbill—I don't wonder, and me with this same old dress for the last two years!

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrew Randale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellison's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North American Review.

FUNSTON AND HIS MEN.

General Funston has been in the swim. —Boston Herald.

Hail to General Funston, the unosculated Hobson of the orient!—Detroit Free Press.

Ten to one, when Aguinaldo gets his last ditch ready, that man Funston will be on hand to swim it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

General Fred Funston, the Kansas cyclone in the tropics, is not a Chicago man. He didn't stop to boil the water.—Omaha Bee.

Judging by the elegant fight he puts up, Fred Funston must have been a member of some Kansas church choir.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Twentieth Kansas is showing itself ambitious, ambidextrous and amphibious. It is right in the swim all the time. —Topeka Capital.

General Funston can have anything he wants in Kansas when he gets home, even Jerry Simpson's socks, if he can find them.—St. Paul Globe.

We will soon be hearing from the chaps who attended swimming school with General Fred Funston and tied knots in his clothes.—Washington Post.

General Luna is the first to see the sea serpent this season. Some observers say it was the Kansas regiment using a rope for a ferry.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No wonder the Twentieth Kansas volunteers have invariably swept the Filipinos before them. Their battlecry is the Kansas university football yell of "Rock chalk! Jayhawk! K. S. U.!"—St. Louis Republic.

THE CYNIC.

All of us are very clever in finding excuses for not working more.

The most sensible woman will "put on" a little before a preacher.

A man is not really prominent until he has officiated at three prominent funerals

Some women who never work for anything else will work like slaves for a church.

An old maid dearly loves to watch a quarrel between a husband and wife to see how it comes out.

If a man truly loves his wife, he is very apt to become confidential and tell her a lot of stories on the other fellows.

In talking it is well to know that people will not remember what you are saying unless they can use it against you.

A man always rises in his own estimation when he gets on familiar terms with a person of whom he once stood in awe.

There probably never was a woman too good to try to pass her children off as under age when traveling on the railroad.—Atchison Globe.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

Peacocks are reliable weather prophets. Before a storm the gaudy birds become restless and clamorous.

The green woodpecker is said to laugh his "Ya-ha-ha" in different, more liquid tones when rain is coming, and especially gifted persons claim his cry really changes to "rain, rain, rain!"

In Dorsetshire, England, they foretell storms by the flight of the rooks. When they are pitch falling or playing at tumbling, diving and wheeling in the air, they say a storm is due.

Sea fowl are very clever in foretelling a storm. To a sailor bad weather means wind, and to a landsman it means rain, but the screaming of the water birds usually foretells a change of some sort for the worse in the prevailing weather.

SISTERLY CITIES.

Minneapolis has lost a dam, but then the town was never worth one.—St. Paul Dispatch

What is being done for art in Chicago is not much. What is being done for art by Chicago is infinitely less.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

If the New York gas war keeps on at its present rate of progress, consumers will soon get the stuff for nothing, with a chromo and a pound of tea thrown in.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

New Yorkers are talking of having a self propelling fire engine. Come up this way, neighbors, and see what the metropolis of Connecticut can show you in that line. You're years behind us.—Hartford Courant.

FOUL TIPS.

For Sale—One baseball team. Answers to the name of "Giants." Any offer will be accepted.—New York Herald.

The ex-prides of Von der Ahe haven't as yet had their batting eyes forwarded from St. Louis.—Cleveland Leader.

As in previous years, the Washington team, as a matter of strict courtesy, will be known as a baseball club.—Chicago Record.

A Deadly Danger.

Many a man who has the seeds of disease planted in his blood dreams away his time in fancied security with a deadly danger coiled upon him ready to strike its fangs into his very vitals.

"Should a man think he has consumption," you ask, "just because his appetite is poor and he is losing flesh and he has a little cough and a general feeling of weakness and incapacity?"

No: that doesn't necessarily mean consumption, but it means that the system is being steadily undermined; it is losing force and vitality; it is being tainted with bilious poisons that the liver hasn't power to throw off and any day that which is now only a probability may suddenly develop into a certainty.

"My wife had hemorrhage of the lungs. She had ten hemorrhages, and the people all around here said she would never be well again," said Mr. W. A. Sanders, of Hern, Mason Co., W. Va., in a very instructive letter written to Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. "But she began to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she soon began to gain strength and flesh. After taking ten bottles she was entirely well. Should you think this will do you any good to publish, just use it, and if any one disputes the merits of this almost omnipotent medicine they may enclose self-addressed envelope with stamp, and I will answer the same as written in this letter."

But the time to use this medicine is now while the little weaknesses are slowly breaking you down. Awaken in time and throw off the deadly danger before it strikes you in a vital spot. This glorious "Discovery" will give you appetite and digestive power, pure blood and solid substantial strength.

Write to Dr. Pierce about your condition. He will send you good, professional advice, free of charge.

WHERE IS ISAAC RICHARDSON?

This is What is What is Troubling a Number of His Creditors.

On Saturday morning word was brought to the Times office that Mr. Isaac Richardson, the well-known hog buyer, had disappeared. The Times at once instituted enquires, as to the truth of the rumor.

Mr. Frank Matthews said that Mr. Mr. Richardson delivered his weekly consignment of hogs at the Matthews factory on Tuesday, as usual. Mr. Matthews further stated that he could hardly credit the rumor of Mr. Richardson's departure. Had he wanted he could have done the Matthews Company up for a thousand dollars. That he did not do so was presumptive evidence, at all events, that he was not seeking to act dishonorably.

The Times also learned that Mr. Richardson owes probably $5,000, mostly to farmers living in Cavan, Manvers and Emily. Mr. Richardson was always regarded as the soul of honor, and his absence under the circumstances is incomprehensible.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mrs. John Strain in Ashburnham.

The death occurred on Saturday evening of Mrs. John Strain, at the residence of her husband, Elizabeth street.

The deceased had been ill from the affects of blood poisoning for some weeks and finally succumbed Saturday night. The bereavement of the relatives and many sorrowing friends is further intensified by the fact that several of the children are at present seriously ill.

A family of a husband and nine daughters survive. By her amiable and loving disposition, Mrs. Strain had won many warm friends, who will heartily sympathize with the family in their deep trouble.

The funeral took place to the Little Lake cemetery at three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

A Coming Event.

That "The New Boy" is as funny as ever will be demonstrated at Bradburn's when Bart Coote presents the funny comedy in a few weeks. Theatre-goers who have seen this mirthful comedy, are astonished at the audacity of the thing. While in one sense of the word, it is the brundest farce, at the same time, it is legitimate and acted on legitimate methods. Part of the comedy may be said to be absurd, but the incongruity is easily forgotten by the brilliancy of the lines which at times sparkle like old wine and never stupied or tiring. It is a play with a point to it, too, and a point which points a moral. Bullock Major, the cook of the school with his refinement of boy's brutality is a figure new to the stage, but a horrid nightmare to generations of new boys from Tom Brown at Rugby down to the latest arrival at the boarding school or the new boy in town at the village public school. Mr. Bart Coote whom all critics conceive to be the cleverest impersonator of the title role yet seen in this country, will sustain the character there and will be supported by his own strong company including Miss Julia Kingsley.

Contrary to Orders.

Joseph Starr, the unfortunate victim of the drowning accident at Nassau on Friday evening, undertook to run the punt over the slide without orders. Mr. Callihan, the superintendent of the drives, told the Times yesterday that the jam of logs below the slide caused the undertow of water, which dragged poor Starr to his death. He should have waited till the logs were cleared away before attempting to take the boat over.

Darkest Russia.

The season opened last night at Bradburn's Opera House, when a fair and appreciative audience greeted the production of Edwin C. Jepson's "Darkest Russia," which was put on by a talented company. The plot is laid in St. Petersburg and the Siberian mines where the Russian political prisoners are sent. The play throughout was interesting and held the audience from start to finish. A return date would be much appreciated. Manager Bradburn is to be congratulated on the high class shows which he has already booked for the coming season, having some of the best on the road.

FOOD FOR CHILDREN.

Determined people will generally accomplish their aim if they persist. But simple "I will" is not enough.

One must enlist other forces, particularly health, and health is obtained from good food and a well-balanced mind.

Children especially, should be given food known to contain the elements required by body for its proper building and rebuilding. Children fed on white bread, qualities of potatoes, candy and pie are sure to be "rickety" and a disappointment to their parents and themselves. Children fed on Grape-Nuts and cream each day are supplied with a food containing all the food elements nature needs, except water and oxygen, and children so fed are sure to round out into sturdy, healthy and brainy young men and women unless some unforeseen and exceptional loss arises. The delicate grape-sugar sweet of the food makes Grape-Nuts a prime favorite with young and old. Postum Cereal Co. Ltd. make Grape-Nuts at their Battle Creek factories and all first-class grocers sell them.

THE BODY RECOVERED.

The Body of Joseph Starr Recovered at 5.30 Yesterday Afternoon.

The body of this unfortunate young man, Joseph Starr, was recovered yesterday evening about 5.30. It was seen by a man named Fredenburg, who was searching in a boat, floating in the centre of the stream, about half way between Nassau and the water works dam. On Sunday ten charges of dynamite had been discharged under water, and this no doubt caused the body to rise. The funeral will leave the residence of Mr. Harry Starr, brother of the deceased, 62 Murray-st., this evening at five o'clock for the Little Lake Cemetery.

A Case of Obstruction.

That the affairs connected with our streets are not being well managed is becoming more apparent every day. As a sample of mismanagement, yesterday the plank taken from the entrance to the fire hall was carried across the road, and piled up directly in front of the fine store of Messrs. R. Hall & Son in such a way as to greatly inconvenience the firm in getting in goods that are almost con-

WAR CLOUD DARKENING

Unless the Boers' Terms Are Better Than Generally Believed

DIPLOMACY IS ALL OVER.

Queensland is Making Preparations to Despatch a Contingent to South Africa.

It is Said That With Recruits From Over the Border the Transvaal Would Have More Than Sixty Thousand Men at Its Disposal—British Now Prepared to Throw 30,000 Men on the Frontier.

London, Aug. 29.—Commenting on the latest utterance of President Kruger of the Transvall Government, that the South African Republic adheres to its latest offer and would not make any further concessions, the African papers here unanimously draw attention to the increased seriousness of the Transvaal crisis, but in the same breath they expressed uncertainty regarding the nature of the concessions beyond which President Kruger says he will not go. Noofficial announcement has been made of these, though they are generally understood to be a five-year franchise and increased outlander representation.

Diplomacy Exhausted.

"If this is correct," the Globe says, "it cannot be long before diplomacy has to stand aside as of no further service."

The Pall Mall Gazette: "President Kruger adheres to impossible conditions, and if so the situation has come to an ugly head."

The Westminster Gazette, while lamenting the immoderation which, it says, led to the present crisis, admits that "the country is within sight of a war which may shortly be as unavoidable as on the merits of the question it would be inexcusable."

The Comparative Forces.

To whatever despatch or conditions President Kruger's defiant remarks referred, it has brought home sharply the keen possibility of an impending war against no weak kneed adversary. It is said that with recruits from over the border the Transvaal would have about sixty thousand men at its disposal, whereas the most the British could now throw on the frontier would be 30,000, though, of course, this number could be materially increased within a month. The British public are taking intense interest in the preparations of their own forces already in South Africa.

Indignation against Hon. W P. Schreiner, Premier of Cape Colony, who, in the Cape House of Assembly, yesterday, declared that, under the customs convention, the Orange Free State was justified in importing arms through Cape Colony, is fairly general, though that section which believes that a Boer war would be a crime are making, by editorials, petitions, etc., what they appear to think is the last effort to avert hostilities.

Brisbane, Aug. 29.—In consequence of the increased tension in the Transvaal affair, the Queensland Government is making preliminary arrangements to despatch a contingent to South Africa.

A Sure Catch.

Mr. Martin, of the "Spot Cash" grocery establishment, drew the attraction of a Times' representative yesterday to what might truly be termed a "phenomenal catch." On entering his store yesterday morning his eye was attractad by an unusually large object caught by the sticky surface of "Sure Catch" fly paper On investigation he found a good sized mouse lying upon its side and held in that position as tenaciously as it caught in the regulation trap. Upon holding the paper up in a perpendicular position, the little animal was still held as firmly as its more dimunitive, yet equally unfortunate pards, the common house flys. Truly a new use has thus been discovered for the fly paper of the "Sure Catch" discription.

Yesterday's Fire.

The brigade was called out yesterday afternoon to quench a fire which had started in one of the culverts of the C. P. R. near the foot of Stricklands' hill. The flames were easily subdued before they could extend to the grass and neighboring fence.

DUMOULIN CLOSES ST. PETER'S

Favors Shown by Congregation to Mr. Geoghegan the Cause.

Hamilton, Aug. 28.—Bishop Du Moulin has closed St. Peter's church, and it will remain closed until further orders. It is understood that the cause of the trouble lies in the fact that trouble has risen between the pastor, Rev. Wm. Bevan, and his congregation, because the latter showed too much sympathy with its former pastor Rev. Mr. Geoghegan, who was recently suspended. Some of the leading lights of the church said to-day that they would not be in the least surprised if the church doors were closed for all time to come.

A FAT AND COMICAL WITNESS TESTIFIES

At the Dreyfus Court-Martial, and Causes Roars of Laughter From the Judges and Spectators.

M. DEFREYCINET TAKES THE STAND.

Dreyfus Said the Scene Which Preceded His Arrest Was so Fantastic That It Had Completely Bewildered Him and Left a Blunted Impression.

Rennies, Aug. 29.—General Mercier, the former Minister of War, and most of the other generals interested in the case were present in the hall of the Lycee this morning when the trail of Captain Dreyfus was opened in the usual manner and without special incident.

Colonel Cordier, deputy chief of the Intelligence Department under the late Lieut.-Col. Henry, who, since his previous appearance in court, had been released by the Minister of War, General Le Marquis de Galifet, from his oath of professional secrecy, was the first witness called to-day. He testified to the effect that the late Col. Sandherr, and not Lieut.-Col. Henry, received the famous bordereau.

In Favor of Dreyfus.

The witness deposed strongly in favor of Dreyfus, and was most amusing in delivering his testimony. He kept the court and even the judges in roars of laughter by his comical manner and witticisms. He is a short, stout man with a jolly face and a very red nose.

The colonel declared that his belief in the guilt of Dreyfus was first shaken when the date of the bordereau was given as May and, later, the witness declared stoutly he was now convinced that Dreyfus was innocent.

Jealous of Picquart.

Colonel Cordier then spoke up strongly for Col. Picquart, as a conscientious soldier and an honorable man, and threw light upon the situation which existed in the offices of the Intelligence Department of the War Office. He explained that Henry was jealous of Picquart because the latter was given charge of the statistical section, which Henry hoped to get for himself. Cordier expressed the belief that it was because of Picquart that Henry committed his forgery.

The evidence of Colonel Cordier was delivered in a loud voice, accompanied by humorous asides. He several times mentioned the Ambassador of Germany, which caused the president o the court, Col. Jouaust, to intervene and tell the witness that he must not introduce the Ambassador's name or refer to Germany. The hasty corrections of the witness when he repeated the same slips of the tongue, as he did more than once, and the amusing manner in which he avoided mentioning Germany at other times, caused the greatest merriment. During his testimony no fewer than five witnesses rose and asked to be confronted with him. But the Colonel received the interruptions with the utmost good humor.

A Fantastic Scene.

Dreyfus spoke a few words at the conclusion of Colonel Cordier's statements. He said that the scene which preceded his arrest was so fantastic that it had completely bewildered him and merely left a blunted impression on his memory.

The prisoner is now accustomed to his surroundings, and has apparently recovered his self-confidence, as he speaks readily and clearly and follows the witnesses closely, taking notes of various points of their depositions.

Major Lauth first confronted Colonel Cordier and tried to score against him by pointing out that Cordier was incorrect in saying there were anti-Semites on the general staff since Cordier himself was one. The colonel retorted turning the tables on the major, as raising his hand, he cried: "Quite true. I was an anti-Semite, but I never bore false witness against the Jews. I am an honest man."

The audience applauded these remarks.

Colonel Cordier then administered a well-deserved snub to Major Lauth, by remarking that he, the Colonel, might be allowed to know more than Major Lauth with reference to the work of the Intelligence Department, since he, Cordier, replaced Colonel Sandherr as chief of the department whenever Sandherr was absent, while Major Lauth, the witness concluded, "was merely my assistant. My assistant, mark you.

Major Lauth did not enjoy this little scene at all. General Roget next confronted Colonel Cordier. The general assumed the same supercillious air which characterized him when he appeared at the witness bar, strutting about the stage in disdainful attitudes. His evidence, however, was not very striking, nor was that of Col. Fleur. or Archivist Gribelin, who also contested minor points of Col. Cordier's deposition. Finally General Mercier, who evidently confronted the prisoner in order to demonstrate the baseessness of the stories of his intentions to fly, and to chow his determination to fight to the last, confronted Col. Cordier. The general's remarkks were of small importance, the most interesting being his repetition of Col. Sandherr's opinion of Mathieu Dreyfus when the prisoner's brother went to see the Col. to ask for justice in behalf of Captain Dreyfus, Mercier admitted Sandherr said: 'Mathieu Dreyfus impresses me as an honest man, who was prepared to make any sacrifice to save his brother."

M. Defreycinet Appears.

M. Defreycinet, the former Minister of War, former Minister of Foreign fairs and Premier, followed Col. Cordier on the witness stand.

The court-room was packed to its utmost capacity as the distinguished French statesman began his deposition The former Minister is a venerable-looking man with scanty, snow-white hair and moustache, was dressed in a blue serge suit. He wore a little black bow for a necktie, and gave his testimony seated, and in a low office.

This witness was expected to speak about the thirty-five million francs supposed to have been contributed abroad, mainly in England and Germany, to the Dreyfusian was chest. M. De Freycinet began by expressing the pain which he experienced at the trouble his country was undergoing, and, later, he said he remembered a conversation with General Jamont, at which there was a reference to money coming from abroad in support of the Dreyfus agitation, "which, while disinterested in France might not be so abroad.

He Was Forgetful.

The statesman, however, did not remember the details of conversation, nor could he say if an amount was mentioned. M. De Freycinet then alluded to his fears that "attacks on the chiefs of the army might be prejudical to discipline," adding: "Might not these attacks lead to the disappearance of discipline, and what, then, would be the result if we found ourselves in difficulties with a foreign country.

In short, M. De Freycinet delivered a patriotic speech rather than a deposition, concluding with the words: "All the world will accept your verdict, which will open an era of reconciliation."

SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING.

Methodist Representatives in Conference at George Street Church.

Representatives of the District Methodist churches met in semi-annual conference at George street Methodist church yesterday morning with Rev. S. J. Shorey in the chair. After the usual opening exercise the general business of the meeting was taken up.

It was recommended by the meeting that a general school fund of $206.50 be granted.

Another recommendation that $100 for the Chemong Indian Mission also passed the meeting. The remainder of the meeting was devoted to the general business of the association.

In the afternoon the meeting was largely attended by the laymen when the general discussion on the million dollar 20th century fund was taken up.

Rev. Dr. Cade, Dr. Couch and Mr. D. W. Dumble gave very interesting addresses on the 20th century at an open meeting held last night

Succumbed to Injuries Received in a Runaway Accident Thursday.

Mr. Thos. H. Tindle, who had his leg broken and received internal injuries in a runaway accident on Thursday last, succumbed to his injuries at Nicholls' Hospital Monday night.

The deceased was 62 years of age and was born in Northumberland county, England, coming with his parents and the family to Canada in 1842 and taking up residence in Peterborough. Six years later the family moved out to the fourth concession of Smith and took up farming. Thomas left the farm as he grew up and learning the cutting business was employed at various times in Mt. Forest, Exeter, St. Catharines, Palmerston, Kingston, Ottawa and Pembrooke, from which latter town he moved to Peterborough about two years ago.

In Mt. Forest he was united in marriage to Isabella McDougall, who survives him with two children, viz., Thomas, of town, and Mrs. Wm. Edmison of the 9th concussion of Smith. Mr. James Tindle, who still lives on the homestead on the fourth concession, is a brother of the deceased.

The funeral takes place to-day at 3 p. m. from the family residence, Water st.

SPORTNG ITEMS.

Lacrosse.

The Shamrocks meet the Toronto Lacrosse Club on the Rosedale grounds for the last time this year on Monday, Labor Day. Each has won and lost one match, so the struggle for this deciding game will be a bitter and hard-fought battle.

"Chicky" McRae, Queen's great halfback of a few years ago, will be out with the Granites of Kingston this fall.

Arrangements have been completed for the visit of a strong Kffir football team, who will tour Great Britain under the auspices of the Orange Free State Football Association. The opening engagement will be with Aston Villa the first week in September. Over 40 fixtures with the crack combinations in England and Scotland have been arranged. The Kaffir team, who, with reserves, will number 18, are said to be first-class players, with wonderful staying powers.

GREAT VELVET COMBINE.

A Syndicate With $15,000,000 Capital Will be Formed at Manchester.

The Birmingham Amateur Will Attempt to Swim Across the Channel—Lancaster Going Ahead and Cotton Industry Busier Than Ever Known Before—Yorkshire Moors Ablaze.

London, Aug. 29.—According to news brought to Liverpool by the mail steamer Boma, an important French Mission, under M. Foret, has arrived at Botika Pt. M. Foret had with him about 100 Sengalese soldiers, armed with the usual type of French Government rifle. It was inferred from this latter fact that M. Foret had the support of the French Government, although, from the great quantity of trade goods with the mission, it bore the character of a mercantile one. Amongst the goods were 15,000 kegs of gunpowder. It was reported that an immense concession of territory had been promised to a group in Paris, and that M. Foret, with his expedition, was on his way to take over the land in question, which is in the northern district of the French Congo.

Great Velvet Combine.

Manchester, Aug. 29.—A report is current that in the autumn a combination of manufacturers, dyers and merchants interested in the velvet trade will be effected. The capital has been fixed at $15,000,000. It is confidently expected that by this combination the growing competition of Germany will be more effectively met.

To Swim the Channel.

London, Aug. 29.—Frank Holmes, the Birmingham amateur swimmer, made all arrangements to make another attempt to swim the English Channel recently, but at three o'clock in the morning there was a breeze on the water. Determined to start if possible, a boat was launched, and the weather tested for a mile or two off the land. Pilot Bingham, who accompanied Holmes in his famous swim last year, advised to the effect that there was too much wind, and the swim was postponed—probably till the next neap tides, when it is also stated Holbein will attempt the channel swim.

Lancashire Ahead.

Bolton, Lancashire, Aug. 29.—Trade was never so prosperous in Lancashire as at the present time. Industries are so busy that overtime is being extensively worked, and those that are running regular hours could do with extra time to keep up with contract engagements entered at the beginning of the year. Foremost is the cotton industry, which is at full stretch, and has been for close upon the last twelve months. To-day things in this section are so healthy that more new mills are about to be erected in South Lancashire, although the cost of building factories just now is much greater than a year ago.

Yorkshire Moors Ablaze.

London, Aug. 29.—The moor fire which broke out in the Scarborough and Pickering district proved one of the most serious outbreaks that has occurred for many years.

The heather over a large expanse has been completely destroyed, and a large number of grouse, partridges and rabbits must have been burned to death, the flames having been swiftly swept along by a strong west wind. The smoke could be seen at Scarborough, ten miles away. Fortunately there were no farms in the line of fire.

The outbreak, which originated on the great expanse known as South Moor, Ebberston, is supposed to have been caused by some smokers carelessly throwing down a lighted match in the dry heather. It is impossible at present to estimate the damage.

Shoes Will be Dearer.

Quebec, Aug. 29.—A largely-attended meeting of the shoe manufacturers from Toronto, Montreal, Quebec and St. Hyacinthe was held in Quebec to-day, at which practically every concern in Canada was represented.

It was unanimously decided that an advance should take place in the price of shoes of at least 10 per cent., and the jobbing and retail trade are being notified to this effect.

An organized was formed called the Canadian Shoe Manufacturer's Association.

One Year in the Central.

Amos Wright, of Galway, convicted of maliciously shooting two pigs belonging to a neighbor named Damos Peters, against whom he had a grudge, was yesterday morning sentenced by county magistrate Edmison to one year in the Central Prison.

THE GATHERING CLOUD.

The impossibility of distinguishing in their initial stages the application of stern pressure to the Transvaal and preparations for war, renders it difficult to say which the present military activity with reference to South Africa means. It would probably be near the truth to say that it means both. If Britian begins to march her troops upon the Transvaal border because the Boer oligarchy will not keep to its pledges with the Crown and because British subjects are being denied civilised treatment within the area of that remarkable republic, the march can only be stayed by the timely yielding of the Kruger party. Many imagine that it is for the sound of the feet of the British army that Kruger is waiting. That is a guarantee of good faith that he could certainly understand. But pressure of this kind can only result in war or success; and it may be that the men behind the Old Man are not willing, in their ignorance of the real conditions of the world, try again the arbitrament of war. It is not always a good thing for a small people to win an apparent triumph over a powerful antagonist.

While it appears incredible that the Boers should be in any doubt about the result of a dual with the British Empire, it may be remembered in extenuation that even so friendly a pen as that of Oliver Schreiner describes them as belated "peasants of the seventeenth century," and that there were until recently many people in the lightswept United States who argued from the result of the war of 1776 that the Americans could now meet and conquer Britain—and this before the American navy was in anything like the excellent condition of the present day. The Spanish war was a great eye-opener; but the Transvaal has had no Spanish war. Its chief military experience has lain in conflicting defeats upon British soldiers. Consequently it will not do to calculate too confidently upon Boer appreciation of the situation. The assembling of a large military force in South Africa, and a strict embargo upon its importation of military stores ought, however, to have some educational effect. It would look like good policy to make a very impressive military demonstration on the borders of the Transvaal before going the length of crossing the line with a hostile force.

AN ELEGANT TIME.

A Housewife's Inference from the Value of an Unexpected Present.

A certain Peterborough man congratulates himself on the fact that he has the best wife in the world. He does not mean to draw any invidious comparisons by this superlative estimate of his helpmeet, but he thinks no other woman would so well adjust herself to his eccentric habits. To tell the truth, he has not yet settled down so much that he does not enjoy a little whirl "with the boys." Sometimes these celebrations, develop into orgies of mangnificent proportions. It is here that wifey's good disposition asserts itself.

When her hubby comes home in the wee hours, and is groping vainly for the banisters, he is not confronted by an irate spouse at the top of the stairs. He is not compelled to listen to a certain lecture before he is allowed to sleep of his potations. He is confronted by no sour looks when he gets up the next morning with a fever-dizzy head, consequently he feels stricken with remorse. He evens things up with his conscience, or tries to, by purchasing fine raiment and various articles for the feminine toilet in order to make himself believe that he is in some degree worthy of such a wife. It makes no difference whether he takes his bender at home or on the Pacific coast; it seems impossible to eradicate the dark-brown taste until he has bought his peace offerings.

But the good wife herself has come to understand the meaning of these gifts. not long ago the husband went to Toronto on some business. Contact with convival friends and numerous "high balls" produced a Nacchanalien fete that lasted for three days. With sobriety comes remorse and the Peterboronian went done to a fashionable dry goods emporium and outdid himself. He bought an elegant dress and trimmings, which footed up $50. He expressed them to his wife and awaited developments.

In a day or two came a letter. It was not very affectionate, it is true, but was a good long one. It recounted the visit of Schrader, the Divine healer, even more vividly than it was described in the newspapers. The torrid weather also received honorable mention. All the details of the latest neighborhood gossip were fully cited. No mention was made of the receipt of the dress in the body of the letter. The postscript, always the best part of a woman's epistle, consisted of this brief sentence, which spoke volumes: "You must have had an elegant time."

FOUGHT IN THE PARK.

Two Women have a Lively Set-to in West Inverlea Park.

For some time bad blood has existed between two women living in the vicinity of Inverlea. It is said that there is a man in the case. At any rate last night while several persons were lounging in the park, they were startled by a woman's scream, followed by the sound of blows. It proved to be two women in a "scrap." One of them was accompanied by her seven year old son, and was said to be the attacking party. "I'll teach you to keep away from my husband, you hussy," was her battle cry, as she climbed all over her opponent, who was the smaller and lighter of the two.

When they found that their conduct had attracted attention, they immediately fled. The women are well known.

Barbed Wire Fence Telephone Lines.

Robert Baxter and Christy Bleakly, two prosperous and progressive farmers up west, living nearly two miles apart, last week placed telephone instruments in their homes, connecting them with the barbed wire fences. They found that the lines worked as well as the best city 'phones. They are now planning to have the great majority of the farmers in the township put in 'phones. All that they will need to do is to put in two poles wherever they want to cross the roads and connect the wires on both sides. Outside of the 'phones there is practically no expense, and it will be a great convience. Here is something for our Peterborough farmers to think over.

THE SPECTRAL BELL.

A Superstition of the Sea Sometimes Met With on Land.

The tolling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and especially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobile to the passes who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is entirely different, they say, from any other noise of the ocean, and they scout the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old seafaring man the other night, "and, for that matter, it's sometimes heard on land. I know, because I've listened to it myself. Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story, I quit sailorizing for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sierra Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcropping of rotten quartz that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink a shaft, although it was the most God forsaken spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in a little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhere, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, while Whicher was in the hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and seemed right over a mountain spur, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solemn and plainer than ever. It was broad daylight, and that made the thing all the worse, which sounds funny, but is true. We stood it four times, and then Whicher climbed out of the hole and said, 'Let's go.' I was willing. I believe we had a good thing, but that bell—it was too many for us. It makes my flesh crawl to think about it even now."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it is constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

A SENSATION IN CHURCH

An Anglican Clergyman in Quebec Creates a Stir by a Sermon.

PROTEST BY A MEMBER.

Ex-Mayor of Montreal Repudiates the Views of a Summer Church's Rector.

The Incident Caused a Tremendous Sensation and the Majority of the Congregation Left the Sacred Edifice in Disgust, Threatening Never to Return.

Montreal, Aug. 29.—The Anglican church at Ste. Agathe, in the Laurentian Mountains, was yesterday morning the scene of an unusual incident. The service was being conducted by Rev. Mr. Garth, retor of Narragansett R.I., who in the course of his sermon, denied the divine inspiration of the Bible as it is usually maintained by the members of the Church of England. He asserted the belief that the Bible was no more divinely inspired than were the writings of Shakespeare, George Eliot, or any other great writer. The story of Adam and Eve he dubbed a legend impossible to believe.

The sermon created a veritable sensation. Almost before the preacher had concluded his sermon, Mr. R. Wilson Smith, the former Mayor of Montreal, and the chief contributor to the fund for the construction of this summer church, rose to his feet and protested, long and loudly, against any doctrine being accepted in any church to which he belonged. He believed the Bible from cover to cover, and did not consider that any amn who believed otherwise should say that he belonged to the Church of England.

The incident caused a tremendous sensation and a majority of the congregation left the sacred edifice in disgust, threatening never to return.

To Crisp Lettuce Leaves.

Do you know how to crisp lettuce leaves? A most simple process, but one rarely adopted judging by the wilted stuff we generally see served. A gentleman of the old school was my teacher, and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crisping the lettuce.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding discolored and imperfect ones and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for awhile, all morning if you choose; pick them over a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire basket if you have one; if not, a clean, soft towel will answer; gather the ends and sides loosely in your hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a colander, which you set in the refrigerator, but not on the ice. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce deliciously cool and crisp enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller pieces.—What to Eat.

Vastly Different.

As will be seen, it makes a great difference how one uses the muscular resources at one's command.

A member of an athletic club, after swimming the length of the large tank in the basement of the institution, came out puffing and blowing, apparently exhausted.

"You don't manage your breathing right," said the swimming instructor. "It ought not to tire you so. As to the upper part of your body, including your arms, you use exactly the same muscles, and in very much the same way, in swimming as in sawing wood."

"No, sir!" gasped the swimmer. "When it comes to sawing wood, I use the muscles of some other man."—Youth's Companion.

HE TOOK NAILS.

It Was All the Same to the Man Who Was Treating.

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

In a certain little town not a great ways from Cleveland there are probably as many of these peculiar people as any place of its size can boast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is economical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a penny that didn't go for some actual necessity.

There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of bachelorhood, finally married. In this little town it is the custom for the happy bridegroom to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in to wish him joy. So the bridegroom in this instance had a box on the counter, and most of his patrons were regaled from it.

Pretty soon the ancient gentleman first referred to lounged in. The storekeeper, who felt friendly to all the world just then, pushed the box toward the newcomer.

"Have a cigar, Uncle Jim," he smilingly said.

Uncle Jim looked at the box and looked at the storekeeper.

"What's this for?" he asked.

The storekeeper slightly blushed.

"Been gettin married."

"Who? You?"

"Yep. Me."

"An you're standin treat, eh?"

"Yep," said the storekeeper.

The old man picked up a cigar.

"How much did these seegars cost ye, Ab?" he inquired.

"Oh," replied the storekeeper, "they cost me 'bout 4 cents. They're nickel cigars."

The old man dropped the cigar back in the box. Then his gaze wandered around the store.

"Well, Ab," he slowly drawled, "ef it's all the same to you, I'll take a pound o' nails."

And he got them.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HE VOTED FOR STONE.

And For One of the Most Remarkable Reasons on Record.

Theodore Bolton of Henry county tells this good story. "I was a strong Stone man," said Bolton, "when the ex-governor was a candidate for governor. One day while the campaign was at its hottest a Democrat from an outlying township came to see me. He called me out from my store and took me into a back alley. I thought he wanted to borrow $5 or ask me to go on his note. Finally, when he got to a selected place, away from the crowd, the old fellow laid down his cob pipe and said:

"'Say, Bolton, I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"'Why, Uncle Billy?' I inquired.

"'Well, they tell me, The, that Bill Stone beats his wife, beats her twice a week.'

"I looked the old man squarely in the eyes and never smiled and said, 'Now, Billy, you wouldn't vote against a man for beating his wife—and you a married man too.'

"'The, you don't beat your wife, do you?'

"'Whenever she needs it, Uncle Billy.'

"'Well, I didn't think that of you, The. The, I like you, but I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"So we parted, and Uncle Billy went back to his home in the back township.

"Three weeks later the county convention to select delegates to the state nominating convention met in Clinton. The first man I met on the streets was Uncle Billy.

"'What are you doing here today, Uncle Billy?' I asked as the old fellow shook hands with me.

"'Why, I am a delegate from my township to this here convention.'

"'And how do you stand on the Stone question now?'

"'Well, I tell you, The. I have been thinking about what you told me, and it's all right. I'm a married man myself, and I am going to vote for Stone.'

"And he did," added Bolton, "and to this day believes Stone beat his wife twice a week, and that's why Stone got his vote in the Henry county convention."—Kansas City Journal.

Campaigning With a Fiddle.

When a young man, the late ex-Governor Oglesby worked in the old Macon tavern. There he met the lawyers riding the circuit and formed the acquaintance of Judge Robbins of Springfield, with whom he studied law two years. Returning to Decatur, he began practicing in a town of 400 inhabitants. He soon became popular as a speaker. On one occasion he was making a Whig speech on one side of the square, while a Democrat was making an opposition speech on the other side. The Democrat was fast getting the crowd when Mr. Oglesby, who was an old fashioned fiddler and played as well as he spoke, borrowed a fiddle from a man in the crowd and began to play. That broke up the opposition meeting, and the Democrat, left without an audience, came over and joined the crowd that was dancing to Oglesby's music.

Buffalo Bill's Fine Shooting.

Colonel Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," is one of the finest shots in the world. One of his most wonderful feats was not generally performed in public, for the reason that its failure or success could not be discerned at any great distance. It consisted in driving into a white board five short, flat headed tacks with five successive shots, from a distance just short enough to allow the tacks to be accurately sighted. So great was Colonel Cody's skill with the light rifle he used for this feat that, given favorable light, he could generally perform it six or seven times without a miss.—St Louis Globe-Democrat.

It Is a Fact.

"What are you sighing for?" asked the registry department of the dead letter office.

"No one has so many rejected addresses as I," was the sorrowful reply.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

All reports to the contrary notwithstanding, it is thought that Willis O. Foote will be able to be in the sulky this season.

Deceived by a Thread.

As we came in on a Big Four train from Delaware we noticed a well barbered and highly scented "young man of the period" complacently admiring a fine pair of patent leather shoes which were elevated on the seat in front of him. Finally he espied a thread on one of his shoes, and, seizing it, he gently drew it to him. It seemed to be quite long, so he wound around it his kid gloved hand. After getting quite a knot of it he found it was fast to his side, and, glancing along his leg, he discovered that he had unraveled one seam of his trousers leg, which hung in a loose flap. The last we saw of him he had borrowed two pins from the conductor and was retreating sidewise toward the smoking car with horror and disgust plainly depicted on his countenance.—Ohio State Journal.

The Telltale Eye.

"No matter how self possessed a man may appear on the surface," said a close observer, "there are certain involuntary movements by which he will always betray himself to minute scrutiny. To illustrate the point, here's a neat little parlor trick in mind reading.

Seat yourself directly in front of your subject and tell him to hook his finger tips together before his chest and pull as hard as he can, at the same time thinking intently of some letter of the alphabet. Then look fixedly at his right eye and repeat the letters aloud, beginning with A. When you come to the one he is thinking about, a swift, indescribable change will flash across the pupil. It is purely unconscious and involuntary, and no human being alive can prevent it. The purpose of the finger tip pulling is merely to distract his thoughts and keep him from baffling you by concentration of will. Try it some time."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Bringing Up the Average.

Old Rufus Gogblink, a slow, deliberate sort of man, dropped in one day in a casual sort of way to see his friend, Stephen Nobbler. It was the first time he had been in to see Stephen in 42 years.

"Um-m! You don't come in very often, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"No," said Mr. Gogblink.

But he went in to see his friend Mr. Nobbler again the very next day.

"Um-m! You're coming in pretty often now, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"Ye-es," said Mr. Gogblink. "I'm sort o' bringing up the average."—New London, Aug. 28.—By an order issued at Portsmouth by the general commanding, all the public houses owned by Messrs. Brickwood in the Portsmouth Gosport, and Fareham districts were placed out of bounds to the troops, the alleged reason being an insult offered to two sergeants of the Royal artillery by the landlord of a Southsea hotel in refusing to serve them in the saloon bar, and having them turned out because they were wearing Her Majesty's uniform. The owners of the hotel, however, visited the general and having promised that the tenant of the house should at once be given notice to quit the order was withdrawn.

THE DREYFUS TRIAL.

A Witness States That M. Bertillon's System is Without Base.

A FALSE CALCULATION.

An Inspector of Mines, Who Follows, Corroborates the Above Statement.

The Session Closed on the Request That a Rogatory Commission be Sent to Colonel Paty du Clam, Whose Illness Prevents His Attendance in Court.

Rennes, Aug. 29.—When the trial of Captain Dreyfus opened in the Lycee building this morning, General Mercier, who was Minister of War when Dreyfus was first tried, in 1894, was present as usual, in the front row of the witness seats, thus definitely setting at rest the reports as to his having fled to the Island of Jersey and as to his arrest.

The first witness called to-day was M. Paraf-Javal, the draughtsman, whose evidence was interrupted on Saturday by the adjournment of the court. M. Paraf-Javal was called by the defence to refute the system by which M. Alphonse Bertillon, chief of the anthropometric department of the Paris Prefecture of Police, last week attempted to prove that the prisoner had written the bordereau in a disguised hand and by means of a key word "interest," and that it could not have been written by Esterhazy, although the document was in a handwriting resembling that of Esterhazy.

When the two first witnesses had testified and argued against M. Bertillon's system, it was the opinion of the sympathizers of Dreyfus that if the statements of the witnesses were correct they had simply pulverized M. Bertillon. The latter wished to reply, but the President of the court, Colonel Jouaust, declined to allow the specialist to go over his evidence again, taking the ground that the trial would never end if every expert did the same.

Bertillon Suppressed.

An amusing scene followed. M. Bertillon pleaded that he had a personal statement to make, and mounted the platform. But he had hardly uttered half a dozen words when Col. Jouaust saw he was merely re-grinding his evidence, and, to the great satisfaction of the audience, the President curtly told the specialist to leave the platform which he did discomfitted.

Had Made a Mistake.

M. Teysonnier's testimony against Dreyfus followed, and then M. Charavay, the expert who had previously declared Dreyfus was the author of the bordereau, was called to the witness bar. His testimony proved to be of the greatest interest, as he came to confess he had made an error, and said he was now convinced that Esterhazy, and not Dreyfus had written the bordereau. This announcement made a deep impression on the court, and was greeted with a general murmur of satisfaction.

Witnesses For Dreyfus.

Then next expert, M. Pelletier, also testified favourably to Dreyfus.

M. Gouard another expert, then deposed that as the result of his examination he had acquired the conviction that the bordereau was not written by Esterhazy. But he could not say it was written by Dreyfus, because he had not seen the prisoner's handwriting.

This witness kept the court in a continual roar of laughter by the extraordinary modulations of his voice, misplaced emphasis and gestures. The final witness, M. Varinaud, maintained the declaration he has made before the Court of Cassation, that the bordereau was not written by Esterhazy.

Col. Jouaust then announced that M. De Freycinet, who resigned as Minister of War, May 6, of the present year, and who had been succeeded by M. Krantz, who in turn was succeeded by General Le Marquis de Galifet on the downfall of the Deputy Minister, would be among the witnesses to-morrow, and the session was closed on the request that a rogatory commission be sent to Col. Paty de Clam, whose illness prevents his attendance in court, to which Col. Jouaust agreed. (This step does not satisfy the defence, but they acquiesce to the commission taking Du Paty de Clam's testimony on the principle that half a loaf is better than none.)

The court adjourned for the day at 11.50 o'clock a.m.

Record for Automobiles.

London, Aug. 28.—The advance which has been made during the past year in the construction of heavy motor vehicles has received yet another demonstration. One of Messrs. Clarkson & Capel's steam lorries has completed a run of 226 miles—from Liverpool to London—in a total running time of 42 3-4 hours, with a load of three tons. The car on the first day completed forty-nine miles, the second thirty-one, and on the third reached Birmingham. On the following day a distance of fifty-one miles was covered. A stop was made at St. Alban's, for temporary repairs, and the final stage of twenty-one miles to London was completed in five and a quarter hours. This run is the longest that has ever been made with such a load. Beyond injury to the burner, nothing whatever went wrong with any part of the car, and the cost works out at one penny per ton per mile.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Cultivate the young orchard thoroughly early in the season.

In selecting trees, take those with smooth, healthy looking bark.

Ground bone is good for small fruit plants, grapevines and bearing apple orchards.

The deeper the culture the larger the reserve of moisture for the roots in time of drought. To secure quick growth prepare the soil deeply.

Bone dust for raspberries and blackberries may be simply scattered broadcast over the ground, as the necessary cultivation will work it sufficiently in with the soil.

While peach seedlings are usually healthier and last longer than budded trees, one is never sure what kind of fruit a seedling will produce when it comes into bearing.—Exchange.

BRITISH OFFICER SUICIDES.

The Task of Navigating Icelandic Waters Too Much for Him.

London, Aug. 28.—Lieutenant Wyndham H. Sandford, navigating lieutenant of Her Majesty's ship Blonde, third-class cruiser, now employed in Iceland waters on fishing duties under the Admiral Superintendent of Naval Reserves, has destroyed himself by blowing his brains out. The navigation of an iron ship in Icelandwaters, owing to the incessant fogs and abnormal variations of the compass consequent on the magnetic attraction of the masses of lava both submerged and on shore, is rendered more arduous than usual. For several days before his rash act Lieutenant Sandford was heard to complain of the difficulty of his position, but his complaints were not regarded by his mess mates as singular. After a special heavy bout of duty, the Blonde having twice circumnavigated the island of Iceland, Lieutenant Sandford shut himself in his cabin, loaded a rifle, placed the muzzle against his head, and pushed the trigger with a walking stick. The bullet nearly caused a second catastrophe. It passed through the bulkhead dividing Lieutenant Sandford's cabin from that of Lieutenant Rice, and passed within a few inches of the head of the latter.

DRIVEN OFF BY THE BRITISH.

Attempt of the Russians to Seize British Property Defeated by a Gunboat.

Shanghai, Aug. 28.—Trouble has occurred between the British and Russians at Hankow, growing out of an attempt on the part of the latter to seize territory which belongs to a private English firm. Jardines, Matheson & Co., of Hankow, own property lying within the Russian concession at that place. The Russians have frequently attempted to appropriate it, and have as frequently been preventd.

On Friday last, acting under instructions from Mr. Hurst, the British Consul, Jardines, Matheson & Co. built a fence around their property, the workmen being protected by consular constables. When the work was nearly completed a dozen Cossacks from the Russian Consulate forcibly ejected the workmen from the premises.

The captain of the British gunboat Woodlark was notified of the occurrence by the Consul, and he landed fifteen marines, and trained his quick-firing guns on the Russian Consulate.

A fight was averted, however, and blue jackets are now protecting the property. The gunboat Esk is now proceeding to Hankow from Shanghai.

Good Harvesting Weather.

Winnipeg, Aug. 28.—The weather throughout Manitoba and the Territories still continues fine and favorable for harvesting. About one-third of the total crop is now cut. Threshing has commenced at Emerson and Gretna, and everywhere the sample of wheat is pronounced extra No. 1 hard. This week will see most of Manitoba's wheat crop safely cut if present weather conditions continue. About 6,300 harvest helpers have arrived from the East and are now distributed over the province. Nearly twice as many have come from the East as were expected. All will find employment.

Yacht-men Squabble Over the Cup.

Toronto, Aug. 28.—The Canada cup is still in Toronto, although it was surrendered to the Chicago Yacht Club on Saturday. There is a little trouble over the engraving on the cup, and the difficulty is between the Rochester club and the Chicago club. The former want the inscription to read: "The Genesee, of Rochester," while the latter insist on the wording "Genesee of the Chicago Yacht Club." It is expected the difficulty will be adjusted satisfactory to both American clubs.

The Wireless Wonder.

London, Aug. 28.—Mr. Marconi, as the outcome of further experiments with his system of wireless telegraphy, has accomplished the remarkable feat of signalling through four miles of cliff. Recently he sent messages from an instrument connected with a wire running up the flagstaff of Dover Town Hall to the South Foreland, and also to the East Goodwin lightship. Though between the terminals in both cases there are four miles of the high cliffs on which Dover Castle stands, with in the case of the lightship, the addition of a stretch of sea of about twelve miles, the messages were received with the greatest ease and without a hitch.

Soap and Salvation.

London, Aug. 28.—The most extraordinary way of raising church funds is told of by one of the heads of a great firm of soap makers, who spend very large sums in advertising their specialty. This gentleman in the course of business has received a communication from the authorities of a Presbyterian church in Scotland asking for the firm to advertise the soap on the walls of the church. The letter intimated that the church was in pecuniary difficulties, and that this way had been decided on as the best means of raising money.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. FRENCH BLOW AT ENGLAND.

A Frenchman Suggests a Canal Connecting the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Paris Aug. 28.—Capt. Vignot, of the French navy, searching for additional means to neutralize the greatest and dreaded naval power of Britain, puts forward a project for a canal between Narbonne and Arcachon, joining the Mediterranean and the Atlantic. The value of such a canal in a strategic sense, he observes, would be the following: Preparations for the invasion of England could be made in Provence as easily as in Brittany. The maritime forces could be scattered by threats of a descent on Egypt or of an attack on Malta or Gibraltar. Gibraltar would be turned. The French forces would be as good as doubled against England itself. France would probably be able to effect powerful alliances. The cost of the canal is estimated at $200,000,000, which means an annual debt of $6,000,000.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

How Old She Looks

Poor clothes cannot make you look old. Even pale cheeks won't do it.

Your household cares may be heavy and disappointments may be deep, but they cannot make you look old.

One thing does it and never fails.

It is impossible to look young with the color of seventy years in your hair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

permanently postpones the tell-tale signs of age. Used according to directions it gradually brings back the color of youth. At fifty your hair may look as it did at fifteen. It thickens the hair also; stops it from falling out; and cleanses the scalp from dandruff. Shall we send you our book on the Hair and its Diseases?

The Best Advice Free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

Light and Airy.

The Abyssinian soldier's ordinary dress is not very attractive. It consists, it is said, of a white linen shirt down to his knees and a pair of light linen trousers to half way down his calf. Over this he wears a belt of folded linen, and, as a rule, a "shamma," or white cotton sheet, draped round him. Cloaks of blue, red, green, yellow or violet, ornamented with rough embroidery, leopard skins, sheepskins and even lion skins are worn on special occasions by the officers and small chiefs, and the army then presents a noble show.

Any man who has killed a lion or an elephant or has distinguished himself much in battle wears an aureole, or lion's mane, on his head. For each five men he has killed he wears a silver band on his sword scabbard. The highest recompense for valor is a sort of velvet top hat ornamented with silver, and great officers are given shields covered with velvet and ornamented with gold and silver.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

One Exception.

"Do you love me so much," she demanded, "that you would be willing to give up your all for me?"

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE.

Peculiar Experience of the Man Who Dealt in High Explosives.

"Nitroglycerin, sir; high explosives accomplished it," said a well dressed man with a youthful face and snow white hair to a chance acquaintance at the Great Northern.

"But your face is not scarred? It would seem that an explosion"—

"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a big blasting contract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"'Is there such a thing as high explosives ripening?' asked the Englishman I was accompanying on the second day of our voyage.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was of this character. Indeed 25 days after it was compounded it was almost certain to explode of its own volition, so to speak. Now, on the upper shelf of the checkroom of my New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 20 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a multimurderer. In vain I drew an awful picture of the devastation that would overwhelm a certain New York hotel in exactly 17 days and called upon the captain to put his ship about. He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if an opportunity presented itself, but fortune failed me, and I was obliged to cross the ocean. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the life of my ripening high explosive I sprang from a carriage and rushed into the hotel.

"No reprieved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fluid disappear in a catch basin. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel bar, where I had gone for a 'bracer,' in absolute dismay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

VETERANS UNDER FIRE.

The Reason They Don't Stoop When the Bullets Are Flying.

"The temptation to stoop when under fire is almost irresistible," said a veteran, "and that accounts for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You see, when a man happens to be hit in a stooping posture the chances are that the bullet plows right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the probabilities are in favor of the wound being slight, anyhow not mortal. Old soldiers are well aware of this, and while they will drop flat and hunt cover every chance they get they never stoop.

"After a soldier has been in a few engagements he learns such tricks, and, as far as the rest of it is concerned, he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his experiences appear to lend color to that doctrine. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get killed when it really seemed as if they had reached for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are continually happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrade of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refuge behind a little hut. He was wornout under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear and a little to one side was a pile of crossties full of wrought iron nails. A bullet came along, splintered a tie and drove out one of the nails at right angles. The jagged iron struck my chum in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

"That's the blind chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a fellow is apt to acquire a sort of sang froid that is immensely impressive to a recruit. It isn't because he has a contempt for danger; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Smoking In the Dark.

"How can you account for the well known fact that a cigar when smoked in the dark loses much of its flavor?" was asked of an alleged philosopher.

"The reason is," said the philosopher, "that when all the senses are active each sense is more active than it would be if it were doing duty alone. So that when the eye ceases to work the palate and nose become dulled. To express it figuratively, the eye is endowed with a rudimentary power of smell and in the dark loses not only its sight, but its contributing power of smell."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Cost Her Her Reason

A once renowned French actress lost her reason through a trifling occurrence. She was visiting at an ancient chateau, in the vicinity of Mentone, when a friend challenged her to pass the night alone in an alleged haunted chamber. She accepted the challenge. During the night she called for aid, and an attendant found her in a state of pitiful fright through certain uncanny sounds she had heard. Finally she developed a nervous disorder, which culminated in insanity. The ghostly visitants were rats.

Moving Strains.

Elderly Beau (who is making a long call, to fair singer rapturously)—Ah, that song takes me back to the home of my childhood!

Fair Singer's Irrepressible Younger Sister (in a loud whisper)—Can't you sing something that will take him back to the home of his old age?—Harper's Bazar.

Vigorous Language.

"I tell you," said Sammy Snaggs, "that man talked straight from the shoulder."

"Samuel," said Mr. Snaggs severely, "you should not use slang."

"But, father, this was a deaf and dumb man, and he used the sign language."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Sporty Youngster.

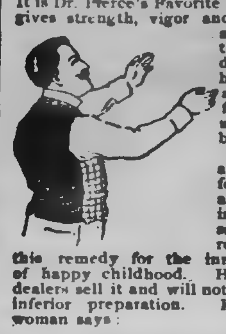
He was the youthful son of a well known horseman. He had been to an evening party, and at 9 o'clock a servant announced that Master ——'s nurse had called for him.

The young gentleman replied as well as he could while burying his fourth piece of mince pie: "All right. Throw a blanket over her and let her wait."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Bouncing the Baby.

A fond mother once asked the witty Charles Lamb "how he liked babies?" The stuttering wit promptly responded: "Boi—boi—boiled, madam!"

Fortunately for the world, most men and women love babies, and the home that is without one is never truly happy. The old bachelors like Lamb are the only men who do not care for babies, and the woman who hopes to make her husband happy without undergoing the ordeal of maternity, hopes in vain. If women only knew, there is no necessity for dreading the pangs of motherhood. If a woman is really healthy in a womanly way, her trial will be insignificant. There is one great remedy that prepares a woman for almost painless child-bearing. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives strength, vigor and virility to the special organs that bear the burdens of motherhood. It cures all weakness, inflammation and ulceration. It banishes morning squeamishness and other discomforts. It insures a healthy, bouncing baby. Thousands of once barren homes bless this remedy for the innocent laughter of happy childhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it and will not substitute some inferior preparation. Read what one woman says:



"I was taken sick two years ago and tried almost everything but could get no help," writes Mrs. T. C. Blashfield, of Brimfield, Hampden Co., Mass. "Your 'Favorite Prescription' did me a great deal of good. I was suffering with falling of the womb and could scarcely walk, now I am so much better off that I can walk quite a distance. It was your medicine that helped me. You have my best wishes and thanks, and may God be with you to do all the good for the poor suffering people that you can. If I hear of anybody sick I will recommend them to write to you, and I will tell what you have done for me."

A Coming Event.

Mr. Bert Coote who poses as the new boy in the three act comedy of that title, is said to be a mirth provoker of the first class, while his antics keep his audience in a roar of laughter from the first to the last act. After sitting through the play one cannot wonder that this farce is rapidly going to the front as one of the best of its kind. The idea of the play, while exceedingly simple is well elaborated, and Mr. Coote, as Freddy, has gained great favor throughout the United States and Canada. He fairly convulses his audience and keeps them there, by his natural, unaffected methods and artistic portrayals. A gem of the play is that courtship scene between Nancy Roach, Miss Julie Kingsley, and the French tutor, Mr. Frank D. Glenn. Mr. Coote, who will be supported by an excellent company, including, besides Miss Kingsley, those sterling favorities, Mr. George Macomber and Miss Minnie Monk.

COUNTY TREASURER APPOINTED

Mr. Geo. Stewart, ex-Warden, of Otonabee, Secures the Position.

The County Council met yesterday, when the main business before the board was the appointment of a successor to the late Mr. Edgcombe Kearse, county treasurer.

There were present the Warden, Mr. E. Hawthorne, in the chair, and Messrs. Forster, Fitzgerald, Shaw, Eastland, Anderson, Peck, Pearse, Buck and Crowe.

Mr. W. A. Stratton, Sessional Clerk, acted as clerk pro tem.

The Warden expressed deep regret at having to call the council together on the occasion of the death of the late Clerk and Treasurer, Mr. Pearse. He said he possessed in a high degree the esteem of every member of the council. During his, the warden's, connection with the council he had never heard one word of reflection upon the ability of the late incumbent of the office, or one hint of dereliction in the discharge of his duties. He was at once courteous, obliging and unassuming, and endowed with exceptional ability and integrity. He never pressed his advice or opinions upon the council, but when asked to give an opinion or advice, he did so in an unassuming manner, and his advice or opinion was received with unvarying respect, if Mr. Pearse said so, that seemed to be sufficient. He was sure the whole council would join him in deeply regretting that the chair before him was vacant.

Mr. J. B. Pearse spoke of the late Mr. Pearse's practically faultless occupancy of his office. His efficiency was well known and recognized. The county had lost an officer of whom they had reason to feel proud, one he thought, who had no superior in the province. He moved, seconded, by Mr Anderson:

"That this council deeply feel the great loss this council and the county at large have so recently sustained by the death of our late Treasurer and Clerk, Edgcumbe Pearse, Esq., who during the past thirty-two years has so efficiently occupied the position to the entire satisfaction of the whole council and the county at large, and that a special committee to be named by the Warden, be appointed to prepare a memorial of condolence to the widow and family of deceased."

This resolution was unanimously adopted, and the Warden, named, as a committee, Messrs. Pearse, Anderson, Shaw and Forster.

The following is the list of applicants for the vacant office:

Messrs. George E. Elliott, Smith; T. Quartermaine, Frank Adams, and M. W. Matchett, Ashburnham; John Carnegie, R. J. Kidd, R. W. Errett, R. P. Watt, R. H. Fortye and W. W. Johnston, Peterborough; Peyton W. C. Shewen, Apsley; Dr. Burgess, W. Sherin, and W. M. Graham, Lakefield; George Stewart, Otonabee; James Middleton, Smith, and G. W. Bennett, North Monaghan.

Messrs. R. W. Errett and R. P. Watt, the assistant of the late clerk, applied for the position of clerk only; Dr. Burgess for that of treasurer only, and several applicants were willing to take one or both offices, and one or two were willing to take what salary the council might offer.

On motion the application were referred to the Committee on Appointments with the whole council added.

The council adjourned and went into committee of the whole, Mr. Shaw in the chair, to fix the salary and appoint a clerk and treasurer.

In committee the council reduced the salary of clerk and treasurer to $1200 and Mr. George Stewart, ex-Warden and former representative of Otonabee, was chosen for the combined office.

ALMOST AT THE CENTURY.

Mrs. Catherine Parr Traill, Canada's Oldest Authoress, Passes Away.

Mrs. Catharine Parr-Traill, the authoress died yesterday morning at 10.40, in her 98th year, at her home, Westone Lakefield. The funeral will take place to-morrow. Born in England in 1802, the daughter of Thomas Strickland, she wrote her first book in 1817 at the age of fifteen. She came to Canada in 1832 and wrote her last book in 1895 at the age of 93. So this remarkable lady has maintained literary activity for nearly 80 years.

Among Mrs. Traill's many works are the following: "The Young Emigrants," "Sketches from Nature," "The Backwoods of Canada," "A Peep Into Canadian Forests," "A Guide for Female Emigrants," "Studies of Plant Life in Canada," Her works, "Pearls and Pebbles, or Notes of an Old Naturalist," and "Cot and Cradle Stories," were published by Briggs of Toronto, in 1894 and 1895. It is said that her book, "The Backwoods of Canada" had a wide circulation and induced many to turn their eyes to Canada.

Mrs. Traill has lived latterly with her daughter, Miss Traill, and her granddaughter, Miss Katie Trail, at "Westove," Lakefield, upon an income barely sufficient to keep them in simple comfort. Unfortunately the death a few years ago of a trusted agent revealed a disastrous state of affairs with regard to Mrs. Traill's investments, so that the income was greatly reduced.

The story of her arrival in Canada, where she was struck down by cholera the moment she landed her battles with poverty, in which she enlisted her pen, writing sketches and stories for magazines, and amid all her domestic and literary cares finding time to study the botany of the country is intensely interesting and instructive. In 1869 Mrs. Traill married a retired army officer. He died 27 years later, leaving four sons and five daughters.

ARSENIC WORKS.

A Great Industry Successfully Inaugurated at North Hastings.

Prof. Warren, of Syracuse, N.Y., who has lately returned from a visit to London, England, and Mr. John McFee, of Belleville, have just returned from a visit to North Hastings mineral lands. While at Deloro they saw the starting of the new arsenic furnaces of the Canadian Gold Fields Company, and were greatly pleased with them.

In conversation with a reporter Mr. McFee said that the arsenic was being properly sublimated for the first time in the province and that the plant there would turn out three tons of refined or commercial arsenic per day. He says that the supply of crude material is unlimited and as this is but a by product of gold ore it means a lot to the country.

This, is, he states, the only place in America in which arsenic can be procured in commercial quantities and the company are using every effort to make use of the material at hand.

Four Young Men Charged With Disorderly Conduct.

At the police court yesterday morning, R. J. Wolstein was fined $2 for allowing a horse to run at large.

Four young men were charged with disorderly conduct in Inverlea Park, Sunday afternoon. After hearing the evidence the Magistrate explained to them the foolishness of such conduct and the danger of throwing stones about the park. He then imposed a fine of $2 on each.

"Gillie" Kearn had to answer to a charge of stealing a bicycle belonging to Mrs. McCallem from the market arcade, the wheel afterwards being found down at Peter Hamilton foundry. "Gillie was weeping as hard as usual and the Magistrate decided to give him one more chance. He left the court room very penitent and promised to be a better boy in the future.

Indecent Exhibition.

A number of boys will appear before Magistrate Dumble to-morrow morning to answer to a charge of indecent exposure. It is claimed that when the C.P.R. train pulled into the station Monday afternoon the boys who were in swimming climbed up on the bridge, thus exposing themselves to the passengers in the train.

VOL. 25.—NO 203. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 31, 1899 PRICE TWO CENTS

A GUESS AT A TREATY.

Basis for General Agreement That Seems to Have Been Inspired.

IN A PHILADELPHIA PAPER

Canadian Lumber is to be Admitted Free into the United States—Canada is to be Granted a Port on the Lynn Canal—Great Britain is to Consent to a Modification in the Treaty of 1817.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—A Washington special says:—The authorship of a statement in the Philadelphia Press, which is owned by Postmaster General Smith, to the effect that a secret arrangement had been made with Canada regarding the lumber question and other disputes, has been traced to ex-Congressman James Hamilton Lewis, who states that he got his information from Senator Faulkner, one of the United States members of the commission. By the alleged terms of this secret arrangement

Canadian lumber is to be admitted free into the United States.

Canada is to be granted a port on the Lynn Canal.

Citizens of the United States are to have equal rights with citizens of the Dominion in the Canadian Fisheries.

Great Britain is to consent to the modification of the treaty of 1817, by which the United States is to be given permission to build warships on the Great lakes.

Coal from the eastern parts of the Dominion is to be admitted free into New England and, reciprocally, western United States coal is to be admitted to Western Canada without payment of duty.

Great Britain is to consent to the modification of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty whereby the United States is to be permitted to build the Nicaragua Canal.

Leak in Mac's Cabinet.

It is a matter of comment here that the newspaper whose editor is a member of President McKinley's Cabinet, and who has spent the best part of his life in discussing tariff questions, should permit a correspondent to commit the blunder of writing of a treaty as modifying the tariff laws. Any agreement made with Canada dependent upon tariff concessions can only become effective by the action of Congress.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has already declined to accept an agreement based on free lumber. It is absurd to presume that the representatives of Pennsylvania and West Virginia coal mines would agree to any proposition placing eastern Canadian coal on the free list.

The Lake Warships.

The statement that Great Britain consents to permit the creation of a reasonable fleet of modern ships to be built above the Niagara Falls excites the risibilities of all familiar with this phase of the controversy. The United States commissioners have never asked for anything of the sort and do not want it. The maintenance of such a fleet would involve a reciprocal right on the part of Canada, and thus a dangerous element would be introduced into our border relations constantly threatening a breach of the peace. All the United States wants is the privilege of constructing warships on the lakes to be taken to tide water through the locks and receive their armament only after they reach the seaboard.

The prospect that the Joint High Commission will go together again in the near future is very poor.

General Mena Victorious.

New Orleans, La., Aug 30.—Advices from Nicaragua state that General Louis Mena, the bravest fighter of the Reyes revolt, who has placed himself at the head of the refugees in San Salvador, numbering about a hundred, defeated the troops on the frontier, and is now pressing on to Leon. He hopes to raise an army there to attack Zelaya at the capital.

DEATH OF MISS WEDDELL.

Sad Demise of a Very Estimable Young Lady.

Six months ago Miss Isabella Weddell, eldest daughter of Mr. John Weddell, Charlotte street, contracted a severe cold, which finally developed into consumption, to which this highly esteemed young lady succumbed on Wednesday.

The deceased lady was born in Berwickshire, Scotland, in 1869, where she received her early education, finishing at one of the large schools at Edinburgh.

In 1885 she came with her parents to this country, first living in Baltimore, Ont., soon removing, however, to Peterborough, where she has lived ever since.

Miss Weddell will be much missed in St. Andrew's church, where she was a most prominent worker, being secretary of the Foreign Missionary Society. She also taught a class in the Sabbath school.

Railway Notes.

R. Forbes, of Duluth, Minn., vice-president of the Parry Sound Copper Co., states that the Company thinks of building a railway to Loring, Ont., by way of Burke's Falls and Sallsburg, where it has properties.

When Assistant General Manager McNicoll, of the C. P. R., returned recently from an inspection over the Atlantic division he found at his residence at Westmount, a handsome grand father's clock with chimes, as a present from the officials of the passenger department, from which he was recently promoted.

EVIDENCE STRONGLY IN DREYFUS' FAVOR.

Two Experts in Old Manuscript Declare That Esterhazy Wrote the Famous Bordereau.

AND THEN CHANGED HIS STYLE OF PENMANSHIP.

The Commission Issued by the Court Questioned Col. Paty du Cam, Who is Reported to Have Made Some Very Sensational Revelations.

Rennes, Aug. 30.—The evidence of MM. Meyer, Moliner, and Giery, all of whom are handwriting experts of the first rank was a strong point for Dreyfus. They were most emphatic in declaring the bordereau was written by Esterhazy, and created a better impression than M. Bertillon, by so: introducing the fantastic dia- not introducing the fantastic diagrams which the latter deemed necessary.

The action of Gen. Mercier in asking to be allowed to reply to M. Molinier, and then getting up and confirming the professor's statement that Esterhazy Changed His Handwriting since 1894 puzzled the audience. That Esterhazy should have deemed it advisable to change his handwriting since the date of the bordereau, appears, at first sight, to indicate that he wrote it, and that Mercier should support Prof. Moliner aroused discussion as to the General's reasons for this uncalled for intervention. There were some people who see in Mercier's unsolicited testimony yesterday in support of the honorable nature of M. Mathieu Dreyfus' visit to Col. Sandherr in 1894, in behalf of his brother, and the General's move to-day, an indication of some perhaps a prelude to a candid avowal of his mistakes of 1894. On the other hand, many persons think Gen. Mercier, fearing that Saturday's exposure will discredit him altogether with the judges, has concerted the idea of giving way on certain points, which, moreover, are incontestable, and thus to some extent reinstate himself by an affectation of impartiality.

M. Picot related an interesting conversation which he had with the Austro-Hungarian military attache, Col. Schneider, mention of whose name evoked a prompt protest from Major Carriere in the name of the Government and State. Col. Schnieder, according to this witness, admitted that Esterhazy acted as a spy, and wrote the bordereau.

Roget's Bid for Popularity.

Gen. Roget, with his usual shrewdness, seized upon M. Picot's statement that Col. Schneider expressed astonishment that French officers should have the bad taste to question the word of foreign officers to mount the platform and make a short speech in defence of the attitude of the French officers, concluding with the remarks: "I intervened because, when French officers are attacked, they have the right to defend themselves."

These words will be published all over France and will tend to make Gen. Roget more popular with the army.

Gen. Deloye repeated his testimony before the Court of Cassation relating to the 120 short cannon hydro-pneumatic brake and the Robin shell.

Dreyfus, in reply, made a really clear statement, explaining that he saw the hydro-pneumatic brake once at Bourges, once at the School of War, and that he never saw it used, because, while on the general staff, he was never present at firing practice.

PATY DE CLAM TESTIFIES.

Paris, Aug. 30.—Major Tavernier, acting under the commission issued by Col. Jouaust, President of the Dreyfus court-martial, questioned Col Du Paty de Clam at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, Tuesday, and will continue the examination to-day.

According to the Matin, Col. Du Paty de Clam made sensational revelations.

Otter to be a Full Colonel.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—The latest rumor of political circles is to the effect that Judge McMahon is being urged to leave the Bench and join Hon. Geo. W. Ross in reconstructing the Ontario Cabinet. The object in trying to secure the judge for a Cabinet position is to rally the Roman Catholics, who are thought to be slipping from their old allegiance to the Liberal party. If Judge McMahon consents to join Hon. Mr. Ross, it is expected that Hon. Mr. Hardy will take his place on the bench.

Negotiations Halting.

Detroit, Aug. 30.—A Washington special says: The prospect that the Joint High Commission will meet again in the near future is very poor. The vacancy caused by the death of Lord Herschell not having been filled, the commission is without a Canadian chairman. Under the terms of the adjournment the commission can only be re-assembled upon the joint proclamation of the two chairmen, hence it follows that until Lord Herschell's successor is appointed and a new Canadian chairman chosen nothing can be done, and diplomatic relations are equally at a standstill.

No Advances by France

London, Aug. 30.—The officials of the Colonial Offices say no advances have been made by France looking to the abandonment of the Newfoundland treaty and fishing rights. That France would do so without a quid pro quo is said to be utterly impossible.

Toronto Man Arrested.

Brampton, Aug. 30.—John Butchart, who gives his address as Dundas street, Toronto, and his occupation as commission merchant, has been confined in the jail here since Saturday, charged with having in his possession a number of chickens stolen from Farmer Fred Brown of Streetsville. The farmer surprised three men near his hen house, and upon their running away he organized a vigilance committee and started in pursuit. Soon they overhauled two wagons, one of which Butchart was driving. Two men in the other wagon jumped out and took to the woods, and have not been landed as yet. In the wagons were found any number of chickens, many of which it is averred were warm, and some of which, it is understood, Brown identified as his. Butchart was committed to stand trial. It is said Butchart's companions were two brothers, Hamlin by name, also "commission merchants of Toronto."

A good many of our citizens will visit Toronto during the reduced rates to the Exhibition, a number of who will go expressly to do purchasing. To those we would say that if they enquire, we think, will find that most staple commodities are sold in Peterborough at Toronto prices. Our merchants do not sit around on the counters dreaming; they diligently study and follow the progressive modes of modern storekeeping — they watch the market and cater to the needs of the people.

A QUIET WEDDING.

Nuptials of Miss Bertha Sherman and Mr. F. D. Mackay.

The editor of our esteemed contemporary, the Review, and Miss Bertha Maude Sherin, youngest daughter of Mr. Thos. Sherin, of Bowmanville, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony Wednesday night, the ceremony taking place at the residence of the bride's father.

The marriage, though a very pretty one, was of a quite character, the only guests present being the immediate friends of the contracting parties.

The Rev. J. J. Rae, performed the interesting ceremony, and Mr. Duncan Walker, public school inspector, Peterborough, assisted the groom.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white silk organdie over white, and carried a shower boquet of white roses and maiden-hair ferns. She was assisted by Miss Emma Morrow, in the capacity of bridesmaid. Miss Morrow was attired in Nile green with garniture of applique lace and black velvet baby ribbon. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and maiden-hair ferns.

Presents were received from Peterborough, Bowmanville, Belleville, and Toronto. Among those from town were a beautiful sofa pillow from the staff of the Bell Telephone office, a silver tea service from the Review Ptg. Co., and an arm chair from the Review staff. A magnificent testimony of esteem was the cabinet of silver from Corinthian Lodge A.F. and A.M., which has been referred to previously.

Mr. and Mrs. MacKay are spending their honeymoon at Montreal and points on the St. Lawrence.

The Times extends the most cordial congratulations to the happy pair, whom we wish a long and happy wedded life.

SPORTING ITEMS.

Baseball.

A series of three red hot games for the amateur championship of Toronto between St. Mary's (champions of the Toronto Senior League) and Menzie-Turner's team (champions of the Manufacturers League), will be played on Old Upper Canada College grounds. The first meeting of the giants is billed for next Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock

The single and married men of Hastings will play ball on Labor Day.

The bicycle men and tailors played ball yesterday afternoon, the latter winning by a score of 18 to 8.

The coal heavers and hotel men meet to-morrow afternoon.

Lacrosse.

The long looked for object is at last at hand, in the wish of the Torontos being fulfilled in their desire to once again meet the famous Shamrocks, as they are convinced, now that they have regained their old form, that the result will be two wins for the boys in blue, as against the wearers of the green shirts. The new blood introduced into the Toronto Lacrosse Club proved the wisdom of the Team Committee, and may be marked by still additional changes for both Saturday's game at Ottawa and the Shamrock one on Labor Day at Rosedale grounds.

The following letter has been sent to the President of the big club league. It is self-explanatory:

W. J. Lunny, President Senior Lacrosse League, Montreal, Quebec,—Dear Sir,—I am instructed by the President and the Executive of the Canadian Lacrosse Association to challenge the winners of your league to play a series of games with the winner of the championship of the C. L. A., the result of the same to decide the championship of Canada, and perhaps the championship of the world. The series to consist of the best two out of three, home and home games, the third game, if necessary, to be played on neutral grounds, the said grounds to be decided by yourself and the President of our association. In the event of your failing to agree a referee, chosen by yourselves, to decide the grounds for third match. Yours truly, W. S. A. Hartley, Secretary C. L. A.

Toronto, Aug. 28th.

Yachting.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—(Special.)—The day when the Sailing Committee of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club will have to decide to whom they shall give the right to dispute with them next year the possession of the Seawanhaka International Challenge Cup is nearing fast, and yet there is in reality one challenge in the possession of the committee. This challenge is the one which was handed in immediately after the races which were held this season by the representative of the White Bear Yacht Club of St. Paul, Minn., the same club which sent its representatives and its boat, the Yankee, to Montreal in June for the purpose of having a friendly race with the Dominion. There have been many intimations that other challenges are to come, but no other challenges have arrived so far. It has been pretty well understood, for instance, up to this time, that Mr. Post intends to challenge again, through the Seawanhaka Club, and a telegram has also been received from the Rochester Yacht Club asking if a challenge sent by that club would be accepted. The reply was to the effect that the challenge would have to be considered the same as any other challenges that may be sent in.

The Wheel.

Brantford, Aug. 30.—The local bicycle club have about completed all arrangements for the C. W. A. championship races at Mohawk Park on the afternoon of Labor Day. The meet already bids fair to be one of the most successful in the history of the association both with regard to the quality of the races and the attendance. There were 29 riders on the track at practice to-day, including among others, Harley Davidson, A. McLeod, Alf. Boake, Tom Highley, of Blenheim, Sherits, Axton, Dave Wilson, Smith, and a host of local talent. McLeod, who has not been in the best of shape for some weeks, is picking up and is likely to be seen at his very best. Ben. Goodson, of Australia, and John Calder, of Scotland, are expected in a day or so, along with T. B. McCarthy, Carman, of Morrisburg, Prang, of Montreal, and others. The electric pacing motor which did such splendid work at the world's meet has already arrived and will go against the ten-mile record.

RUSSIA HITS AT ENGLAND

Only Russian Ships Can Ply Between Black Sea and the East.

THE TABLES ARE TURNED.

Now it is Aguinaldo Who Assails and the U. S. Troops Defend.

Sons of Mahdi Slain in Battle—Fighting Between British and Dervishes—Afrikanders Still Hope for a Peaceful Solution of the Transvaal Trouble.

London, Aug. 30.—From a statement made at the annual meeting of the Shell Transport and Trading Company it appears that Russia has struck a serious blow at English trade in the Black Sea.

It was stated that the Russian Government had passed a law which comes into effect in 1900, prohibiting all ships not flying the Russian flag from trading between the Black Sea and Russian possessions in the Far East. At the end of this year the company's ships could, therefore, no longer ply between Batoum and Vladivostock, and so the board would be forced to sell the plant at the latter place. The company had invoked the aid of the Foreign Office, which had protested against this law as a violation of the conditions under which Russia was allowed to occupy Batoum. The protest, had, however, had no effect, and Batoum was no longer an open port. So far as the Far East was concerned, this showed what British trade might expect where Russia allowed to acquire further territory in the Far East.

Tables Turned.

Manila, Aug. 30.—It is reported that Aguinaldo, the Filipino leader, has ordered the native generals in the Province of Cavite to close in and attempt to take the town of Imus, and it is added that troops are centrating around the town from the lake country.

The natives, it is further said, have an outpost of 600 men on the Dasmarinas road and an equal force in the town of Anabo. The United States troops are entrenching the town, and they have no fear of the result of any attack by the natives.

Sons of Mahdi Slain.

London, Aug. 30.—The Sirdar, General Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, has cabled the foreign office that the Mahdi's two sons have been killed by British troops while resisting arrest at the village of Shukaba.

A force of British troops has been despatched there in consequence of a reported Mahdist insurrection on the Blue Nile, instigated by Khalifa Cherif and the Mahdi's sons. The latter had been living under supervision at Shukaba.

On the arrival of the troops the Dervishes met them with a warm fire. During the fight the Cherif and the Mahdi's sons were killed and the village was burned.

Peaceful Solution.

Cape Town, Aug. 30.—It is said in Afrikander circles here that in spite of the persistent warlike rumors there are good prospects for peace. It is believed that several strongly worded communications have been addressed to President Kruger of the Transvaal Republic, urging the desirability of using every effort to obtain a peaceful solution of the trouble. Hon. William P. Schreiner, of Cape Colony, has telegraphed to President Steyn, of the Orange Free State, earnestly expressing the hope that peace will be preserved and declaring his confidence that he would do his utmost to this end.

Fast Atlantic Service.

London, Aug. 30.—Despite the general idea to the contrary, it is understood that negotiations concerning the Canadian fast Atlantic line are still on foot. Some difficulty has apparently arisen with the Imperial Government. The British Treasury previously consented to bear a one third share of the subsidy in the case of two specific contracts, which, however, fell through. When, last March, they were asked on behalf of the Canadian Ministry whether they were prepared to give part of the subsidy towards three steamers and one steamer as a standby, the Imperial Government refused on the ground that the proposal was wholly inadequate to meet the mail, admiralty, and the general needs of the service.

On good authority it is learned, however that should the Canadian Government succeed in procuring a substantial contractor for an effective 21 knot service, no difficulty is expected with the Treasury on the score of the Imperial subsidy.

Judge McMahon May Join the Cabinet.

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—Some extensive changes will be made at once in connection with the militia. Lt.-Col. Drury of Kingston will go to Quebec.

Lt.-Col. Buchan, now in London, will take command of the R.C.R.I. at Toronto, to relieve Lt.-Col. Otter.

Under the age regulation Lt.-Col. Otter would soon have to retire, but in view of his capabilities, the Militia Department has found a way of overcoming the retiring regulations, and he will be made a full Colonel. He will command the whole R.C.R.I. permanently, and a fifth company will be formed, which will be under his personal supervision. The location of this fifth company of the R.C.R.I. has not yet been determined, but may be at Ottawa.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 31, 1899

THE TREATMENT OF INCORRIGIBLES.

The old adage, "There are two sides to every question," is applicable to the question of abuses in institutions, as to all other questions. We are compelled in fairness to consider both sides of the question.

Here is a boy who is incorrigible. Only those who have had experience with such boys realize the full meaning of that word. This boy can look you in the eye and with an innocent smile tell a barefaced lie. His attractive manner gains your confidence and he takes the first opportunity to rob you. Cross his path and you are assailed with the most horrid oaths and the vilest epithets. He defies all authority. Gather a hundred or more such boys in an institution. How will you control them? Devise every method and yet you will often be at your wit's end. Administer punishment for serious misconduct, and you are a brute, beating, kicking and stamping upon an innocent boy. The boy says this, and it is confirmed by the discharged employee who is ever ready to "get square" with those in authority. The public know neither the character of the boy nor his offence. But he is an institution inmate and the officers are looked upon as a brute.

Is it any wonder that people who have so little knowledge of incorrigible boys and girls, and who are prejudiced against the officials of an institution should so readily believe the charges of abuse?

The managers of juvenile reformatories and kindred institutions are selected from the best sort of citizens, and it is to be assumed that they in turn select the best qualified people they can find to put in immediate charge of such institutions. It is fair, also, to presume that most of the people thus selected will endeavor to perform their duties to the best of their ability. But it must be borne in mind that they are taxed to their utmost to control the incorrigibles, and when defied by them feel themselves compelled to gain control or suffer defeat. Any effort to gain control can easily be charged to cruelty.

That severe measures are sometimes resorted to cannot be doubted. Former methods of discipline proceeded upon the principle that every act of disobedience should be visited with coporal punishment in many institutions. The wisdom of this course may be questioned, and yet it has seemed necessary in order to check abuses of the old method.

If the old method was wrong what is the right method? It is the method that will confer the greatest benefits upon the boy or girl, and at the same time maintain proper discipline. Severity will secure discipline, but it tends to harden the child. That which benefits the child will benefit the discipline. Severity meets a bad boy on his own ground. He expects it and he is prepared for it. Firmness combined with true kindness, not foolish sentiment will reach most cases. How to treat the exceptional cases is the difficult problem. Dr. Samuel Johnston laid down the principle, "Children being not reasonable must be governed by fear." He referred to the exceptional cases, the incorrigibles.

We are inclined to think there are some cases, very few perhaps, that can be cured in that way better than in any other.

Misfortunes of one kind and another have befallen most of the children who find their way into institutions. As a result they have fallen into evil ways which in turn have caused them to be ill treated on every hand, until they have learned to distrust everybody. For this reason it is exceedingly difficult to gain their confidence. What they need is sympathy and friendship; not a sickly sympathy, nor friendship that terminates with the first sign of bad conduct, but that interest in their welfare that seeks to benefit and elevate them.

If the officers and empoyees of institutions were governed by such a spirit they would gain the confidence and good will of the majority of inmates, secure obedience, and avert the charge of cruelty. Not that they could invariably avert such charges, for as long as there is an incorrigible boy who defies all authority and a sentimentalist who sympathizes with him and a yellow journal to raise the cry, charges of cruelty are likely to arise.

We have the incorrigible children to control and elevate, and we have the officers, teachers and employees who are endeavoring to perform this most difficult task. We should not add to the burden of the latter by misguiding sympathy with the former. Nor should we overlook the fact, well known to all philantrophists, that thousands of wayward children have been saved from a life of crime because of the training and instruction received in our reformatory institutions.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Within an area of 50 miles around the city of Manchester, England, are 1,760 cotton manufactories, controlling 42,191,000 spindles, and 638 looms. These mills have been paying excellent dividends, 75 per cent. of them earning enough to distribute 10 per cent. per annum and have 5 per cent. to put by for the purchase of new equipment. None of these mills are run by either water or electric power, steam being exclusively employed.

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 3 to 15 per cent. copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRyee, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-cut to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $960, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

* * * "In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl schists extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendall, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I think it is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper. It is near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oil here because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is adapted to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a town could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($400 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.
George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.
Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.
Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.
Col. James. M. Wheaton, Boston, Secretary.
Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Ex-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allotment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

ARCHER CITY, TEXAS, MAY 3, 1899.

HON. EMERY H. LOW, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: * * Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States.

* * The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cuperiferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.

The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formation; and there is no deep work.

I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.

* * As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.

Very respectfully yours,
T. BURTON EVERETT, M. E.

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the nine mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

GRAB MORE CONGO LAND

A French Expedition Arrive at Botika, En Route for the North.

GREAT VELVET COMBINE.

A Syndicate With $15,000,000 Capital Will be Formed at Manchester.

The Birmingham Amateur Will Attempt to Swim Across the Channel—Lancashire Going Ahead and Cotton Industry Busier Than Ever Known Before—Yorkshire Moor Ablaze.

London, Aug. 29.—According to new brought to Liverpool by the mail steamer Boma, an important French Mission, under M. Foret, has arrived at Botika Pt. M. Foret had with him about 100 Sengalese soldiers, armed with the usual type of French Government rifle. It was inferred from this latter fact that M. Foret had the support of the French Government, although, from the great quantity of trade goods with the mission, it bore the character of a mercantile one. Amongst the goods were 15,000 kegs of gunpowder. It was reported that an immense concession of territory had been promised to a group in Paris, and that M. Foret, with his expedition, was on his way to take over the land in question, which is in the northern district of the French Congo.

Great Velvet Combine.

Manchester, Aug. 29.—A report is current that in the autumn a combination of manufacturers, dyers and merchants interested in the velvet trade will be effected. The capital has been fixed at $15,000,000. It is confidently expected that by this combination the growing competition of Germany will be more effectively met.

To Swim the Channel.

London, Aug. 29.—Frank Holmes, the Birmingham amateur swimmer, made all arrangements to make another attempt to swim the English Channel recently, but at three o'clock in the morning there was a breeze on the water. Determined to start if possible, a boat was launched, and the weather tested for a mile or two off the land. Pilot Bingham, who accompanied Holmes in his famous swim last year, advised to the effect that there was too much wind, and the swim was postponed—probably till the next neap tides, when it is also stated Holbein will attempt the channel swim.

Lancashire Ahead.

Bolton, Lancashire, Aug. 29.—Trade was never so prosperous in Lancashire as at the present time. Industries are so busy that overtime is being extensively worked, and those that are running regular hours could do with extra time to keep up with contract engagements entered at the beginning of the year. Foremost is the cotton industry, which is at full stretch, and has been for close upon the last twelve months. To-day things in this section are so healthy that more new mills are about to be erected in South Lancashire, although the cost of building factories just now is much greater than a year ago.

Yorkshire Moors Ablaze.

London, Aug. 29.—The moor fire which broke out in the Scarborough and Pickering district proved one of the most serious outbreaks that has occurred for many years.

The heather over a large expanse has been completely destroyed, and a large number of grouse, partridges and rabbits must have been burned to death, the flames having been swiftly swept along by a strong west wind. The smoke could be seen at Scarborough, ten miles away. Fortunately there were no farms in the line of fire.

The outbreak, which originated on the great expanse known as South Moor, Ebberston, is supposed to have been caused by some smokers carelessly throwing down a lighted match in the dry heather. It is impossible at present to estimate the damage.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Write for catalogue No. 30 to the COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, No. 313 Main street Buffalo, N. Y.

Gold From the Klondike.

Vancouver, Aug. 29.—The steamer Cutch arrived from Skaguay to-night with one hundred and ten Klondikers $700,000 in dust and drafts aboard.

MEN OF MARK.

President McKinley finds little leisure for light reading, but is a careful student of the newspapers.

Joseph Leiter has by no means decided to drop the stock market. He is a constant visitor to Wall street.

J. Pierpont Morgan is an expert pool player and an evening rarely passes when he does not enjoy an after dinner game.

Joel Chandler Harris, Georgia's famous author, breeder and poet, is to have an exhibit of Jersey cattle at the Paris exposition.

Senator Clark has just bought in Paris, for his Washington house, an old stained glass window, once the property of the Countess de Jauze, for $30,000.

Sims Reeves says he lost $400,000 during his career as a public singer because he was too conscientious to appear on the stage unless sure he could do his best.

Ex-Representative Ben T. Cable is to furnish much of the money for the building of a chapter house for the Zeta Psi fraternity at the University of Michigan.

John Stuart, superintendent of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, was formerly a telegraph operator at Hokendauqua, Pa. He is now receiving $15,000 a year.

The Russian Prince Cantacuzene, whose betrothal to Miss Julia Grant has just been announced, has retired to his Russian estates to make preparations for the reception of his bride.

Before Rear Admiral Kautz left for Samoa a young woman asked him whether he had ever felt afraid in battle. "Once," he answered. "A stray ball knocked my cigar out of my mouth and there wasn't another aboard."

The late ex-Governor Flower was once asked by a less successful financier how to succeed in Wall street. "By working harder than at any other trade or profession on earth," was the answer. "But won't that wear you out?" "Not before your time."

Mayor Moir of Scranton was years ago a journeyman tailor in Philadelphia. John Ross of the former city needed a workman, and Mr. Moir, being recommended, was offered inducements to go to Scranton. In February last Mr. Moir was elected chief executive of the city.

Henry G. Kittredge, editor of the Textile World, Boston, has been appointed assistant director of textiles for the commissioner general of the United States to the Paris exposition of 1900. Mr. Kittredge has long been identified with the textile industries of the United States.

Russell Sage is no friend of the camera, and very rarely is it that a photographer is quick enough to get a snap shot of the millionaire. As for sitting for a picture, that has probably occurred less frequently during the millionaire's long life than that of any other equally prominent man in the country.

TOWN TOPICS.

The curfew bell was rung last night at 8.30 o'clock. Nothing sensational resulted. It just rung; that was all.—Freeport Bulletin.

Abilene is getting to be a front porch town. Nearly every resident improvement includes a porch.—Abilene (Kan.) Reflector.

The companies are selling their gas so cheaply in New York that several of the metropolitan newspapers are filled with it every day.—Detroit Journal.

Buffalo is to have a new union station to cost $6,000,000, with a waiting room 80 by 235 feet, that will be the largest in the world. How about this, Boston?—Gardiner Reporter-Journal.

Buffalo is in a flutter over an extremely wicked Midway that it expects to have at the Pan-American exposition, and can't think of a suitable name for it. Why not call it Hamburg Paradise?—Rochester Democrat.

All because of a blessed war to the knife squabble between rival companies New York is now enjoying 65 cent gas. Father Knickerbocker will be a weak old gentleman if he lets them restore the higher rate.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Robert F. Hayes, a Boston clerk, hanged himself with his necktie as the noose.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

Champagne with arsenic in it was used by a San Francisco man as a means of self destruction.

Her husband wanted to move, and she did not. That led a Connecticut woman to drink poison.

Fearing that his wife would scold him for getting home late a newly made London bridegroom committed suicide.

"Ah, to see the moon at a distance of one meter," was the note left by a Paris suicide explaining his motive for death.

THE CYNIC.

After a man has told you his troubles you know more about his kin.

You will find a loafer leech attached to every industrious man or woman.

An honest man is one who admits that his baldness is due to old age and not to sickness.

Every bridegroom finds an excuse to return from his wedding journey sooner than originally planned.

Every circus man lays all his plans on the assumption that the people are chumps. Every circus man gets rich.

After the people have worked themselves to death to raise a preacher's salary, he decides that he can do better elsewhere and resigns.

It would be interesting to know how much longer the week should be, in order that the men may find their Sunday underwear ready without fussing.—Atchison Globe.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Work of laying the cable from Vancouver to Fanning island and thence to Australia and New Zealand will begin this summer, it is announced.

The new Nernst electric light dispenses with the usual vacuum bulb and replaces the hairlike filament with a short bar of refractory material, thereby greatly increasing the light and cheapening the cost.

Experiments have been made lately by French government officials with a new telephone, which enables persons to converse without putting their mouth and ear to the apparatus, the words being distinctly audible in any part of the room.

"HOLY MOSES" DAVIS.

A Western Crook Who is Travelling Eastward Towards Peterborough.

Holy Moses Davis is a slick crook, who is working his way westward towards Peterborough. The Union Pacific Railroad Company has sent out a circular describing "Holy Moses," and asking local agents to arrest him on sight. He is wanted on many charges.

Davis' methods are peculiar. First he works himself off as a railroader generally as a superintendent of some large division in the west. Then when he has introduced himself to the principal business men of a certain city, he works them for all they are worth. He borrows, steals and forges indiscriminately.

Then when the hue and cry is raised Davis lights out to pastures green and leaves many mourners. But he does not go back to his railroading work at once. Oh, no! Davis is too slick a crook for that. He dons a wig and black coat and passes as a faith curist. He tells of his own miraculous cure through his faith. And then he offers to cure any one else—for a consideration. Davis, it is said, makes as much from his faith cure profession as he does from his flimflamming the railroad men.

It is from his faith cure practice that he gains the name of "Holy Moses." Hitherto the man has operated in the United States, where he is well known.

Iron Mining.

The Rathbun Co., are opening out an iron mine on their property, two miles and a half north of Madoc village. Mr. E. T. Crown has charge of the work and has seven men busy sinking a shaft. They will sink forty feet to satisfy themselves that the quality and quantity of ore are all right and will then ship to their shelter at Deseronto. The indications on the surface are good—the ore being rich and showing a large and well-defined vein.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

WAR CLOUD DARKENING

Unless the Boers Terms Are Better Than Generally Believed

DIPLOMACY IS ALL OVER.

Queensland is Making Preparations to Despatch a Contingent to South Africa.

It is Said That With Recruits From Over the Border the Transvaal Would Have More Than Sixty Thousand Men at its Disposal—British Now Prepared to Throw 20,000 Men on the Frontier.

London, Aug. 29.—Commenting on the latest utterance of President Kruger of the Transvall Government, that the South African Republic adheres to its latest offer and would not make any further concessions, the African papers here unanimously draw attention to the increased seriousness of the Transvaal crisis, but in the same breath they expressed uncertainty regarding the nature of the concessions beyond which President Kruger says he will not go. No official announcement has been made of these, though they are generally understood to be a five-year franchise and increased outlander representation.

Diplomacy Exhausted.

"If this is correct," the Globe says, "it cannot be long before diplomacy has to stand aside as of no further service."

The Pall Mall Gazette: "President Kruger adheres to impossible conditions, and if so the situation has come to an ugly head."

The Westminster Gazette, while lamenting the immoderation which, it says, led to the present crisis, admits that "the country is within sight of a war which may shortly be as unavoidable as on the merits of the question it would be inexcusable."

The Comparative Forces.

To whatever despatch or conditions President Kruger's defiant remarks referred, it has brought home sharply the keen possibility of an impending war against no weak kneed adversary. It is said that with recruits from over the border the Transvaal would have about sixty thousand men at its disposal, whereas the most the British could now throw on the frontier would be 20,000, though, of course, this number could be materially increased within a month. The British public are taking intense interest in the preparations of their own forces already in South Africa.

Indignation against Hon. W P. Schreiner, Premier of Cape Colony, who, in the Cape House of Assembly, yesterday, declared that, under the customs convention, the Orange Free State was justified in importing arms through Cape Colony, is fairly general, though that section which believes that a Boer war would be a crime are making, by editorials, petitions, etc. what they appear to think is the last effort to avert hostilities.

Brisbane, Aug. 29.—In consequence of the increased tension in the Transvaal affair, the Queensland Government is making preliminary arrangements to despatch a contingent to South Africa.

How They Used to Kill.

In repairing an old house in Dartford, England, not long ago the workmen found several ancient death warrants, bearing the signature of the Duke of Portland, minister of King George III. One of them, dated June, 1798, gives an idea of what legal hanging and quartering were like in those days. It runs:

"Whereas, James O'Coigley, having been attainted of high treason and had sentence passed upon him to be drawn upon a hurdle to the place of execution and to be there hanged by the neck, but not until he is dead, but that, being alive, he shall be taken down and his bowels taken out and burned before his face, that his head shall be severed from his body and his body divided into four parts, and that his head and body shall be disposed of as we think fit, and whereas we think fit to remit that part of the sentence directing the burning of his bowels and dividing the body into four parts, our will and pleasure is that he shall be drawn and hanged and have his head severed from his body."

How He Misunderstood.

There were loud cries from a man in the back of the hall, and the cornetist went at it again.

There were more cries from other parts of the hall, but, with that one still ringing in his ears, the cornetist kept it up.

"What are you trying to do?" cried the manager. "That's no encore."

"No encore!" exclaimed the cornetist when he had been induced to break off. "Didn't that man back there yell, 'Toot, man!' four or five times?"

"Not any," answered the manager. "He's a Scotchman, and what he said was, 'Hoot, mon!'"

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE.

Peculiar Experience of the Man Who Dealt In High Explosives.

"Nitroglycerin, sir; high explosives accomplished it," said a well dressed man with a youthful face and snow white hair to a chance acquaintance at the Great Northern.

"But your face is not scarred? It would seem that an explosion"—

"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a big blasting contract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"'Is there such a thing as high explosives ripening?' asked the Englishman I was accompanying on the second day of our voyage.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was [illegible] character. Indeed 25 days after it [illegible] compounded it was almost certain to [illegible] of its own volition, so to speak. [illegible] the upper shelf of the checkroom [illegible] New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 20 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a multimurderer. In vain I drew an awful picture of the devastation that would overwhelm a certain New York hotel in exactly 17 days and called upon the captain to put his ship about. He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if an opportunity presented itself, but fortune failed me, and I was obliged to cross the ocean. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the life of my ripening high explosive I sprang from a carriage and rushed into the hotel.

"No reprieved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fluid disappear in a catch basin. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel bar, where I had gone for a 'bracer,' in absolute dismay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

VETERANS UNDER FIRE.

The Reason They Don't Stoop When the Bullets Are Flying.

"The temptation to stoop when under fire is almost irresistible," said a veteran, "and that accounts for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You see, when a man happens to be hit in a stooping posture the chances are that the bullet plows right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the probabilities are in favor of the wound being slight, anyhow not mortal. Old soldiers are well aware of this, and while they will drop flat and hunt cover every chance they get they never stoop.

"After a soldier has been in a few engagements he learns such tricks, and, as far as the rest of it is concerned, he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his experiences appear to lend color to that doctrine. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get hit—hit when it really seemed as if they had reached for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are continually happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrade of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refuge behind a little hut. He was worn out under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear and a little to one side was a pile of crossties full of wrought iron nails. A bullet came along, splintered a tie and drove out one of the nails at right angles. The jagged iron struck my chum in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

"That's the blind chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a fellow is apt to acquire a sort of sang froid that is immensely impressive to a recruit. It isn't because he has a contempt for danger; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

They Keep Moving.

The religion of a Bedouin tribe seems to be to "move onward." Having once begun the nomadic life, it becomes almost necessary for them to keep it up. In the first place, they don't want to settle down, and they wouldn't have any place to stop if they wanted to. Sometimes it becomes expedient that they make great haste in these long journeys. Wandering around over the plains are other tribes whose only occupation is "moving on." There is frequently enmity between two of these Arabian families, and should one pursue the other it behooves the pursued to hasten onward with all the speed their animals are capable of. Or it may be that the springs of water are so widely separated that hard travel is necessary to make the distance from one to the other in a day.

When either of these contingencies arises, they cook and eat while on the march. They don't eat much. Two or three dinners such as American boys and girls are used to every day and something extra for Sundays and company are supposed not to agree with Bedouin children's stomachs. When on the road, bread is their chief food. This is baked while riding. One woman will mix the coarse flour which is carried in a sack on the back of her camel, another will roll and shape the dough, which is brought to her in small quantities, and a third will make a fire in an earthen vessel and attend to the baking. Women or boys on foot run along from one cook to the other and carry the material, and when the feast is ready they distribute it among the various members of the tribe.

The Fitness of Things.

"Yes, that's the bride."

"Very young, isn't she?"

"Nineteen, I believe."

"Who are those middled aged women with her?"

"Those are her unmarried sisters. She's chaperoning them."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Notes and Notes.

"Does your wife play by note?"

"Um—er—yes. The piano dealer holds mine for $500."—Colorado Springs Gazette.

The turkey was first discovered in America and was brought to England in the early part of the sixteenth century. Since then it has been acclimated in nearly all parts of the world

DUMOULIN CLOSES ST. PETER'S

Favors Shown by Congregation to Mr. Geoghegan the Cause.

Hamilton, Aug. 28.—Bishop Du Moulin has closed St. Peter's church, and it will remain closed until further orders. It is understood that the cause of the trouble lies in the fact that trouble has risen between the pastor, Rev. Wm. Bevan, and his congregation, because the latter showed too much sympathy with its former pastor Rev. Mr. Geoghegan, who was recently suspended. Some of the leading lights of the church said to-day that they would not be in the least surprised if the church doors were closed for all time to come.

Shoes Will be Dearer.

Quebec, Aug. 28.—A largely-attended meeting of the shoe manufacturers from Toronto, Montreal, Quebec and St. Hyacinthe was held in Quebec to-day, at which practically every concern in Canada was represented.

It was unanimously decided that an advance should take place in the price of shoes of at least 10 per cent., and the jobbing and retail trade are being notified to this effect.

An organized was formed called the Canadian Shoe Manufacturer's Association.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

England has eight "Little Minister" companies.

"The Belle of New York" has registered its four hundredth performance at the Shaftesbury in London.

John Kernell will star next season in a new comedy, "The Crooked Mr. Straight," a satire of the family physician.

Emperor William is to have a play produced. It remains to be seen whether his pen is mightier than his sword.

Three dramatists are on the list of the 40 French immortals, Anatole France, Francois Coppee and Henri Lavedan.

Miss Janette Steer, an English actress, appeared with success lately at a Birmingham theater in the role of Hamlet.

General Lew Wallace says the dramatization of his book, "Ben-Hur," will be produced only in Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Chicago.

A Pittsburg minister lately invited by public advertisement the management, company and patrons of a city theater to visit his church during Sunday services.

English players are less hesitant than Americans to appeal to the public when impoverished. The latest example is Jolly Nash, the one time leading music hall singer

In a play projected for production in New York the author tries to hold the mirror up to truth by making the villains in the piece lawyers, policemen and court officers

Mme. Patti now earns about $50,000 a year, but has made as much as $350,000. Melba's income when fully engaged is $150,000, and Sarah Bernhardt has for years averaged $70,000.

Miss Nethersole's next season will begin early in October and will be specially interesting for the reason that she will for a time abandon her repertory and appear in one play, Clyde Fitch's "Sapho," which he is now preparing for her from Alphonse

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrew Randale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellison's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North American Review.

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired or destroyed yet—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse can not atone for the deranged liver, the faltering step, the rebellious stomach. "HOLY MOSES" DAVIS.

A Western Crook Who is Travelling Eastward Towards Peterborough.

Holy Moses Davis is a slick crook, who is working his way westward towards Peterborough. The Union Pacific Railroad Company has sent out a circular describing "Holy Moses," and asking local agents to arrest him on sight. He is wanted on many charges.

Davis' methods are peculiar. First he works himself off as a railroader generally as a superintendent of some large division in the west. Then when he has introduced himself to the principal business men of a certain city, he works them for all they are worth. He borrows, steals and forges indiscriminately.

Then when the hue and cry is raised Davis lights out to pastures green and leaves many mourners. But he does not go back to his railroading work at once. Oh, no! Davis is too slick a crook for that.

He dons a wig and black coat and passes as a faith curist. He tells of his own miraculous cure through his faith. And then he offers to cure any one else—for a consideration. Davis, it is said, makes as much from his faith cure profession as he does from his flimflamming the railroad men.

It is from his faith cure practice that he gains the name of "Holy Moses." Hitherto the man has operated in the United States, where he is well known.

Iron Mining.

The Rathbun Co., are opening out an iron mine on their property, two miles and a half north of Madoc village. Mr. E. T. Crown has charge of the work and has seven men busy sinking a shaft. They will sink forty feet to satisfy themselves that the quality and quantity of ore are all right and will then ship to their smelter at Deseronto. The indications on the surface are good—the ore being rich and showing a large and well-defined vein.

The Longest Bridges.

Editor Morning Times.

To settle a dispute please state if the old Cobourg railway bridge across Rice Lake is not the largest bridge that ever was built? I claim that it was, as the distance from shore to shore is a trifle over 3,500 feet.

ENQUIRER.

Keene, Aug. 26.

Reply—If the old Rice Lake bridge was only 6,200 feet, you are certainly a loser. We find the following to be the largest bridges in the world — Montreal, 8,701 feet long; Brooklyn, 5,989; Leinster, 4,213 feet long; the New Havre de Grace bridge, 600 feet long, bridge at Homestead, near Pittsburg, Pa., 5,300 feet long. China has the longest bridge in the world; it is 23,000 feet long; its roadway is 70 feet wide and 70 feet high; there are 300 arches and each of the pillars which are 75 feet apart, bears a pedestal, on which is the figure of a lion twenty-one feet long and made out of one block of marble—Ed. Times.)

A Big Storm.

A heavy electrical storm passed over Dummer and Otonabee on Sunday, destroying two barns, one belonging to Mr. Duncan Campbell, lot 15, 9th concession, in Asphodel, who had in all this year's crop, half of which was threshed, yielding about fourteen hundred bushels of grain. This, with some small pigs and his buildings were burned. One horse was paralyzed and badly burned from the shock of lightning. Mr. Campbell's loss is estimated at between $2,500 and $3,000, with but $1,200 insurance in the London Mutual. The other barn belonged to John D. Buck, lot 18, concession 10, Asphodel, who also lost this year's crop and buildings. His loss is estimated to be about the same as Mr. Campbell's, and was similarly insured. Smoke in other directions shows that other fires, probably of a similar nature, have been started in the surrounding neighborhood. News reached town yesterday that three barns in Otonabee were struck by lightning and destroyed, one in the northern and two in the eastern sections of the township. Particulars could not be learned.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Impure water in summer often causes disease among poultry.

The objection to late hatched fowls is the danger of their being stunted.

Poultry matures within a year and is easily changed in any of its characteristics.

Irregular feeding invites derangement of the digestive organs and often causes disease.

In nearly all cases the male imparts the color. When white males are used all the chickens will be white.

Generally, ground bone is one of the best forms in which to give lime to the laying hens when they need it.

By using milk instead of water in mixing the soft feed for fowls it serves both for moisture and nourishment.

One advantage in favor of the white breeds is that the pin feathers do not show so plainly as in the black plumaged birds.

Cornmeal does not contain all the essential elements of growth, and for this reason chickens often die off when fed upon it.—St. Louis Republic.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

After a good soaking shower is the best time for hand weeding.

A good plan is to keep the growing orchard in cultivation until it comes into bearing well and then seed to clover.

Increased sunlight among the trees brings increased growth and blossom and decreases the tendency to mold and rot.

Peach, cherry and pear trees will bear very little forcing, and on this account wood ashes are better for them than ground bone.

Fruits, especially the apple, are largely controlled in character by soil and climate. Get varieties that are adapted to your locality.

Scraping the moss and old dead bark off the mature trees in the orchard and washing the trunks with some alkaline liquid can always be recommended.—Exchange.

Misunderstood.

A dentist on the South Side advertises on a large scale that he pulls teeth without pain by the "animal magnetism system."

Yesterday an Irishman came into the dentist's office suffering with a toothache.

"Faith, and I must have me teeth pulled, but I'd like to see the animals first."—Chicago Democrat.

MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Algus with an air of pride and proprietorship, somewhat more prevalent among young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 50 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist ez good natured and happy now as she wuz when I courted her, but Mandy ain't all mush and spoon victuals, and there's times when she has to be handled with keer er somethin will be sp'iled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain't afeered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never fergit ef I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wuz only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven er eight head uv fine horses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4-year-olds that we prided ourselves perticklelr on, fer they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they wuz yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalize us, and I tell you they wuzn't a funeral percession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow come in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week er ten days we had fine sleighin, and one afternoon Mandy said she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough fer me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin fer the lady in less than no time.

"The team wus feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they slung the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wus a dozen er more movin up and down at a clippin gait, and we sailed right in among 'em, and in about seven minutes we passed everything on the road.

"Jim Hall wuzn't out with his team, and I could see that Mandy wus gittin anxious, though she wuzn't sayin much. The road leadin to Jim's place struck the pike about 900 yards from the upper turn, and there wuz no sign uv him as we passed, and we didn't see him as we come back, but just after we got by his road we heard a clatter up the pike, and, by crackey, there wuz Jim a-comin lickety split. I guess he'd been to the postoffice, and the way he wus comin after us wuz like a mink after chickens. Mandy took one look over her shoulder and told me to let em go for all they wuz wuth. I didn't need to be coaxed, and by the time she had said the words we wus fairly flyin over the smooth snow track, and Jim wus comin right behind us too. For the first few rods we gained on him, then he begun to creep up on us in spite uv all we could do. Everybody on the road knowed how me and Jim set store by our teams, and they pulled out to one side and give us all the room there wus.

"I shook up my beauties as I felt him drawin up on me, but shakin wuzn't enough, and I touched 'em once er twice with the whip, but Jim jist rared back on his strings, lookin like destruction smilin at desolation, and kept a-comin. When his horses' heads passed our dashboard and I could see the snort in their noses, I got kind uv sick and thought I'd have to let go, but Mandy nerved me up, and I hung on and leaned away forrerd as if that would help some. By this time Jim's horses had their heads even with mine, and I held him there fer a minute er such a matter, but jist as I begun to have a hope that it might be a neck and neck at the finish Mandy reached fer the line next to her, and, with a sudden jerk, she pulled the team off to one side uv the road, where the snow wuz in a high drift, and Jim went ahead with a yell that made my ears stand out like windmill flappers.

"I wus that dazed for a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, deacon though I wus, I'm afeerd I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a move Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I wus dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idee that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wus killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hunderd pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let theselves out on a spurt that wuz chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream: 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"And so I wuz, and so wuz Mandy, fer before Jim knowed that anything had happened I wus up with him, alongside, neck and neck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toll gate he wus ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss.

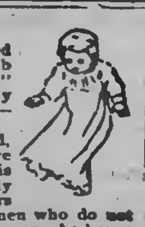
"Mandy wus in the middle uv the road brushin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin for me as I come back, and when I said I'd give her a new silk dress for that she said it wus only what any wife ought to do fer her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite uv herself. That's the kind uf a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and fished out a quaint, old fashioned daguerreotype in a brand new gilt frame.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Picture, Not Paint.

An art patron one day came into Turner's studio when the artist was already famous. He looked at a picture and asked what was the price. The artist named the sum he had set upon it.

"What," exclaimed the buyer, "all these golden sovereigns for so much paint!"

"Oh," replied Turner, "it's paint you are buying? I thought it was pictures. Here," producing a half used tube of color, "I'll let you have that cheap. Make your own terms," and, turning his back on the astonished patron, he went on painting.



Bouncing the Baby.

A fond mother once asked the witty Charles Lamb "how he liked babies?" The stuttering wit promptly responded: "Boi—boi—boiled, madam!"

Fortunately for the world, most men and women love babies, and the home that is without one is never truly happy. The old bachelors like Lamb are the only men who do not care for babies, and the woman who hopes to make her husband happy without undergoing the ordeal of maternity, hopes in vain. If women only knew, there is no necessity for dreading the pangs of motherhood. If a woman is really healthy in a womanly way, her trial will be insignificant. There is one great remedy that prepares a woman for almost painless child-bearing. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives strength, vigor and virility to the special organs that bear the burdens of motherhood. It cures all weakness, inflammation and ulceration. It banishes morning squeamishness and other discomforts. It insures a healthy, bouncing baby. Thousands of once barren homes bless this remedy for the innocent laughter of happy childhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it and will not substitute some inferior preparation. Read what one woman says:

"I was taken sick two years ago and tried almost everything but could get no help," writes Mrs. T. C. Blashfield, of Brimfield, Hampden Co., Mass. "Your 'Favorite Prescription' did me a great deal of good. I was suffering with falling of the womb and could scarcely walk, now I am so much better off that I can walk quite a distance. It was your medicine that helped me. You have my best wishes and thanks, and may God be with you to do all the good for the poor suffering people that you can. If I hear of anybody sick I will recommend them to write to you, and I will tell what you have done for me."

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

Committees Present Their Reports – Memorial Regarding the Late Treasurer.

The County Council met yesterday morning pursuant to adjournment.

All the members were present with Warden Hawthorne in the chair.

The following committees presented their reports:

The Committee on Appointments recommended that Mr. Wesley Sherin be appointed one of the County Auditors.—The report was adopted.

The Committee on Finances recommended that the County Auditors audit the accounts of the late treasurer forthwith; that the matter of the contract with the Peterborough Water Co. be left in the hands of the Warden and Mr. Forster, and that the account of the company, amounting to $52, be paid; also that the memorial to the widow and family of the late Edgecumbe Pearse be engrossed and framed, and his salary paid to October 1st.—The report was adopted.

The Committee on Roads and Bridges recommended that the matter of making the necessary repairs to the Mud Lake Bridge be left in the hands of Mr. George W. Fitzgerald, the expenditure not to exceed $100; that Mr. Shaw procure a pump for the Gannon's Narrows ferry, and have the necessary repairs made to the piers, also that the report of June 24th be amended by striking out in clause 14 the words "and the township of Cavan grant $50 for the same purpose."—The report was adopted.

The Joint Committee of the County and Town Councils decided that the Warden and Messrs Anderson and Fitzgerald be a committee with three members of the Town Council to consider the plans and specifications of the proposed Mud Lake bridge, and with authority to advertise for tenders for the erection of the same.

Councilor Pearse, on behalf of the special committee appointed for the purpose, read the following memorial relative to the late treasurer and clerk.

To the widow and family of the late Edgecombe Pearse, Esq:

>
> This Council deeply regrets the great loss which this County has sustained owing to the death of so honorably a county officer and so esteemed a public citizen.

Deer Shooting.

At th elast session of Parliament the custom act was so amended as to repeal the cause prohibiting the exprotation of deer from Canada. This clause was substituted by one permitting hunters to take deer beyond the border under conditions to be arranged by the Minister of Customs. Hon. Mr. Patterson he shad the subject under consideration and haGe decided that every American hunter may take with him two deer each year when leaving Canada. The deer must have fallen before the rifle of the hunter taking them out of Canada, this regulation being necessary to prevent the purchase of deer by pot hunters.

P. M. DUMBLE'S RECEPTION.

A Number of Cases to be Ventilated at the Police Court To-Day.

There was no business for the consideration of our worthy Police Magistrate yesterday morning, but a number of cases will be looked into this morning. One offender is charged with disturbing the services at the Salvation Army barracks on Monday night. Even the harvest festivities of that evening did not warrant the hilarity he displayed on that occasion. A number of boys are to answer for bathing without any clothing and exposing themselves in this condition on the C. P. R. bridge. A fight at the Little Windsor hotel at noon Tuesday resulted in some charges of disorderly conduct being laid, which must be answered. There is also a charge of disorderly conduct on Bethune street the other evening to be investigated.

A Surgeon's Remarks ABOUT Grape-Nuts

SEE BELOW.

SURGEON OF PERRY EXPEDITION

Dr. E. E. Vincent, Now in Charge of the Keeley Institute, Detroit.

Dr. Vincent lately obtained such valuable personal aid from the famous Grape Nuts food, that he has been kind enough to volunteer the following information:

"In recommending your Grape-Nuts food I speak from personal experience when suffering from a tedious attack of jaundice which was the result of nervous dyspepsia, brought on by over-work and close confinement. Your preparation was of such infinite value in my own illness that when in charge of one of the largest Keeley Institutes in the United States, I introduced the food on the table as a regular article of diet.

"We receive many patients who for days have been unable to retain food in the stomach, and I have the first one to treat who could not retain the food. On the contrary, patients invariably find Grape-Nuts nourishing and palatable."

THE OTTAWA FAIR.

A Fine Exhibition Promised—Thousands Should Take It In.

That the Central Canada Exhibition at Ottawa, commencing Sept. 11th, will surpass any fair ever given in America is assured. The entries are more numerous than ever before, the number of manufacturers that have applied for space in the main hall and carriage and machinery buildings, is almost double that of any previous year, and an exceptionally fine list of special attractions has been secured. The specialties include the following: Ballon ascensions and parachute drop by Miss Ida Leyroy, who is fired from a cannon when thousands of feet in the air; bounding wire feats by the renowned Parisian, Cadieux; sensational acts by the Lundgreens, Lamothe and Joselin families, aerialists; sword contests between Sergt.-Major Morgans, champion all-round fencer of America, Staff-Sergt. Lamothe, winner of the Governor-General's medal, for mounted competition at the Toronto fair last year, and Mr. Andrew Randolph, the famous swordsman of the age, who has defeated the leading fencers in Europe; log-rolling competitions by expert rivermen, on the lake in front of the grand stand; scores laughable water scenes by noted acquatic artists; the ever popular musical ride by the Royal Canadian Dragoons; eccentric acts by the renowned comedians, Ramza and Arno; Comar, who performs a marvellous revolving horizontal bar act and does some amazing juggling; trick bicycle riding by the great cyclist Buckner; special exercises by the Ottawa School Cadets; trotting and running races, three events every day; difficult sword feats by Sergt.-Major Morgans; band concerts every afternoon; Hassen Ben Ali, the great Arab acrobat, with his recently imported troop of Touzoonin Arabs, all noted for strength and agility; the celebrated Streater Zouaves, champion fancy drill team and wall scalers of America, engaged for six months at Paris Exposition next year; two hundred paintins by the leading artists of Canada; exhibits from the Experimental Farm and from the Northwest and Manitoba; beautiful electric light effects in Horticultural Hall.

All the platform specialties and the musical ride will be put on during the evening spectacular, the great historical, "The Bombardment of Pekin," in which hundreds of soldiers take part, and the programme each day to end with a magnificent display of fireworks—over sixty numbers—ignited on the lakke.

The New County Clerk.

Mr. Geo. Stewart, the new County Clerk and Treasurer of the County of Peterborough, entered upon his duties yesterday morning. We have reason to believe that the Council have been happy in their choice for this responsible office. Mr. Stewart's long experience in county municipal matters abundantly qualifying him as a worthy successor to the late Mr. Pearse. The Times congratulates the Council upon the appointment of one whose natural intelligence and ability will insure to the county satisfactory and efficient service.

BUFFALO A TINY HAGUE

International Arbitration Committee Lauds Foreign Peace-Makers.

DEEP GRATIFICATION FELT.

Delegates Urged to Further the Good Work in Their Respective Countries.

The Committee Wish to Procure Ratification of Hague Conference Relative to Settlement of International Differences and to Promote Treaties Between States Agreeing to Settle Their Differences by Arbitration.

Buffalo, Aug. 31.—At the opening session to-day of the conference of the International Law Association the Hon. Sherman S. Rogers, of Buffalo, delivered an address of welcome to the delegates. The opening session was presided over by Hon. Sir William R. Kennedy, Judge of the High Court of Justice, England.

The International Arbitration Committee made the following report at the session to-day:

1. The conference accepts the report, adopted by the Executive Council on July 18, 1899, of the special committee appointed at the London Conference of 1893, which has, in accordance with the doctrine of the Brussels Conference in 1895, presented a scheme for the formation of a court of international arbitration. The conference cordially thanks the committee for the care with which it has thus completed the work entrusted to it, directs that the scheme be printed in the proceedings of the conference, and commends it to public notice as the association's contribution to the further elucidation of the question.

Specially Valuable Features.

2. This conference expresses its deep gratification at the adoption by the Hague Peace Conference of a scheme of international arbitration, which carries out one of the main objects of the association, as expressed in reiterated resolutions, from the time of its opening conference in 1873. The conference recognizes as specially valuable the following leading features of the scheme, viz., First, the nomination of a body of men of recognized competence in questions of international law, and enjoying public esteem, who will be ready to act as arbitrators.

Second, the selection by the parties to any international dispute from amongst the members of the above named body of arbitrators and an umpire to form an arbitral tribunal.

Third, the creation of a permanent administrative council, composed of the diplomatic representatives at the court of The Hague, with the Netherlands Minister of Foreign Affairs as its president.

Fourth, the establishment, under the direction of the above-named council, of a permanent bureau, whose services will be at the disposal of all arbitral tribunals.

Missionary Work Recommended.

The conference, therefore, urges the members of the association to use their influence in their respective countries:

(a) To procure the early ratification of The Hague Convention, relative to the settlement of international differences:

(b) To promote treaties between two or more States agreeing to submit their differences to arbitration under the provisions of the convention.

3. The conference decides that a special committee be appointed to examine in detail the provisions of The Hague conventions, and to prepare a report thereon for the next conference.

Last Night's Fire.

At 10.25 last night the fire brigade was summoned to put out a fire which by some mysterious means had started in the roof of a frame building just south of Comstock's furniture establishment on George street, and on the vacant lot immediately opposite the Peterborough Canoe factory, Water street. The building belongs to Mr Thos. Bradburn, and is used for storing lumber in. The flames were quickly subdued before much damage could be done. A hose burst in the centre of a group of interested spectators, who thus assailed in an unlooked for direction and in such a cool manner, quickly dispersed.

Boring for Oil

The Prospecting Co. drilling at Belleville express themselves as confident of success. The theory of Mr. G. E. Vickers, of Philadelphia, Manager of the Company, is that Ontario is the supply region for their oil fields, the oil passing under the lakes and if he only goes down far enough he is sure of success. The Times has long been of opinion that oil exists in this locality, and if a well deep enough is sunk the result will be natural gas or oil, or perhaps both.

MORE PROTESTATIONS AND TEARS FROM DREYFUS

Two Witnesses Testify to His Tracit Admission of Guilt When Arrested for Treason.

THE PRISONER MAKES A WEAK REPLY

Hissing Through His Teeth and Protesting His Honor in the Usual Style, and Accuses Witnesses of Distorting His Words.

Rennes, Aug. 31—The court martial of Capt. Dreyfus opened behind closed doors to-day and lasted until 9.15 a.m. Majors Hartman and Ducros and Gen. Deloye, all of the artillery, were present, and the court discussed the secret documents relating to the artillery subjects of the bordereau.

The public was admitted to the court at 9.30 a.m., when Capt. Lebrun-Renault, of the Republican Guard, reiterated his testimony given before the Court of Cassation, repeating the terms of the alleged confession of Dreyfus as follows:

"I am innocent. In three years they will recognize my innocence. The Minister knows it. If I delivered documents to Germany, it was to have more important ones in return."

Lebrun-Renault Was Suspected.

The witness explained that he did not refer to the confession of Dreyfus during his interview with President Casimir-Perrier, because he overheard a conversation during the course of which he was called "traitor," "canaille" and "cur." This came as a surprise, for he did not mention this in his evidence before the Court of Cassation, as Maitre Labori pointed out. M. Labori also laid stress on the fact that Capt. Lebrun-Renault should have kept his note book in which he made a note of his conversation with Dreyfus for four years, and have destroyed it on the very morrow the matter was brought up in debate in the Chamber of Deputies. The Captain replied that he looked upon the copy made by M. Cavaignac, then Minister of War as being sufficient.

Dreyfus' Weak Reply.

Dreyfus, in reply, to the witness, declared that Capt. Lebrun-Renault's statement that Capt. Datel was present during his conversation with Capt. Lebrun-Renault, was inaccurate.

The witness maintained that Capt. Dattel was present.

Dreyfus said that if he was present he, the prisoner, did not speak to him.

Dreyfus then raised his voice excitedly, and accompanying his words with short, emphatic gestures of the right hand, which was quivering with his emotion, he protested that Captain Lebrun-Renault should have repeated to his chiefs his utterance, which began with a protestation of innocence, without asking him to explain his words.

Dreyfus Gets Excited.

"Those are manoeuvres," cried the prisoner, "which must fill al honest men with indignation."

Dreyfus spoke the last words through his teeth, and was evidently laboring under the greatest excitement and indignation. The audience broke into 'Bravos' which the gendarmes quickly suppressed.

The Confession Confirmed

Capt. Antoine followed, and repeated what Capt. Dattel had said confirming the confession. Dreyfus replied that he had not spoken to Capt. Dattel.

On being recalled, Capt. Lebrun-Renault said this was true, but he added that Capt. Dattel was present and could have overheard the conversation.

M. Labori here pointed out that Captain Dattel had not spoken to his chief's on this subject, and Gen. Mercier admitted that this was correct.

Col. Jouaust told Dreyfus that he had not explained why he mentioned the term of three years to which Dreyfus replied: "I did not give three years as the term. I only said I hoped that in the course of two or three years my innocence would be recognized. And I wish to state my colonel, that, as my letter to General Gonse shows, my words did not have the sense evil minds have sought to give them."

Tell-Tale Letters

M. Labori then had General Gonse called to the bar, and asked him if he had not used the alleged confession of Dreyfus in opposing Col. Picquart's arguments in favor of a revision. Col. Gonse replied that he had not, whereupon M. Labori asked that the letters exchanged between General Gonse and Col. Picquart should be read. The clerk of the court began to read a letter beginning—"My Dear Picquart," when Gen. Gonse interrupted him and asked that Col. Picquart's previous letter be read first, but the letter was not available for the moment, the reading of all the letters was adjourned until to-morrow.

Didn't Hear the Confession.

Major Forzinetti, who was Governor of the Cherche Midi prison during the time Dreyfus was imprisoned there, testified in behalf of Dreyfus, declaring that he had never heard of the confession Dreyfus is said to have made. He said he had frequently met Captain Lebrun-Renault and Captain Dattel, and that neither of them ever alluded to the alleged confession. The witness declared that he only taxed Captain Lebrun-Renault, before General Gonse and other witnesses, with saying he had spoken to the witness (Major Forzinetti) of the confession and Captain Lebrun-Renault did not reply.

"Whereupon," Major Forzinetti said, "I seized his arm and cried, 'If the words repeated are true, you are an infamous liar.'"

A French Theatrical.

Major Forzinetti then declared that on visiting General de Boisdeffre to express fears about the health of the prisoner, the General asked him his opinion of Dreyfus and the Major replied:

"My General, had you not put that question to me I would have kept my counsel, but since you ask my opinion, I declare I believe he is innocent."

The witness then recounted Col. du Paty de Clam's theatrical devices to surprise Dreyfus, to which Forzinetti declined to be a party and the Major also said that on one occasion when Dreyfus was in a crisis of despair, he, the witness, remained with the prisoner, consoling him, until 3 o'clock in the morning.

Col. Jouaust, asked Major Forzinetti if Dreyfus ever had ideas of suicide, and the witness replied that Dreyfus had asked him for a weapon and that also after his condemnation was read to him, he was with difficulty prevented from dashing his head against the wall.

The session concluded with the confrontations of Captain Lebrun-Renault and General De Boisdeffre, the former explaining that he did not speak to Major Forzinetti of the Dreyfus confession because he had received instructions to keep silent.

General De Boisdeffre denied that Major Forzinetti had expressed to him his conviction that Dreyfus was innocent. But the Major maintained his assertion.

The court then adjourned until to-morrow.

May Leave Samoa to England.

Auckland, New Zealand, Aug. 31.—It is believed in Government circles at Wellington, that the Samoan question is on the eve of solution, and that the problem will be solved along lines most satisfactory to this colony. It is believed that America and Germany will retire from the tripartite protectorate, leaving Great Britain alone in the field. This arrangement will involve the occupation by Germany, in the way of compensation, of either the Gilbert Islands, the Marshall archipelago or the portion of the Solomon Islands not already under Germany authority. The Gilbert islands are now in the hand of Great Britain, while Germany exercises over the Marshall archipelago only a protectorate, established in 1885. According to the same report the United States will be willing to content itself with a coaling station at Pango-Pango harbor, which it has occupied since 1872.

Stolen in Daylight

Several complaints have been made lately of tools having been stolen from the pavement work on Park street. On Wednesday a new hammer laid down for a few moments was stolen in broad daylight. Mr. Rose has lost no less than three rules. Even straight edges, too long to lock in the tool box have been taken away.

The Rifle Matches.

At the matches of the D.R.A. at Ottawa Wednesday the 1000 yards "B" shoot was not finished but Corp. Richardson of the 5th C.A., and Pte. D. Cameron of the 57th, were tied for first place, each having 22 points. In the Victoria match Pte. C. Curtis made a score of 68 winning a $4 prize. The highest score was 77. In the tyro match Lieut. Eastwood won $4 with a score of 64 the highest being 66.

SPORTING ITEMS.

Golf.

The first match of the Peterborough Golf Club for the fall season is the competition for the medal again offered by the President, Mr R Max Dennistoun.

This year the competition will not be played under handicap, but will be an event where each man has to depend entirely on his merits as a player to win.

The members should show their appreciation of the President's kindness in giving this prize by playing off their draws promptly.

The first draw as given below must be played off by September 16th, and the name of any player who has not handed in his score by that day will be scratched.

The course will be a round of 18 holes.

The first draw is as follows:—

J W Garvin vs J W Bennett.
J H Burnham vs H D Burnett.
J A Culverwell vs R C McHarrie.
H S Nicholls vs A St A Smith.
E W Lamprey vs E W Helst.
A S Houston vs S Ray.
C W Bell vs C Bradburn.
Fred Hall vs A G Parker.

F C Napier a bye.

Immediately after the competition the first round of the President's prize, the first draw for the Captain's prize will be made. This will be a handicap competition played over an 18 hole course.

All new members will be drawn into these competitions.

On Monday morning a team will go to Cobourg to play a return match, and if possible wipe out their former defeat.

The team will be composed of the following players: R Max Dennistoun, P Campbell, J H Burnham, R Myles Hamilton, F B Francis, H Ritchie, F C Napier and Fred Hall.

Baseball.

This afternoon the wine clerks will again meet the coal heavers: O'Shea c, Clancy p, Morgan 1b, Overend 2b, Boyle 3b, McClelland ss, Carrol lf, Tom McDonough cf, Jack McDonough rf.

Lindsay Post:—Word was received this morning that Uxbridge was arranging a home game for Labor Day, and as Peterborough plays two games with Oshawa the same day, Lindsays fans will be disappointed in seeing a home game, but we are after Peterborough's scalp and a later game will be arranged for.

Yachting.

Toronto yachtsmen ought not to quietly accept the prospect of an eternal separation between their hopes and the Canada Cup.

There is still money to provide the $3,000 or $4,000 needed to build a challenger, and Canada will never lack for amateur sailor men to mann and captain a victorious yacht.

The loss of the Canada Cup is one painful circumstance which does not change the facts in the long record of competition between Canadian and American yachts on the great lakes.

At least ninety per cent of these events have resulted in favor of Canadian yachts, and that record is glorious enough to inspire a renewed attempt to bring back the Canada Cup.—Toronto Telegram.

BOER AGENTS ARE FREED.

Emissaries of the Transvaal Arrested by Portuguese Authorities Now Set at Liberty.

Mr. Chamberlain Suggests a Second Conference—His Reply to President Kruger—Statement Made That the Royal Artillery Reserves Have Been Ordered to be in Readiness for Active Service.

Lourenzo Marquez, Delagoa Bay, Aug. 31.—The two Transvaal police officers who were arrested on their arrival here yesterday have been released.

Instructions have been received from Lisbon to release the consignments of ammunition for the Transvaal. An additional large amount of ammunition arrived here to-day on the steamer German.

The British steamer German sailed from Hamburg July 15 for Delagoa Bay Bay via Southampton. She was at Table Bay August 15.

Another Conference Suggested.

Pretoria, Aug. 30.—The Government to-day considered the reply of Mr. Chamberlain, the British Colonial Secretary, to the latest Boer proposals, which were substantially the granting of a five-years' franchise to the Uitlanders, a share in the election of the President of the Republic and increased representaion, probably eight seats for the Goldfields. In his reply, Mr. Chamberlain again urged the appointment of a commission of enquiry to effect reforms. He refused to discuss the question of suzerainty, but finally suggested a second conference between President Kruger and Sir Alfred Milner, the British High Commissioner, to be held at Cape Town, to arrange for the constitution of an Arbitration Court to arrange all the outstanding differences. It is believed that the Transvaal does not regard these suggestions as constituting a reply to her proposals. After handing Mr. Chamberlain's reply to the Transvaal Secretary of State, Mr. Conyngham Greene, the British diplomatic agent here, had a long audience with the State officials.

The Last Time.

London, Aug. 31.—The Times says it believes that this will be almost the last occasion when England will ask President Kruger whether or not he is in earnest in his promises of voluntary concessions.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Times says there is the strongest feeling throughout South Africa that the announcement of Prime Minister Schreiner in which he practically said that Cape Colony would observe neutrality in the event of hostilities between Great Britain and the Transvaal, means that he will allow the Orange Free State to mass troops against the British, while the Republic's own borders will be secured by the neutrality of the Cape Colony.

Kruger Prepares.

"The ammunition which Mr. Schreiner allowed to pass through Cape Colony came direct to Pretoria. It was never intended for the Orange Free State. President Kruger does not hesitate to express the view that war is inevitable. He has stocked the Presidency with ample provisions to secure his own person from privation, and he is often heard repeating the 83rd Psalm. The Matabeles are showing signs of unrest. The Boers are energetically engaged in poisoning the minds of the natives against the British, and they have approached the Zulu Chief Dinizulu, who appears undecided what cause to espouse. But the Zulus are prepared for the expected fighting, and it must be remembered that Dinizulu was deported to St. Helena with several other chiefs and kept prisoner there for several years by the British."

The Daily Mail this morning says it learns that a large consignment of cartridges manufactured for the Boers, has recently been shipped through German agents.

Reserves Ordered Out.

It is stated to-night that the reserve of the Royal Artillery has been instructed to hold itself in readiness for service in South Africa. This is the most serious military announcement since the beginning of the crisis. It has been reasonably alleged that previous movements were merely preparatory for eventualities. This points to early action in the field, and to the certainty of a conflict. The artillery next to the Engineers, is the strongest branch of the land forces. War is now discussed here as a certainty. It is the consensus of opinion that Kruger is proving himself a great man at his country's expense.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 28, 1899

THE AUTOMOBILE.

Man's best friend, the horse, look to his laurels for his day is surely passing and the time is doubtless not far distant when the clack of his hoofs in the streets of the average city will cease to be a familiar sound. This is an electric age and electrically propelled vehicles are bound to come more and more into favor. The horse will however, still have his place for pleasure and for sport, though an invisible steed will take his place in industrial pursuits. An interesting series of experiments recently made by two electrical engineers, who figured up the cost of maintenance of a horse, wagon and driver for a year as against the cost of an automobile delivery wagon, showed that the electric machine cost on an average over 40 cents a day less than the other outfit and did the same work in much less time. Aside from these conclusions, Messrs. Sever and Fliess, the electricians who made the test, offers others that should be of interest to the general public. They say, for instance, that the hygenic condition of cities will be greatly improved when automobiles come into general use, the late Col. Waring having estimated that no less than two thirds of all street dirt is directly traceable to the horse. The wear and tear on pavements will be reduced, while the use of rubber tires will lessen street noises. Still another important point, is that traffic in cities will not be so congested, owing to the saving in room now occupied by the horse. In New York City alone about 200,000 horses are in service, each of which increases the length of the unit vehicle by about nine feet. Taking the average width occupied by a horse and shafts as 2 feet, it is seen that 200,000 horses occupy about 3,000,000 square feet, or 80 6 acres of valuable street room. The danger of runaways will also be reduced. There is much less danger of a self-propelling vehicle getting away from the driver than of a horse from its driver. On this point there has been more or less dispute. However, as there are, generally speaking, half a dozen ways of stopping all automobiles, the danger in this direction may be regarded as reduced to a minimum. As for horses being frightened by the new-style vehicle, they will get over their fear.

The advantages of the automobile appear to be so many and obvious, that the wonder only is that they are not already in more general use.

BEWARE OF THE LAKE AT NIGHT.

A swimmer who enters the lake at night takes a double risk of losing his life. Not only is the air generally cooler, but the water has a depressing effect on the brain. When the swimmer is out a considerable distance from shore, the water appears as black as ink.

Two good swimmers have recently lost their lives at night. Every man who has gone into the lake after darkness has set in recognizes the fact that the bath de- [illegible] A strangely mysterious area of light surrounds the swimmer on dark nights, supposed to be caused by the destruction of the animalculae with which the water swarms. Distances are greatly magnified by the human eye at night, and lights ashore appear miles away.

In such a frame of mind, the boldest aquatic sportsman has only to lose his nerve to forfeit his life.

Keep out of the water at night.

A statistician has figured out that Canada's wheat crop this year will be worth about $45,000,000. Canada's expenditure from the Dominion treasury alone, to say nothing of the vast provincial and municipal expenses, will be somewhere between $55,000,000 and $60,000,000. Isn't this too much? We cannot help thinking that it is. There is too much extravagance in the public life of Canada. The people look upon the private business standard in Canada as one thing, and the public business standard as another. The same method of efficiency and economy should govern both.

THE SPECTRAL BELL.

A Superstition of the Sea Sometimes Met With on Land.

The tolling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and especially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobile to the passes who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is entirely different, they say, from any other noise of the ocean, and they scout the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old seafaring man the other night, "and, for that matter, it's sometimes heard on land. I know, because I've listened to it myself. Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story, I quit sailorizing for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sierra Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcropping of rotten quartz that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink a shaft, although it was the most God forsaken spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in a little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhere, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, while Whicher was in the hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and seemed right over a mountain spur, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solemn and plainer than ever. It was broad daylight, and that made the thing all the worse, which sounds funny, but is true. We stood it four times, and then Whicher climbed out of the hole and said, 'Let's go.' I was willing. I believe we had a good thing, but that bell—it was too many for us. It makes my flesh crawl to think about it even now."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A GUESS AT A TREATY.

Basis for General Agreement That Seems to Have Been Inspired.

IN A PHILADELPHIA PAPER

Canadian Lumber is to be Admitted Free Into the United States—Canada is to be Granted a Port on the Lynn Canal Great Britain is to Consent to a Modification in the Treaty of 1817.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—A Washington special says:—The authorship of a statement in the Philadelphia Press, which is owned by Postmaster General Smith, to the effect that a secret arrangement had been made with Canada regarding the lumber question and other disputes, has been traced to ex-Congressman James Hamilton Lewis, who states that he got his information from Senator Faulkner, one of the United States members of the commission. By the alleged terms of this secret arrangement

Canadian lumber is to be admitted free into the United States.

Canada is to be granted a port on the Lynn Canal.

Citizens of the United States are to have equal rights with citizens of the Dominion in the Canadian Fisheries.

Great Britain is to consent to the modification of the treaty of 1817, by which the United States is to be given permission to build warships on the Great lakes.

Coal from the eastern parts of the Dominion is to be admitted free into New England and, reciprocally western United States coal is to be admitted to Western Canada without payment of duty.

Great Britain is to consent to the modification of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty whereby the United States is to be permitted to build the Nicaragua Canal.

Look in Mac's Cabinet.

It is a matter of comment here that the newspaper whose editor is a member of President McKinley's Cabinet, and who has spent the best part of his life in discussing tariff questions, should permit a correspondent to commit the blunder of writing of a treaty as modifying the tariff laws. Any agreement made with Canada dependent upon tariff concessions can only become effective by the action of Congress.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has already declined to accept an agreement based on free lumber. It is absurd to presume that the representatives of Pennsylvania and West Virginia coal mines would agree to any proposition placing eastern Canadian coal on the free list.

The Lake Warships.

The statement that Great Britain consents to permit the creation of a reasonable fleet of modern ships to be built above the Niagara Falls excites the risibilities of all familiar with this phase of the controversy. The United States commissioners have never asked for anything of the sort and do not want it. The maintenance of such a fleet would involve a reciprocal right on the part of Canada, and thus a dangerous element would be introduced into our border relations constantly threatening a breach of the peace. All the United States wants is the privilege of constructing warships on the lakes to be taken to tide water through the locks and receive their armament only after they reach the seaboard.

The prospect that the Joint High Commission will go together again in the near future is very poor.

General Mena Victorious.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 30.—Advices from Nicaragua state that General Louis Mena, the bravest fighter of the Reyes revolt, who has placed himself at the head of the refugees in San Salvador, numbering about a hundred, defeated the troops on the frontier, and is now pressing on to Leon. He hopes to raise an army there to attack Zelaya at the capital.

Judge McMahon May Join the Cabinet.

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—Some extensive changes will be made at once in connection with the militia. Lt.-Col Drury of Kingston will go to Quebec Lt.-Col. Buchan, now in London, will takke command of the R.C.R.I. at Toronto, to relieve Lt.-Col. Otter.

Under the age regulation Lt.-Col. Otter would soon have to retire, but in view of his capabilities, the Militia Department has found a way of overcoming the retiring regulations, and he will be made a full Colonel. He will command the whole R.C.R.I. permanently, and a fifth company will be formed, which will be under his personal supervision. The location of this fifth company of the R.C.R.I. has not yet been determined, but may be at Ottawa.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the graphophone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a graphophone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return as much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Write for catalogue No. 30 to the COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, No. 313 Main street Buffalo, N. Y.

THE SPICE OF LIFE.

An Ohio girl laughed four hours without stopping. The name of the youth who wore the golf suit is not given.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Twentieth Kansas regiment is a vindication of the scholar in war. It contains more students than any other regiment under the flag.—Kansas City Star.

If the peace conference does any good in disarming Europe, it might be a good idea to try disarming the man who carries a gun in the United States.—Pittsburg Times.

Seats on the New York Stock Exchange sell at $40,000 nowadays. Few are more costly, but Uncle Sam's expenses at the seat of war to date have not been small.—Boston Globe.

It is stated that the English language is growing faster than any other, past or present. This is because those who use it have a great deal to say in this world.—Philadelphia Times.

An eastern prophet is quite positive that we are booked for a "long, hot, dry summer." Perhaps this seer is a first cousin to the fellow who predicted an early spring.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Chelsea woman who planted some peanuts this spring and mourned because the expected plants did not result has just learned that peanut growers usually select nuts for planting that have not been roasted.—Washington Post.

One way of distinguishing diamonds from glass and paste is to touch them with the tongue. The diamond feels much the colder. None of the editors of our acquaintance are complaining of chilblains on their tongues.—Minneapolis Times.

"With secret initiatory exercises," says a Chicago dispatch, "the well known suffrage leaders, Susan B. Anthony and the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, have been made members of the American Woman's Relief corps, No. 81." Was there a sidesaddle on the goat?—Buffalo Express.

Giovanni Cattetta came to this country on the Bretagne with a hump on his back. Some superstitious custom house officials touched it, obeying the old adage that to touch a hump brings good luck. They were rewarded, for the hump was artificial and filled with $1,600 worth of jewelry.—Boston Traveler.

PERT PERSONALS.

May Irwin is billed to play Juliet. Probably she will do it by the pound.—St. Louis Republic.

It is Russell Sage's desire to die rich—and be buried as cheaply as possible.—Washington Post.

Joe Choate is a happy man. The British are "seeing" his jokes.—Philadelphia North American.

If money talks, John D. Rockefeller can hold the floor the balance of his natural life.—Nashville American.

There will be no Hobson business when General Funston comes home. There is a Mrs. Funston.—Kansas City Star.

The kaiser has been called a "poodle prince" and can't do anything but treat the aspersion with dogged indifference.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Capitalist Hetty Green and Capitalist Russell Sage are standing closely together against all newfangled Scottish doctrines.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Congressman Elect Roberts only hears an occasional Mauser bullet from the firing line now, but wait until he gets into range at Washington.—San Francisco Chronicle.

William Winter sarcastically says that "Maude Adams as Juliet bleats her part." This has aroused such a protest that probably William feels sheepish himself.—Boston Advertiser.

We understand that Dr. Mary Walker is opposed to woman's rights. She believes only she and other sensible men can understand the blessed privileges of the ballot.—Louisville Post.

General Merritt says he hugs himself because he is an American citizen. A man who would rob his wife of that marital right is scarcely worthy to be called an American citizen.—Denver Post.

THE ROYAL BOX.

Queen Victoria is preparing for publication another volume of her journal.

The oldest queen of Europe now is the queen of Hanover, who was 81 years old in April. Queen Victoria comes next, being 80, while the ex-Empress Eugenie is 73.

Duke Karl Theodor of Bavaria, the oculist and brother of the late empress of Austria and of the ex-queen of Naples, has just celebrated his silver wedding at the castle of Tegernsee.

The Duke of Connaught is less than six years younger than the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, to whom he now becomes heir presumptive. The latter was born on Aug. 6, 1844, and the Duke of Connaught on May 1, 1850.

The Prince of Wales is said to have determined to give up yachting. His ventures in the sport have never resulted well, and he has already withdrawn from two yacht clubs with which he has been long identified.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

What a congressman learns during his first term he doesn't always tell when seeking a second.—Chicago News.

Every candidate for speaker this side of the Hudson river appears to be running as a western man.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The dinner has come to be a big factor in politics—not that men must eat, but that men must talk.—Cascade (Ia.) Courier.

When he insists that only honest men should hold office, Governor Roosevelt forgets how many offices there are.—Detroit News.

A majority of our politicians have small knowledge of the science which they assume to represent and in which they presume to teach their fellow citizens.—Atlanta Journal.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

The Siberian railway has already 50 refrigerator cars for taking butter to the Russian cities.

On Chinese railways the highest paid employees are the telegraph operators, who get $17.50 per month.

At the railway stations in Russia books are kept in which passengers may enter any complaints they may wish to make.

Railway whistles inflict torture on so many people that the efforts abroad to check the plague will be followed with interest. Austria has introduced a system of dumb signaling to start and stop the trains. Belgium is trying compressed air whistles instead of steam, and Germany experiments with horns.

ON THE TROLLEY.

The red is melting in the river,
The red is dying in the sky,
The evening star begins to quiver,
Belated birds go darting by—
Come, let us follow, follow, follow,
And find how fine it is to fly.

By pine woods where when noon was sunny,
The air with spicy balsams flowed,
By gardens full of sweets and honey
Where summer long the rose has glowed,
By weary wife and loitering lover,
Come, flash along the river road.

The forest wall across the river
Darkens within the curling tide,
The fragrant winds about us shiver,
We rock, we race, we rush, we ride,
Thrilled with the sweep of airy motion
And glad because the world is wide!

The night soars up the purple spaces,
The whirling winds divide the deep,
Strange gleams are on familiar places,
Swift lightnings underneath us leap,
As forward flying, flying, flying,
Upon the thunderbolt we sweep!

—Harriet Prescott Spofford in Youth's Companion.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

Negotiations Halting.

Detroit, Aug. 30.—A Washington special says: "The prospect that the Joint High Commission will meet again in the near future is very poor. The vacancy caused by the death of Lord Herschell not having been filled, the commission is without a Canadian chairman. Under the terms of the adjournment the commission can only be re-assembled upon the joint proclamation of the two chairmen, hence it follows that until Lord Herschell's successor is appointed and a new Canadian chairman chosen nothing can be done, and diplomatic relations are actually at a standstill."

No Advances by France

London, Aug. 30.—The officials of the Colonial Offices say no advances have been made by France looking to the abandonment of the Newfoundland treaty and fishing rights. That France would do so without a quid pro quo is said to be utterly impossible.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

RUSSIA HITS AT ENGLAND

Only Russian Ships Can Ply Between Black Sea and the East.

THE TABLES ARE TURNED.

Now it is Aguinaldo Who Assails and the U. S. Troops Defend.

Sons of Mahdi Slain in Battle—Fighting Between British and Dervishes—Afrikanders Still Hope for a Peaceful Solution of the Transvaal Trouble.

London, Aug. 30.—From a statement made at the annual meeting of the Shell Transport and Trading Company it appears that Russia has struck a serious blow at English trade in the Black Sea.

It was stated that the Russian Government had passed a law which comes into effect in 1900, prohibiting all ships not flying the Russian flag from trading between the Black Sea and Russian possessions in the Far East. At the end of this year the company's ships could, therefore, no longer ply between Batoum and Vladivostock, and so the board would be forced to sell the plant at the latter place. The company had invoked the aid of the Foreign Office, which had protested against this law as a violation of the conditions under which Russia was allowed to occupy Batoum. The protest, had, however, had no effect, and Batoum was no longer an open port. So far as the Far East was concerned, this showed what British trade might expect where Russia allowed to acquire further territory in the Far East.

Tables Turned.

Manila, Aug. 30.—It is reported that Aguinaldo, the Filipino leader, has ordered the native generals in the Province of Cavite to close in and attempt to take the town of Imus, and it is added that troops are centralizing around the town from the lake country.

The natives, it is further said, have an outpost of 650 men on the Dasmarinas road and an equal force in the town of Anabo. The United States troops are entrenching the town and they have no fear of the result of any attack by the natives.

Sons of Mahdi Slain.

London, Aug. 30.—The Sirdar, General Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, has cabled the foreign office that the Mahdi's two sons have been killed by British troops while resisting arrest at the village of Shukaba.

A force of British troops has been despatched there in consequence of a reported Mahdist insurrection on the Blue Nile, instigated by Khalifa Cherif and the Mahdi's sons. The latter had been living under supervision at Shukaba.

On the arrival of the troops the Dervishes met them with a warm fire. During the fight the Cherif and the Mahdi's sons were killed and the village was burned.

Peaceful Solution.

Cape Town, Aug. 30.—It is said in Afrikander circles here that in spite of the persistent warlike rumors there are good prospects for peace. It is believed that several strongly worded communications have been addressed to President Kruger of the Transvaal Republic, urging the desirability of using every effort to obtain a peaceful solution of the trouble. Hon. William P. Schreiner, of Cape Colony, has telegraphed to President Steyn, of the Orange Free State, earnestly expressing the hope that peace will be preserved and declaring his confidence that he would do his utmost to this end.

Fast Atlantic Service.

London, Aug. 30.—Despite the general idea to the contrary, it is understood that negotiations concerning the Canadian fast Atlantic line are still on foot. Some difficulty has apparently arisen with the Imperial Government. The British Treasury previously consented to bear a one third share of the subsidy in the case of two specific contracts, which, however, fell through. When, last March, they were asked on behalf of the Canadian Ministry whether they were prepared to give part of the subsidy towards three steamers and one steamer as a standby, the Imperial Government refused on the ground that the proposal was wholly inadequate to meet the mail, admiralty, and the general needs of the service.

On good authority it is learned, however that should the Canadian Government succeed in procuring a substantial contractor for an effective 21 knot service, no difficulty is expected with the Treasury on the score of the Imperial subsidy.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and easy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practised hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my own particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six-lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my darnedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

The men-of-war of the ancient Romans had a crew of about 225 men, of which 174 were oarsmen working on three decks. The speed of these vessels was about [illegible] knots an hour in fair weather.

CURTAIN-RAISERS.

England has eight "Little Minister" companies.

"The Belle of New York" has registered its four hundredth performance at the Shaftesbury in London.

John Kennell will star next season in a new comedy, "The Crooked Mr. Straight," a satire of the family physician.

Emperor William is to have a play produced. It remains to be seen whether his pen is mightier than his sword.

Three dramatists are on the list of the 40 French immortals, Anatole France, Francois Coppee and Henri Lavedan.

Miss Janette Steer, an English actress, appeared with success lately at a Birmingham theater in the role of Hamlet.

General Lew Wallace says the dramatization of his book, "Ben-Hur," will be produced only in Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Chicago.

A Pittsburg minister lately invited by public advertisement the management company and patrons of a city theater to visit his church during Sunday services.

English players are less hesitant than Americans to appeal to the public when impoverished. The latest example is Jolly Nash, the one time leading music hall singer.

In a play projected for production in New York the author tries to hold the mirror up to truth by making the villains in the piece lawyers, policemen and court officers.

Mme. Patti now earns about $80,000 a year, but has made as much as $250,000. Melba's income when fully engaged is $150,000, and Sarah Bernhardt has for years averaged $70,000.

Miss Nethersole's next season will begin early in October and will be specially interesting for the reason that she will for a time abandon her repertory and appear in one play, Clyde Fitch's "Sapho," which he is now preparing for her from Alphonse

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrass Randale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellison's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North American Review.

Toronto Man Arrested.

Brampton, Aug. 30—John Butchart, who gives his address as Dundas street, Toronto, and his occupation as commission merchant, has been confined in the jail here since Saturday, charged with having in his possession a number of chickens stolen from Farmer Fred Brown of Streetsville. The farmer surprised three men near his hen house, and upon their running away he organized a vigilance committee and started in pursuit. Soon they overhauled two wagons, one of which Butchart was driving. Two men in the other wagon jumped out and took to the woods and have not been landed as yet. In the wagons were found any number of chickens, many of which it is averred were warm, and some of which, it is understood, Brown identified as his. Butchart was committed to stand trial. It is said Butchart's companions were two brothers, Hamlin by name, also "commission merchants of Toronto.

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as vitality, easily impaired as often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the faltering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

HE TOOK NAILS.

It Was All the Same to the Man Who Was Treating.

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

In a certain little town not a great ways from Cleveland there are probably as many of these peculiar people as any place of its size can boast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is economical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a penny that didn't go for some actual necessity.

There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of bachelorhood, finally married. In this little town it is the custom for the happy bridegroom to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in to wish him joy. So the bridegroom in this instance had a box on the counter, and most of his patrons were regaled from it.

Pretty soon the ancient gentleman first referred to lounged in. The storekeeper, who felt friendly to all the world just then, pushed the box toward the newcomer.

"Have a cigar, Uncle Jim," he smilingly said.

Uncle Jim looked at the box and looked at the storekeeper.

"What's this for?" he asked.

The storekeeper slightly blushed.

"Been gettin married."

"Who? You?"

"Yep. Me."

"An you're standin treat, eh?"

"Yep," said the storekeeper.

The old man picked up a cigar.

"How much did these seegars cost ye, Ab?" he inquired.

"Oh," replied the storekeeper, "they cost me 'bout 4 cents. They're nickel cigars."

The old man dropped the cigar back in the box. Then his gaze wandered around the store.

"Well, Ab," he slowly drawled, "ef it's all the same to you, I'll take a pound o' nails."

And he got them.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HE VOTED FOR STONE.

And For One of the Most Remarkable Reasons on Record.

Theodore Bolton of Henry county tells this good story. "I was a strong Stone man," said Bolton, "when the ex-governor was a candidate for governor. One day while the campaign was at its hottest a Democrat from an outlying township came to see me. He called me out from my store and took me into a back alley. I thought he wanted to borrow $5 or ask me to go on his note. Finally, when he got to a selected place, away from the crowd, the old fellow laid down his cob pipe and said:

"'Say, Bolton, I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"'Why, Uncle Billy?' I inquired.

"'Well, they tell me, Tho, that Bill Stone beats his wife, beats her twice a week.'

"I looked the old man squarely in the eyes and never smiled and said, 'Now, Billy, you wouldn't vote against a man for beating his wife—and you a married man too.'

"'Tho, you don't beat your wife, do you?'

"'Whenever she needs it, Uncle Billy.'

"'Well, I didn't think that of you, Tho. Tho, I like you, but I can't vote for your man, Stone.'

"So we parted, and Uncle Billy went back to his home in the back township.

"Three weeks later the county convention to select delegates to the state nominating convention met in Clinton. The first man I met on the streets was Uncle Billy.

"'What are you doing here today, Uncle Billy?' I asked as the old fellow shook hands with me.

"'Why, I am a delegate from my township to this here convention.'

"'And how do you stand on the Stone question now?'

"'Well, I tell you, Tho. I have been thinking about what you told me, and it's all right. I'm a married man myself, and I am going to vote for Stone.'

"And he did," added Bolton, "and to this day believes Stone beat his wife twice a week, and that's why Stone got his vote in the Henry county convention."—Kansas City Journal.

Campaigning With a Fiddle.

When a young man, the late ex-Governor Oglesby worked in the old Macon tavern. There he met the lawyers riding the circuit and formed the acquaintance of Judge Robbins of Springfield, with whom he studied law two years. Returning to Decatur, he began practicing in a town of 400 inhabitants. He soon became popular as a speaker. On one occasion he was making a Whig speech on one side of the square, while a Democrat was making an opposition speech on the other side. The Democrat was fast getting the crowd when Mr. Oglesby, who was an old fashioned fiddler and played as well as he spoke, borrowed a fiddle from a man in the crowd and began to play. That broke up the opposition meeting, and the Democrat, left without an audience, came over and joined the crowd that was dancing to Oglesby's music.

Buffalo Bill's Fine Shooting.

Colonel Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," is one of the finest shots in the world. One of his most wonderful feats was not generally performed in public, for the reason that its failure or success could not be discerned at any great distance. It consisted in driving into a white board five short, flat headed tacks with five successive shots, from a distance just short enough to allow the tacks to be accurately sighted. So great was Colonel Cody's skill with the light rifle he used for this feat that, given favorable light, he could generally perform it six or seven times without a miss.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It Is a Fact.

"What are you sighing for?" asked the registry department of the dead letter office.

"No one has so many rejected addresses as I," was the sorrowful reply.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Any one can distinguish a poisonous serpent from a harmless one, for a venomous snake invariably possesses a triangularly shaped head and a blunt nose, while its tail is correspondingly blunt and stubby.

THE YOUNG MOTHER devotes herself to her first child as she never does to another. As child succeeds child she no longer reads them stories, tells them tales at twilight or joins with them in a merry romp at bed time. Does she give her later children less because she loves them less? No. She gives them less because she has less to give. The birth of each child has left her a little more weak, a little more nervous, a little more worn out. She hasn't strength to be their intimate and playmate. What a loss this means, to mother and to children. It is to such mothers, worn with the burden of motherhood and drained of vitality, that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes as the greatest of blessings. The timely use of this remedy prevents the strain and stops the drain from child bearing. Where this strain and drain have been experienced, mothers find that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acting directly upon the delicate organs which bear the burden of motherhood, restores them to a normal condition of health and elasticity. Ulcerations are cured. Inflammations are removed. The appetite becomes good, sleep is refreshing, the nerves grow quiet. There is a new brightness in the eye; a new lightness in the step. There has come the perfect happiness of perfect health.

"I began taking your 'Favorite Prescription' in August, 1897," writes Mrs. Mollie E. Grimes, of Flomaton, Escambia Co., Ala., "and took it until after my baby was born. I was in better health than I ever was with any of my other children. I think all women with child should use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I suffered everything that flesh could suffer with all the rest of my children, and I was also subject to miscarriage. Now I am the happy mother of a fine baby girl. She was the largest one of all my babies and at the birth I had an easier and shorter time than I ever had. I am stouter and healthier than I ever was."

DEATH OF JOHN MILLER.

Peterborough Loses Through Typhoid Fever a Promising Youth.

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of Master John Miller, who succumbed to typhoid fever in Nicholl's hospital, at six o'clock yesterday evening. He was taken to the hospital a little over six weeks ago, but despite the most careful attention both on the part of nurses and physicians, his strength proved insufficient to withstand the ravages of this dread disease, typhoid.
